5028. Verses 50 and 51, ending with the same clause to emphasize the connection between the two, should be read together. The Prophet's mission was (and is): (1) to show us the urgent need for repentance; and (2) to wean us from the precipice of false worship. The one convinces us of sin and opens the door to the Mercy of God; the other cures us of the madness of paying court to idle or worthless objects of desire; for in the worship of the One True God is included the best service to ourselves and our fellow-creatures. If fully understood, this sums up the whole duty of man: for it leads us by the right Path to the love of God and the love of man and of all creatures.

5029. They said this of Moses: li. 39. And they said this of the holy Prophet: xxxviii, 4; xliv. 14.

5030. There is a tradition of Evil as there is a tradition of Good. The ways of Evil in dealing with the teachers of Truth are similar in all ages. But such evil traditions would have no effect, were it not that the generation following them is itself ungodly, "transgressing beyond bounds"

One to another?
Nay, they are themselves
A people transgressing
Beyond bounds!

- 54. So turn away From them: not thine Is the blame.
- 55. But teach (thy Message):
  For teaching benefits
  The Believers.
- 56. A have only created has Jinns and men, that They may serve Me.
- 57. No Sustenance do I require form Of them, nor do I Require that they should Feed Me.
- 58. For God is He Who Gives (all) Sustenance,—
  Lord of Power,—
  Steadfast (for ever).
- 59. For the wrong-doers, Their portion is like

به عمر من من من المنطقة المنط

٣٥-ڧتُوَلُّ عَنْهُمُ نَهُمَّ ٱنْتَ بِمَلُوْمِ ۞

۵۵- وَ ذَكِرُ
 فَإِنَّ الذِّكْرِٰ يَ نَفْعُ الْمُؤْمِنِيْنَ
 ۵۹- وَ مَا خَلَقتُ الْجِنَّ وَالْإِنْسَ

٥٥- كَا ٱرْنِي كُونَهُ هُمْ مِّنْ بِرَزْتٍ وَ كَا آرِيْنُ آنَ يُطْعِمُون ۞

٥٥-إن الله هُو الترتمان دُو الْقُورة الْمَتِين ٠

اِلْالِيغُبُكُونِ ۞

٥٥- فَإِنَّ لِلَّذِينِينَ ظَلَمُوْا ذَنُوبًا

5031. When the Prophet freely proclaims his Message, it is not his fault if obstinate wickedness refuses to listen. He can leave them alone, but he should continue to teach for the benefit of those who have Faith.

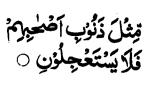

5032. Creation is not for idle sport or play; xxi. 16. God has a serious Purpose behind it, which, in our imperfect state, we can only express by saying that each creature is given the chance of development and progress towards the Goal, which is God. God is the source and centre of all power and all goodness, and our progress depends upon our putting ourselves into accord with His Will. This is His service. It is not of any benefit to Him; see the next two verses; it is for our own benefit.

5033, Sustenance: in both the literal and the figurative sense; so also "Feed Me" at the end of the verse. God is independent of all needs. It is therefore absurd to suppose that He should require any Sustenance, and still more absurd to suppose that we can feed Him! The gifts, the Sustenance, the goodness, all come from His side.

5034. God commands all power; therefore any power we seek must be from Him. And His power is steadfast, the same to-day as yesterday, and for ever. Therefore His help is always sure.

Unto the portion of their 3035 Fellows (of earlier generations): Then let them not ask Me To hasten (that portion)!

60. Woe, then, to the Unbelievers, On account of that Day 6006 Of theirs which they Have been promised!

٧- نَوَيْلٌ لِلَّذِيْنَ كَفَرُّوْا مِنْ يُوْمِهِمُ لَّذِي يُوْعَكُوْنَ أَ

5035. Each generation, that acts like any of its predecessors, must meet a similar fate. If the wicked came to an evil end in the past, the same results will follow in the present and the future. The punishment will come suddenly enough: let them not in mockery ask that it should be hastened.

<sup>5036.</sup> That is, their eternal Punishment in the Hereafter, as well as any punishment that may come to them in this life.

INTRODUCTION TO SURA LII ( $T\bar{u}r$ ).

This is the third of the group of seven Meccan Sūras described in the Introduction to S. l.

It is, like its predecessor, an early Meccan Sūra. The points here emphasized are: that Revelation is in accord with all God's Signs, including previous Revelations, and that the Hereafter is inevitable, and we must prepare for it.

Summary.—All Signs of God, including previous Revelations, point to the inevitable consequences of ill-deeds and good deeds: how can people deny or ignore the Message of Revelation? (lii. 1-49, and C. 228).

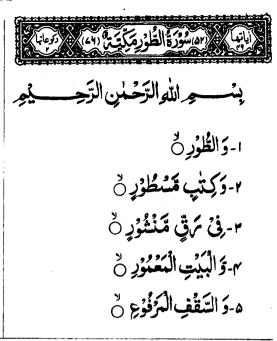

C. 228.—By the sacred Symbols—of the Mount Sublime, the Eternal Record on an open (lii. 1-49.) Scroll, the House of Worship thronged With men, the Canopy blue of unfathomed Heights, and the boundless Ocean with Its resistless tidal Swell, -all acts Of men must have their inevitable fruits. New worlds will be born with the Day of Doom: New values established by God's Decree. Consumed will be Evil in the fire of Reality: And Good will come to its own-in personal And social Bliss, but most in the full Realisation that God is good, the Beneficent, The Merciful ... Proclaim, then, the praises Of the Lord, nor heed the slanders of Ignorance Or Spite: for the Lord Who created will cherish; His Plan will overthrow the puny plots Of men. Hold firm with patience in Faith In the Hereafter, and sing His praises Even in the busy marts of this world, But chiefly in the stillness of the Night And the holy hour of Dawn as the Stars Retreat, singing glory to the Maker Of their own most glorious Sun.

Sūra LII.

Tur, or the Mount.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. By the Mount (of Revelation); 50.37
- 2. By a Decree Inscribed 5038
- 3. In a Scroll unfolded;
- 4. By the much-frequented Fane; 5039
- 5. By the Canopy Raised High; 5010

5037. The adjuration is by five things which we shall presently explain. An appeal is made to these five Signs in verses 1 to 6, and the certainty of future events is asserted in the most emphatic terms in verses 7 to 28, in three parts. viz. the coming of Judgment and the passing away of this phenomenal world (verses 7-10); the future ill consequences of ill-deeds done (verses 11-16); and future attainment of bliss and complete realisation of God's love and mercy (verses 17-28).

5038. See last note. The five Signs to which appeal is made are: (1) the Mount (of Revelation), verse 1; (2) the Decree Inscribed, verses 2-3; (3) The Much-frequented Fane, verse 4; (4) the Canopy Raised High, verse 5; and (5) the Ocean filled with Swell, verse 6.

Let us examine these in detail. Each of them has a figurative and a mystic meaning. (1) The Mount is the sublime world of Revelation. In the case of Moses it is typified by Mount Sinai; Cf. xcv. 2, where it is mentioned in juxtaposition to the sacred territory of Mecca, xcv. 3. In the case of Jesus it is the Mount of Olives: Cf. xcv. 1, and also Matt. xxiv. 3-51, where Jesus made his striking pronouncement about the Judgment to come. In the case of Muhammad it is the Mountain of Light, where the divine inspiration made him one with the spiritual world: Cf C. 31 and n. 11 (2). The Decree Inscribed is God's Eternal Decree. When it becomes Revelation to map, it is figured forth as something "inscribed", reduced to writing; and as it is made clear to the intelligence of man, it is further described as "in a scroll unfolded", that is, spread out so that everyone who has the will can seek its guidance.

5039. See the last two notes. (3) "The much-frequented Fane" (or House) is usually understood to mean the Ka'ba, but in view of the parallelism noted in the last note, it may be taken generally to mean any Temple or House of Worship dedicated to the true God. It would then include the Tabernacle of the Israelites in the wilderness, the Temple of Solomon, the Temple in which Jesus worshipped, and the Ka'ba which the holy Prophet purified and re-dedicated to true worship. These would be only illustrations. Other concrete places of worship would be included, and in a more abstract meaning, the heart of man, which craves, with burning desire, to find and worship God. The Fane is "much-frequented" as there is a universal desire in the heart of man to worship God, and his sacred Temples draw large crowds of devotees.

5040. (4) "The Canopy Raised High" is the canopy of heaven, to whose height or sublimity no limit can be assigned by the mind of man. It is Nature's Temple, in which all Creation worships God,—the Symbol in which the material and the visible merges into the spiritual and the intuitional.

- 6. And by the Ocean 5041 Filled with Swell;—5042
- 7. Verily, the Doom of thy Lord Will indeed come to pass;—
- 8. There is none Can avert it:—
- 9. On the Day when 5043
  The firmament will be
  In dreadful commotion.
- 10. And the mountains will fly Hither and thither. 5044
- 11. Men woe that Day
  To those that treat
  (Truth) as Falsehood;—5045

٧٠ وَالْبَحْرِ الْسَجُورِ لَ

٤- إنّ عَنَابَ رَبِكَ لَوَاقِعٌ لَ

٨-مًا لَا مِنْ دَافِعٍ لُ

٥- يُومُ تَمُورُ التَّهَامُ مَوْرًا لِ

١٠- و تَسِيْرُ الْحِبَالُ سَيْرًا ٥

١١- فَوَيْلُ يَوْمَئِنٍ لِلْمُكَنِّ بِيْنَ ٥

5042. This completes the five Signs or Symbols by which man may know for certain of the Judgment to come. Note that they are in a descending order;—the highest, or most remote from man's consciousness, being mentioned first, and that nearest to man's consciousness being mentioned last. The truth of Revelation; its embodiment in a Prophet's Message given in human language; the universal appeal of divine worship; the starry world above; and the encircling Ocean, full of life and motion below,—all are evidences that the Day of God will finally come, and nothing can avert it.

In Sufi interpretation each of these Symbols further typifies an aspect of the final Preacher of Unity: the Mount signifying his tremendous Personality; the Decree inscribed in a Scroll-Unfolded, the perspicuous Qur-ān; the much-frequented Fane, his heart open to every living creature; the Canopy Raised on High, his spiritual eminence; and the Swelling Ocean, the vast sea of his living knowledge.

5043. The Day of Judgment is typified by two figures. (1) "The firmament will be in dreadful commotion." The heavens as we see them suggest to us peace and tranquillity, and the power of fixed laws which all the heavenly bodies obey. This will all be shaken in the rise of the new spiritual world. Cf. Matt. xxiv. 29: "Immediately after the tribulation of those days...the powers of the heavens shall be shaken." For (2) see next note.

5044. (2) The mountains are a type of firmness and stability. But things that we think of as firm and stable in this material life will be shaken to pieces, and will be no more substantial than a mirage in a desert. Cf. lxxviii, 20.

5045. That Day will be a Day of Woe to the wrong-doers described in two aspects, the rebels against God and God's Truth, just as it will be a Day of Joy and Thanksgiving to the Righteous, who are described in three aspects in verses 17 to 28. The rebels are here described as being those who openly defied Truth and plunged into wrong-doing, or who trifled with truth, who jested with serious matters, who had not the courage to plunge openly into wrong-doing but who secretly took profit out of it, who wasted their life in doubts and petty quibbles. It is difficult to say which attitude did more harm to themselves and to others. Both are aspects of deep-seated sin and rebellion. But the mercy of God was open to all if they had repented and amended their lives.

- 13. That Day shall they be Thrust down to the Fire Of Hell, irresistibly.
- 14. "This", it will be said, 5016
  "Is the Fire,—which ye
  Were wont to deny!
- 15. "Is this then a fake, 5047 Or is it ye that Do not see?
- 16. "Burn ye therein:

  The same is it to you

  Whether ye bear it

  With patience, or not: 5018

  Ye but receive the recompense

  Of your (own) deeds."
- 17. As to the Righteous, 50.19
  They will be in Gardens,
  And in Happiness,—
- 18. Enjoying the (Bliss) which Their Lord hath bestowed On them, and their Lord Shall deliver them from The Penalty of the Fire.

﴿ ١١- الَّذِيْنَ هُمْ فِي خَوْضٍ يَلْعَبُونَ ۞ ﴿ الَّذِيْنَ هُمْ فِي خَوْضٍ يَلْعَبُونَ ۞ ٣- يَوْمَرُيُكَ خُوْنَ إِلَى نَارِجَهَنَّمَ دَعًا ۞

۱- إِنَّ الْمُتَّقِينُ فِيْ جَنَّتٍ وَ نَعِيْمٍ ۱- فَكِهِ بِنَ بِكَأَ اللَّهُ مُرَدَّبُهُ مُرْ وَوَفْ لِهُ مُرَّ بُهُ مُرْعَنَ ابَ الْجَحِيْمِ (

5046. In face of the Realities, it will be borne in on them how wrong it was for them in this life to deny or forget that every wicked thought or deed had its own retributive chain of consequences.

5047. Perhaps they had said that the Hereafter was a fake, mere old wives' tales! If they had given serious thought to the Signs of God, they would have been saved from that serious spiritual blindness: then they will see that the fault was their own, and that the warnings of the apostles of Truth were nothing but pure Truth.

5048. At that stage they will have no justification for anger or impatience; for their whole position will have been due to their own conduct and their rejection of God's Grace. Nor will there be time then for patience or repentance, for their period of probation will then have been over.

5049. The Righteous will be in Bliss far beyond their merits: their sins and faults will be forgiven by the grace of God, which will save them from the penalties which they may have incurred from human frailty. It will be their own effort or striving which will win them God's grace: see verse 19 below. But the fruits will be greater than they could strictly have earned.

- 19. (To them will be said:) 5050
  "Eat and drink ye,
  With profit and health, 5051
  Because of your (good) deeds."
- 20. They will recline (with ease)
  On Thrones (of dignity)
  Arranged in ranks; 50.52
  And We shall join them
  To Companions, with beautiful
  Big and lustrous eyes. 50.53
- 21. And those who believe
  And whose families 5054 follow
  Them in Faith,—to them
  Shall We join their families:
  Nor shall We deprive them
  (Of the fruit) of aught
  Of their works:
  (Yet) is each individual
  In pledge for his deeds. 5055

٩-كُلُوُا وَاشْرَبُوْا هَنِيَئَا بِمَا كُنُ تُثَرِّ تَعْمَلُونَ ٥

٨- مُتَّكِ يُنَ عَلَى سُرُدٍ مَّضْفُونَكَةٍ * وَ زَوَّجْنَلْهُ مُرْبِحُوْدٍ عِيْنٍ ۞

٧- وَالَّذِيْنَ الْمَنُوا وَاتَّبَعَتْهُمْ ذُرِيَّتُهُمْ باينمان الْحَقْنَا بِهِمْ ذُرِيَّتَكُمُ وَمَا اَكْتُلْهُمْ مِّنْ عَمَلِهِمْ مِّنْ شَيْءً وُمَا اَكْتُلْهُمْ مِنْ عَمَلِهِمْ مِّنْ شَيْءً

5050. The bliss of the Righteous is described in three aspects: (1) their individual bliss, verses 17-20; (2) their social bliss, verses 21-24; and (3) their satisfaction in the dissipation of past shadows, and their full understanding of the goodness of God, verses 25-28.

5051. Individual satisfaction is expressed in three types or figures of speech. (1) eating and drinking. (2) thrones of dignity, and (3) the joy of individual companionship. But the eating and drinking will not be like the physical acts, which are subject to drawbacks, such as excess, aftereffects and satiety: here there will be pure health, profit, and enjoyment. So about the other two: see the notes following.

Cf. with this the symbolical description of heaven in xxxvii. 40-49: while the general account is the same, special phases are brought out in the two passages to correspond with the context.

5052. Every one will have a Throne of dignity, but it does not follow that the dignity will be the same. Every one's Personality will be purified but it will not be merged into one general sameness.

5054. Zurrīyat: literally, progeny, offspring, family; applied by extension to mean all near and dear ones whether related or not, ancestors and descendants, friends, a circle, a group, whether contemporaneous in time or not. Love is unselfish, and works not merely, or chiefly, for Self, but for others; provided the others have Faith and respond according to their capacities or degrees, they will be joined on to the Head of the Group, even though on individual merits their rank might be less. This applies specially to a Prophet and his Ummat (or following).

5055. As already explained in the last note, though the love poured out by Prophets, ancestors, descendants, friends, or good men and women, will secure for their loved ones the enjoyment of their society, it is an indispensable condition that the loved ones should also, according to their lights, have shown their faith and their goodness in deeds. Each individual is responsible for his conduct. In the kingdom of heaven there is no boasting of ancestors or friends. But it is part of the satisfaction of the good ones who poured out their love that those who were in any way worthy to receive their love should also be admitted to their society, and this satisfaction shall in no wise be diminished to them.

- 22. And We shall bestow
  On them, of fruit and meat, 5056
  Anything they shall desire.
- 23. They shall there exchange,
  One with another,
  A (loving) cup
  Free of frivolity, 5057
  Free of all taint
  Of ill.
- 24. Round about them will serve, (Devoted) to them, Youths (handsome) as Pearls 5058 Well-guarded.
- 25. Althey will advance 50.54
  To each other, engaging
  In mutual enquiry.
- 26. They will say: "Aforetime, We were not without fear For the sake of our people."

٣٤-وَ آمُنُ دُنْهُ مُ بِفَاكِهُ آءِ وَّ لُحُمِر تِمَتَا يَشُتَهُونَ ۞

> ۲۷-يَتَنَازَعُونَ فِيهُا كَأْسًا لَا لَغُوْ فِيهُا وَ لَا تَأْثِيُمُ

٣٧-وَيُطُوُفُ عَلَيْهِمُ غِلْمَانُ لَهُمُ كَالَهُمُ لُوْلُوُّ مَّكُنُونُ ۞ ٢٤-وَٱقْبُلَ بَعُضُهُمْ عَلَى بَغْضٍ يَتَسَاءَلُونَ ۞ ٣٧- قَالُوَ النَّاكُنَا قَبُلُ

5056. To be interpreted allegorically as the "feast of reason and the flow of soul." Note that this verse is embedded in the midst of the description of social bliss; the individual bliss figured by meat and drink has already been mentioned in verse 19 above. The social pleasures will be of any kind or quantity they shall desire, but their desires will then be purified, just as their pleasures will be on a different plane.

5057. Drinking or loving cups, in our life on this earth, are apt to be misused in two ways: (1) they may be occasions for mere frivolity or the wasting of time; (2) they may lead to evil thoughts, evil suggestions, evil talk, or evil deeds. To safeguard the allegory, it is added that the Cup in the final Bliss will be free from any taint of this kind. It will be pure love without any grossness whatever.

 $Makn\bar{u}n$ : well-guarded, kept close, concealed from exposure: the beautiful nacreous lustre of Pearls is disfigured by exposure to gases, vapours, or acids; when not actually in use they are best kept in closed caskets, guarded from deteriorating agencies.

- 5059. The third—and the highest—stage of Bliss, after individual Bliss and social Bliss, is the satisfaction of looking to the Past without its shadows and realising to the full in the Present the goodness of God. See n. 5050. This, again, is shared in mutual converse and confidence.
- 5060. A man may be good, and may within limits have found goodness in his own spiritual life, but may have anxieties about his family or friends whom he loves. All such shadows are removed in heaven by the Grace of God, and he is free to dwell on it in his confidential converse with other men similarly circumstanced.

27. "But God has been good To us, and has delivered us From the Penalty Of the Scorching Wind. 5061

28. "Truly, we did call
Unto Him from of old:
Truly it is He,
The Beneficent, the Merciful!" 5003

SECTION 2.

- 29. Meherefore proclaim thou 5063
  The praises (of thy Lord):
  For by the Grace
  Of thy Lord, thou art
  No (vulgar) soothsayer, nor
  Art thou one possessed.
- "A Poet! we await
  For him some calamity (Hatched) by Time!"
- 31. Say thou: "Await ye!—
  I too will wait 5065
  Along with you!"

مىم-فَكُنَّ اللهُ عَلَيْنَا وَ وَقُلْنَا عَلَىٰابَ السَّـمُوْمِـ

٨-إِنَّا كُنَّا مِنْ تَبُلُ نَكْعُوٰهُ * إِنَّكَ هُوَ الْبَرُّ التَّرِجِيْمُ أَ

> ۲۹-فَلَكُرِّرْ فَكَا اَنْتَ بِنِعْمَتِ رَبِكَ بِكَاهِنٍ وَكَا مَجْنُوْنٍ ۚ

٣- قُلْ تَرَبِّصُوْا فَإِنِّىٰ مَعَكُمُ مِّنَ الْمُتَرَبِّصِيْنَ ۞

5061. "Us" includes the good man or woman and all whom he or she cared for. This would be an ever-expanding circle, until it includes all mankind through Teachers like the Chosen One. The "Scorching Wind" is the type of haste, arrogance, and fire, such as entered into the composition of Jinns: xv. 27. The destiny of man is to attain to calm, peace, security, the Garden of Bliss.

5063. The nature of the spiritual kingdom, with its apex in God, having been explained in the last section, the man of God is now exhorted to go on proclaiming the Message of God, despite all that the foolish, ignorant, or wicked men may say. The greatest of the Prophets was called a soothsayer, i.e. one who tells fortunes by divination, or a madman possessed of some evil spirit, or a poet singing spiteful satires. Much more may lesser men be called by such names because they proclaim the Truth. They should go on in spite of it all.

5064. If a spiteful poet foretells evil calamities for men, men can afford to laugh at him, hoping that Time will bring about its revenge, and spite will come to an evil end. For the various meanings of Raib, see n. 1884 to xiv. 9. Some Commentators suggest Death as the Calamity hatched by Time.

5065. Cf. ix. 52. If the wicked wait or look for some calamity to befall the preacher of Truth, the preacher of Truth can with far more justice await the decision of the issue between him and his persecutors. For he stands for right, and God will support the right.

- 32. Is it that their faculties
  Of understanding urge them 5066
  To this, or are they
  But a people transgressing 5067
  Beyond bounds?
- 33. Or do they say,
  "He fabricated the (Message)"? 5068
  Nay, they have no faith!
- 34. Let them then produce A recital like unto it,— If (it be) they speak The Truth!
- 35. Pere they created of nothing, on thing, on the oreators?
- 36. Or did they create The heavens and the earth? Nay, they have No firm belief.<sup>5070</sup>

٣٢-اَمُرَّتَاْمُرُهُمُ اَحُكَامُهُمُ بِهِلَااً اَمْهُمُ قَوْمُ طَاغُونَ ۚ

٣٣- آمُريَّقُونُونَ تَقَوَّلَهُ "

بَلُ لَا يُوْمِنُونَ ۚ

٣٣- فَلَيا لَوُ الْمِحَلِيْثِ مِتْمُلِهُ

١٥ كَانُوا صَلِ قِيْنَ ۚ

٥٣- آمُرُ خُلِقُوا مِنْ غَيْرِ شَيْءً

١مُرُ هُمُ الْخَلِقُوا مِنْ غَيْرِ شَيْءً

١مُرُ هُمُ الْخَلِقُونَ ۞

٢٩- آمُرُ خَلَقُوا السَّمُونِ وَ الْأَمْنَ

يَلُ لَا يُوتِنُونَ ٥

5066. It may be that the persecutors of Truth are ignorant, and their deficient faculties of understanding mislead them, but it is more often the case that they are perverse rebels against the law of God, defending their own selfish interests, and preventing those whom they oppress, from getting justice.

5067. Cf. li, 53.

5068. As an alternative to the charges of being a soothsayer or a madman or a disgruntled poet, there is the charge of a forger or fabricator applied to the man of God when he produces his Message. This implies that there can be no Revelation or inspiration from God. Such an attitude negatives Faith altogether. But if this is so, can they produce a work of man that can compare with the inspired Word of God? They cannot. Cf. x. 37-39, and xvii. 88.

5069 "Were they created of nothing?" Three possible alternative meanings are suggested by the Commentators, according to the meaning we give to the Arabic preposition min=of, by, with, for.

(1) 'Were they created by nothing? Did they come into existence of themselves? Was it a mere chance that they came into being? (2) Were they created as men out of nothing? Was there not a wonderful seed, from which their material growth can be traced, as the handiwork of a wise and wonderful Creator? Must they not then seek His Will? (3) Were they created for nothing, to no purpose? If they were created for a purpose, must they not try to learn that purpose by understanding God's Revelation?

5070. They obviously did not create the wonders of the starry heavens and the fruitful globe of the earth. But they can assign no definite cause to explain it, as they have no firm belief on the subject themselves.

- 37. Or are the Treasures
  Of thy Lord with them, 5071
  Or are they the managers
  (Of affairs)?
- 38. Or have they a ladder, 5072
  By which they can (climb
  Up to heaven and) listen
  (To its secrets)? Then let (Such a) listener of theirs
  Produce a manifest proof.
- 39. Or has He only daughters 5073 And ye have sons?
- 40. Or is it that thou

  Dost ask for a reward, 5074

  So that they are burdened With a load of debt?—
- 41. Or that the Unseen sors
  Is in their hands,
  And they write it down?
- 42. Or do they intend A plot (against thee)? 5076 But those who defy God Are themselves involved In a Plot!

٣- أَمْرُ عِنْكَ هُمُ خَزَّ أَثِنُ رَبِّكَ أَمْ هُمُ الْبُصِّنْطِرُونَ أَ كسنتبغون فعاوا وم-آمْ أَهُ الْهُنْكُ وَلَكُمُ ا

مُ والْمُكُورُ أَوْنَ لَ

5071. Cf. vi. 50, and n. 867. The Treasures of God's Knowledge are infinite. But the doubters and unbelievers have no access to them, much less can the doubters and unbelievers manage the wonders of this world. Must they not therefore seek grace and revelation from God?

5072. Cf. vi. 35: a reference to the Pagan belief that by means of a material ladder a man might climb up to heaven and learn its secrets!

5073. Cf. xvi. 57-59, and n. 2082. To the gospel of Unity it is repugnant to assign begotten sons or daughters to God. But the Arab superstition about angels being the daughters of God was particularly blasphemous as the Pagan Arabs hated to have daughters themselves and considered it a mark of humiliation!

5074. The men of God ask for no reward to preach the Message of God and direct men to the right Path. Why then do men shun them and persecute those who seek to bring blessings to them?

5075. The Unseen in the spiritual world is a subject of Revelation, though it works through the common everyday life of man. The men who reject Revelation simply because it is outside their own experience ought on the contrary to try to learn about it and seek to understand it.

5076. Shallow men who plot against Good are themselves the willing victims of insidious plots laid by Evil.

- 43. Or have they a god 5077
  Other than God?
  Exalted is God
  Far above the things
  They associate with Him!
- 44. Pree they to see
  A piece of the sky 5078
  Falling (on them), they Would (only) say: "Clouds Gathered in heaps!"
- 45. So leave them alone
  Until they encounter
  That Day of theirs,
  Wherein they shall (perforce)
  Swoon (with terror), -5079
- 46. The Day when their plotting Will avail them nothing And no help shall be Given them.
- 47. And verily, for those
  Who do wrong, there is Another punishment besides this: 5000

But most of them Understand not.

48. Now await in patience
The command of thy Lord:

٣٠ - آمرُ لَهُمُ إِلَّهُ غَيْرُ اللهِ * سُبُطْنَ اللهِ عَتَا يُثُرِّرُونَ ۞

٣٣-وَإِنْ يَرُوْا كِسُفًا مِّنَ التَّكَاءِ سَاقِطًا يَـُقُوٰلُوُا سَكَاكُ مَّرُكُومٌ ۞

۵۵-فَلَارُهُمُ حَتَّى يُلْقُوْا يَوْمَهُمُ الَّانِيُ فِيْهِ يُصْعَقُونَ نِ

٣- يَوْمَ لَا يُغْنِيٰ عَنْهُمُ كَيْلُهُ مُوشَيُّا وَلَا هُمْ يُنْصَرُونَ خ

> ٣- وَ إِنَّ لِلَّذِيْنَ طَلَمُوْا عَدَابًا دُوْنَ ذَلِكَ وَلَكِنَّ آكُثْرُهُ مُر لَا يَعْلَمُوْنَ ۞

> > ٨٠- وَاصْدِرْ لِحُكْمِرُ رَبِّكَ

5077. This is the final and decisive question: Is there really any god other than the One True God? Every argument points to the negative. A series of questions has been asked above, pointing to the negative of the superstitions of the godless. The gospel of Unity, Revelation, and the Hereafter has thus been preached by a searching examination of the position of the Unbelievers. And the Sūra ends with an exhortation to leave alone those who will not believe because they wish not to believe, and to let Time work out the web and pattern of God's Plan.

5078. In xxvi. 187. Shu'aib. the man of God, is challenged by the Companions of the Wood "to cause a piece of the sky to fall on us, if thou art truthful." Such a challenge, in some form or other, is addressed to all men of God. It is mere defiance. It has no meaning. If a piece of the sky were to fall on them, it would not convince them, for they would only say: "These are only clouds gathered in heaps," They do not wish to believe. Otherwise there are ample Signs and Evidences of God's Plan in Creation and in man's own heart.

5079 That is, the Day of Judgment. Cf. xxxix. 68, and n. 4343.

5080 The final Judgment is for all. But in addition, wrong-doers have to fear a retribution or punishment in this very life, an open punishment through external events, or at least the bitter pangs of conscience within.

For verily thou art In Our eyes: <sup>5081</sup> And celebrate the praises Of thy Lord the while Thou standest forth, <sup>5082</sup>

49. And for part of the night 5083
Also praise thou Him,—
And at the retreat 5081
Of the stars!

فَإِنَّكَ بِٱعْيُنِنَا وَسَبِّحُ بِحَمُّدِ مَ تِكَ حِيْنَ تَقُوْمُ ٥

> ٣٩ - وَمِنَ الْيَهِلِ فَسَرِيمَهُ هُ وَإِذْبَارُ النُّجُوْمِ أَ

5081. The man of God must strive his utmost to proclaim the Message of God: as for results, it is not for him to command them. He must wait patiently, in the knowledge that he is not forgotten by God, but is constantly under God's eyes,—under His loving care and protection. And he must glorify God's name, as he is a standard-bearer of God's Truth.

5082. The translators and Commentators nearly all understand  $laq\bar{u}mu$  in the sense of rising up from sleep. But the rendering I have given is consistent with Quranic usage. In xxvi. 218, we have the same two words  $b\bar{t}na$   $taq\bar{u}mu$ , meaning "standing forth (in prayer)". In lvii. 25, we have "li-yaq $\bar{u}m$  an- $n\bar{a}su$  bil-qisti", which obviously means "that men may stand forth in justice," i.e. do all their business in justice. In lxxviii 38, we have  $yaq\bar{u}mu$  used for the angels standing forth in replice.

On my rendering the meaning will be: 'celebrate God's praises when you stand forth in prayer, or at all times when you go about your business; but also for part of the night and at early dawn when worldly life is at a standstill.'

5083. It is not necessary to understand this for any particular canonical prayers. It is good to spend a part of the night in prayer and praise: Cf. lxxiii, b. And the Dawn is a daily recurring miracle of nature, full of spiritual influences and "testimony": Cf. xvii, 78-79.

5084. Idhār-un-nujūm; the retreat of the stars: the glorious hour of early dawn. In cxiii, 1, we seek God's protection as "Lord of the Dawn".

INTRODUCTION TO SÜRA LIII (Najm).

This is an early Meccan Sūra, and is the fourth of the series of seven which were described in the Introduction to S. l.

The particular theme of this Sūra is that Revelation is not an illusion: the illusion is in the minds of those who doubt and have false ideas of God: God is the source and goal of all things.

In some Sūras the consecutive arrangement is shown or suggested by a cue-word. Here the cue-word is "star", corresponding to "stars" in the last verse of the last Sūra. So in xlvi. 1, the words: "Exalted in Power, Full of Wisdom": are carried forward from the last verse of S. xlv, and indeed the same words occur in the first verse of S. xlv. So, again the words: "Most Merciful, Oft-Forgiving": in xxxiv. 2, refer back to the words: "Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful": in the last line of S. xxxiii. In S. liv. 1, the nearness of Judgment recalls the same idea at the end of the previous Sūra (liii. 57). Other examples will also be found.

Summary.—The impression received by the Prophet in revelation is neither error on his part nor deception by others, nor does he speak from selfish motives: it comes clearly from God, Who is not what the vain imaginations of men conceive: He is all-in-all, First and Last, Lord of all, Ample in forgiveness (liii. 1-32, and C. 229).

Those who turn away are petty and ignorant, not knowing that God is the source and goal of all things—in men, in nature, and in the events of history: therefore serve ye Him (liii. 33-62, and C. 230).

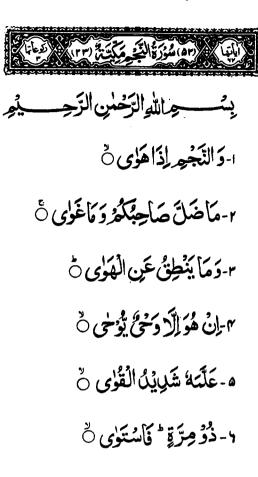

C. 229.—True revelation is not a process (liii, 1-32.) Either of error or deception, nor does The Prophet speak from himself as he desires. It is God's inspiration, true, without doubt. It is reality,—the inner reality Of heaven as far as knowledge can reach. Not the false ideas and idols that men Construct for themselves, names without truth Behind them. The goal of all things is God, As He is the One from Whom starts Reality. No other can e'er intercede except As He wills. He made us, and knows all That we are. It is not for us to justify Ourselves, but to offer ourselves as we are.

Sura LIII.

Najm, or the Star.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. By the Star 5085
  When it goes down,—
- 2. Your Companion is neither 5086 Astray nor being misled,
- 3. Nor does he say (aught) Of (his own) Desire.
- 4. It is no less than
  Inspiration sent down to him:
- 5. He was taught by one 5087 Mighty in Power,
- 6. Endued with Wisdom: For he appeared (In stately form)

5085. Najm is interpreted in various ways. As most commonly accepted, it means either a Star generically, or the close cluster of seven stars known as the Pleiades in the Constellation Taurus, which the sun enters about the 21st of April every year. In mid-April, or a little later, the beautiful cluster would set just after the sun, after having gradually ascended the sky in the winter months. In late May, or a little later, it would rise just before the sun. In its western aspects, it might be considered a spring constellation. To open-air nations (including the Arabs) whose climate usually presents starry skies, this is an object of great interest, and many folklore tales gather round it. When so glorious a cluster is content to bow down in the horizon and merge its light in the greater light created by God (see the last three lines of C 228), it becomes a symbol of humility in beauty and power before the Most High, Whose revelation discloses the summit of beauty, power, and wisdom.

Hawā in the text may mean either "goes down (or sets)" or "rises". Whichever meaning we take, it makes no difference to the symbolic interpretation given above.

5086. "Your Companion" is the holy Prophet Muhammad, who had lived among the Quraish all his life. He is defended from three kinds of charges that the Unbelievers brought against him: (1) that he was going astray, either through defect of intelligence or through carelessness; (2) that he was being misled or deceived by evil spirits; and (3) that he spoke out of a whim or impulse, or from a selfish desire to impress his own personality. None of these charges was true. On the contrary he had direct inspiration from God.

5087. This is referred by the Commentators to the angel Gabriel, through whom the inspiration came. Cf. lxxxi, 20.

- 7. While he was in The highest part <sup>5088</sup> Of the horizon:
- 8. Then he approached And came closer,
- 9. And was at a distance
  Of but two bow-lengths or (even) nearer;
- 10. So did (God) convey. 5090
  The inspiration to His Servant—
  (Conveyed) what He (meant)
  To convey.
- 11. The (Prophet's) (mind and) heart In no way falsified 5001 That which he saw.
- 12. We ill ye then dispute With him concerning What he saw?
- 13. For indeed he saw him At a second descent, 5002
- 14. Near the Lote-tree 5098

  Beyond which none may pass:

٥- وَهُوَ بِالْأُفِقِ الْأَعْلَى أَ

٨- ثُمَّر دَنَا فَتَكُلِّلُ ٥

٩- نَكَانَ قَابَ قَوْسَيْنِ أَوْ أَدُنْ ٥

١٣- وَلَقُلُ رَأَهُ نَزْلَةً أُخْرِي ٥

١٠٠ عِنْكَ سِكَرَةِ الْمُنْتَهَى

5088. Gabriel appeared in stately form, perhaps towering above the Mountain of Light (see C. 31). Islawā in verse 6, translated "appeared", means literally "mounted" or "ascended", or "set himself to execute a design": see n. 1386 to x. 3.

5090. Gabriel would be just a messenger, to do no more than convey God's Message to God's Apostle.

5091. "Heart" in Arabic includes the faculty of intelligence as well as the faculty of feeling. The impression conveyed was pure truth; there was no illusion in it.

5092. The first occasion when Gabriel appeared in a visible form was at the Mountain of Light, when he brought his first revelation beginning with Iqraa: see C. 29-35. The second was at the Prophet's Mirāj or Ascension: see Introduction to S. xvii, paras 2-4. These were the only two occasions when Gabriel appeared in visible form. The Mi'rāj appearance was near the Lote-tree in the highest heaven, above which (figuratively) is the Throne of God.

5093. For the Lote-tree in its literal meaning, see n. 3814 to xxxiv. 16. The wild Lote is thorny; under cultivation it yields good fruit and shade, and is symbolic of heavenly bliss, as here and in lvi. 28. The symbolism here is that the farthest Lote-tree marked the bounds of heavenly knowledge as revealed to men, beyond which neither angels nor men could pass.

<sup>5089.</sup> Two bow-shots (counting 100 to 150 yards to a bow-shot) would be a clearly visible distance. But Ṣūfī mysticism would interpret: "two drawn bows, with their chords touching", making a complete circle of union. In this case the "one Mighty in Power" in verse 5 above would be not Gabriel, but the Supreme Being, Who Himself taught the Prophet.

- 15. Near it is the Garden Of Abode. 5034
- 16. Behold, the Lote-tree Was shrouded (In mystery unspeakable!)

  And for Him, the female?

5094. The Mansion or Throne (figuratively) or Special Presence,—if the Throne or Presence could ever be localised in our thoughts: for God's "Throne doth extend over the heavens and the earth" (ii. 255). The point was reached when the spiritual knowledge of man could reach no higher. The Sūfis interpret the Lote-tree in Islam to be what the Burning Bush in the valley of Tuwā was to Moses: Q. xx. 10-13, and n. 2541; and Exod. iii. 1-6. Only, in the case of Moses it was but a prefigurement of the divine effulgence on this earth: in the case of Muhammad it was the divine Glory in heaven itself, and it was "shrouded in mystery unspeakable". This was indeed "the 5095. From the heights of divine Glory, we come back again to this sorry earth, with its base idolatries. We are asked to "look at this picture, and at that!" The three principal idols of Pagan Arab Idolatry were the goddesses Lat, Uzza, and Man t. Opinions differ as to their exact forms: one version is that Lat was in human shape, 'Uzza had its origin in a sacred tree, and Manat in a white stone. They all represented God in female form.

5096. To show God in human shape, or imagine sons or daughters of God, as if God were flesh, was in any case a derogation from the supreme glory of God, high above all creatures, even if the human shapes were invested with great beauty and majesty as in the Greek Pantheon. But when we consider in what low opinion Pagan Arabia held the female sex, it was particularly degrading to show God, or so-called daughters of God, in female shapes. Cf. xvi. 57-59, and n. 2082; also lii, 39, and n. 5073.

  Anything he hankers after? 50099

  That the End and
  The Beginning (of all things)
  Belong.

SECTION 2.

26. The ow many-so-ever be
The angels in the heavens, 5100
Their intercession will avail nothing
Except after God has given 5101
Leave for whom He pleases
And that he is acceptable
To Him.

> ۲۹-وَكَمُرْضُ مِّلَكِ فِى السَّلُوتِ لَا تُغُنِّىٰ شَفَاعَتُهُمُ شَيْئًا إِلَّا مِنْ بَغْدِ أَنْ يَأْذَنَ اللهُ

لِئُ يُثَانُ و كَيْرُضَى ٥

5097. Cf. vii. 71; xii. 40, n. 1693. The divine names which they give to stocks and stones, or to heroes living or dead, or even to prophets and men of God, are but the creations of their own fancy. Whatever they were, they were not gods.

5098. Cf. vi. 116. Conjecture is a dangerous thing in speaking of divine things. It follows lines which reflect the lusts of men's own hearts. Why not follow the divine guidance which comes through men of God?

5099. The unpurified desires of men's hearts often lead to destruction, for they are dictated by Evil. The true source of guidance and light is God, just as He is also the goal to which all persons and things—all existence—returns.

5100. We are apt to imagine the angelic host of heaven as beings of immense power. But their power is all derived from God. Men, when they attain to the highest spiritual dignities, may have even more power and position than angels in the sight of God, as is typified by angels being bidden to bow down to Adam: ii, 34. The Quraish superstition about angels being intermediaries and intercessors for man with God is condemned.

5101. Cf. xx. 109 and xxi. 28. No one can intercede except with the permission of God, and that permission will only be given for one who is acceptable to God. For a possible different shade of meaning, see n. 2634 to xx. 109.

- 27. Those who believe not In the Hereafter, name
  The angels with female names. 5102
- 28. But they have no knowledge
  Therein. They follow nothing
  But conjecture; and conjecture 5103
  Avails nothing against Truth.
- 29. Therefore shun those who
  Turn away from Our Message
  And desire nothing but
  The life of this world.
- 30. That is as far as 5104

  Knowledge will reach them.

  Verily thy Lord knoweth best

  Those who stray from

  His Path, and He knoweth

  Best those who receive guidance.
- 31. Yea, to God belongs all
  That is in the heavens
  And on earth: so that
  He rewards those who do 5105
  Evil, according to their deeds,
  And He rewards those who
  Do good, with what is best.
- 32. Those who avoid Great sins and shameful deeds,

٨٠-إنَّ الَّذِينَ لَا يُؤْمِنُونَ بِالْأَخِرَةِ لَيْسَمُوْنَ الْمَلَائِكَةَ تَسْمِيكَةَ الْأُنْثَى ٢٠- وَمَا لَهُ مُربِهِ مِنْ عِلْمِرْ إِنْ يَتَبِعُوْنَ إِلَا النَّطَنُّ وَإِنَّ الظَّنَّ لَا يُغْنَىٰ مِنَ الْحُقِّ شَيْئًا ﴿ ٢٩- فَأَعُرِضُ عَنْ مَّنْ تَوَلَّىٰ فَعَنْ ذِكْرِنَا وَلَمُ يُرِدُ إِلَّا الْحَيْوِةَ النُّانِيا ٥ ٣- ذلِك مَبْلَغُهُمْ مِّنَ الْعِلْمِرْ إِنَّ رَبِّكَ هُو أَعْلَمُ بِمَنْ ضَلَّ  ${}^{\circ}$  غُنُ سَرِيثِلِهِ  ${}^{\circ}$  وَهُو اَعْلَمُ بِمَنِ اهْتَالَى  ${}^{\circ}$ ٣- وَيِلْهُ مَا فِي التَّمُوٰتِ وَ مَا فِي الْرَيْضِ لِيُجْزِى الَّذِينَ ٱسَاءُ وَا بِمَا عَبِلُوا ويُجْزِي الَّذِيْنَ أَحْسَنُواْ بِالْحُسُنِي ٥

5104. Men with a materialist turn of mind, whose desires are bounded by sex and material things, will not go beyond those things. Their knowledge will be limited to the narrow circle in which their thoughts move. The spiritual world is beyond their ken. While persons with a spiritual outlook, even though they may fail again and again in attaining their full ideals, are on the right Path. They are willing to receive guidance, and God's Grace will find them out and help them.

5105. All deeds have their consequences, good or ill. But this is not an iron law, as the Determinists in philosophy, or the preachers of bare Karma, would have us believe. God does not sit apart. He governs the world. And Mercy as well as Justice are His attributes. In His Justice every deed or word or thought of evil has its consequence for the doer or speaker or thinker. But there is always in this life room for repentance and amendment. As soon as this is forthcoming, God's Mercy comes into action. It can blot out our evil, and the "reward" which it gives is nearly always greater than our merits.

Only (falling into) small faults,—Verily thy Lord is ample 5166
In forgiveness. He knows
You well when He brings
You out of the earth,
And when ye are hidden
In your mothers' wombs.
Therefore justify not yourselves: 5107
He knows best who it is
That guards against evil.

اللَّ اللَّكَمَرُ إِنَّ رَبِّكَ وَاسِعُ الْمَغُفِرَةِ * هُوَاعُلُمْ بِكُمْ إِذْ اَنْشَاكُمْ مِّنَ الْاَمْضِ وَإِذْ اَنْتُمْ اَحِنَّةً فِى بُطُونِ المَّلْهَ بِكُمْ فَلَا تُنَكُّرُ النَّفُكُمُ فِي الْنَقْيَ أَنْ هُوَ اَعْلَمُ بِمَنِ النَّقِي أَ

C. 230.—When once in God's Way, turn not away, (liii, 33-62.) Nor check your generous impulse to give Your all to God. The spiritual world Unseen is above all worldly bargains. Each soul must bear its own responsibility. It must strive its utmost and attain its end. The final Goal of all is God .. In His hands are Laughter and Tears, Life And Death, the mystery of Birth and Creation. And the Hereafter. He controls our Bliss And inner satisfaction. He is Lord Of the highest and noblest in Nature. His hand Traces the course of History. Learn. Oh learn from His Revelation, and Adore the Lord of your inmost Soul!

٣٣- ٱفَرَءَ بِنُ الَّذِي تَوَلَّىٰ كُ

٣٧- وَ أَعْظَى قَلِيْلًا وَ أَكُنَّاى ٥

5106. God's attributes of Mercy and Forgiveness are unlimited. They come into action without our asking, but on our bringing our wills as offerings to Him. Our asking or prayer helps us to bring our minds and wills as offerings to Him. That is necessary to frame our own psychological preparedness. It informs God of nothing, for He knows all.

5107. As God knows our inmost being, it is absurd for us to justify ourselves, either by pretending that we are better than we are, or by finding excuses for our conduct. We must offer ourselves unreservedly, such as we are: it is His Mercy and Grace that will cleanse us. If we try, out of love for Him, to guard against evil, our striving is all that He asks for.

5108. The particular reference in this passage, according to Baidhawi, is to Walid ibn Mugaira, who bargained with a Quraish Pagan for a certain sum if the latter would take upon himself the sins of Walid. He paid a part of the sum but withheld the rest. The general application that concerns us is threefold: (1) if we accept Islam, we must accept it whole-heartedly and not look back to Pagan superstitions; (2) we cannot play fast and loose with our promises and (3) no man can bargain about spiritual matters, for he cannot see what his end will be, unless he follows the law of God, which is the law of righteousness.

    - ٢٧٠ وَأَنَّ إِلَى رَبِّكَ الْمُنْتَهَى ٥

5109. 'So that he can see what will happen in the Hereafter': for no bargains can be struck about matters unknown.

5110. Books of Moses: apparently not the Pentateuch, or the Taurāt, but some other book or books now lost. For example, the Book of the Wars of Jehovah is referred to in the Old Testament (Num. xxi. 14) but is now lost. The present Pentateuch has no clear message at all of a Life to come.

5111. No original Book of Abraham is now extant. But a book called "The Testament of Abraham" has come down to us, which seems to be a Greek translation of a Hebrew original. See n. 6094 to lxxxvii. 19, where the Books of Moses and Abraham are again mentioned together.

- 5112. One of the titles of Abraham is Hantf, the True in Faith: Cf. xvi. 120, 123.
- 5113. Here follows a series of eleven aphorisms of ancient wisdom apparently incorporated in current Semitic folklore. The first is that a man's spiritual burden—the responsibility for his sin—must be borne by himself and not by another: Cf. vi. 164. There can be no vicarious atonement.
- 5114. The second and third aphorisms are that man must strive, or he will gain nothing; and that if he strives, the result must soon appear in sight and he will find his reward in full measure.
- 5115. The fourth, fifth, and sixth aphorisms are that all things return to God; that all our hope should be in Him, and we should fear none but Him; and that He alone can give Life and Death

- 43. That it is He Who Granteth Laughter and Tears;
- 44. That it is He Who Granteth Death and Life;
- 45. That He did create
  In pairs,—male and female, 5116
- 46. From a seed when lodged (In its place);
- 47. That He hath promised A Second Creation (Raising of the Dead); 5117
- 48. That it is He Who Giveth wealth and satisfaction; 5118
- 49. That He is the Lord
  Of Sirius (the Mighty Star); 5119
- 50. And that it is He
  Who destroyed the (powerful)
  Ancient 'Ad (people), 5120

٣٣- وَأَنَّهُ هُوَ أَضُكُ وَ ٱبْكُلِي لِ

٣٨- وَأَنَّهُ هُوَ أَمَاتَ وَ آخَيانَ

٣٩- وَ أَنَّهُ هُو رَبُّ الشِّعُرى ٥

مْ - وَ أَنَّهُ آهُلُكُ عَادُا الْأُولَى لَ

5116. The seventh aphorism relates to the mystery of sex: all things are created in pairs: each sex performs its proper function, and yet its wonderful working is part of the creative process of God: the living seed fructifies, but contains within itself all the factors disclosed in its later development and life.

5117. No less wonderful is the promise He has made about the raising of the dead, and a new life in the Hereafter, and this is the subject of the eighth aphorism.

5118. Wealth and material gain are sought by most men, in the hope that they will be a source of enjoyment and satisfaction. But this hope is not always fulfilled. There is a psychical and spiritual side to it. But both the material and the spiritual side depend upon the working of God's Plan. This is referred to in the ninth aphorism

5119. The tenth aphorism refers to a mighty phenomenon of nature, the magnificent star Sirius, which is such a prominent object in the skies, in the early part of the solar year, say, from January to April. It is the brightest star in the firmament, and its bluish light causes wonder and terror in Pagan minds. The Pagan Arabs worshipped it as a divinity. But God is the Lord, Creator and Cherisher, of the most magnificent part of Creation, and worship is due to Him alone.

5120. The eleventh and last aphorism refers to the punishment of the most powerful ancient peoples for their sins. For the 'Ad people, see n. 1040 to vii. 65, and for the Thamud, see n. 1043 to vii. 73. They were strong; and they were talented: but their strength and their talents did not save them from being destroyed for their sins. The same may be said about the earlier generation of Noah, who were destroyed in the Flood: they "rejected Our Signs: they were indeed a blind people" (vii. 64); see also n. 1039 to vii 59; and xi. 25-49.

Ancient ' $\bar{A}d$  (people): some Commentators construe, "First ' $\bar{A}d$  people", distinguishing them from the later 'Ad people, a remnant that had their day and passed away.

- 51. And the Thamud, Nor gave them a lease Of perpetual life.
- 52. And before them,
  The people of Noah,
  For that they were (all)
  Most unjust
  And most insolent transgressors,
- 53. And He destroyed
  The Overthrown Cities 5121
  (Of Sodom and Gomorrah),
- 54. So that (ruins unknown)
  Have covered them up.
- 55. Then which of the gifts 5122 Of thy Lord, (O man,) Wilt thou dispute about?
- 56. This is a Warner,<sup>5123</sup>
  Of the (series of) Warners
  Of old!
- 57. The (Judgment) ever approaching Draws nigh:
- 58, No (soul) but God Can lay it bare.
- 59. Do ye then wonder 5121 At this recital?

اه-و كَنُودُا فَكَأَابُقَى "

۵۲-وَقُوْمَ نُوْجِ مِّنْ تَبُلُ إِنَّهُمُ كَانُوا هُمُ ٱظْلَمَ وَٱطْغَى ٥

مه-وَالْمُؤْتَفِكَةَ آهُوٰىٰ نُ

مه - نَعَشَّهَا مَا غَثِّمي أَ

هه-فَبِآيِ الآءِ رَبِكَ تَتَمَازَى ٥

٧٥ - هٰنَا نَذِيُرٌ مِّنَ النُّنُ رِ الْأُولَى ٥

٥٥- أزنتِ الأزِفَةُ أَ

مه - لَيْسُ لَهَا مِنْ دُوْنِ اللهِ كَاشِفَةً ٥

٥٥ - أَفِينَ هٰنَا الْحَيِايُثِ تَعْجُبُونَ ٥

5121. Verses 53-60 may be construed as a commentary on the aphorisms. The story of the Overthrown Cities, to which Lot was sent for a warning, will be found in xi. 74-83 and the notes thereon. This story may well be treated as separate from the aphorisms as it refers to events that happened in the later life of Abraham.

5122. With a slight modification this forms the refrain of the next Sūra but one, the highly poetical Sūra of Raḥmān. In S. liv. 15, 17, etc., there is a similar refrain in different words. Every gift and benefit you have is from God, and to save you from the just punishment of your sins, God at all times sends revelations and Messengers to warn you. Why not accept God's Grace instead of disputing about it?

5123. The Prophet before the Quraish (and before us) continues the line of men of God who have come to teach mankind and lead men into unity and righteousness. Shall we not listen to his voice? Every day that passes, the Judgment approaches nearer and nearer. But God alone can say at what precise hour it will come to any of us. It is certain, and yet it is a mystery, which God alone can lay bare.

5124. Mere wondering will not do, even if it is the wonder of admiration. Each soul must strive and act, and God's Mercy will take it under its wings.

60. And will ye laugh 5125
And not weep,—

61. Wasting your time In vanities?

62. But fall ye down in prostration To God, and adore (Him)! 5126

٢٠ وَتَضْعَكُونَ وَلَا تَبْكُونَ نَ

الا-و أَنْ تُعْرُسُمِ لُونَ ٥

﴿ إِلَّهِ عَالَمُ عُلُوا لِلَّهِ وَاعْبُلُوا اللَّهِ عَالَمُهُ وَالْحَالُ وَالْحَالُ وَالْحَالُ وَا

<sup>5125.</sup> The higher issues of Life and the Hereafter are serious, and therefore all that we do in this life is serious and important. We must shun inanities and frivolities. It is no laughing time. If we only realised our own shortcomings, we should weep, with our good angels who weep for us. But weeping by itself will not help. We must try and understand God and adore Him. Thus shall we be able to understand ourselves and our fellow-men.

<sup>5126.</sup> And so we are invited to prostrate ourselves and adore Him. For this is the true end of Revelation and the true attitude when we understand the world, Nature, History and the working of God's Plan.

INTRODUCTION TO SURA LIV (Qamar).

This is an early Meccan Sūra, the fifth in the series dealing with Judgment, and the truth of Revelation, as explained in the Introduction to S. l.

The theme of the Sūra is explained by the refrain: "Is there any that will receive admonition?" which occurs six times, at the end of each reference to a past story of sin and rejection of warnings and in the appeal to the simplicity of the Qur-ān (verses 15, 17, 22, 32, 40, and 51). There is an invitation to listen to the Message and turn to Truth and Righteousness.

Summary.—The Hour of Judgment is nigh, but men forget or reject the Message, as did the people of Noah, of 'Ād, of Thamūd, of Lot, and of Pharaoh. Is there any that will receive admonition? (liv. 1-55, and C. 231.)

C. 231.—With every breath of our life, comes nearer And nearer the Hour of Judgment: the proud Will be brought low: the lovers of ease Will find themselves in hardship. Is there any that will truly receive admonition? So said Noah, but his people rejected The warning and perished. We have made Our Revelation easy to understand and follow. Is there any that will truly receive admonition? So said the prophets of 'Ad and Thamud; So said the prophets deputed to the People Of Lūt and of Pharaoh: but the wicked continued In sin and defiance and perished. Will the present Generation learn wisdom by warning? Is there any that will truly receive admonition? The Righteous will dwell in their Gardens of Bliss,-In the joyful Assembly of realised Truth, In the Presence of their Sovereign Most High!

Sūra LIV.

Oamar, or the Moon.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful

- 1. Mehe Hour (of Judgment) 5127

  Is nigh, and the moon

  Is cleft asunder. 5128
- 2. But if they see
  A Sign, they turn away,
  And say, "This is
  (But) transient magic." 5120
- 3. They reject (the warning)
  And follow their (own) lusts
  But every matter has 5150
  Its appointed time.
- 4. There have already come
  To them Recitals wherein 5131
  There is (enough) to check (them),
- 5. Mature wisdom;—but (The preaching of) Warners Profits them not.

بِنْ مِلْهِ الرِّحْلُنِ الرِّحِسِيْمِ

ا-إِقُكُرُبُتِ السَّاعَةُ وَ انْشَقَ الْقَسُرُ ۞

٧- وَإِنْ تَكُرُواْ أَيَةً يُغْرِضُوا
 وَيَقُولُوا سِحُرٌ مُنْ مُكْرِرُونَ

٣-وَكُنَّ بُوُا وَاتَّبَعُوَّا اَهُوَا يَهُوَا أَهُوَا أَهُوَا أَهُوَا أَهُوَا أَهُوَا أَهُوَا أَهُمُ

٣- وَلَقُلُ جَاءُ هُمُ مِنَ الْأَنْبَاءِ مَا فِيْهُ مُزْدَجُرُّ فُ م- حِكْنَهُ "بَالِغَهُ" فَهَا تُغْنِ النَّكُرُ فُ

5127. See para, 2 of the Introduction to S. liii. The idea of the Judgment being nigh at the beginning of this Sūra connects it with the same idea at the end of the last Sūra (verse 57), though the actual words used in the two cases are different.

5128. Three explanations are given in the  $Mu/rad\bar{u}t$ , and perhaps all three apply here: (1) that the moon once appeared cleft asunder in the valley of Mecca within sight of the Prophet, his Companions, and some Unbelievers; (2) that the prophetic past tense indicates the future, the cleaving asunder of the moon being a Sign of the Judgment approaching; and (3) that the phrase is metaphorical, meaning that the matter has become clear as the moon. That the first was noticed by contemporaries, including Unbelievers, is clear from verse 2. The second is an incident of the disruption of the solar system at the New Creation: Cf. lxxv. 8-9. And the third might well be implied as in eastern allegory, based on the other two.

5129. Mustamirr: transient, or powerful; either meaning will apply. The Unbelievers acknowledge the unusual appearance, but call it magic. They do not therefore profit by the spiritual lesson.

5130. The prevalence of sin and the persecution of truth may have its day, but it must end at last.

5131. The stories of the sins of past generations having been visited with exemplary punishments were already in their possession, and should, if they had been wise, have opened their eyes and checked them in their mad career of sin. Five of these stories are again referred to later in this Sūra by way of illustration.

- Meherefore, (O Prophet,) 5132
   Turn away from them.
   The Day that the Caller 5133
   Will call (them)
   To a terrible affair,
- 7. They will come forth,—
  Their eyes humbled—
  From (their) graves, (torpid) 5134
  Like locusts scattered abroad,
- 8. Hastening, with eyes transfixed, Towards the Caller!— "Hard is this Day!", The Unbelievers will say.
- 9. Sefore them the People
  Of Noah rejected (their apostle):
  They rejected Our servant, And said, "Here is
  One possessed!", and he
  Was driven out.
- 10. Then he called on his Lord:
  "I am one overcome:
  Do Thou then help (me)!" 5136
- 11. So We opened the gates Of heaven, with water Pouring forth.

٧- فَتُوَلَّ عَنْهُمْ مُ يَوْمَرِينْ مُ النَّاعِ إِلَىٰ شَيْءٍ ثُكُرٍ ٥

٤-خُشَعًا أَبْصَارُهُمْ يَخْرُجُونَ مِنَ الْكَجْلَاثِ كَانَهُمْ جَرَادٌ مُنْتَشِرُكِ

٥- مُهُ فَطِعِيْنَ إِلَى النَّااءِ *
 يَقُولُ الْكُلْفِرُونَ هٰنَا يُومٌ عَسِرٌ ٥

٥-كَنَّابَتُ قَبُلَهُمُ قَوْمُ نُوْجٍ قَكَنَّابُوْا عَبْنَانَا وَقَالُوْا مَجْنُونٌ وَّ ازْدُجِرَ

١٠- فَكَ عَا رُبَّهُ أَنْ مَعْ لُوْبٌ فَا نُتَصِرُ وَ
 ١١- فَفَتَحُنَا آبُواب السَّمَاءَ بِمَاءٍ مُنْ هَبِيرٍ أَنَّ

- 5132. For a time godlessness seems to triumph, but the triumph is short-lived. And in any case there is the great Reckoning of the Day of Judgment.
  - 5133. The angel whose voice will call at the Resurrection and direct all souls. Cf. xx. 108-111.
- 5134. At one stage in the invasion of locust swarms, the locusts are torpid and are scattered abroad all over the ground. I have seen them on railway tracks in 'Irāq, crushed to death in hundreds by passing trains. The simile is apt for the stunned beings who will rise up in swarms from their graves and say, "Ah! woe unto us! who has raised us up?" (xxxvi. 52).
- 5135 The story of Noah and the Flood is frequently referred to in the Qur-ān. The passage which best illustrates this passage will be found in xi. 25-48. Note in that passage how they first insult and abuse him arrogantly; how he humbly argues with them; how they laugh him to scorn, as much as to say that he was a madman possessed of some evil spirit; and how the Flood comes and he is saved in the Ark, and the wicked are doomed to destruction.
- 5136. He did not call down punishment. He merely asked for help in his mission, as he felt himself overpowered by brute force and cast out, which prevented the fulfilment of his mission, But the wicked generation were past all repentance, and they were wiped out.

- 12. And We caused the earth
  To gush forth with springs.
  So the waters met (and rose) 5137
  To the extent decreed.
- 13. But We bore him
  On an (Ark) made of Broad planks and caulked 5138
  With palm-fibre:
- 14. She floats under our eyes (And care): a recompense 5138

  To one who had been Rejected (with scorn)!
- 15. And We have left
  This as a Sign 5140
  (For all time): then
  Is there any that will Receive admonition? 5141
- 16. But how (terrible) was 5112 My Penalty and My Warning?
- 17. And We have indeed
  Made the Qur-an easy 5143

١٠- وَ فَجَرْنَا الْارْضُ عُيُونًا
 فَالْتَقَى الْمَاءُ عَلَى الْمْرِقَلُ قُلِارَ أَ

۱۳-وَحَمَلْنَاهُ عَلَىٰ ذَاتِٱلْوَاجِ وَّدُسُرِنْ

۱۰۰ تَجْرِیْ بِاَعْیُنِنَا * جَزَّانِهُ لِّمُنْ گان کُفِرَ ٥

> ه ١- وَ لَقَانُ ثَرَكُنُهُما ٓ أَيْهَ ۗ فَهَالُ مِنْ مُمَاكِدٍ ۞

۱۶- فَكَيْفَ كَانَ عَلَالِيْ وَنُنُونِ ۱۶- وَ لَقَلُ يَتَكُوْنَا الْقُوْانِ

5137. The torrents of rain from above combined with the gush of waters from underground springs, and caused a huge Flood which inundated the country.

5138 Dusur, plural of disar, which means the palm-fibre with which boats are caulked: from dasara, to ram in, to spear. A derived meaning is "nails", (which are driven into planks): this latter meaning also applies, and is preferred by translators not familiar with the construction of simple boats.

- 5139. As usual, God's Mercy in saving His faithful servants takes precedence of His Wrath and Penalty. And He helps and rewards those whom the world rejects and despises!
- 5140. Cf. xxix. 15. where the Ark (with the salvation it brought to the righteous) is mentioned as a Sign for all Peoples. So also in xxv. 37 and xxvi. 121. it is a Sign for men. Similarly the saving of Lot, with the destruction of the wicked Cities of the Plain, is mentioned as a Sign left for those who would understand: xxix. 35, and li. 37.
  - 5141. A refrain that occurs six times in this Sura: see Introduction.
- 5142. While the Mercy of God is always prominently mentioned, we must not forget or minimise the existence of Evil, and the terrible Penalty it incurs if the Grace of God and His Warning are deliberately rejected.
- 5143. While the Qurān sums up the highest philosophy of the inner life, its simple directions for conduct are plain and easy to understand and act upon. Is this not in itself a part of the Grace of God? And what excuse is there for any one to fail in receiving admonition?

To understand and remember: Then is there any that Will receive admonition?

- 18. 风he 'Ad (people) (too)
  Rejected (Truth): then
  How terrible was
  My Penalty and My Warning?
- 19. For We sent against them 5141 A furious wind, on a Day Of violent Disaster,
- 20. Plucking out men as if They were roots of palm-trees Torn up (from the ground).
- 21. Yea, how (terrible) was
  My Penalty and My Warning! 5145
- 22. But We have indeed
  Made the Qur-an easy
  To understand and remember:
  Then is there any that
  Will receive admonition?

SECTION 2.

- 23. Ashe Thamud (also)
  Rejected (their) Warners.
- 24. For they said: "What! 5116
  A man! a solitary one

لِلرَّاكْرِ نَهُلُ مِنْ مُنَّاكِرٍ ٥ ١٥-كَنَّابَتْ عَادُّ قَلَيْفَ كَانَ عَنَالِنِ وَنُثْرِ ٥ قَلَيْفَ كَانَ عَنَالِنِ وَنُثْرِ ٥ > > rr-گَلُّبَتْ ثُنُوْدُ بِالنَّـٰ *لُ*رُو

٢٧- فَقَالُوا ٱبْشُرًا

5144. Cf. xli. 16. How graphic is the description of the tornado that uprooted them! It must indeed be a dreadful tornado that plucks up the palm-trees by their deep tap-roots. The "Day" is an indefinite period of time. The wind that destroyed the 'Ad people lasted seven nights and eight days: lxix. 7.

5145. Repeated from verse 18 to heighten the description of the sin, the penalty, and the criminal negligence of the sinners in refusing the warnings on account of their self-complacent confidence in their own strength and stability! It is repeated again as a secondary refrain in liv. 30 and (with slight modification) in liv. 32 and 39.

5146. The psychology of the Thamud is more searchingly analysed here than in xii. 17, to show up the contrast between shallow men's ideas about Revelation, and the real sanity, humanism, social value, and truth of Revelation. To them the Revelation was brought by Sāliḥ.

From among ourselves!
Shall we follow such a one? 5147
Truly should we then be
Straying in mind, and mad!

- 25. "Is it that the Message
  Is sent to him,
  Of all people amongst us?
  Nay, he is a liar,
  An insolent one!" 5148
- 26. Ah! they will know
  On the morrow, which is
  The liar, the insolent one!
- 27. For We will send
  The she-camel 5149
  By way of trial for them.
  So watch them, (O Ṣāliḥ),
  And possess thyself in patience!
- 28. And tell them that
  The water is to be Divided between them: 5150
  Each one's right to drink
  Being brought forward
  (By suitable turns).
- 29. But they called
  To their companion,
  And he took a sword
  In hand, and hamstrung (her).
- 30. Ah! how (terrible) was
  My Penalty and My Warning!

5147. Because the Preacher is one among so many, and different from them, although brought up among themselves, it is made a cause of reproach against him, when it should have been an index leading to a searching of their hearts and an examination of their ways.

5148. Pure abuse, as a contrast to Sāliḥ's expostulation! See xxvi. 141-158, and notes.

5149. See n. 1044 to vii. 73, for the she-camel as a trial or test case among selfish people who tried to monopolise water and pasture as against the poor.

5150. See xxvi. 155-56. All were to have water in due turn. It was to be no one's monopoly. And certainly the gates were not to be shut against the poor or their cattle.

- 31. For We sent against them 5151
  A single Mighty Blast,
  And they became
  Like the dry stubble used
  By one who pens cattle. 5153
- 32. And we have indeed

  Made the Qur-ān easy

  To understand and remember:

  Then is there any that

- 33. We he People of Lūt 5153 Rejected (his) Warning.
- 34. We sent against them
  A violent tornado

  Lūt's household: them We

  Of Our Punishment, but
  They disputed about the Warning.

- 5151. See n. 1047 to vii, 78, and cf. the same phrase "single Blast" used for the signal for the Resurrection in xxxvi. 53. In the case of the Thamud, the destruction seems to have been by a severe earthquake accompanied with a terrible rumbling noise.
- 5152. They became like dry sticks such as are used by herdsmen in making pens or enclosures for their cattle.
- 5153. The story of Lot (LDt) and the Cities of the Plain has been frequently referred to. See xi, 74-83.
- 5154.  $H\bar{a}_{sib}$ : a violent tornado bringing a shower of stones. The word occurs here; in xvii. 68 (without reference to any particular place); in xxix. 40 (where it seems to refer to Lot's Cities, see n. 3462); and in lxvii. 17 (where again there is no reference to a particular place). In Lot's Cities the shower was of brimstone; see xi. 82.
- 5155. "Giving thanks" to God in Quranic phrase is to obey God's Law, to do His Will, to practise righteousness, to use all gifts in His service.

5157. Lot had been preaching to them some time against their iniquities. The crisis of their fate came when the two angels came to Lot in the guise of handsome young men. The men of the whole City came in an uproar, assaulted his house, and tried to snatch away the two handsome men. Lot tried to prevent them, but was powerless. Darkness fell on their eyes, as the first stage in their punishment, and before next morning the wicked cities were buried under a shower of brimstone. Lot and his believing household were saved.

5158. The Egyptian people of old are the last people mentioned in this Sūra as an example of iniquity meeting with punishment. And the moral is driven home to the Pagan Quraish, to warn them of their fate if they persisted in their evil lives. The Egyptians had many Signs given them. They were a gifted people and had made much progress in the sciences and the arts. They could have learnt from history that when the highest virtues disappear, the nation must fall. Moses was brought up among them and commissioned to give God's Message to them. But they were arrogant; they were unjust to God's creatures; they followed debasing forms of worship; they mocked at Truth; and were at last punished with destruction in the Red Sea for their arrogant leaders and army. See x. 75-90 for a narrative.

- 43. Are your Unbelievers,
  (O Quraish), better than they? 5159
  Or have ye an immunity
  In the Sacred Books?
- 44. Or do they say:
  "We acting together
  Can defend ourselves"?
- 45. Soon will their multitude Be put to flight, And they will show Their backs.
- 46. Nay, the Hour (of Judgment)
  Is the time promised them
  (For their full recompense): 5160
  And that Hour will be
  Most grievous and most bitter.
- 47. Truly those in sin
  Are the ones
  Straying in mind, and mad. 5161
- 48. The Day they will be Dragged through the Fire
  On their faces, 5162 (they Will hear:) "Taste ye
  The touch of Hell!"

٣٣- أَكُفَا لُكُمْ خَيْرٌ مِّنْ أُولَا عِكُمْرُ آمُ لَكُمُ بَرَآءً قُرُ فِي الزُّبُرِ ۚ

٣٣- آمُر يَقُوْلُوْنَ نَحْنُ جَمِينَعٌ مُّنْتَصِرٌ

هم-سَيُهُزَمُ الْجَمْعُ وَ يُولُونَ النُّ بُرَ

٣٠- بَلِ السَّاعَةُ مَوْعِدُهُمُ وَ السَّاعَةُ اَدُهٰى وَامَرُ ۖ

س-إنَ الْمُجْرِمِينَ فِي ضَالِلَ وَسُعُرِهَ

٨٨- يَوْمَرُ يُسْتَحَبُوْنَ فِي النَّارِعِلْ وُجُوْهِ هِمَّرُ دُوْتُوْا مَسَّ سَقَرَ

5159. If the Egyptians with all their power and science were unable to resist the punishment of their sins, the Pagan Quraish are asked: how will you fare when you come to a trial of strength against God's Truth? You are not specially favoured so as to be immune from God's Law. And if you rely on your numbers, they will be a broken reed when the trial comes, as indeed happened at the Battle of Badr.

5161. Cf. liv. 24 above. Note how the tables are turned in the argument by the repetition. The unjust think that the godly are wandering in mind and mad. They will find that it is really they who were wandering in mind, and mad, even when they were in the plenitude of their power and in the enjoyment of all the good things of this life. These minor echoes heighten the effect of the major refrain mentioned in the Introduction.

5162. "On their faces": the Face is the symbol of Personality. Their whole Personality will be subverted and degraded—in the midst of the Fire of Suffering.

- 49. Verily, all things
  Have We created
  In proportion and measure. 5163
- 50. And Our Command
  Is but a single (Act),—5164
  Like the twinkling
  Of an eye.
- 51. And (oft) in the past,
  Have We destroyed gangs 5165
  Like unto you: then
  Is there any that
  Will receive admonition? 5166
- 52. All that they do
  Is noted in (their)
  Books (of Deeds): 5167

٣٩-إِنَّا كُلَّ شَيْءِ خَلَقْنَهُ بِقَكَدٍ ٥

.ه-وَمَا آمُرُنَا لِلَا وَاحِدَةً كَلَنْجِ بِالْبُصَرِ ۞

اه-وَ لَقَنُ اَهٰلَكُنُاۤ اَشْيَاعَكُمُ فَهَلْ مِنْ مُثَاكِدٍ ۞

٥٧ - وَكُلُّ شَىءٍ فَعَلْوُهُ فِي الْتُرْبُرِ ٥

5163. God's Creation is not haphazard. Everything goes by law, proportion, and measure. Everything has its appointed time, place, and occasion, as also its definite limitation. Nothing happens but according to His Plan, and every deed, word, and thought of man has its fullest consequences, except in so far as the Grace or Mercy of God intervenes, and that is according to law and plan.

- 5164. While in the life of created things there is "proportion and measure", and a lag of time or distance or circumstance, in God's Command, the Design, the Word, the Execution, and the Consequences are but a single Act. The simile given is that of the twinkling of an eye, which is the shortest time that a simple man can think of: the cause which occasions the twinkling, the movement of the muscles connected with it, the closing of the eyelids, and their reopening, are all almost like a simultaneous act. By way of contrast take an illustration like that of a man writing a book. He must form the design in his mind; he must prepare himself by research, collection of knowledge, or of personal experience; he must use or acquire the art of writing; he must collect the materials for writing, viz., paper, ink, pen, etc., and this will connect with a chain of manufacturing processes in which he is dependent upon other people's work and experience; then his book may have to be printed or lithographed or bound, and sold, or taken to a library, or presented to a friend, which will bring into play numerous other chains of processes, and dependence upon other people's work or skill; and the lag of Time, Space, and Circumstance will occur at numerous stages. In God's Command, the word "Be" (kun) includes everything, without the intervention. of or dependence upon any other being or thing whatever. And this is also another phase of the philosophy of Unity.
- 5165. Ashyā'akum: 'gangs or parties or collections of men like you.'—addressed to wicked men who arrogantly rely upon their own strength or combination, neither of which can stand for a moment against the Will of God.
- 5166. The cases of Pharaoh's men of old and the Pagan Quraish are considered as parallel, and an appeal is addressed to the latter from the experience of the former: 'will ye not learn and repent?'
- 5167. The Book of Deeds is of course metaphorical. The point is that nothing which men do is lost—good or evil. Everything gives rise to an inevitable chain of consequences, from which a release is only obtained by the intervention of God's Grace acting on an act, a striving, of the human will to repent and turn to God.

- 53. Every matter, small and great, Is on record.
- 54. As to the Righteous, They will be in the midst Of Gardens and Rivers, 5168
- 55. In an Assembly of Truth, 5169
  In the Presence of 5170
  A Sovereign Omnipotent. 5171

٥٥ - وَكُلُّ صَغِيْرٍ وَكِيْنِرِ مُسْتَطَرُ

مه -إِنَّ الْمُتَّقِينَ فِي جَنَّتٍ وَنَهَرٍ لَ

۵۵-فِی مَقْعَدِ صِدُتِ عِنْدَ مَلِیْكِ مُقْتَدِدٍ حْ

5168. The record, in the case of those who dishonoured and violated Truth, will lead to their undoing; but in the case of those who honoured the Truth and adopted it so as to shine in their righteous lives, the result is expressed by four metaphors, in an ascending degree of sublimity; (1) they will be in the midst of Gardens where rivers flow; (2) they will be in an Assembly of Truth; (3) in the Presence of God; (4) Whose sovereignty is omnipotent. See notes following, and Appendix XII, at the end of this Sūra.

- (1) "Gardens" with Rivers (flowing beneath): this has been explained more than once already: Cf. n. 4668 to xliii. 70. The Garden suggests all the Bliss we can imagine through our senses. How the Garden ministers to the noblest functions of our senses is further explained in Appendix XII.
- 5169 (2) While we possess our bodily senses, the best conceptions we can form are through our sense perceptions, and the Garden is a good symbol from that point of view. The next higher understanding of spiritual truth is through our intellect and our social satisfaction. This is best symbolised by the Assembly of Truth—the gathering in which we sit with our fellows and enjoy the realisation of Truth and the dissipation of falsehoods and half-truths.
- 5170. (3) But there is a higher conception still, something so intensely spiritual that it can only be expressed by reference to the Presence of God. God is present everywhere and at all times, but when His Presence becomes an actual realised experience to its fullest extent, then we have reached Heaven.
- 5171. (4) Such realisation of God, as is spoken of in the last note, can only be perfected when we know—it comes into our inmost being—that God is Sovereign, All-in-all, First and Last, not only for ourselves but for all persons and things and events. Muqtadir, which I have translated Omnipotent, implies something more: the eighth-declension form denotes not only complete mastery, but the further idea that the mastery arises from God's own nature, and depends on nothing else whatever.

APPENDIX XII

The Muslim Heaven (see liv. 54-55, and notes 5168-71)

To write about the Muslim Heaven adequately is to describe the spiritual ideals of Islam and its conception of the Hereafter for those who follow the true laws of their being as created by God and as explained in Revelation. Such a task would be beyond the scope of an Appendix. But I propose to collect here a few matters which have been referred to in scattered notes to the Quranic text, but which could not be fully explained in the space at the disposal of the notes. This is all the more necessary, as some ignorant critics of Islam imagine that Islam postulates a sensual heaven, and they press into service some garbled versions of what some of our own more material-minded brethren have said on the subject.

- 2. It is true that Islam uses the most varied imagery for describing spiritual matters which are really beyond description in words except by such imagery. it carefully avoids using such imagery for God Himself, lest it should be misunderstood by shallow minds, and confines the use of such imagery to the description of human beings, who have, in their present life, some material forms of pleasure, satisfaction, and happiness, and some mental and social relations which conduce to such feelings, and which may therefore be used legitimately to typify the more spiritual joys and relationships of a spiritual Heaven. It knows nothing of the amours of gods and goddesses and the jealousies and bickerings that disfigure the Court of the Olympian Jove; and yet Greek Mythology was the most refined of all Pagan Mythologies. In spite of all Wagner's efforts to glorify the Valkyrian heaven, we have yet in that heaven high actions and high passions in an atmosphere of frustration and strife. The Christian imagery of the vision of God and God's Throne is that of "a jasper and a sardine stone," emeralds and crowns of gold, a sea of glass like unto crystal, and four and-twenty elders casting their crowns before the Throne, and glorifying God, but adding, "Thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created." (The concluding Book of the New Testament: The Revelation of St. John the Divine, Chapter iv). Our imagery never carries these metaphors to the Person of God, and we are not taught that the object of creation is God's pleasure; our teaching is that man was created for man's self-development and his attainment of his high destiny, which can be done by his understanding, obeying, and knowing God.
- 3. Our doctrine of the Hereafter is not strictly a doctrine of Rewards and Punishments. A promise of Rewards implies two things: (1) an inducement to a certain course of action by the motive of winning the reward; and (2) the apportionment of the reward to the merits and deserts of the receiver.

As to the motives, see iii. 31:—
Say: "If ye do love God,
Follow me: God will love you

And forgive you your sins: For God is Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful.

Or again, in ii. 165 we have:-

But those of Faith
Are overflowing
In their love for God.

Certainly whatever good we do benefits our own souls, but the motive with which we should do it should be only as "seeking the glory (literally, Face, Countenance) of God" (ii. 272). The righteous persevere patiently in righteousness, seeking "the Countenance of their Lord" (xiii. 22).

- 4. Is the "Reward" apportioned to the merits or deserts of the receiver? Not at all. At best, our merits or deserts can amount to very little. But God's Mercy and Grace are vast and all-embracing (vi. 147). He has said: "My Mercy extendeth to all things" (vii. 156): His Grace is universal and all-pervasive; and "He is the Lord of Bounties unbounded" (iii. 74). If any man does good, "the reward to him is better than his deed: but if any does evil, the doers of evil are only punished to the extent of their deeds" (xxviii. 84). Thus His justice is strict but in favour of man; but his Grace is beyond calculation. "That which ye lay out for charity, seeking the Countenance of God, will increase: it is these who will get a recompense multiplied" (xxx. 39). See also n. 5909 to lxxviii. 36.
- 5. To be righteous merely for the hope of reward for one's self or for fear of punishment may be good at a certain elementary stage of spiritual progress when higher motives are yet unintelligible. But as the light of Islam illumines the soul more and more, it is seen that virtue is its own reward and evil is its own punishment: for the one accords with the Will of God, and the other is contrary to it-and therefore also contrary to the pure nature of man as made by God,-"God's handiwork according to the pattern on which He has made mankind: no change let there be in the work wrought by God: that is the standard Religion" (xxx. 30). "Is there any Reward for Good-other than Good?" (Iv. 60). We are asked to "repent" when we have fallen into evil. But "repentance" does not mean sackcloth and ashes, or putting on a gloomy pessimism. It means giving up disease for health, crookedness (which is abnormal) for the Straight Way, the restoration of our nature as God created it from the falsity introduced by the enticements of Evil (n. 3543 to xxx. 31). The "fear of God" is the beginning of wisdom; but it is not fear in the ordinary sense of the term, for on the righteous "there shall be no fear, nor shall they grieve" (ii. 38). The fear of God is not a passive oppression by an outside feeling, but an active assertion of our own will not to offend our Lord and Cherisher. The fear is lest we lose His Good Pleasure. It is akin to love, and is a purification of our will. It is on our will that our future depends under the Grace and Mercy of God. We must strive to reach His Grace. Our strength is small, but He will accept the submission of our will (Islam), and His Grace will search us out; and our progress will proceed according to the Law which God in His wisdom has established.

- 6. Thus it becomes a doctrine of Law, or of "fruits of actions". Every deed must have its inevitable consequences (n. 4671 to xliii. 73). There is no vicarious atonement; for there is individual responsibility. And yet it is not a doctrine of "justification by deeds"; for the best of our actions fall short of the "heaven" which we hope for (see paragraph 4 above). Nor is it the same as the doctrine of Karma, which plays so prominent a part in Buddhist and Hindu philosophy. For we have a lively faith in God's Grace and Mercy: it can and does intervene for us and accepts our repentance and amendment, and gives us fresh chances at every stage of our probationary life. But our will is an important factor: we cannot accept a mechanical form of Determinism which eliminates the human will in the government of the microcosm within us, and even eliminates such a thing as the Divine Will in the government of the Macrocosm, or the great world without us.
- 7. Such being the fundamental aspects of our life and destiny, how can we best clothe our ideas of heaven in human language? Our Heaven is independent of Time, or Place, or fleeting Circumstance. No one can know precisely now the spiritual delights hidden in reserve for him (xxxii. 17). But we must necessarily use terms that imply all these three conditions. Therefore they can only be expressed by allegory or imagery. If we understand what the essence of the allegory or imagery is, we shall profit by it. If we branch out into fantastic applications that leave us in the material world, we shall never be able to get a glimpse of the spiritual world into which such allegory or imagery is intended to open a window for our spiritual eyes. Such allegory or imagery is supplied in abundance in the Qur-ān.
- 8. The simplest and yet the most far-reaching allegory that we can employ is that of the Garden—the Garden of Bliss (Jannat or Jannat un Na'īm, v. 68). In all Muslim languages, that word Jannat (Garden) is now specialised for Heaven. Let us analyse a few of the ideas which we can legitimately associate in this connection with the concrete word "Garden" and the abstract term "Bliss"
- 9. In this our life most of our sensations depend upon sense-perceptions, and we can reduce the highest and noblest of them to terms connected with the Garden. To each of our five senses, in their most refined form, does the Garden minister. For the eye there is the general green, with all the most delicate tints of green in the foliage, and the wonderful colours and shapes in flowers; the arrangement of paths and parterres; the various gradations of light and shade; the soft and melting beauty of clouds and mists; and the landscape views with cool rivers flowing underneath, or perhaps murmuring brooks. For the ear is the music of birds, the music of waterfalls, and the appropriate moonlight music of the human voice with or without the accompaniment of an instrument like a guitar. For the smell there is not only the perfume of flowers but the more subtle scents of foliage, moisture or morning dew, or even garden soil. For taste and touch the exquisite fruits, and for touch the soft rose petals and the carpet-like lawns, besides the gentle kiss of breezes, all minister to the highest bliss and fulfilment that we can imagine through our senses.

- 10. We picture not only a Garden, but a Garden with rivers or springs flowing beneath. This further enlarges our horizon. We can picture a landscape with banks, terraces, and sloping lawns, high ground, and valleys. What is the spiritual analogy for this? We must not imagine a dull place where all are engaged in perpetual psalm-singing. There will be differences in ranks, dignities, and tastes, according to each individual's growth and individuality: for that is the meaning of the persistence of Personality. And yet they will form one equal Brotherhood of Peace, one Society of Concord. There will be the four-fold classification according to the varying spiritual experiences gained in this life: (1) the Prophets who taught and led mankind; (2) the sincere Devotees of Truth, who supported the Cause in their person and with all their resources; (3) the Martyrs and Witnesses, who suffered and served; and (4) the righteous people generally, those who led ordinary lives, but always with righteous aims. All these are united in one beautiful Fellowship (see iv. 69, and n. 586). Or take that other classification indicated in Ivi. 27 and 11: the righteous generally, the Companions of the Right Hand (as distinguished from the Companions of the Left Hand, who will not have reached Heaven), and those nearest to God in rank and dignity. The latter will have no interposing Veils of Light to obscure the pure Light of God from them (Appendix VIII, and xxiv. 35); for, in Sūfī language, they will have had the inestable Bliss of seeing the "Divine Eyes". Possibly the Companions of the Garden and Those on the Heights (vii. 46) refer to the same two categories of souls. Whatever the precise interpretation of these mystic passages may be, there is no doubt that the retention of individual Personality in the Hereafter will mean Bliss of different kinds for each category.
- symbolical terms? If it is to convey the idea of satisfaction in any but abstract terms, we must have the symbolism of ordinary life, yet lifted up to ideas of refinement, delicacy, and satisfaction. The acts of eating and drinking are spiritualised and socialised. The choicest of meats, fruits, and drinks, which minister to the most sensitive taste, will be provided. Dress of most artistic taste will add dignity to social intercourse, and there will be thrones and symbols of honour. There will be companionship, individual companionship, companionship of equal age, as well as general companionship. And those whom we loved in this life—mothers, wives, sisters, relatives, children, friends—will all add to our joy by their company in a transformed Love as superior to earthly Love as in the Garden of Heaven to an earthly Garden. The condition of Faith and good Life is of course attached: for no disharmony can enter to mar the dignity of Heaven. (See xiii. 23 and n. 1837; xliii. 70-72, and n. 4668-70). Perfected Love will not be content with Self, but like a note of music will find its melody in communion with others.
- 12. Carnal sex has of course no place in Heaven, but sex in our constitution here has a mental and psychological value, which we can picture in our transformed and perfected Love above. The word Hūr, in such passages as xliv. 54, and lii. 20, has been much misunderstood and misrepresented. Grammatically it is not feminine in form, and the companionship of Hūrs will be for all in Heaven—men and women (as they were in this life), who will retain their personality but not their carnal attributes. As in the word "angel" in English, (unlike its original Angelos in Greek or Angelus in Latin), there is with it an association of the specially feminine virtues of purity, grace, beauty, innocence, truth, and good-will (see n. 4729 to xliv. 54). In lxxviii. 33 are mentioned Maidens or Virgins of Equal Age, in a highly symbolical passage, where the notes may be consulted. But the masculine virtues of handsome and manly strength and the youthful enthusiasm for service are also mentioned in association with heaven (see lii. 24, and n. 5058). In other words the symbolism leads up from our ideas of beauty, grace, harmony, strength, youth, and service as we know these things in their most refined forms here, to something even nobler and purer which no language can adequately describe.

- The symbolism of Springs or Fountains and Cups of Drink or Wine is also worked out in a beautiful way in S. lxxvi. (Dahr). Note that the Arabic word Sharāb means either Drink or Wine, and in Sūfī language, Wine or the Cup is the means of attaining spiritual Ecstasy. The Quranic language tempers Ecstasy with coolness, and associates a refreshing tonic, rather than an unbounded ecstasy, with spiritual fervour, especially in the earlier stages of spiritual Bliss. when the soul is yet new to its new world. Just after the Great Event of Judgment is passed, the righteous soul enters the regions of Bliss, and is given to drink of a Cup from the mystic fountain of Kafūr (lxxvi. 5, n. 5835) Kāfūr literally means camphor: in symbolic language it stands for all that is wholesome, cooling and refreshing, soothing and agreeable. This is provided in unstinted measure. Then the yearning humility which filled the souls in the lower life gives place to a sense of possession: dignity and honour, typified by light silk garments, thrones, and the humility now shown to them by those around them (lxxvi.12-14). Then comes the setting of a Magnificent Realm, typifying Divine Glory. A drink of a Cup of Zanjabīl, typifying warmth and zest to the taste, from a fountain called Sal-sabīl (" Seek the Way "), festive clothes of ceremony, and rich setting of a Royal Banquet of beauty and splendour, stand as symbols to show the approach to the very Presence Ineffable. Further, there is a Spring or Fountain Tasnim, which is only drunk neat by those Nearest to God: they alone can bear its fullest flavour, as they alone can bear the full effulgence of the Glory of God: but every righteous man will have a taste of this Fountain mixed with his heavenly Wine, to the extent that his spiritual advancement is capable of enjoying it (lxxxiii. 27-28).
- 14. For the highest Felicity in heaven is described to be in the nearness to God, in the Good Pleasure of God. See iii, 14-15:—

"Fair in the eyes of men
Is the love of things they covet:
Women and sons;
Heaped-up hoards of gold and silver;
Horses branded (for blood and excellence);
And wealth of cattle
And well-tilled land.

Such are the possessions

Of this world's life; But nearness to God Is the best of the goals.

"Say: Shall I give you
Glad tidings of things
Far better than those?
For the righteous are Gardens
In nearness to their Lord,
With rivers flowing beneath;
Therein is their eternal home;
With Companions pure and holy;
And the Good Pleasure of God."

But the Good Pleasure of God has its counterpart in the Good Pleasure of man, raised to such eminence in Heaven.

"O thou soul!
In (complete) rest and satisfaction!
Come back thou
To thy Lord!—
Well pleased (thyself),
And well pleasing
Unto Him!

"Enter, thou, then,
Among My Devotees,—
Yea, enter thou
My Heaven!"

(1xxxix, 27-30.)

- 15. This, then, is the Muslim idea of Salvation. It consists, not in being saved from the consequences of our sins by the sufferings or the merits of others, nor in Nirvana, or annihilation or absorption,—but in the achievement of a perfected Personality, a Bliss that grows up within us, and does not depend on external circumstances. It may require the utmost effort or striving (Jihād) of a lifetime or more. But it is the Supreme Achievement, the attainment of all desires, the Felicity in excelsis (xliv. 57, and n. 4733).
- 16. The several aspects of it are summed up in two passages of singular beauty, xxxvi. 55-58, and lii. 17-28, which should be studied along with the notes thereon. The first passage describes symbolically the mise en scène and the nature of the Bliss. It goes on to say that the happiness will not be solitary, but will be shared in association, on thrones of dignity and peace. It further figures the psychological inner satisfaction, unconnected with outer circumstances, but reflecting the inner tastes of Personalities: "they shall have whatever they call for": the musician's heaven will be full of music; the mathematician's will be full of mathematical symmetry and perfection; the artist's will be full of beauty of form: the Light will be one, but its rays will be many. And it winds up with the salutation of "Peace!" from God, Whose supreme glory is Mercy, Peace, and Harmony. In the second passage these points are again emphasised but from other points of view. Not only will there be individual satisfaction and social bliss, but it will be shared by families or friends whom we held dear in this life, provided their life made them worthy of that association. While the memory of love and all good in this life will endure, it will be purged of all old fears and anxieties in the supreme realisation—the crown and climax of the whole—that God is the One Reality—the Good, the Beneficent and the Merciful. The souls in Heaven will realise in the highest spiritual sense the Presence of God.

INTRODUCTION TO SURA LV (Rahmān).

The majority of Commentators consider this an early Meccan Sūra, though some consider at least a part of it as dating from Medina. The greater part of it is undoubtedly early Meccan.

It is highly poetical and mystical, and the refrain "Then which of the favours of your Lord will ye deny?" is interspersed 31 times among its 78 verses.

It is the sixth of the series of seven dealing with Revelation, the favours of God, and the Hereafter: see Introduction to S. 1.

Here the special theme is indicated by the refrain. The rhyme in most cases is in the Dual grammatical form, and the Argument implies that though things are created in pairs, there is an underlying Unity, through the Creator, in the favours which He bestows, and in the goal to which they are marching.

Summary.—God Most Gracious has sent Revelation, one of His greatest favours to man; His creation is in pairs, well-balanced; all created things receive His favours, but they will all pass away, and only God will endure through the ages (lv. 1-34, and C. 232).

Ultimately all evil shall return to its destination, as well as all Good, but ever blessed is the name of God, Lord of Glory, Honour and Bounty (lv. 35-78, and C. 233).

C. 232.—God's creatures! Which favours of God will ye deny?

(Iv 1-34) Most Gracious is God, Who reveals Himself
In the Qur-an, in man's Intelligence,
And in the nature around man.
Balance and Justice, Goodness and Care,
Are the Laws of His Worlds. Created
From clay, man can yet comprehend
The Lord of the Easts and the Wests, Him
Who sustains all His creatures, Him
Who bestows the Jewels of Life and Faith,
Him Who abides when all else perisheth,
Him Whose Eternity is the Hope
Of man's Future, the Lord Everlasting
Of Justice and Glory and Bounty and Honour!
Which, then, of the favours of your Lord will ye deny?

5172. The Revelation comes from God Most Gracious, and it is one of the greatest Signs of His grace and favour. He is the source of all Light, and His light is diffused throughout the universe.

5173. Bayān: intelligent speech; power of expression: capacity to understand clearly the relations of things and to explain them. God has given this to man, and besides this revelation in man's own heart, has aided him with revelation in nature and revelation through prophets and apostles.

5174. In the great astronomical universe there are exact mathematical laws, which bear witness to God's Wisdom and also to His favours to His creatures; for we all profit by the heat and light, the seasons, and the numerous changes in the tides and the atmosphere, on which the constitution of our globe and the maintenance of life depend.

5175. Najm: may mean stars collectively, or herbs collectively; perhaps both meanings are implied.

5176. All nature adores God. Cf. xxii. 18, and n. 2790; xiii, 15; and xvi. 48-49.

5177. The "balance of justice" in this verse is connected with "the Balance" in the next two verses, that men may act justly to each other and observe due balance in all their actions, following the golden mean and not transgressing due bounds in anything. But the Balance is also connected figuratively with the heavens above in three symbols: (1) Justice is a heavenly virtue; (2) the heavens themselves are sustained by mathematical balance; and (3) the constellation Libra (the Balance) is entered by the sun at the middle of the zodiacal year.

- 8. In order that ye may Not transgress (due) balance.
- 9. So establish weight with justice 5178 And fall not short In the balance.
- 10. It is He Who has Spread out the earth 5179 For (His) creatures:
- Therein is fruit
   And date-palms, producing
   Spathes (enclosing dates);
- Also corn, with (its)
   Leaves and stalk for fodder,
   And sweet-smelling plants.
- 13. Then which of the favours 5180 Of your Lord will ye deny?

٨- الله تَطْغُوا فِي الْبِيْزَانِ ٥

٩-وَ اَقِيْمُوا الْوَزْنَ بِالْقِسْطِ وُ لَا تُخْسِرُوا الْبِيْزَانَ⊙ ١٠- وَالْاَرْضَ وَضَعَهَا لِلْاَنَامِ لِ

5178. To be taken both literally and figuratively. A man should be honest and straight in every daily matter, such as weighing out things which he is selling: and he should be straight, just and honest, in all the highest dealings, not only with other people, but with himself and in his obedience to God's Law. Not many do either the one or the other when they have an opportunity of deceit. Justice is the central virtue, and the avoidance of both excess and defect in conduct keeps the human world balanced just as the heavenly world is kept balanced by mathematical order.

5179. How can God's favours be counted? Look at the earth alone. Life and the conditions here are mutually balanced for God's creatures. The vegetable world produces fruit of various kinds and corn or grain of various kinds for human food. The grain harvest yields with it fodder for animals in the shape of leaves and straw, as well as food for men in the shape of grain. The plants not only supply food but sweet smelling herbs and flowers. Raihān is the sweet basil, but is here used in the generic sense, for agreeable produce in the vegetable world, to match the useful produce already mentioned.

5180. Both the pronoun "your" and the verb "will ye deny" are in the Arabic in the Dual Number. The whole Sūra is a symphony of Duality, which leads up to Unity, as explained in the Introduction. All creation is in pairs: li. 49, and notes 5025-26; xxxvi. 36, n. 3981. Justice is the conciliation of two opposites to unity, the settlement of the unending feud between Right and Wrong. The things and concepts mentioned in this Sūra are in pairs: man and outer nature; sun and moon; herbs and trees; heaven and earth; fruit and corn; human food and fodder for cattle; things nourishing and things sweet-smelling; and so on throughout the Sūra. Then there is man and Jinn, for which see n. 5182 below.

"Will ye deny?" that is, fail to acknowledge either in word or thought or in your conduct. If you misuse God's gifts or ignore them, that is equivalent to ingratitude or denial or refusal to profit by God's infinite Grace.

- 14. In e created man
  From sounding clay 5181
  Like unto pottery,
- 15. And He created Jinns 5169
  From fire free of smoke:
- 16. Then which of the favours
  Of your Lord will ye deny? 5183
- 17. (Total e is) Lord
  Of the two Easts 5194
  And Lord
  Of the two Wests:
- 18. Then which of the favours
  Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 19. The two bodies
  Of flowing water,
  Meeting together:
- 20. Between them is a Barrier Which they do not transgress:

۱۰- حَكَنَّ الْإِنْسَانَ مِنْ صَلْصَالِ كَالْفَخَّادِ ﴿ ۱۵- وَحَكَنَ الْجَانَ مِنْ مَارِجٍ مِّنْ ثَادٍ ﴿

١١١- فَبِأَيِّ الآوِ رَتِكُمُا ثُكُلِّهِ إِن ٥

٤٠- رَبُّ الْمَشْرِقَيْنِ وَكَهُبُّ الْمَغْرِبُيْنِ خَ

٥٠- فِياَ مِي الآوِ رَتِكُنا تُكُنِّ بٰنِ

۱۹-مَرَجَ الْبَحُرُيُنِ يَلْتَقِيْنِ لِ

. ٢- بَيْنَهُمَا بَرْزَجُ لَا يَبْغِينِ أَ

5181. See n. 1966 to xv. 26. The creation of men and Jinns is contrasted. Man was made of sounding clay, dry and brittle like pottery. The Jinn (see next note) was made from a clear flame of fire. Yet each has capacities and possibilities which only God's Grace bestows on them. How can they deny God's favours?

5182. For the meaning of Jinn, see n. 929 to vi. 100. They are spirits, and therefore subtle like a flame of fire. Their being free from smoke implies that they are free from grossness, for smoke is the grosser accompaniment of fire. If we take them to typify the hidden forces and capacities in man, created by God, both their potency and their value would be acknowledged. Then how can we deny the favours of God? Both the natural man with all his grossness and brittleness and the spiritual forces with all their fineness and clearness must join in the service of God.

5183. Part of the idea of this refrain will be found in xvi. 71, 72; xl. 81; and liii, 55 (where see n. 5122).

5184. The two Easts are the two extreme points where the sun rises during the year, and includes all the points between. Similarly the two Wests include the two extreme points of the sun's setting and all the points between. The Dual Number fits in with the general atmosphere of Duality in this Sura. God is Lord of every region of the earth and sky, and He scatters His bounties everywhere. See also n. 4641 to xliii. 38, and n. 4034 to xxxvii. 5.

5185. See xxv. 53, and n. 3111, where it is explained how the two bodies of water, salt and sweet, meet together, yet keep separate, as if there was a barrier or partition between them. This is also one of the favours of God. Sea-water is a sanitating agent, while fresh water is sweet and palatable to drink. For the allegorical interpretation, see notes 2404-5 to xviii. 60; also n. 5186 (end) below.

- 21. Then which of the favours
  Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 22. Out of them come Pearls and Coral: 5186
- 23. Then which of the favours
  Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 24. And His are the Ships 5187
  Sailing smoothly through the seas,
  Lofty as mountains: 5188
- 25. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?

SECTION 2.

- 26. All that is on earth Will perish:
- 27. But will abide (for ever)
  The Face of thy Lord,—5189

5186. Pearls are produced by the oyster and coral by the polyp, a minute marine creature which, working in millions, has by its secretions produced the reefs, islands, and banks in and on both sides of the Red Sea and in other parts of the world. The pearl has a translucent lustre, usually white, but sometimes pink or black. Coral is usually opaque, red or pink, but often white, and is seen in beautiful branching or cup-like shapes, as visitors to Port Sudan will recall. Both are used as gems, and stand here for gems generally. Mineral gems, such as agate and cornelian, are found in river-beds. Pearl oysters are also found in some rivers.

Taken allegorically, the two kinds of gems would denote the jewels of this life and the jewels of the spiritual world. The jewels of this world—like coral—are hard, widely spread over the world, comparatively cheap, and less absorptive of the light from above. The spiritual jewels—like pearls—are soft, rare, costly, and translucent, absorbent of light and showing the more lustre the more they are in light. The analogy can be carried further to the two seas—the two bodies of flowing water—mentioned in verses 19-20 above. They are the two kinds of knowledge—human and divine—referred to in the story of Moses and Khidhr: see notes 2404-5 to xviii 60.

5187. The Ships—sailing ships and steamers, and by extension of analogy, aeroplanes and airships majestically navigating the air—are made by man, but the intelligence and science which made them possible are given by man's Creator; and therefore the Ships also are the gifts of God.

5189. The most magnificent works of man—such as they are—are but fleeting. Ships. Empires, the Wonders of Science and Art, the splendours of human glory or intellect, will all pass away. The most magnificent objects in outer Nature—the mountains and valleys, the sun and moon, the Constellation Orion and the star Sirius—will also pass away in their appointed time. But the only One that will endure for ever is the "Face" of God. "Face" expresses Personality. Glory, and Majesty, inner being, essence, self, all the noble qualities which we associate with the Beautiful Names of God. See n. 114 to ii. 112; also n. 1154 to vii. 180, and n. 2322 to xvii. 110.

Full of Majesty, Bounty and Honour. 5190

- 28. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 27. Pf Him seeks (its need) 5191 Every creature in the heavens And on earth: Every day in (new) Splendour 5192 Doth He (shine)!
- 30. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 31. Soon shall We Settle your affairs, O both ye worlds! 5193
- 32. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?
- And men! If it be

ذُو الْجُلْلِ وَ الْإِكْرَامِ أَ

٨٠- فَيَأْتِي الْآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكُنِّينِ

٢٩- يَنْئُلُهُ مَنْ فِي التَكُمُوتِ وَالْأَرْضِ كُلُّ يُوْمِر هُوَ فِي شَأْنِي ٥

·· نِياَي الآءِ رَبِّكُما نُكُذُوْنِي ··

٣- سَنَفُرُءُ لَكُمْ اَيُّهُ الثَّقَلِي ٥

٣٢- فَيَايِّ الْآءِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكُنِّ

٣٣- يْمَعْتُمُ الْجِنَّ وَالْإِنْسِ إِنِ الْمُتَطَعْتُمُ

5190. Ikrām: two ideas are prominent in the word, (1) the idea of generosity, as proceeding from the person whose attribute it is, and (2) the idea of honour, as given by others to the person whose attribute it is. Both these ideas are summed up in "nobility" To make the meaning quite clear, I have employed in the translation the two words "Bounty and Honour" for the single word Ikrūm. The same attributes recur in the last verse of this Sura. In the Fact of God's Eternity is the Hope of our Future.

5191: Every single creature depends on God for its needs: of all of them the Cherisher and Sustainer is God. Seek (its needs): does not necessarily mean 'seek them in words': what is meant is the dependence: the allusion is to the Source of supply.

5192. Shan: state, splendour; aim, work, business, momentous affair. God's is still the directing hand in all affairs: He does not sit apart, careless of mankind or of any of His creatures. But His working shows new Splendour every day, every hour, every moment.

5193 Thaqal: weight, something weighty, something weighed with something else. The two thaqals are the two worlds of Jinns and men,—the unseen world and the world before our eyes, They are both before God, and the affairs of both are conducted under His Command. If there are inequalities or apparent disturbances of balance, that is only for a season. God gives to both good and evil men a chance in this period of probation; but this period will soon be over, and Judgment will be established. To give you this chance, this probation, this warning, is itself a favour, by which you should profit, and for which you should be grateful.

5194. Cf. vi. 130, where the Jinns and men are addressed collectively. That whole passage, vi. 130-134, should be read as a commentary on this verse. 'If you think that because you do things in secret, or because some of your sins do not seem to meet their inevitable punishment or some of your good deeds seem to go unnoticed, do not be deceived. Judgment will soon come. You cannot possibly escape out of the zones in which your lives have been cast, without authority from God. Be grateful to God for the chances He has given you'. All that hath been promised unto you will come to pass: nor can ye frustrate it in the least bit " (vi. 134).

Ye can pass beyond The zones of the heavens And the earth, pass ye! Not without authority Shall ye be able to pass!

34. Then which of the favours 5195
Of your Lord will ye deny?

آن تَنفُنُ وَامِنُ آفَطَا لِالتَمْانِ وَ الْأَرْضِ فَانَفُنُهُ وَا لَا تَنفُنُهُ وَنَ اللّابِسُلُطِنِ ۚ ٣٣- فَبِاَيِ اللّابِ رَبِّكُما تُكَنِّبُنِ ٥

C. 233.—Let not Evil think that it will escape (lv. 35-78.) Justice: its tell-tale Mark is on those Who follow it, and it must meet its Reward In the final adjustment. But the Good, The Righteous, must reach their Fulfilment In the Gardens of Bliss, where every Delight Will be theirs in Beauty and Dignity. How can such Delights be pictured in words? In symbols subjective let each take his choice. For Good can there ever be any Reward` Other than Good? Beautiful sights And sounds, delicious fruits to nourish The soul, and Companionship where Grace Is mingled with Love, may figure forth our Bliss. Blessed be God, full of Majesty and Bounty. God's creatures! what favours of God will ye deny?

- 35. On you will be sent
  (O ye evil ones twain!) 5196
  A flame of fire (to burn)
  And a smoke (to choke): 5197
  No defence will ye have:
- 36. Then which of the favours 5198
  Of your Lord will ye deny?

ه٣-يُزْسَلُ عَلَيْكُمَا شُوَاظٌ مِّنْ تَارٍ لِهُ وَ نُعَاشُ فَلَا تَنْتَصِرْنِ ٥

٣٧- فَهَاَيَ الآءِ رَبِكُمَا تُكَنِّ بَنِ

5195. Note how gradually we have been led up in the Argument. 'The Signs of God are all about you, in revelation, in your intelligence, and in nature around you. Your creation; the mystic light and heat typified by the sun in all directions; the cycle of waters in the physical earth and of Knowledge in the world of Intelligence; the help and cherishing care of God Himself;—all these things should teach you the Truth and warn you about the Future, which is more particularly referred to in the remainder of the Sūra.

- 5196. The Dual is with reference to the two worlds explained above in n. 5193.
- 5197. We now come to the terrors of the Judgment on the evil ones.
- 5198. Here and in some of the verses that follow, (verses 40, 42, and 45 below), the refrain applies with an ironical meaning. It is as if it was said: 'You used to laugh at Revelation, and at the warnings which were given for your own benefit in order to draw you to repentance and God's Mercy; what do you find now? Is not all that was said to you true?' To reject God's Law is in itself to deny God's Mercies.

- 37. When the sky is rent
  Asunder, and it becomes red
  Like ointment: 5199
- 38. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?
- No question will be asked 5200 Of man or Jinn As to his sin,
- 40. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 41. (For) the sinners will be Known by their Marks: 5201 And they will be seized By their forelocks and Their feet.
- 42. Then which of the favours
  Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 43. This is the Hell which The Sinners deny: 5209
- 44. In its midst
  And in the midst
  Of boiling hot water

5199. Melting away like grease or ointment. The red colour will be due to the flames and the heat. The whole of the world as we know it now will dissolve.

5200. This does not of course mean that they will not be called to account for their sin. They will certainly be called to account for all their deeds: xv. 92 The meaning of this whole passage is that their personal responsibility will be enforced. But their own tongues and hands and feet will bear witness against them as to their actions: xxiv. 24. Every man will bear marks on his person, showing his classification in the Final Account: vii. 48. After these Marks are affixed, everyone's position and status in the Final Account will be known to everyone. As to the Judge on the Throne of Judgment, He will of course know all before Judgment is set up. But to give every chance to the accused, his record will be produced and shown to him (lxix. 19, 25; xviii. 49), and he will be given a chance to plead (vii. 53), but if a sinner, he will be in confusion (xxviii 66).

5201. By their Marks; see last note.

5202 It will then become too real to them. "Oh! that this too, too solid flesh would melt", as Hamlet said to his Queen-Mother (Hamlet, i. 2. 129).

5203. They will apparently have no rest. The fire will burn but not consume them, and their drink will be only boiling water.

45. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?

SECTION 3.

51. Then which of the favours

اه - فِيهُمَا مِنْ كُلِّ فَاكِهَةٍ زَوُجْنِ

٣٥-فَياَيِّ الآةِ رَبِّكُمَا تُكَنِّبُنِ ٥

5204. The reference to the Punishment of Sin having been dismissed in a few short lines, we now come to a description of the state of the Blessed in a number of spacious allegories. Their general nature has already been discussed in Appendiv XII at the end of the last Sūra, where see para. 9 for the significance of the allegory of the Garden.

5205. Here two Gardens are mentioned, and indeed four, counting the other two mentioned in lv. 62-76. Opinions are divided about this, but the best opinion is that the two mentioned in verses 46-61 are for the degree of those Nearest to God (Muqarrabūn), and those in verses 62-76 for the Companions of the Right Hand: see para 10 of Appendix XII. p. 1467. Why two for each? The Duality is to express variety, and the whole scheme of the Sūra runs in twos. There will be no dulness of uniformity: as our minds can conceive it now, there will be freshness in change, but it will be from Bliss to Bliss, and there will be Unity.

5206. Two Springs, for the same reasons as there will be two Gardens. See last note.

5207. The Duality of Fruits is for the same reason as the Duality of the Gardens. See n. 5205.

- 54. They will recline on Carpets, Whose inner linings will be Of rich brocade: the Fruit Of the Gardens will be Near (and easy of reach). 5208
- 55. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 56. In them will be (Maidens),<sup>5209</sup>
  Chaste, restraining their glances,<sup>5210</sup>
  Whom no man or Jinn
  Before them has touched;—
- 57. Then which of the favours
  Of your Lord will ye deny?—
- 58. Like unto rubies and coral. 5211
- 59. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 60. Is there any Reward For Good—other than Good? 5213
- 61. Then which of the favours
  Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 62. And besides these two,
  There are two other Gardens,—5218

5208. The toil and fatigue of this life will be over: Cf. xxxv. 35.

5209. The symbolic meaning of female Companionship, in terms of grace, purity, innocence and beauty, is explained in para, 12 of Appendix XII. See also notes 4728-29 to xliv. 54.

5210. Cf. xxxvii. 48 and n. 4064. Their purity is the feature hereby chiefly symbolised.

5211. Delicate pink, with reference to their complexions and their beauty of form. The gems also indicate their worth and dignity.

5212. This is the summing up of all the symbolism used to express the Fruit of Goodness or Good. The symbolism must necessarily resort to comparative terms, to subjective ideas of Bliss. But the fullest expression can only be given in abstract terms: "Is there any reward for Good-other than Good?" Can anything express it better?

- 63. Then which of the favours
  Of your Lord will ye deny?—
- 64. Dark-green in colour 5214 (From plentiful watering).
- 65. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?
- 66. In them (each) will be

5214. "Dark-green in colour": these Gardens will also be fruitful and flourishing, and watered plentifully; but their aspect and characteristics will be different, corresponding to the subjective differences in the ideas of Bliss among those who would respectively enjoy the two sets of Gardens.

<sup>5219.</sup> The Pavilions seem to add dignity to their status. In the other Gardens (lv. 58), the description "like rubies and corals" is perhaps an indication of higher dignity.

73. Then which of the favours Of your Lord will ye deny?—

74. Whom no man or Jinn Before them has touched; -

75. Then which of the favours

76. Reclining on green Cushions 5220 And rich Carpets of beauty.

<sup>5220.</sup> Cf. the parallel words for the other two Gardens, in lv. 54 above, which suggest perhaps a higher dignity.

Rafraf is usually translated by Cushions or Pillows, and I have followed this meaning in view of the word "reclining". But another interpretation is "Meadows", in view of the adjective "green"— 'abqarī: carpets richly figured and dyed, and skilfully worked.

<sup>5221.</sup> Cf. lv. 27 and n. 5196. This minor echo completes the symmetry of the two leading Ideas of this Sūra,—the Bounty and Majesty of God, and the Duty of man to make himself worthy of nearness to God.

INTRODUCTION TO SURA LVI (Wāqi'a).

This is the seventh and last Sūra of the series devoted to Revelation and the Hereafter, as explained in the Introduction to S. l.

It belongs to the early Meccan period, with the possible exception of one or two verses.

The theme is the certainty of the Day of Judgment and its adjustment of true Values (lvi. 1-56); God's Power, Goodness and Glory (lvi. 57-74); and the truth of Revelation (lvi. 75-96).

Summary.—When the Day of Judgment comes, the world as we know it will be shaken to its foundations, and men shall be sorted out into three sorts: Those nearest to God, in exalted Bliss; the Companions of the Right Hand, in Bliss; and the Companions of the Left Hand, in Misery (lvi. 1-56, and C. 234).

Surely the Power and Goodness of Gcd, of which Revelation is a Sign, should read man to accept the Message and glorify Him (Ivi. 57-96, and C. 235).

C. 234.—The Event Inevitable is the Day (lvi. 1-56.) Of Judgment: the world as we know it Will be shaken to its depths, and its place Will be taken by a world made new, Where Good will be sorted out from Evil. In Dignity and Bliss will the Good find Fulfilment: Both those Nearest to the Throne of God, And those who earned, by faith and good life, The title, Companions of the Right Hand. Who can tell of the Misery in which The Companions of the Left Hand will live? They will be as it were in a fierce blast Of Fire; their drink but boiling water; Their shade that of Black Smoke that chokes Their lungs ;-ever burning with hunger and thirst, And never satisfied: fit emblems Of the Life in Death to which Evil leads.

S. LVI. 1-8.]

Sūra LVI.

Wāqi'a, or The Inevitable Event.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. When the Event Inevitable 5222 Cometh to pass,
- 2. Then will no (soul)
  Entertain falsehood
  Concerning its coming.
- 3. (Many) will it bring low; 5223 (Many) will it exalt;
- 4. When the earth shall be Shaken to its depths,
- 5. And the mountains shall Be crumbled to atoms, 5224
- 6. Becoming dust scattered abroad,
- 7. And ye shall be sorted out Into three classes. 5225
- 8. When (there will be)
  The Companions of
  The Right Hand;
  What will be
  The Companions of
  The Right Hand?

5222. The Event Inevitable is the Hour of Judgment. People may doubt now whether it will come. But when it comes, as it will come, suddenly upon them, it will come with such tremendous reality that it will be burnt deep into the experience of every soul. No one can then be deceived or entertain false notions about it.

5223. There will be a sorting out of Good and Evil. Or rather, (verse 7 below), there will be three main classes. Among the Good there will be the specially exalted class, those nearest to God (muqarrabūn, lvi. 11-26), and the righteous people generally, called the Companions of the Right Hand (Aṣḥāb-ul-maimana, lvi. 27-40). And there will be those in agony, the Companions of the Left Hand (Aṣḥāb-ul-mash-ama, lvi. 41-56). Many who were high and mighty in this life will be brought low for their sins, and many who were lowly but virtuous will be exalted to various ranks and degrees. The old landmarks will be lost in the inner world, as they will be in the outer world.

5224. The old physical world will disappear in the New Creation,

5225. See, n. 5223 above.

- 9. And the Companions of The Left Hand,—
  What will be
  The Companions of The Left Hand?
- 10. And those Foremost
  (In Faith) will be
  Foremost (in the Hereafter). 5226
- 11. Mehese will be
  Those Nearest to God: 5227
- 12. In Gardens of Bliss:
- 13. A number of people From those of old, 5228
- 14. And a few from those Of later times.
- 15. (They will be) on Thrones 5229
  Encrusted (with gold
  And precious stones),
- 16. Reclining on them, Facing each other, 5930

- ٥- وَٱصْلِبُ الْمُثَنَّدُةِ هُ مَا اَصْلِبُ الْمُثَنَّدَةِ حُ
- ١٠- وَالسَّمِقُونَ السَّمِعُونَ ٥
  - ا-أوللوك الْمُقَرَّبُونَ ٥
  - ١١-رفي جَنْتِ النَّعِيْمِ
- ٣- ثُلُةٌ مِنَ الْأَوْلِيْنَ ٥
- ٣- وَ قَلِيْلٌ مِّنَ الْأَخِرِيْنَ أَ ه اعلى سُرُر مَّنُوضُوْنَةِ لِ
- ١١- مُتَكِئِنُ عَلَيْهَا مُتَقْبِلِيْنَ

5226. "Foremost (in Faith)": there are two meanings, and both are implied. (1) Those who have reached the highest degree in spiritual understanding, such as the great prophets and teachers of mankind, will also take precedence in the Hereafter. (2) Those who are the first in time—the quickest and readiest—to accept God's Message—will have the first place in the Kingdom of Heaven. Verses 8, 9 and 10 mention the three main categories or classifications after Judgment. In the subsequent verses their happiness or misery are symbolised. This category, Foremost in Faith, is nearest to God.

5227. See n. 5223 above. Nearness to God is the test of the highest Bliss. The symbols that follow are mere reminiscences from our physical life.

5228. Of great Prophets and Teachers there were many before the time of the holv Prophet Muhammad. As he was the last of the Prophets, he and the great Teachers under his Dispensation will be comparatively fewer in number, but their teaching is the sum and flower of all mankind's spiritual experience.

5229. The costly Thrones will typify the high degree of their spiritual eminence.

5230. But they will not be separate each in his own corner. They will face each other. For they are all one, and their mutual society will be part of their Bliss.

- 17. Round about them will (serve) 5231
  Youths of perpetual (freshness).
- 18. With goblets, (shining) beakers, And cups (filled) out of Clear-flowing fountains:
  - 19. No after-ache will they Receive therefrom, nor will they Suffer intoxication: 5232
- 20. And with fruits,
  Any that they may select;
- 21. And the flesh of fowls, Any that they may desire.
- 22. And (there will be) Companions With beautiful, big, And lustrous eyes,—<sup>5233</sup>
- 23. Like unto Pearls 5234
  Well-guarded.
- 24. A Reward for the Deeds Of their past (Life).
- 25. No frivolity will they 5935
  Hear therein, nor any
  Taint of ill,—

اديكُونُ عَلَيْهِمْ وِلْدَانٌ تُعَكَّدُونَ ٥

١٠- باگذاپ وَ اَبَارِنِيَ هُ

91-ألا يُصَلَّعُونَ عَنْهَا وَلَا يُعَنُّزِفُونَ ٥

٢٠- و فَاكِهَةٍ مِتَا يُتَغَيِّرُونَ ٥

مرجَزُاءً بِمَا كَانُوا يَعْمُلُونَ ٥

٥٥- لا يَسْمَعُونَ فِيهَا لَغُوًا وَلا تَاشِيمًا ہُ

5231. Cf. lii. 24, and n. 5058. The youth and freshness with which the attendants will serve is a symbol of true service such as we may expect in the spiritual world. That freshness will be perpetual, and not subject to any moods, or changes.

5232. The Feast of Reason and the Flow of Soul are typified by all that is best in the feasts in this imperfect world, but there will be none of the disadvantages incident to such feasts in this world, such as satiety, aches, excess, a sense of exhaustion, or loss of senses, etc. Cf. xxxvii. 47, and n, 4063. A goblet is a bowl without handles; a beaker has a "lip" and a stem; 'cup" is a general term.

5233. Cf. xliv. 54, and n. 4729. The companionship of Beauty and Grace is one of the highest pleasures of life. In this bodily life it takes bodily form. In the higher life it takes a higher form suitable to the spiritual world.

5234. Cf. lii. 24, where this description is applied to the youths who serve. See also n. 5058 there. In lvi. 78 below the adjective maknūn is applied to the Qur-ān, "the well-guarded Book".

5235. Cf. lii. 23. Apart from physical ills worldly feasts or delights are apt to suffer from vain or frivolous discourse, idle boasting, foolish flattery, or phrases pointed with secret venom or moral mischief. The negation of these from spiritual Bliss follows as a matter of course, but it is specially insisted on to guard against the perversities of human nature, which likes to read ill into the best that can be put in words.

- 26. Only the saying, 5236 "Peace! Peace".
- 27. The Companions of The Right Hand,—
  What will be
  The Companions of The Right Hand?
- 28. (They will be) among 5237 Lote-trees without thorns,
- 29. Among Țalh trees 5238
  With flowers (or fruits)
  Piled one above another,—
- 30. In shade long-extended,
- 31. By water flowing constantly,
- 32. And fruit in abundance,
- 33. Whose season is not limited, Nor (supply) forbidden, 5239
- 34. And on Thrones (of Dignity), Raised high.
- 35. We have created (their Companions) 6210 Of special creation,

۲۸- الآ قِنْ لَا سَلْنَا سَلْنَا ٥ ٢٠- وَ آصْحَابُ الْيَهِيْنِ أَهُ مَا آصْحَابُ الْيَهِيْنِ أَ مَا آصْحَابُ الْيَهِيْنِ أَنْ ٢٨- فِيْ سِنْدٍ مَخْضُوْدٍ أَ

٢٩-وَّطَلَحٍ مَّنْضُوْدٍ نُ

٣- وَ ظِلِّ مَنْ لُودٍ ﴿
 ٣- وَ مَآءٍ مَنْ كُوْبٍ ﴿
 ٣٠- وَ فَالِهَةٍ كَثِيْرَةٍ ﴿
 ٣٣- وَ فَالِهَةٍ كَثِيْرَةٍ ﴿
 ٣٣- لَا مَقْطُوعَةٍ وَ لَا مَنْنُوعَةٍ ۞
 ٣٣- وَ فُرُشٍ مَرْفُوعَةٍ ﴿

م- إِنَّا ٱنْشَأْنَهُ فَ اِنْشَآءً ٥

<sup>5236.</sup> Qīl is best translated "saying", rather than "word". For the saying is an act, a thought, a fact, which may be embodied in a word, but which goes far beyond the word. The "Peace of God" is an atmosphere which sums up Heaven even better than "Bliss".

<sup>5239</sup> As it is not like earthly fruit, its season is not limited, nor is there any prohibition by law or custom or circumstance as to when or how it is to be consumed. The spiritual Fruit is free, unlimited, and inexhaustible.

<sup>5240.</sup> The pronoun in Arabic is in the feminine gender, but lest grosser ideas of sex should intrude, it is made clear that these Companions for heavenly society will be of special creation,—of virginal purity, grace, and beauty, inspiring and inspired by love, with the question of time and age eliminated. Thus every person among the Righteous will have the Bliss of Heaven and the Peace (of God.

36. And made them

43. And in the shades
Of Black Smoke: 5243

44. Nothing (will there be)

45. For that they were wont To be indulged, before that,

٣٠- فَجَعَلْنَهُنَّ اَبْكَارًا ۗ ٣٠- عُرُبًا آثرابًا ٞ

٣٢- نِنْ سَمُوْمِ وَكَمِينِمِ لِ

٨٨-لا بارِد ولا تربيمِه ٨٨-اِنَّهُمُر كَانُوْا قَبُلَ ذَلِكَ

5241. This class—the righteous—will be a large company in Heaven, belonging to all the ages of the world. Cf. n. 5228 to lvi. 13 above. Such is the unbounded Bounty of God. These verses 39-40 should really be in the last Section.

5242. Notice the parallelism in the contrast between those in Bliss and those in Misery. The allegory in each case pursues the idea of contrast, and the allegories about Misery lose nothing by their terse brevity. The fierce Blast of Fire and the Boiling Water are in contrast to the happy Lote-tree and the flowers and fruits in verses 28-29 above.

5243. Even the Shades get a different quality in the Abode of Misery: shades of black smoke in contrast to the cool and refreshing long-extended shades of trees by brooks in verses 30-31 above.

5244. Cf. xxxiv. 34, and xliii. 23. We must read verses 45-46 together. They had wealth and the good things of life, but they used them in self-indulgence and shameless crime, and now they are in humiliation.

5245. Their want of belief and ridicule of God's Message contrasts with the stern reality which they see around them now.

5246. In xxvi. 38 (see n. 3159) the phrase "a day well-known" is used for a solemn day of festival, when the multitude of people gather together. The Day of Judgment is such a day in the supreme 5247. This is the Cursed Tree mentioned in xvii. 60, where see n. 2250. Cf. also xxxvii. 62, n. 4072; and xliv. 43-46 and n. 4722.

C. 235.—Learn ye then to witness the Truth in your lives.

(Ivi 57-96.) Your own creation and growth, the seeds

That ye sow in the ground, the Circuit of Water
Through streams, rivers, and seas, to vapour,
Clouds, and rain that feeds the streams,
The Fire that stands as an emblem of Life
And Light,—all point to your Lord Supreme.
His Revelation conveys the same Message
To the pure in heart. Will ye receive it
And live, assured of the truth of the Hereafter?
Glory and Praise to God the Beneficent,
Supreme in Justice, Mercy, and Truth!

- 57. It is We Who have Created you: why will ye 5949 Not witness the Truth?
- 58. Do ye then see ?—
  The (human Seed) that
  Ye throw out,—
- 59. Is it ye who create it, Or are We the Creators?
- 60. We have decreed Death
  To be your common lot, 5250
  And We are not
  To be frustrated

٥٥- نَحُنُ خَلَقَنَكُمْ فَكُو لَا تُصُلِّاقُونَ ۞ ٥٥- أَفَرَءَيْ تَخُمُّمَا تُمُنُونَ ۞ وه- ءَائنَهُ تَخْلُقُونَ ﴾ آهُ نَحْ بُمَالْنَا قَهُ بَهِ

٠- نَحْنُ قَلَازْنَا بَيْنَكُوْ الْمُوْتَ وَمَا نَحْنُ بِمَسُبُوْقِيْنَ ٥

5248. A terrible picture of Misery in contrast to the Companionship of the Good, the True, and the Beautiful, on Thrones of Dignity, for the Companions of the Right Hand, in verses 34-38 above.

5250. Literally, 'to be in the midst of you'. Just as God has created this life that we see, so He has decreed that Death should be the common lot of all of us. Surely, if He can thus give life and death, as we see it, why should we refuse to believe that He can give us other Forms (in the Platonic sense) when this life is over? The Future Life, though indicated by what we know now, is to be on a wholly different plane.

- 61. From changing your Forms
  And creating you (again)
  In (Forms) that ye know not.
- 62. And ye certainly know already
  The first form of creation:
  Why then do ye not
  Celebrate His praises?
- 63. See ye the seed that 5251
  Ye sow in the ground?
- 64. Is it ye that cause it To grow, or are We The Cause?
- 65. Were it Our Will,
  We could crumble it
  To dry powder, and ye would
  Be left in wonderment,
- 66. (Saying), "We are indeed Left with debts (for nothing): 5252
- 67. "Indeed are we shut out (Of the fruits of our labour)".
- 68. See ye the water Which ye drink?
- 69. Do ye bring it Down
  (In rain) from the Cloud
  Or do We?
- 70. Were it Our Will, We could make it

5251. Having appealed to our own nature within us, He appeals now to the external nature around us, which should be evidence to us (1) of His loving care for us, and (2) of its being due to causes other than those which we produce and control. Three examples are given: (1) the seed which we sow in the soil; it is God's processes in nature, which make it grow; (2) the water which we drink; it is God's processes in nature, that send it down from the clouds as rain, and distribute it through springs and rivers; (3) the fire which we strike; it is again a proof of God's Plan and Wisdom in nature.

5252. The cultivator contracts debts for seed and gives labour for ploughing, sowing, watering, and weeding, in the hope of reaping a harvest. Should he not give thanks to God when his harvest is in?

Salt (and unpalatable): 5253 Then why do ye not Give thanks?

- 71. See ye the Fire Which ye kindle?
- 72. Is it ye who grow
  The tree which feeds 5254
  The fire, or do We Grow it?
- 73. We have made it
  A memorial (of Our handiwork), 5255
  And an article of comfort
  And convenience for
  The denizens of deserts. 5256
- 74. Then celebrate with praises 5257
  The name of thy Lord,
  The Supreme!

5253. The mystery of the two streams of water, one sweet and the other salt, constantly mingling, and yet always separate, is referred to more than once. The never-ending circuit is established by streams and rivers mingling with the ocean, the ocean sending forth mists and steam through a process of evaporation which forms clouds, and the clouds by condensation pouring forth rain to feed the streams and rivers again: see notes 3111-2 to xxv. 53, and*n. 5185 to lv. 19, and the further references given there.

5255. Fire is a fit memorial of God's handiwork in nature. It is also an emblem of man's earliest civilisation. It can stand as a symbol of physical comfort and convenience to man, of the source of spiritual light, and also of the warning to Evil about its destruction. In the same way the sower's seed has a symbolical meaning in the preaching of the Message: see xlviii. 29, and n. 4917: and the Rain and the Streams of Water have a symbolical meaning: see notes 2404-5 to xviii. 60, 5256. Cf. xx. 10, and n. 2541, where the mystic meaning of the Fire which Moses saw in the desert is explained. Even ordinarily, a fire in a desert is a sign of human habitation; by following it you may get human society and human comfort. A fire, or light, or beacon in many places directs a traveller on the way Lighthouses at sea and beacons in modern aerodromes serve the same purpose for mariners and airmen.

Another parable about fire will be found in ii, 17-18, and n. 38.

5257. Seeing all these Signs in nature and their symbolical meaning in the spiritual world, man must turn to God and do His Will.

5258. The setting of the Stars: a number of mystic meanings are attached. Here are three. (1) Cf. xliii, I and n. 5085: the setting of a glorious star is a symbol of humility before the power, beauty, and goodness of God. (2) It may refer to the extinction of the stars at the Day of Judgment, betokening the establishment of God's Justice and the Truth of His Revelation. (3) What is bright or beautiful to our senses may disappear from our ken within a few hours, even though its own existence may continue. All light is relative except the Light of God.

5259. The glory of the firmament as it exists, and the wonder of its passing away, are both evidence, to the discerning mind, of the Future which God has prepared, but this evidence can only be effective if men "but knew" is a turned their earnest attention to it.

be effective if men "but knew", i.e. turned their earnest attention to it.

5260. Your attention is drawn to the momentous issues of the Future by the Qur-ān. It is a Revelation described by four characteristics. (1) It is most honourable, karim, which implies, besides the fact that it is worthy of receiving honour, that it confers great favours on those who receive it.

(2) It is well-guarded,  $makn\bar{u}n$ ; precious in itself, and well-preserved in its purity; see n. 5234 to

lvi. 23; see also xv. 9, and n 1944. (3) None but the clean shall touch it,—clean in body, mind, thought, intention, and soul; only such can achieve real contact with its full meaning. (4) It is a Revelation from the Lord of the Worlds, and therefore universal for all.

5261. The Message being such as is described in the last note, how can any one ignore it or treat it with contempt or refuse to allow it to improve his life?

5262. The worst indictment of an enemy of Revelation would be that he should make Falsehood a source of filthy lucre for himself, or that he should let his precious life be corrupted by such unholy occupation.

83. Then why do ye not 5263
(Intervene) when (the soul
Of the dying man)
Reaches the throat,—

84. And ye the while (Sit) looking on,—5264

85. But We are nearer To him than ye, And yet see not,—

86. Then why do ye not,—5265
If you are exempt
From (future) account,—

87. Call back the soul, 5266

If ye are true

(In your claim of Independence)?

88. Mhus, then, if he

هدفرُوْجٌ وَّرَيْحَانُ الْ وَجُنَّكُ نَعِيْمٍ ۞

5263. There is a hiatus after "why do ye not?"—and two parenthetical clauses.—after which the clause "why do ye not?" is resumed again in verse 86 below, with its complement in verse 87. It is permissible to the translator to add some such word as "intervene" here, to make the translation run smoothly.

5264. The dying man's friends, relatives, and companions may be sitting round him and quite close to him in his last moments, but God is nearer still at all times, for He is nearer than the man's own jugular vein (1, 16), and one of God's own titles is "Ever Near" (xxxiv, 50).

5265. These words resume the sentence begun at verse 83 above and interrupted by the two parenthetical clauses in verses 84 and 85. See n. 5263 above.

5266. The sentence may now be briefly paraphrased. 'If you disbelieve in Revelation and a future Judgment, and claim to do what you like and be independent of God, how is it you cannot call back a dying man's soul to his body when all of you congregate round him at his death-bed? But you are not independent of Judgment. There is a Day of Account, when you will have to be judged by your deeds in this life.'

5267. See above, Ivi. 11-26 and notes.

5268. Raihān: sweet-smelling plants, as in lv. 12. Here used as symbolical of complete Satisfaction and Delight.

90. And if he be
Of the Companions of
The Right Hand, 5269

91. (For him is the salutation), "Peace be unto thee", 68:0

From the Companions

Of the Right Hand.

92. And if he be
Of those who treat

Who go wrong,

93. For him is Entertainment With Boiling Water,

94. And burning in Hell-Fire.

95. Verily, this is
The Very Truth
And Certainty. 6272

The Supreme.

96. So celebrate with praises 5273
The name of thy Lord,

٠٠ - وَ اَمْنَا إِنْ كَانَ مِنْ آصْلِ الْيَمِيْنِ ٥

اه - فَسَلْمُ لَكَ مِنْ اَصْحٰبِ الْيَمِيْنِ حُ

٩٩- فَسَيِّحْ بِالشَّرِكَ إِلَى الْعَظِيْمِرِ أَ

5269. See above, lvi. 27-38 and notes.

5270. In Ivi. 26 above the salutation of "Peace, Peace!" is addressed to those Nearest to God. Here we learn that it is also addressed to the Companions of the Right Hand. Both are in Gardens of Bliss: only the former have a higher Dignity than the latter.

5271. Cf. above, lvi. 51-55.

5272. "The assurance of the Hereafter" is one of the strongest features of Faith. For without it the apparent inequalities and injustices of this Life cannot be satisfactorily explained.

5273. Cf. lvi. 74 above. That was the conclusion of the argument about the Future from the examples of God's goodness in nature. Now we have the conclusion of the same argument from God's revelation through His inspired Messengers.

INTRODUCTION TO SURA LVII (Hadid).

We have now studied the contents of nearly nine-tenths of the Qur-ān. We have found that the arrangement of the Sūras in the present Text is not haphazard, but that they follow a distinct logical order more helpful for study than the chronological order. The comprehensive scheme of building up the new Ummat or Brotherhood and its spiritual implications is now complete. The remaining tenth of the Qur-ān may be roughly considered in two parts. The first contains ten Sūras (S. lvii. to S. lxvi.), all revealed in Medina, and each dealing with some special point which needs emphasis in the social life of the Ummat. The second (S. lxvii. to cxiv.) contains short Meccan lyrics, each dealing with some aspect of spiritual life, expressed in language of great mystic beauty.

The present Medina Sūra is chiefly concerned with spiritual humility and the avoidance of arrogance, and a warning that retirement from the world may not be the best way of seeking the good pleasure of God. Its probable date is after the Conquest of Mecca, A.H. 8.

Summary.—God's Power and Knowledge extend to all things: follow His Light direct, without doubt or fear or half-heartedness, but with humility, generous charity, and faith, and not in a life of isolation from the world. (lvii 1-29, and C. 236.)

C. 236.—God is all-in-all: follow His Law (Ivii. 1-29.) And His Light, and obey His Apostle, who invites You to deeds of goodness and charity. Strive and spend your resources and yourselves In the Cause of God: He will grant you a Light To go before you and guide you to your Eternal Goal, where no Evil can enter. When success Crowns your efforts, even then is the time To humble yourselves before God, in sincere Witness to His Love. The pleasures here below Are deceptive: be foremost in seeking God And His Good Pleasure: trust Him: be not Like those who mistook mere renunciation Of the world for God's service. God's Grace Is for all: be your love and your service for all.

Süra LVII.

Hadid, or Iron. 5274

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. Whatever is in
  The heavens and on earth,—
  Let it declare
  The Praises and Glory of God: 5275
  For He is the Exalted
  In Might, the Wise.
- 2. To Him belongs the dominion Of the heavens and the earth: It is He Who gives Life and Death; and He Has Power over all things.
- 3. He is the First
  And the Last,
  The Evident
  And the Immanent: 5276
  And He has full knowledge
  Of all things.
- 4. He it is Who created
  The heavens and the earth
  In six Days, 5277 and is moreover Firmly established on the Throne
  (Of authority). 5278 He knows
  What enters within the earth

ا-سَبَّحَ بِلَّهِ مَا فِى السَّلُوتِ وَالْاَرْضِ وَهُوَالْعَزِيْزُ الْحَكِيْمُ

٧- لَهُ مُلْكُ التَّكُونِ وَالْاَرْضِ
 يُحْي وَيُمِينُ
 وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَدِينُ
 ٣- هُوَ الْاَوَّلُ وَالْإِخِرُ
 وَهُوَ بِكُلِ شَيْءٍ عَلِيْحُ
 وَهُوَ بِكُلِ شَيْءٍ عَلِيْحُ

٣- هُوَ الْآنِئ خَلَقَ التَمْوْتِ وَ الْآرُضَ فِي سِتَاةِ اَيَامِ ثُمُّ السُتُوٰى عَلَى الْعَنْشِ شَيْعَةً السُتُوٰى عَلَى الْعَنْشِ شَيْعُ لَحُو مَا يَلِجُ فِي الْآرُضِ
 يَعُلُمُ مَا يَلِجُ فِي الْآرُضِ

<sup>5274.</sup> Iron is the type and emblem of strength and reliability, on which depend the real virtues expounded in this Sūra, such as real humility, whole-heartedness, and charity, as opposed to Monasticism, Loadiceanism, and Niggardliness. See Ivii 25 below.

<sup>5276</sup> Bāṭin: that which is within, as opposed to that which is evident in things outside. God has both these qualities. His Signs are everywhere evident in the whole universe. But He is also immanent within us and in the soul of all good things. The pair of seemingly opposite qualities, First and Last, Evident and Immanent, Power and Wisdom. Giving of Life and Death, etc., are referred to here, to point the contrast with our human frailty, in which monasticism may not be the same as humility, spending may not be the same as charity, and so on.

<sup>5278.</sup> Cf. x. 3, and n. 1386. It is not that God completed His Creation in six days and rested on the seventh day, or rests now. Certain external forms of the universe were by God's Command completed in six periods of evolution. But His creative process still goes on, and He is still, and will always be, on His Throne of authority, knowing all and guiding all affairs.

And what comes forth out
Of it, what comes down
From heaven and what mounts
Up to it. And He is
With you wheresoever ye 5279
May be. And God sees
Well all that ye do.

- 5. To Him belongs the dominion Of the heavens and the earth: 5280 And all affairs are Referred back to God.
- 6. He merges Night into Day, And He merges Day into Night; And He has full knowledge Of the secrets of (all) hearts.
- 7. Believe in God
  And His Apostle,
  And spend (in charity)
  Out of the (substance)
  Whereof He has made you
  Heirs. For, those of you
  Who believe and spend
  (In charity),—for them
  Is a great Reward.
- 8. What cause have ye 5282
  Why ye should not believe
  In God?—And the Apostle
  Invites you to believe

وَ مَا يَخُرُجُ مِنُهَا وَ مَا يَنْزِلُ مِنَ التَّكَمَاءَ وَمَا يَغُرُجُ فِيهَا وَهُوَ مَعَكُمُ اَيْنَ مَا كُنْتُمُ وَاللّهُ بِمَا تَعُمَّلُونَ بَصِيْرٌ ه-لَهُ مُلْكُ التَّكُمُوتِ وَالْأَرْضِ وَإِلَى اللّهِ تُرْجَعُ الْأُمُورُ وَإِلَى اللّهِ تُرْجَعُ الْأُمُورُ وَإِلَى اللّهِ تُرْجَعُ الْأُمُورُ

٧-يُوْلِجُ الْيُعَلَ فِي النَّهَادِ وَ يُوَلِجُ النَّهَادَ فِي الْيُمِلُ وَهُوَعَلِيْحٌ بِنَاتِ الصُّدُونِ

٥- امِنُوا بِاللهِ وَرَسُولِهِ وَانْفِقُوا مِتَاجَعَلَكُهُ مُّسُتَخَلَفِيْنَ فِيهُ فَالَّذِيْنَ اَمَنُوا مِنْكُمْ وَانْفَقُوا لَكُهُمْ اَجُرُّكِهِ يُرُّ لَهُمْ أَجُرُّكِهِ يُرُّ

٥- وَ مَا لَكُورُ لَا تُؤْمِنُونَ بِاللّٰهِ ۚ
 ٥ الرَّسُولُ يَـنُ عُونَكُورُ لِتُؤْمِنُواْ

5279. He is everywhere. No Space or Time is without Him: yet He is independent of Space or Time. With reference to our own psychology, He is wherever we are, and He sees all that we do.

5280. See lvii. 2 above, where this phrase referred to God's complete authority over the whole of the external universe: the same phrase now refers to His complete authority over the abstract world—of thoughts and affairs. Every affair must finally go back to Him, whether it comes out here from Darkness into Light, or hides itself from Light into Darkness. God's knowledge penetrates into the inmost recesses of all Hearts.

5281. Whenever power or wealth or influence or any good thing is transferred from one person or group of persons to another, it involves added responsibilities to the persons receiving these advantages. They must be the more zealous in real charity and all good works, for that is a part of the evidence which they give of their faith and gratitude. And, besides, their good deeds, under the general law in the spiritual world, carry their own reward.

5282. "What cause have ye why ye should not...?" A figure of speech implying a far wider meaning than the words express. It is equivalent to saying: "There is every reason why ye should believe in God", etc. The same construction applies to verse 10 below.

In your Lord, and has Indeed taken your Covenant,<sup>5283</sup> If ye are men of faith.

- 9. He is the One Who Sends to His Servant 5284
  Manifest Signs, that He May lead you from
  The depths of Darkness
  Into the Light And verily,
  God is to you
  Most kind and Merciful.
- 10. And what cause have ve Why ye should not spend In the cause of God?— For to God belongs 5:85 The heritage of the heavens And the earth. Not equal among you Are those who spent (freely) And fought, before the Victory, 5286 (With those who did so later). Those are higher in rank Than those who spent (freely) And fought afterwards. But to all has God promised A goodly (reward). And God Is well acquainted With all that ye do.

بِرَبِّكُمْرُ وَقَدُ أَخَلَ مِيْتَاتَكُمُوانَ كُنُنُوُمُ مُّوَالَى الْمُنَاءُ مُّوَمِنِينَ و-هُوالَّذِن يُنَزِلُ عَلَى عَبْرِهِ الْيَالَةِ بِيَنْتٍ لِيُغْرِجَكُمُ مِنَ الظُّلُمْتِ إِلَى النُّوْرِ * وَ إِنَّ اللَّهُ بِكُمْرُ لَرُوُدُنُ ذَكَ رَحِيْمُ ()

5283. There are two shades of meaning. (1) There is the implied Covenant in a man who accepts the Gospel of Unity that he will bring forth all the fruits of that Gospel, i.e. believe in God, and serve God and humanity. See n. 682 to v. 1. (2) There were at various times express Covenants entered into by the Muslims to serve God and be true to the Prophet, comparable to the Covenants of the Jewish nation about the Message of Moses; e.g. the two Covenants of 'Aqaba (v. 8, and n. 705) and the Pledge of Hudaibiya (xlviii. 10, n. 4877). For the Covenant with Israel at Mount Sinai, see ii. 63, n. 78.

5284. The holy Prophet Muhammad. The Signs sent to him were: (1) the Ayats of the Qur-an, and (2) his life and work, in which God's Plan and Purpose were unfolded.

5285. "To God belongs the heritage of..."; see n. 485 to iii. 180; also n. 988 to vi. 165; and n. 1964 to xv, 23.

5286. This is usually understood to refer to the Conquest of Mecca, after which the Muslims succeeded to the power and position which the Pagan Quraish had so misused at Mecca. Thereafter the Muslims had the hegemony of Arabia, and in a few centuries, for a time, the hegemony of the world. But the words are perfectly general, and we must understand the general meaning also: that the people who fight and struggle in God's Cause and give of their best to it at any time are worthy of praise: but those are worthy of special distinction who do it when the Cause is being persecuted and in most need of assistance, before victory comes.

SECTION 2.

- 11. Who is he that will Loan to God a beautiful bear Loan? For (God) will Increase it manifold
  To his credit,
  And he will have (besides)
  A liberal reward.
- 12. One Day shalt thou see
  The believing men and
  The believing women—
  How their Light runs 5288
  Forward before them
  And by their right hands:
  (Their greeting will be):
  "Good News for you this Day!
  Gardens beneath which flow rivers!
  To dwell therein for aye!
  This is indeed
  The highest Achievement!" 5239
- 13. One Day will the Hypocrites—
  Men and women—say
  To the Believers: "Wait
  For us! Let us borrow
  (A light) from your Light!" 5:90
  It will be said: "Turn
  Ye back to your rear!
  Then seek a light (where Ye can)!" So a wall 5:291
  Will be put up betwixt them,

5287. Cf. ii. 245, n. 276.

5288. In the Darkness of the Day of Judgment there will be a Light to guide the righteous to their Destination. This will be the Light of their Faith and their Good Works. Perhaps the Light of the Right Hand mentioned here is the Light of their Good Works: for the Blessed will receive their Record in their right hand (lxix. 19-24).

5289. The highest Achievement, the highest felicity, the attainment of Salvation, the fulfilment of all desires. See n 4733 to xliv. 57.

5290. Watchful preparation in Life, and the light of Faith, which reflects the divine Light, are matters of personal Life, and cannot be borrowed from another. So, in Christ's parable of the Ten Virgins (Matt. xxv. 1-13), when the foolish ones had let their lamps go out for want of oil, they asked to borrow oil from the wise ones, but the wise ones answered and said, "Not so; ...but go ye rather to them that sell, and buy for yourselves"

5291. The wall of Personality, or Record of Deeds, will divide the Good from the Evil. But the Gateway in it will show that communication will not be cut off. Evil must realise that Good—i.e. Mercy and Felicity—had been within its reach, and that the Wrath which envelops it is due to its own rejection of Mercy.

With a gate therein.
Within it will be Mercy
Throughout, and without it,
All alongside, will be (Wrath and) Punishment!

- 14. (Those without) will call out,

  "Were we not with you?"

  (The others) will reply, "True!

  But ye led yourselves

  Into temptation; ye looked forward

  (To our ruin); ye doubted

  (God's Promise); and (your false)

  Desires deceived you; until

  There issued the Command

  Of God. And the Deceiver

  Deceived you in respect of God. 5238
- 15. "This Day shall no ransom
  Be accepted of you, nor
  Of those who rejected God. 5294
  Your abode is the Fire:
  That is the proper place
  To claim you: and an evil
  Refuge it is!"
- 16. Is as not the time arrived 5295

  For the Believers that

  Their hearts in all humility

  Should engage in the remembrance

ياڪ ا باطِئه فِيهُ الرِّحْمَةُ وَظَاهِرُهُ مِنْ قِبُلِهِ الْعَكَابِ أَ ١٠- يُنَادُونَكُمُ أَلَهُ نَكُنُ مُعَكُمُ قَالُوا بِلِّي وَلَكِتُّكُمْ فَتَنْتُمُ أَنْفُسَكُمُ وترتصنكم وانتكثكم وغرتكم الأمان حَتَّى جَاءُ آمُرُ اللهِ ٥١- فَالْبَوْمُ لَا يُؤْخِذُ مِنْكُمُ فِكُمُ فِلْهَا وَ لَا مِنَ الَّذِينِيَ كُفُرُ وَا<sup>لْم</sup>ُ مأوكم التاروط هِيَ مُوْلِكُمُرٌ وَبِئْسَ الْبَصِيْرُ ۞ ١٢- آلَوْ يَأْنِ لِلَّذِيْنِ أَمَنُوا آنُ تَخْشَعَ قُلُوبُهُمُ لِنِ كُو

5292. The evil will now claim some right of kinship or association or proximity with the good in earthly life; but in fact they had been arrogant and had selfishly despised them before. The reply will be: (1) you yourselves chose temptation and evil; (2) when you had power in your earthly life, you hoped for ruin to the good, and perhaps plotted for it; (3) you were warned by men of God, but you doubted God's very existence, and certainly His Mercy and Justice, and the Hereafter; (4) you followed your own lusts and neglected Reason and Truth; (5) you were given plenty of rope, but you followed your mad career, until Judgment came upon you, and now it is too late for repentance.

5293. The Arch-Deceiver (Satan) deceived you in respect of God in many ways: for example, he made you oblivious of God's Mercy and loving-kindness; he made you reject His Grace; he made you think that God's Justice may not overtake you; etc.

5294. In personal responsibility there is no room for vicarious ransom or for ransom by payments of gold or silver or by sacrifice of possessions. Nor can the crime be expiated for after Judgment. 'You' and 'those who rejected God' are two ways of looking at the same persons. 'You are rejected because you rejected God'.

5295. Humility and the remembrance of God and His Message are never more necessary than in the hour of victory and prosperity.

Of God and of the Truth
Which has been revealed (to them),
And that they should not Become like those to whom
Was given Revelation aforetime,

  It shall be increased manifold

  And they shall have (besides)
  A liberal reward.

5296. The men immediately referred to are the contemporary Jews and Christians. To each of these Ummats was given God's Revelation, but as time passed, they corrupted it, became arrogant and hard-hearted, and subverted justice, truth, and the purity of Life. But the general lesson is far wider. No one is favoured of God except on the score of righteousness. Except on that score, there is no chosen individual or race. There is no blind good fortune or ill fortune. All happens according to the just laws and will of God. But at no time is humility or righteousness more necessary than in the hour of victory or triumph.

5297. As the dead earth is revived after the refreshing showers of rain, so is it with the spirit of man, whether as an individual or a race or Ummat. There is no cause for despair. God's Truth will revive the spiritual faculties if it is accepted with humility and zeal.

5298. Cf. lvii. 11; also see ii. 245, n. 276.

5299. Cf. iv. 69, and n. 586. The four categories there mentioned as constituting the beautiful Fellowship of Faith are: the Prophets who teach, the Sincere Lovers of Truth, the Witnesses who testify, and the Righteous who do good. Of these, the prophets or apostles have already been mentioned in this verse. The Righteous who do good are mentioned as the men and women given over to deeds of charity in verse 18.

The Witnesses (who testify),500 In the eyes of their Lord: They shall have their Reward And their Light.5001 But those who reject God And deny Our Signs,—They are the Companions Of Hell-Fire.

SECTION 3.

20. Know ye (all), that The life of this world Is but play and amusement.5302 Pomp and mutual boasting And multiplying, (in rivalry) Among yourselves, riches And children. Here is a similitude: 5303 How rain and the growth Which it brings forth, delight (The hearts of) the tillers; 5304 Soon it withers; thou Wilt see it grow yellow; Then it becomes dry And crumbles away. But in the Hereafter Is a Penalty severe (For the devotees of wrong). And Forgiveness from God And (His) Good Pleasure

الشُّهُكَاآءُ عِنْكَ رَبِّهِمْ الشُّهُكَاآءُ عِنْكَ رَبِّهِمْ الشُّهُكَاءُ عِنْكَ رَبِّهِمْ اللَّهُمُ الْهُمُ اللَّهُمُ اللَّهُوَ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ اللَّهِ الْمُحَالِيِّةِ الْهُمُ الْمُحَالِيْةِ الْمُحَالِيِّةِ اللَّهُ الْمُحَالِيِ اللَّهِ اللَّهُ الْمُحَالِقِةُ اللَّهُ الْمُحَالِقِةُ اللَّهِ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ اللَّهُ الْمُعَلِيْدِ اللَّهِ اللَّهُ اللْمُلِيْلِيِّ اللْمُلْعِلَى الْمُعِلَّالِيِّ اللْمُلْعِلَى الْمُعِلَى الْمُحْلِقِ اللْمُلْعِلَى الْمُعْلِقِيلِيِّ الْمُلْعِلِيِّ الْمُلِمِي الْمُلْعِلِيِّ الْمُلْعِلِيِّ الْمُلْعِلِيِيِّ الْمُلْعِلِيِلِيِّ الْمُلْعِلِيِّ الْمُلْعِلِيِلِيِّ الْمُلْعِلِيِيِيِّ الْمِلْمِلْمُ الْمُلْعِلِيِيِيِّ الْمُلْعِلِيِيِّ الْمُلْعِلِيِيِ

5300. The Witnesses are not only Martyrs, but all those who carry the Banner of Truth against all odds and in all positions of danger, whether by pen or speech, or deed or counsel.

5301. Note that these two are specially high degrees in the spiritual kingdom, just short of Apostleship. For they have not only their reward in the spiritual Kingdom of God, like those who practise charity (verse 18 above), but they themselves become sources of light and leading.

5302. Cf. vi. 32, and n. 855. In the present passage the idea is further amplified. In this life people not only play and amuse themselves and each other, but they show off, and boast, and pile up riches and man-power and influence, in rivalry with each other.

5303. Cf. xxxix, 21, and n. 4273. Here the Parable is meant to teach a slightly different lesson. God's mercies are free and open to all, like His rain. But how do men make use of them? The good men take the real spiritual harvest and store the spiritual grain. The men who are in love with the ephemeral are delighted with the green of the tares and the grass; but such things give no real nourishment; they soon wither, become dry, and crumble to pieces, like the worldly pleasures and pomps, boastings and tumults, possessions and friends.

5304.  $Kuff\bar{a}r$  is here used in the unusual sense of 'tillers or husbandmen', because they sow the seed and cover it up with soil. But the ordinary meaning, 'Rejecters of Truth', is not absent. The allegory refers to such men.

(For the devotees of God). And what is the life Of this world, but Goods and chattels Of deception? 50.00

5305. Cf. iii 185, and n. 492. Many of the attractive vanities of this world are but nets set by the Evil One to deceive man. The only thing real and lasting is the Good Life lived in the Light of God.

5306, Cf. iii, 133, and n. 452.

5307. "Bestows on whom He pleases." That is, such grace and favour is beyond any one's own merits. It is bestowed by God according to His holy Will and Plan, which is just, merciful, and righteous.

5308 External disasters or misfortunes may strike people's eye or imagination, but there are worse crises and misfortunes in the spiritual world, which are of equal or greater importance to man's future. All this happens according to the Will and Plan of God. Even where we are allowed the exercise of our own wills, the consequences that follow are in accordance with the laws and Plan decreed by God beforehand.

5310. In the external world, what people may consider misfortune or good fortune may both turn out to be illusory,—in Kipling's words, "both impostors just the same". The man of God does not grumble if some one else has possessions, nor exult if he has them. He does not covet and he does not boast. If he has any advantages, he shares them with other people, as he considers them not due to his own merits, but as gifts of God.

5311. Neither the Covetous nor the Boasters have any place in the Good Pleasure of God. The Covetous are particularly insidious, as their avarice and niggardliness not only keep back the gifts of God from men, but their pernicious example dries up the streams of Charity in others.

5312. It is Charity in God's Way that is specially in view here. If people are selfish and withhold their hand, they only injure themselves. They do not hurt God's Cause, for He is independent of all needs, and He will find other means of assisting His more meagrely-endowed servants; He is worthy of all praise in His care for His creatures.

5313. Three things are mentioned as gifts of God. In concrete terms they are the Book, the Balance, and Iron, which stand as emblems of three things which hold society together, viz. Revelation, which commands Good and forbids Evil; Justice, which gives to each person his due; and the strong arm of the Law, which maintains sanctions for evil-doers. For Balance, see also xlii. 17, and n. 4550.

5314. "Sent down": anzala: in the sense of revealed to man the use of certain things, created in him the capacity of understanding and using them: cf. xxxix, 6: "sent down for you eight head of cattle in pairs".

5315, Iron: the most useful metal known to man. Out of it is made steel, and from steel and iron are made implements of war, such as swords, spears, guns, etc., as well as instruments of peace, such as ploughshares, bricklayers' trowels, architects' and engineers' instruments, etc. Iron stands as the emblem of Strength, Power, Discipline, Law's sanctions, etc. Iron and steel industries have also been the foundation of the prosperity and power of modern manufacturing nations like England.

27. Then, in their wake,
We followed them up

The Gospel; and We ordained
In the hearts of those
Who followed him
Compassion and Mercy. 5320

5316. In xxi. 49, I have translated "in their most secret thoughts" for the more literal "unseen" (bil-gaibi). Perhaps the more literal "unseen" may do if understood in the adverbial sense as explained in xxxv. 18, n. 3902. The sincere man will help the Cause, whether he is seen or brought under notice or not.

5317. To help God and His apostles is to help their Cause. It is to give men an opportunity of striving and fighting for His Cause and proving their true mettle, for thus is their spirit tested. As explained in the next line, God in Himself is Full of Strength, Exalted in Power, and Able to enforce His Will, and He has no need of other assistance.

5318. Cf. xxii. 40 and n. 2818. "Strength" is specific; Power or Might is more abstract, the ability to enforce what is willed.

5319. Some of them: i.e., of their line, or posterity, or Ummat. When the Book that was given to them became corrupted, many of them followed their own fancies and became transgressors.

5320. The chief characteristic of the teaching in the Gospels is humility and other-worldliness. The first blessings in the Sermon on the Mount are on "the poor in spirit", "they that mourn", and they that are "meek" (Matt. v. 3-5). Christ's disciples were enjoined to "take no thought for the morrow", and told: "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof" (Matt. vi. 34). They were also commanded "that we resist not evil; but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also" (Matt. v. 39). These are fragmentary presentments of an imperfect philosophy as seen through monastic eyes. In so far as they represent pity, sympathy with suffering, and deeds of mercy, they represent the spirit of Christ.

But the Monasticism
Which they invented
For themselves, We did not Prescribe for them: 5321
(We commanded) only
The seeking for the Good
Pleasure of God; but that
They did not foster 5322
As they should have done.
Yet We bestowed, on those
Among them who believed, 5323
Their (due) reward, but
Many of them are
Rebellious transgressors. 5324

5321. But God's Kingdom requires also courage, resistance to evil, the firmness, law, and discipline which will enforce justice among men. It requires men to mingle with men, so that they can uphold the standard of Truth, against odds if necessary. These were lost sight of in Monasticism, which was not prescribed by God.

- 5322. God certainly requires that men shall renounce the idle pleasures of this world, and turn to the Path which leads to God's Good Pleasure. But that does not mean gloomy lives, ("they that mourn"), nor perpetual and formal prayers in isolation. God's service is done through pure lives in the turmoil of this world. This spirit was lost, or at least not fostered by monastic institutions. On the contrary a great part of the "struggle and striving" for noble lives was suppressed.
- 5323. Many of them lost true Faith, or had their Faith corrupted by superstitions. But those who continued firm in Faith saw the natural development of Religion in Islam. Their previous belief was not a disadvantage to them, but helped them, because they kept it free from false and selfish prejudices. These are the ones who are further addressed at the beginning of verse 28 below.
- 5324. The corruptions in the Christian Church, the hair-splitting disputes, and mutual strife and hatred of sects had become a scandal by the time that the light of Islam came into the world. The pages of Gibbon's great History bear witness. Not only had the religion become void of grace, but the lives of the people, priests and laity, had fallen into great depths of degradation. See remarks in my Appendix V, pages 411-413, and the general picture in Kingsley's "Hypatia".
- 5325. From the context before (see n. 5323 above) and after (see next note), this is held to refer to the Christians and People of the Book who kept their Faith true and undefiled.
- 5326. The double portion refers to the past and the future. As noted in the last note, this passage is addressed to the Christians and the People of the Book, who, when honestly facing the question of the new Revelation in Islam, find in it the fulfilment of previous revelations, and therefore believe in God's Apostle Muḥammad, and walk by the new Light. Their previous merits will be duly recognised, and they will be treated on fully equal terms in the new Ummat. This is their double share, not necessarily more in quantity than that of their brethren in Islam who passed through no other gate, but having a twofold aspect.

A Light by which ye 5327 Shall walk (straight In your path), and He Will forgive you (your past): 5328 For God is ()ft-Forgiving, Most Merciful:

29. That the People of
The Book may know
That they have no power 5329
Whatever over the Grace
Of God, that (His) Grace
Is (entirely) in his hand,
To bestow it on
Whomsoever He wills.
27 For God is the Lord,
30 Of Grace abounding.

5327. As this refers to the Christians and the People of the Book, the following saying of Christ in his last days may interest them: "Yet a little while is the light with you. Walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you... While ye have the light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light. These things spake Jesus, and departed, and did hide himself from them". (John, xii. 35-36). The light of Christ's Gospel soon departed; his Church was enveloped in darkness; then came the light again, in the fuller light of Islam. And they are asked to believe in the Light, and to walk in it. Cf. also lvii. 12, and n. 5288 above.

5328. Any wrongs they may have committed through ignorance or misconceptions in their previous religion will be forgiven them, as they have seen the new Light and walk by it.

5329. Let not any race, or people, or community, or group, believe that they have exclusive possession of God's Grace, or that they can influence its grant or its withholding. God's Grace is free, and entirely controlled by Him, independently of any priests and privileged people. He dispenses it according to His own wise and holy Will and Plan; and to His Grace there is no limit.

INTRODUCTION TO SÜRA LVIII (Mujādila).

This is the second of the ten Medina Sūras referred to in the Introduction to the last Sūra. Its subject-matter is the acceptance of a woman's Plea on behalf of herself and her children (see n. 5330 to lviii. 1 below), and a condemnation of all secret counsels and intrigues in the Muslim Brotherhood.

The date is somewhat close to that of S. xxxiii, say between A.H. 5 and A.H. 7.

Summary.—All false pretences, especially those that degrade a woman's position, are condemned,—as well as secret consultations between men and intrigues with falsehood, mischief, and sedition. (Iviii. 1-22, and C. 237).

C. 237.—Let not false pretences or superstitions

(Iviii. 1-22.) Degrade the position of woman. Eschew

Secret plottings and secret counsels.

Observe order and decorum in public assemblies,

And seek not in selfish pride to engage

Your Leader's private attention. It is wrong

To turn to the enemies of God for friendship:

They make their oaths a cloak for wrong-doing,

And keep back men from the Right. But none

Can resist the Power or the Judgment of God.

The righteous seek only His Good Pleasure,

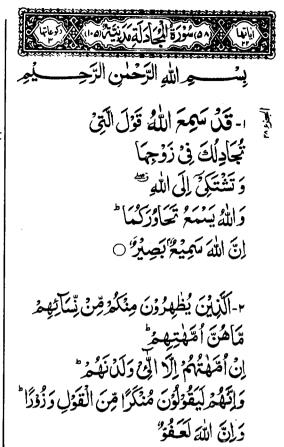

And rejoice therein as their highest Achievement.

Sūra LVIII.

Mujadila, or The Woman who Pleads.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. Sod has indeed
  Heard (and accepted) the statement
  Of the woman who pleads 5330
  With thee concerning her husband
  And carries her complaint
  (In prayer) to God:
  And God (always) hears
  The arguments between both 5331
  Sides among you: for God
  Hears and sees (all things).
- 2. If any men among you
  Divorce their wives by Zihār 5332
  (Calling them mothers),
  They cannot be their mothers:
  None can be their mothers
  Except those who gave them
  Birth. And in fact
  They use words (both) iniquitous 5333
  And false: but truly
  God is One that blots out 5334

5330. The immediate occasion was what happened to Khaula but Tha'laba, wife of Aus son of Sāmit. Though in Islam, he divorced her by an old Pagan custom: the formula was known as Zihār, and consisted of the words "Thou art to me as the back of my mother". This was held by Pagan custom to imply a divorce and freed the husband from any responsibility for conjugal duties, but did not leave the wife free to leave the husband's home, or to contract a second marriage. Such a custom was in any case degrading to a woman. It was particularly hard on Khaula, for she loved her husband and pleaded that she had little children whom she had no resources herself to support and whom under Zihār her husband was not bound to support. She urged her plea to the Prophet and in prayer to God. Her just plea was accepted, and this iniquitous custom, based on false words, was abolished. See also n. 3670 to xxxiii, 4.

5331. For He is a just God, and will not allow human customs or pretences to trample on the just rights of the weakest of His creatures.

5333. Such words are false in fact and iniquitous, inasmuch as they are unfair to the wife and unseemly in decent society.

5334. Cf. iv. 99 and xxii. 60. Were it not that God in His Mercy makes allowances for our weaknesses and the various grades of motives that actuate us, such conduct would be inexpiable. But He prescribes expiation as in the next verse, because He wishes to blot out what is wrong and give us a chance to reform by His forgiveness.

(Sins), and forgives (Again and again).

- 3. But those who divorce
  Their wives by Zihār,
  Then wish to go back 5335
  On the words they uttered,—
  (It is ordained that Such a one)
  Should free a slave
  Before they touch each other:
  This are ye admonished
  To perform: and God is
  Well-acquainted with (all)
  That ye do.
- 4. And if any has not
  (The wherewithal),5336
  He should fast for
  Two months consecutively
  Before they touch each other.
  But if any is unable
  To do so, he should feed
  Sixty indigent ones.5337
  This, that ye may show
  Your faith in God 5338

عَفُورُ ٥

٣- وَالْآنِيْنَ يُظْهِرُوْنَ مِنْ نِسْكَأْتِهِ مُ ثُمَّرَيعُودُوْنَ لِمُا قَالُوُّا فَتَكُورِيُرُ رَقَبَةٍ مِّنْ قَبْلِ اَنْ يَتَمَا شَا ذلِكُورُوْنَ عُظُوْنَ لِهِ وَاللّهُ بِمَا تَعْمَلُوْنَ خَبِيرٌ * وَاللّهُ بِمَا تَعْمَلُوْنَ خَبِيرٌ * ۞

5335. If Zihār were to be ignored as if the words were never uttered, it would mean that men may foolishly resort to it without penalty. It is therefore recognised in respect of the penalty which the man incurs, but safeguards the woman's rights. She can sue for maintenance for herself and her children, but her husband could not claim his conjugal rights. If it was a hasty act and he repented of it, he could not claim his conjugal rights until after the performance of his penalty as provided below. If she loved him, as in Khaula's case, she could also herself sue for conjugal rights in the legal sense of the term and compel her husband to perform the penalty and resume marital relations.

5336. Cf. iv. 92 The penalty is: to get a slave his freedom, whether it is your own slave or you purchase his freedom from another; if that is not possible, to fast for two months consecutively (in the manner of the Ramadhān fast); if that is not possible, to feed sixty poor. See next note.

5337. There is a great deal of learned argument among the jurists as to the precise requirements of Canon Law under the term "feeding" the indigent. For example, it is laid down that half a $\vec{a}\vec{a}\vec{c}\) of wheat or a full $\vec{c}\vec{a}\vec{c}\) of dates or their equivalent in money would fulfil the requirements, a $\vec{a}\vec{c}\) being a measure corresponding roughly to about 9 lbs. of wheat in weight. Others hold that a Mudd measure equivalent to about 2\frac{1}{4} lbs. would be sufficient. This would certainly be nearer the daily ration of a man. It is better to take the spirit of the text in its plain simplicity, and say that an indigent man should be given enough to eat for two meals a day. The sixty indigent ones fed for a day would be equivalent to a single individual fed for sixty days, or two for thirty days, and so on. But there is no need to go into minutive in such matters.

5338. These penalties in the alternative are prescribed, that we may show our repentance and Faith and our renunciation of "iniquity and falsehood" (verse 2 above), whatever our circumstances may be.

And His Apostle.
Those are limits (set
By) God. For those who Reject (Him), there is
A grievous Penalty. 5339

- 5. Those who resist God
  And His Apostle will be
  Humbled to dust, as were
  Those before them: for We
  Have already sent down
  Clear Signs. And the Unbelievers
  (Will have) a humiliating Penalty,—
- 6. On the Day that
  God will raise them
  All up (again) and show
  Them the truth (and meaning) 5310
  Of their conduct. God has
  Reckoned its (value), though
  They may have forgotten it,
  For God is Witness
  To all things.

SECTION 2.

7. Seest thou not that
God doth know (all) that is
In the heavens and
On earth? There is not
A secret consultation
Between three, but He
Makes the fourth among them,—5511
Nor between five but

٤- اَلَوُتُواَنَّ اللهَ يَعُلَمُ مَا فِى السَّمَاؤِتِ وَمَا فِى الْاَرْضِ مَا يَكُونُ مِنْ تَجُوٰى ثَلْثَةٍ إِلَّاهُوَ رَابِعُهُمُ وَلَاحَمُسُةٍ إِلَّا

5339. It would seem that this refers to the spiritual Penalty in the Hereafter for not complying with the small penalty here prescribed. The next verse would then refer to the bigger "humiliating Penalty" for "resistance" to God's Law generally.

5340. This phrase, "God will tell them the truth of their deeds (or their doings or their conduct)" occurs frequently. See v. 51, n. 762; v. 108, n. 811; vi. 60; ix. 94; etc. In this life there is a certain mist or illusion in our spiritual sight. We see things from different angles and dispute about them; we hide real motives, and pretend to virtues which we do not possess; others may attribute such virtues to us, and we may come to believe it ourselves; we conceive likes and hatreds on insufficient grounds; we forget what we should remember, and remember what we should forget. Our vision is narrow, and our values are false. On the Day of Account all this will be remedied. Not only will true values be restored, but we shall ourselves see the inwardness of things in our own lives, which we never saw before.

5341. Secrecy is a relative and limited term among ourselves. There is nothing hidden or unknown to God. Usually secrecy implies fear or distrust, plotting or wrong-doing. But all is open before God's sight.

He makes the sixth,—
Nor between fewer nor more,
But He is in their midst,
Wheresoever they be:
In the end will He
Tell them the truth
Of their conduct, on the Day
Of Judgment. For God
Has full knowledge
Of all things.

- 8. Turnest thou not thy sight Towards those who were Forbidden secret counsels 5312 Yet revert to that which They were forbidden (to do)? And they hold secret counsels Among themselves for iniquity And hostility, and disobedience To the Apostle. And when They come to thee, They salute thee,5348 Not as God salutes thee. (But in crooked ways): And they say to themselves, "Why does not God Punish us for our words?" 5344 Enough for them is Hell: In it will they burn, And evil is that destination!

هُوَ سَادِسُهُمْ وَلَا اَدُنَىٰ مِنْ ذَلِكَ وَلَا اَكْثَرُ وَلَا اَدُنَىٰ مِنْ ذَلِكَ وَلَا اَكْثَرُ الله مُوكِمَنِهُمُهُمْ إِيمَا عَبِلُوْا يَوْمَ الْقِيلَةِ * إِنَّ الله بِحُلِّ شَيْءٍ عَلِيْمٌ ٥ مَا لَا يَحُودُونَ إِلَىٰ الْكِنِيْنَ نُهُوا عَنِ النَّجُولِي وَيَتَنْجُونَ فِالْإِنْهُمُوا عَنْهُ وَيَتَنْجُونَ فِالْإِنْهُمُولِ * وَمَعْصِيبَ الرَّسُولِ * وَمَعْصِيبَ الرَّسُولِ *

وبه المريحيك بهرالله وَيَقُولُونَ فِنَ اَنْفُسِهِمْ كُولا يُعَالِّ بُنَا اللهُ بِمَا نَقُولُ * حَسْبُهُمْ جَهَالُمُ * يَصْلَوْنَهَا * فَبِشُنَ الْمَصِيْرُ ۞

٥- يَايَّهُا النِينَ امَنُوَّا إِذَا تَنَاجَمُنَتُمُ فَكَا تَتَنَاجُوُا بِالْإِثْمِ وَالْعُنُوانِ وَمَعْصِيَتِ

5342. When the Muslim Brotherhood was acquiring strength in Medina, and the forces of disruption were being discomfited in open fight against the Messenger of Righteousness, the wicked resorted to duplicity and secret intrigues, in which the ringleaders were the disaffected Jews and the Hypocrites, whose machinations have been frequently referred to in the Qur-ān. E.g. see ii. 8-16; and iv. 142-145.

- 5343. The salutation of God was (and is) "Peace!" But the enemies, who had not the courage to fight openly, often twisted the words, and by using a word like "Sām", which meant "Death!" or "Destruction!" instead of "Salām!" (Peace!), they thought they were secretly venting their spite and yet apparently using a polite form of salutation. Cf. ii. 106, and n. 107. where another similar trick is exposed.
- 5344. The enemies derisively enjoyed their trick (see last note) according to their own perverted mentality. They asked blasphemously, "Why does not God punish us?" The answer is given: there is a Punishment, far greater than they imagine: it will come in good time: it will be the final Punishment after Judgment: it is delayed in order to give them a chance of repentance and reformation.

To the Prophet; but do it
For righteousness and selfrestraint; 5845
And fear God, to Whom
Ye shall be brought back.

- 10. Secret counsels are only
  (Inspired) by the Evil One,
  In order that he may
  Cause grief to the Believers;
  But he cannot harm them
  In the least, except as 5346
  God permits; and on God
  Let the Believers
  Put their trust.
- When ye are told
  To make room
  In the assemblies, 5347
  (Spread out and) make room:
  (Ample) room will God provide
  For you. And when
  Ye are told to rise up, 5348
  Rise up: God will
  Raise up, to (suitable) ranks
  (And degrees), those of you
  Who believe and who have

الرَّسُوْلِ وَتَنَاجُوْا بِالْبِرِّ وَالتَّقُوٰى ۚ وَاتَّعُوا اللهَ الَّذِئَ إِلَيْهِ تُحْشَرُوُنَ ۞

ا-إنّكما النَّجُوى مِنَ الشَّيْطُنِ
 لِيَحُرُنَ الَّذِينَ الْمَنُوا
 وَكَيْسَ بِضَارِّهِمْ شَيْئًا إلَّا بِإِذْنِ اللهِ مَعْلَى اللهِ فَيْئُونَ
 وَعَلَى اللهِ فَلْيَتُوكِلِ الْمُؤْمِنُونَ

5345. Ordinarily secrecy implies deeds of darkness, something which men have to hide; see the next verse. But there are good deeds which may be concerted and done in secret: eg. charity, or the prevention of mischief, or the defeat of the dark plots of evil. The determining factor is the motive. Is the man doing some wrong, or venting his spite, or trying to disobey a lawful command? Or is he doing some good, which out of modesty or self-renunciation he does not want known, or is he in a righteous cause defeating the machinations of Evil. which may involve great sacrifice of himself?

- 5346. Evil can harm no one who is good, except in so far as (1) there is some question of trial in God's Universal Plan, or (2) what appears to be harm may be real good. Nothing happens without God's will and permission. And we must always trust Him, and not our cleverness or any adventitious circumstances that draw us the least bit from the path of rectitude.
- 5347. Even when a great man or a Leader comes into an Assembly, we are not to press forward without discipline, as it causes inconvenience to him and detriment to public business. Nor are we to shut out other people who have equal rights to be in the Assembly. We must spread out, for God's earth is spacious, and so are our opportunities.
- 5348. Rising up is a mark of respect. Just as those who obey soon become worthy of command, so those who honour where honour is due, become themselves worthy of honour, in various degrees according to their capacities. "Rise up" may also here imply: 'when the Assembly is dismissed, do not loiter about'.

- 12. We who believe!

  When ye consult

  The Apostle in private, 5350

  Spend something in charity

  Before your private consultation.

  That will be best for you,

  And most conducive

  To purity (of conduct). 5351

  But if ye find not

  (The wherewithal), God is

  Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful.
- 13. Is it that ye are Afraid of spending sums 5252
  In charity before your
  Private consultation (with him)?

> ٣-ءَ اَشُفَقُتُمُ اَنُ تُقَلِّمُوْا بَيْنَ يَكَى ثَجُوٰكُمُ صَكَافَاتٍ *

5349. Faith makes all people equal in the Kingdom of God, as regards the essentials of citizenship in the Kingdom. But there is leadership, and rank and degree, joined with greater or less responsibility, and that depends on Knowledge,—the true knowledge and insight which Mystics seek everywhere for advancing their service and responsibility in the Kingdom of God. Honour there comes with merit, and is not to be grabbed at.

- 5350. In the Kingdom of God all instruction or consultation is open and free. But human nature is weak. And people want special instruction or private consultation with the Teacher from one of several motives: (1) they may have, or think they have, a special case, which they are not willing to disclose to their brethren in general; (2) they may have some sense of delicacy or dignity, which can only be satisfied by a private interview; (3) they may even be selfish enough to want to monopolise the Teacher's time. These motives are, in an ascending order, worth discouraging; and yet, considering the weakness of human nature, they cannot be reprobated to the extent of shutting out their victims from chances of improvement. It is therefore recommended that they spend something in charity for the good of their poorer brethren before they include in such weaknesses.
- 5351. The charity is a sort of expiation for their pardonable weakness. Having made some monetary sacrifice for their poorer brethren they could face them with less shame, and the charity would direct their attention to the need for purifying their motives and conduct. At the same time, this special charity is not made obligatory, lest such persons should be shut out altogether from chances of the higher teaching on account of their pardonable foibles.
- 5352. Note the plural here, $\int adaq \bar{a}t$, instead of the singular, $\int adaq at$ in verse 12 above. While people with the foibles described in n. 5350 may be willing to spend "something" (small) in charity for a special consultation occasionally, they may be frightened of spending large sums when their needs for consultation may be numerous. What is to be done then? Are they to be shut out altogether? No. They are asked to be punctilious in the discharge of their normal duties of at least normal regular prayers and regular charity, "if God forgives you", i.e. if God's Messenger relieves them of further special contributions such as those noted in verse 12. This condition, "if God forgives you", provides the safeguard against the abuse of the privilege. The apostle would know in each case what is best for the individual and for the community.

If, then, ye do not so, And God forgives you, Then (at least) establish Regular prayer; practise 5353 Regular charity; and obey God and His Apostle. And God is well-acquainted With all that ye do.

<sup>5355.</sup> By this time the Jews of Medina and the Jewish tribes around had become actively hostile to Islam, and were being sharply called to account for their treachery.

<sup>5356.</sup> They knew that as Muslims their duty was to refrain from the intrigues of the enemies of Islam and to assist Islam against them.

<sup>5357.</sup> A false man, by swearing that he is true, makes his falsehood all the more heinous. He stands in the way of other people accepting Truth. He gives a handle to the cynics and the sceptics.

<sup>5358.</sup> They may arrogantly boast of riches and alliances and followers in man-power. But what are such worldly advantages before the Throne of the Disposer of all events? They must come to utter misery.

They will be Companions Of the Fire, to dwell Therein (for aye)!

  Will they swear to Him 5359
  As they swear to you:

  No, indeed! they are
  But liars!

- 21. God has decreed:

<sup>5359.</sup> When Judgment is established, and before they realise the Truth, they may think (as now) that some oaths or excuses will save them. But they have not now—much less will they have then—any footing to stand upon. Falsehood is falsehood, and must perish. They must learn the worthlessness of their falsehood.

<sup>5360.</sup> Man's original nature as created by God is good (xxx. 30, and n. 3541). It is because man, in spite of the warnings he has received, allows Evil to get the mastery over him, that man forgets God and the divine qualities which God gave him. The result of the perversion is that man becomes a partisan of Evil, and as such dooms himself to perdition.

<sup>5361.</sup> There are various degrees of humiliation in the final state in the spiritual world. But the worst is the humiliation of being numbered among those who ignominiously attempted to resist the Irresistible.

22. Thou wilt not find Any people who believe In God and the Last Day, Loving those who resist God and His Apostle, Even though they were Their fathers or their sons. 5363 Or their brothers, or Their kindred. For such He has written Faith 5364 In their hearts, and strengthened Them with a spirit 5365 From Himself. And He Will admit them to Gardens Beneath which Rivers flow. To dwell therein (for ever). God will be well pleased With them, and they with Him. 5366 They are the Party 5367 Of God. Truly it is The Party of God that Will achieve Felicity.

5363. If any one believes in God and His goodness and justice, and in the Hereafter, in which all true values will be restored he will never love evil or wrong-doing or rebellion against God, even if these things are found in his nearest kith and kin.

<sup>5364.</sup> Faith in God is indelibly written on the tablets of their hearts, and they can never be false to God.

<sup>5365.</sup> Cf. ii. 87 and 253, where it is said that God strengthened the Prophet Jesus with the holy spirit. Here we learn that all good and righteous men are strengthened by God with the holy spirit. If anything, the phrase used here is stronger, "a spirit from Himself". Whenever any one offers his heart in faith and purity to God, God accepts it, engraves that Faith on the seeker's heart, and further fortifies him with the divine spirit, which we can no more define adequately than we can define in human language the nature and attributes of God.

<sup>5366.</sup> Again we have the mystic doctrine of God's Good Pleasure as the highest goal of man, the spiritual heaven which he achieves by a life of purity and faith. He not only attains God's Good Pleasure as the crown of his felicity, but his own nature is so far transformed to the pattern of God's original creation that his own good pleasure is in nothing but in God's Good Pleasure. The mutual good pleasure shows the heights to which man can attain.

<sup>5367.</sup> This is in antithesis to the Party of the Evil One, mentioned in verse 19 above. That Party of Evil will perish, but while it has its run in the scheme of the present world, the Party of Truth and Reality may be figuratively called the Party of God, even though all Creation is God's in another sense.

INTRODUCTION TO SÜRA LIX (Hashr).

This is the third of the series of ten short Medina Sūras, dealing each with a special point in the life of the Ummat: see Introduction to S. lvii. The special theme here is how treachery to the Ummat on the part of its enemies recoils on the enemies themselves, while it strengthens the bond between the different sections of the Ummat itself, and this is illustrated by the story of the expulsion of the Jewish tribe of the Banū Nadhīr in Rabī' I, A.H. 4.

This fixes the date of the Sūra.

Summary.—The expulsion of the treacherous Jews from the neighbourhood of Medina was smoothly accomplished: their reliance on their fortified positions and on the faith of their allies in treachery proved futile. But the internal bonds in the Ummat were strengthened. Such is the wisdom of God, Lord of the Most Beautiful Names. (lix. 1-24, and C. 238).

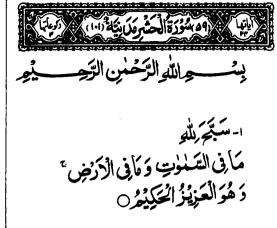

C. 238.—God's wisdom foils the treachery of men, And makes the path smooth for Believers who strive Even against odds. Against God's decrees All resistance is vain. In property taken From the enemy, let those in need have a share, And those who sacrifice their all for the Cause. But those who lend a helping hand In the hour of need do it for love And crave no reward, nor feel the least Envy or jealousy. They all rejoice That the Brotherhood should thrive. The Hypocrites: they are false even among Themselves. Perdition is the end Of all evil. But the Good and Faithful Will achieve felicity. Such is the power Of Truth and God's Revelation. God! There is no god but He !- the Good, The Glorious, the Irresistible! All Creation sings His praise,-The Exalted in Might, the Wise!

Sūra LIX.

Hashr, or The Gathering (or Banishment, lix. 2-3).

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- In the heavens and
  On earth, let it declare
  The Praises and Glory
  Of God: for He is
  The Exalted in Might,
  The Wise.
- 2. It is He Who got out
  The Unbelievers among
  The People of the Book 5369
  From their homes
  At the first gathering
  (Of the forces).
  Little did ye think
  That they would get out: 5370
  And they thought
  That their fortresses
  Would defend them from God!
  But the (Wrath of) God

٢-هُوَ الَّذِي َ اَخْرَجُ الْذِينَ كَفَرُ وَامِنَ اهْلِ الْكِتْبِ مِنْ دِيَادِهِمْ لَا لَا لَا الْحَشُرِ آ لَا مَا ظَنَنْتُمُ اَنْ يَحْرُجُوا لَا وَظَنُوا النَّهُمُ مَا نِعَمُّرُ حُصُونُهُمْ مِنَ اللهِ فَاتْمُمُ اللهُ فَاتْمُمُ اللهُ

5368. This verse, introducing the Sūra, is identical with lvii. 1, introducing S. lvii. The theme of both is the wonderful working of God's Plan and Providence. In the one case it referred to the conquest of Mecca and taught the lesson of humility. In this case it refers to the dislodgment of the treacherous Banū Nadhīr from their nest of intrigue in the neighbourhood of Medina, practically without a blow. See next note.

5369. This refers to the Jewish tribe of the Banū Nadhir whose intrigues and treachery nearly undid the Muslim cause during the perilous days of the battle of Uhud in Shawwāl, A.H. 3. Four months after, in Rabi I, A.H. 4, steps were taken against them. They were asked to leave the strategic position which they occupied, about three miles south of Medina, endangering the very existence of the Ummat in Medina. At first they demurred, relying on their fortresses and on their secret alliances with the Pagans of Mecca and the Hypocrites of Medina. But when the Muslim army was gathered to punish them and actually besieged them for some days, their allies stirred not a finger in their aid, and they were wise enough to leave. Most of them joined their brethren in Syria, which they were permitted to do, after being disarmed. Some of them joined their brethren in Khaibar: see n. 3705 to xxxiii. 27. The Banū Nadhīr richly deserved punishment, but their lives were spared, and they were allowed to carry away their goods and chattels.

Came to them from quarters <sup>5871</sup>
From which they little Expected (it), and cast
Terror into their hearts,
So that they destroyed
Their dwellings by their own <sup>5372</sup>
Hands and the hands
Of the Believers.
Take warning, then,
O ye with eyes (to see)!

- 3. And had it not been
  That God had decreed
  Banishment for them, 5373
  He would certainly have
  Punished them in this world:
  And in the Hereafter
  They shall (certainly) have
  The Punishment of the Fire.
- 4. That is because they
  Resisted God and His Apostle:
  And if any one resists God,
  Verily God is severe
  In Punishment.

٣- وَلَوْ لَا اَنْ كُتَبَ اللّهُ عَلَيْهِمُ الْجُكَلَاءُ لَعَنَّ بَهُمْ فِي اللَّهُ نِيَا وَلَهُمْ فِي الْاِخِرَةِ عَنَابُ النَّارِ <

٣- ذٰلِكَ بِأَنَّهُمُ شَاقُوا اللهَ وَرَسُوْلَهُ ۚ وَمَنْ يُشَاقِّ اللهَ فَانَ اللهَ شَكِيْنُ الْعِقَابِ ۞

5371. They had played a double game. Originally they were sworn allies of the Medina Muslims under the holy Prophet, but they secretly intrigued with the Mecca Pagans under Abū Sufyān and the Medina Hypocrites. They even tried treacherously to take the life of the Prophet while he was on a visit to them, breaking both the laws of hospitality and their own sworn alliance. They thought the Pagan Quraish of Mecca and the Hypocrites of Medina would help them, but they did not help them. On the contrary the eleven days' siege showed them their own helplessness. Their supplies were cut off; the exigencies of the siege necessitated the destruction of their outlying palm trees; and the unexpected turn in their fortunes disheartened them. Their hearts were struck with terror, and they capitulated. But they laid waste their homes before they left: see next note.

5372. Their lives were spared, and they were allowed ten days in which to remove themselves, their families, and such goods as they could carry. In order to leave no habitations for the Muslims they demolished their own houses and laid waste their property, to complete the destruction which the operations of war had already caused at the hands of the besieging force of the Muslims.

5373. Banishment was a comparatively mild punishment for them, but the Providence of God had decreed that a chance should be given to them even though they were a treacherous foe. Within two years, their brethren the Banīi Quraiza showed that they had not profited by their example, and had to be dealt with in another way: see xxxiii. 26 and notes.

5374. The punishment of the Banu Nadhir was because in breaking their plighted word with the Apostle and in actively resisting God's Message and supporting the enemies of that Message, they rebelled against His holy Will. For such treason and rebellion the punishment is severe, and yet in this case it was seasoned with Mercy.

- 5. Whether ye cut down
   (O ye Muslims!)
   The tender palm-trees,
   Or ye left them standing
   On their roots, it was 5375
   By leave of God, and
   In order that He might 5376
   Cover with shame
   The rebellious transgressors.
- On His Apostle (and taken Away) from them—for this Ye made no expedition With either cavalry or camelry: 5377 But God gives power To His apostles over Any He pleases: and God 5378 Has power over all things.
- What God has bestowed <sup>5379</sup>
   On His Apostle (and taken Away) from the people <sup>5380</sup>
   Of the townships,—belongs

ه-مَا تَطَعُمُّهُ مِّنْ لِيْنَةٍ اَوُ تَكُنُّهُوُهَا قَائِمَةً عَلَى أُصُولِهَا فَهِإِذْنِ اللهِ وَلِيُخْزِى الْفُسِقِيْنَ ۞

> ٥-مَا آفَاءُ اللهُ عَلَى رَسُوْلِهِ مِنْ آهْلِ الْقُرْى

- 5375. The unnecessary cutting down of fruit trees or destruction of crops, or any wanton destruction whatever in war, is forbidden by the law and practice of Islam. But some destruction may be necessary for putting pressure on the enemy, and to that extent it is allowed. But as far as possible, consistently with that objective of military operations, such trees should not be cut down. Both these principles are in accordance with the Divine Will, and were followed by the Muslims in their expedition.
- 5376. The arrogance of the Ban $\overline{u}$  Na $\underline{dh}$ ir had to be humbled, and their power for mischief destroyed.
- 5377. Neither cavalry nor troops mounted on camels were employed in the siege. In fact the enemy surrendered at the first onset. -See lix. 2, and n. 5369 above.
- 5378. God accomplishes His purpose in various ways, according to His wise and holy Will and Plan. In some cases a fight is necessary. In some cases the godly attain their objective and overawe the forces of evil without actual fighting.
- 5379. The Jews had originally come from outside Arabia, and seized on the land near Medina. They refused to adapt themselves to the people of Arabia, and were in fact a thorn in the side of the genuine Arabs of Medina. Their dispossession is therefore a restoration of the land to its original people. But the word "Fai" is here understood in a technical sense, as meaning property abandoned by the enemy or taken from him without a formal war. In that sense it is distinguished from "Anfal", or spoils, taken after actual fighting, about which see viii 1 and 41.
- 5380. "The people of the townships": the townships were the Jewish settlements round Medina, of the Banū Nadhīr, and possibly of other tribes. Cf. the "townships" mentioned in lix. 14 below. The reference cannot be to the Wādī-ul-Qurā (Valley of Towns), now Madāīn Ṣāliḥ, which was subjugated after Khaibar and Fadak in A.H. 7, unless this verse is later than the rest of the Sūra.

- 8. (Some part is due)

  Those who were expelled
  From their homes and their property,
  While seeking Grace from God
  And (His) Good Pleasure,
  And aiding God and His Apostle:
  Such are indeed
  The sincere ones:—

  Before them, had homes 5383
  (In Medina)
  And had adopted the Faith,—
  Show their affection to such
  As came to them for refuge,
  And entertain no desire

<sup>5381. &</sup>quot;Belongs to God": ie., to God's Cause; and the beneficiaries are further detailed. No shares are fixed; they depend upon circumstances, and are left to the judgment of the Leader. Compare a similar list of those entitled to Charity, in ii. 177, but the two lists refer to different circumstances and have different beneficiaries in addition to the portion common to both.

<sup>5382.</sup> The Muhājirs are those who forsook their homes and property in Mecca in order to assist the holy Prophet in his migration to Medina (Hijrat). Their devotion and sincerity were proved beyond doubt by their self-denial, and they were now to be rewarded.

<sup>5383.</sup> This refers to the Ansār (the Helpers), the people of Medina, who accepted Islam when it was persecuted in Mecca, and who invited the holy Prophet to join them and become their Leader in Medina. The Hijrat was possible because of their goodwill and their generous hospitality. They entertained the Prophet and all the refugees (Muhājirs) who came with him. The most remarkable ties of full brotherhood were established between individual members of the one group and the other. Until the Ummat got its own resources, the Helpers regularly gave and the Refugees regularly received. The Helpers counted it a privilege to entertain the Refugees, and even the poor vied with the rich in their spirit of self-sacrifice. When the confiscated land and property of the Banū Nadhīr was divided, and the major portion was assigned to the Refugees, there was not the least jealousy on the part of the Helpers. They rejoiced in the good fortune of their brethren. And incidentally they were themselves relieved of anxiety and responsibility on their behalf.

"If ye are expelled,

5384. Those that came after them: the immediate meaning would refer to later arrivals in Medina or later accessions to Islam, compared with the early Muhājirs. But the general meaning would include all future comers into the House of Islam. They pray, not only for themselves, but for all their brethren, and above all, they pray that their hearts may be purified of any desire or tendency to disparage the work or virtues of other Muslims or to feel any jealousy on account of their successes or good fortune.

5385. Cf. vii. 43, and n. 1021.

5386. The Jews of the Banu Nadhir had been assured by the Hypocrites of Medina of their support to their cause. They had thought that their defection from the Prophet's Cause would so weaken that cause that they would save their friends. But they never intended to undertake any act involving self-sacrifice on their part; if they had helped their Jewish friends, it was not likely that they would have succeeded; and if they had actually gone to the fight, they had neither valour nor fervour to support them, and they would have fled ignominiously before the discipline, earnestness, and Faith of the men of Islam.

We will help you". But God is witness 5387 That they are indeed itars.

- 12. If they are expelled,
  Never will they go out
  With them; and if they
  Are attacked (in fight),
  They will never help them;
  And if they do help them,
  They will turn their backs;
  So they will receive no help. 5388
- 13. Of a truth ye are Stronger (than they)
  Because of the terror 5369
  In their hearts,
  (Sent) by God.
  This is because they are
  Men devoid of understanding.
- 14. They will not fight you
  (Even) together, except
  In fortified townships,
  Or from behind walls. 5350
  Strong is their fighting (spirit)
  Amongst themselves:
  Thou wouldst think
  They were united,
  But their hearts are divided: 5391
  That is because they

5387. For this actually happened. They never stirred a finger for the Jews, and they never intended to do so. And God knows all their motives and secrets; cf. xivii. 26, n. 4850.

5388. All hopes founded on iniquity and treachery are vain and illusory. There may be honour among thieves. But there is no honour as between dishonest intriguers, and they are not likely to get any real help from any quarter.

5389. As construed here, the meaning is: 'Ye Muslims, even if ye are weak numerically, or they may have other seeming advantages, ye are really stronger than they are, because they have a wholesome fear in their minds, and God sends such fear into the hearts of wrong-doers! An alternative construction would yield the meaning: 'Being Unbelievers they fear you more than they fear God, because your valour they see, but in God they do not believe.'

5390. They have not sufficient self-confidence or élan to sustain them in a fight except under material advantages or defences. Even if they join forces, they have not sufficient trust in each other to expose themselves to open fighting.

5391. 'It may be that they have a strong fighting spirit among themselves, but they have no Cause to fight for and no common objective to achieve. The Meccan Pagans want to keep their own unjust autocracy; the Medina Hypocrites wish for their own domination in Medina; and the Jews want their racial superiority established over the Arabs, of whose growing union and power they are jealous.' Their pretended alliance could not stand the strain of either a defeat or a victory. If they had been wise, they would have accepted the Cause of Unity, Faith, and Truth.

Are a people devoid Of wisdom.

  Of their conduct; and

  For them a grievous Penalty:—

  (The Evil One) says,
  "I am free of thee:
  I do fear God,
  The Lord of the Worlds!"
- 17. The end of both will be That they will go Into the Fire, dwelling Therein for ever.
  Such is the reward Of the wrong-doers.

٥٠- يَاكِنُهُمَا الَّذِينَ أَمَنُوا اتَّقُوا اللَّهُ *

5392. The immediate reference was probably to the Jewish goldsmith tribe of the Qainuqā', who were also settled in a fortified township near Medina. They were also punished and banished for their treachery, about a month after the battle of Badr, in which the Meccan Pagans had suffered a signal defeat, in Shawwāl, A.H. 2. The Nadhir evidently did not take that lesson to heart. The general meaning is that we must learn to be on our guard against the consequences of treachery and sin. No fortuitous alliances with other men of iniquity will save us.

5393. An apt simile. Evil tempts man in all sorts of ways, and presents seductive promises and alliances to delude him into the belief that he will be saved from the consequences. The Evil One says, "Deny God": which means not merely denial in words, but denial in acts,—disobedience of God's Law, deviation from the path of rectitude. When the sinner gets well into the mire, the Evil One says cynically: "How can I help you against God? Don't you see I am afraid of Him? All our alliances and understandings were moonshine. You must bear the consequences of your own folly."

5394. The "fear of God" is akin to love; for it means the fear of offending Him or doing anything wrong that will forfeit His Good Pleasure. This is  $Taqw\bar{a}$ , which implies self-restraint, guarding ourselves from all sin, wrong, and injustice, and the positive doing of good. See ii. 2, and n. 26.

٣- كَوْ ٱنْزَلْنَا هٰذَا الْقُرْانَ عَلَى جَبَلِ كَرَايُتَهُ خَاشِعًا مُّتَصَيِّعًا

5395. The positive side of Taqwā or "fear of God" (see last note) is here emphasised. It is not merely a feeling or an emotion: it is an act, a doing of things which become a preparation and provision for the Hereafter,—the next life, which may be described as "the morrow" in relation to the present Life, which is "to-day".

5395-A. The repetition emphasises both sides of  $Taqw\bar{a}$ : "let your soul fear to do wrong, and let it do every act of righteousness; for God observes both your inner motives and your acts, and in His scheme of things everything will have its due consequences"

5396. To forget God is to forget the only Reality. As we are only reflected realities, how can we understand or do justice to or remember ourselves, when we forget the very source of our being?

5397. The others, the Companions of the Fire, will find their lives wasted and nullified. Their capacities will be rendered inert and their wishes will end in futility.

5398. There are two ideas associated in men's minds with a mountain: one is its height, and the other that it is rocky, stony, hard. Now comes the metaphor. The Revelation of God is so sublime that even the highest mountains humble themselves before it. The Revelation is so powerful and convincing that even the hard rock splits asunder under it. Will man then be so arrogant as to consider himself superior to it, or so hard-hearted as not to be affected by its powerful Message? The answer is "No" for unspoilt man; "Yes" for man when degraded by sin to be the vilest of creatures.

5399. Cf. vii. 143, and n. 1103, where, in the story of Moses, the Mount became as dust "when the Lord manifested His Glory". Also cf. xxxiii. 72, and n. 3778, where the mountains are mentioned allegorically as an emblem of stability, but as refusing to accept the Trust (Amānat) because they felt themselves to be too humble to be equal to such a tremendous Trust.

5400. Here follows a passage of great sublimity, summing up the attributes of God. First, in this verse, we have the general attributes, which give us the fundamental basis on which we can form some idea of God. (1) We start with the proposition that no words are adequate to describe Him, and we can only call Him "He"; for there is nothing else like Him. (2) We think of His Unity; all the varying and conflicting forces in Creation are controlled by Him and look to Him, and we can never get a true idea of Him unless we understand the mystic meaning of Unity. (3) His knowledge extends to everything seen and unseen, present and future, near and far, in being and not in being: in fact these contrasts, which apply to our knowledge, do not apply to Him. (4) His Grace and (5) His Mercy are unbounded: see i. 1, and n. 19; and unless we realise these, we can have no true conception of our position in the working of His Will and Plan.

5401. This phrase is repeated from the last verse in order to lead us to the contemplation of some other attributes of God, after we have realised those which form our fundamental conceptions of God. See the preceding and the following note.

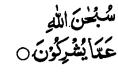

5402. How can a translator reproduce the sublimity and the comprehensiveness of the magnificent Arabic words, which mean so much in a single symbol? (1) "The Sovereign" in our human language implies the one undisputed authority which is entitled to give commands and to receive obedience, and which in fact receives obedience; the power which enforces law and justice. (2) Human authority may be misused, but in the title "the Holy One", we postulate a Being free from all stain or evil, and replete with the highest Purity. (3) " $Sal\bar{a}m$ " has not only the idea of Peace as opposed to Conflict, but wholeness as opposed to defects: hence our paraphrase "Source of Peace and Perfection". (4) Mu-min, one who entertains Faith, who gives Faith to others, who is never false to the Faith that others place in him: hence our paraphrase "Guardian of Faith". (5) "Preserver of Safety": guarding all from danger, corruption, loss, etc.: the word is used for the Qur-an in v. 51. These are the attributes of kindness and benevolence: in the next note are described the attributes of power.

5403. See last note. (6) God is not only good, but He can carry out His Will. (7) And if anything resists or opposes Him, His Will prevails. (8) For He is Supreme, above all things and creatures. Thus we come back to the Unity with which we began in verse 22.

5404. Such being God's attributes of Goodness and Power, how foolish is it of men to worship anything else but Him? Who can approach His glory and goodness?

5405. God's attributes of Goodness and Power having been referred to, we are now told of His creative energy, of which three aspects are here mentioned, as explained in the following note. The point is emphasised that He does not merely create and leave alone; He goes on fashioning, evolving new forms and colours, and sustaining all the energies and capacities which He has put into His Creation, according to various laws which He has established.

5406. The act or acts of creation have various aspects, and the various words used in this connection are summarised in n. 120 to ii. 117, as supplemented by n. 916 to vi. 94 and n. 923 to vi. 98. Khalaqa is the general term for creation, and the Author of all Creation is Khāliq. Baraa implies a process of evolving from previously created matter or state: the Author of this process is Bāri-u, the Evolver. Ṣawwara implies giving definite form or colour, so as to make a thing exactly suited to a given end or object: hence the title Muṣawwir, Bestower of Forms or Colours: for this shows the completion of the visible stage of creation.

5408. Thus the argument of the Sūra is rounded off on the same note as was struck at the beginning, lix. 1. The first verse and the last verse of the Sūra are the same, except as regards the tense of the verb sabbaha. In the first verse it is the optative form of the preterite sabbaha: 'let everything declare the Glory of God!' After the illustrations given, the declaratory form of the aorist is appropriate, yusabbihu: "everything doth declare the Glory of God.'.

INTRODUCTION TO SURA LX (Mumtahana).

This is the fourth of the ten Medina Sūras, each dealing with a special point in the life of the Ummat.

Here the point is: what social relations are possible with the Unbelievers? A distinction is made between those who persecute you for your Faith and want to destroy you and your Faith, and those who have shown no such rancour. For the latter there is hope of mercy and forgiveness. The question of women and cross-marriages is equitably dealt with.

The date is after the Pagans had broken the treaty of Ḥudaibīya, for which see Introduction to S. xlviii,—say about A.H. 8, not long before the conquest of Mecca.

Summary.—The enemies of your Faith, who would exterminate you and your Faith, are not fit objects of your love: follow Abraham's example: but with those Unbelievers who show no rancour, you should deal with kindness and justice: marriages between Believers and Unbelievers. (lx. 1-13, and C. 239).

C. 239.—What social relations should you hold With men whose hearts are filled with rancour.-(lx. 1-13.) Who hate both God and men of God? Surely you cannot offer love and friendship To such as seek to destroy your Faith And you. Seek protection for you and yours From God and not from God's sworn enemies. But deal kindly and justly with all: it may be That those who hate you now may love you: For God can order all things. But look not For protection to those who are bent on driving You out. Let not believing women Be handed over to Unbelievers: No marriage tie is lawful between them. When women wish to join your society, Take their assurance that they yield not To sin or unbeseeming conduct. Take every care to keep your society Free and pure, and self-contained.

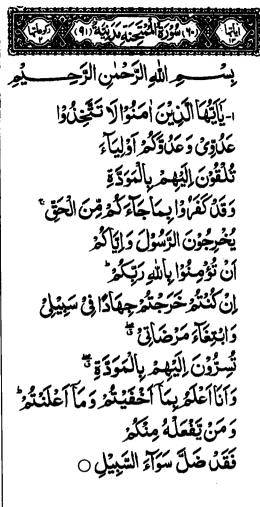

Sūra LX.

Mumtahana, or the Woman to be Examined. (lx. 10)

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

Take not My enemies And yours as friends (Or protectors),—offering them 5409 (Your) love, even though They have rejected the Truth That has come to you, And have (on the contrary) Driven out the Prophet And yourselves (from your homes), (Simply) because ye believe In God your Lord!5410 If ye have come out To strive in My Way And to seek My Good Pleasure, (Take them not as friends). Holding secret converse Of love (and friendship) With them: for I know Full well all that ye Conceal and all that ye Reveal. And any of you That does this has strayed From the Straight Path.

2. If they were to get 5411
The better of you,

٢-إِنْ يَثْقَفُوْكُمْ

<sup>5409.</sup> The immediate occasion for this was a secret letter sent by one Hāṭib, a Muhājir, from Medina, to the Pagans at Mecca, in most friendly terms, seeking for their protection on behalf of his children and relatives left behind in Mecca. The letter was intercepted, and he confessed the truth. He was forgiven as he told the truth and his motive did not appear to be heinous, but this instruction was given for future guidance. This was shortly before the conquest of Mecca, but the principle is of universal application. You cannot be on terms of secret intimacy with the enemies of your Faith and people, who are persecuting your Faith and seeking to destroy your Faith and you. You may not do so even for the sake of your relatives, as it compromises the life and existence of your whole community.

<sup>5411.</sup> Besides the question of your fidelity to your own people, even your own selfish interests require you to beware of secret intrigues with enemies. They will welcome you as cat's-paws. But what will happen when they have used you and got the better of you and your people? Then they will show you their hand. And a heavy hand it will be! Not only will they injure you with their hands but with their tongues! The only words they will use for you will be "Traitors to their own"! If they intrigue with you now, it is to pervert you from the Path of Truth and righteousness and win you over to their evil ways.

They would behave to you As enemies, and stretch forth Their hands and their tongues Against you for evil; And they desire that ye Should reject the Truth.

- 3. Of no profit to you 5112
  Will be your relatives
  And your children
  On the Day of Judgment:
  He will judge between you:
  For God sees well
  All that ye do.
- 4. Mhere is for you An excellent example (to follow) In Abraham and those with him. 5113 When they said To their people: "We are clear of you And of whatever ye worship Besides God: we have rejected You, and there has arisen. Between us and you, enmity 5114 And hatred for ever,—unless Ye believe in God And Him alone": But not when Abraham Said to his father: "I will pray for forgiveness 5415

يَكُوْنُوْا لَكُوُ اَعْكَآءً وَيَبُسُطُوَ النَّكُوْ اَيْدِيَهُمُ وَالْسِنَتَهُمُ بِالنُّوَا وَوَدُوْا لَوْتَكُفُووْنَ ۞

- 5412. The plea of children and relatives (see n. 5409 above) will be no excuse for treachery when the Day of Judgment comes. Your children and family will not save you. The Judgment will be in the hands of God, and He has full knowledge of all your overt and hidden acts and motives.
- 5413. See ix. 114. Abraham was tender-hearted, and loyal to his father and his people. He warned them against idolatry and sin, and prayed for his father, but when his father and his people became open enemies of God, Abraham entirely dissociated himself from them, and left his home, his father, his people, and his country. Those with him were his believing wife and nephew Lūt and any other Believers that went into exile with him.
- 5414. The enemies of God are enemies of the righteous, and they hate the righteous. Therefore the righteous must cut themselves off eternally from them, unless they repent and come back to God. In that case they receive God's mercy and are entitled to all the rights of love and brotherhood. This shows that our detestation is for evil, not for men as such, so long as there is a chance for repentance. See also verse 7 below. But we must give no chance to Evil for working evil on our Brotherhood at any time.
- 5415. Refer again to ix. 114, n. 1365: and n. 5413 above. Abraham's conduct is not condemned: it was a special case, and is not to be imitated by weaker men, who may fall into sin by thinking too much of sinners.

For thee, though I have No power (to get) aught On thy behalf from God." (They prayed): "Our Lord! 5416 In Thee do we trust, And to Thee do we turn In repentance: to Thee Is (our) final Goal.

- 5. "Our Lord! Make us not A (test and) trial 5117

  For the Unbelievers,
  But forgive us, our Lord!
  For Thou art the Exalted
  In Might, the Wise."
- 6. There was indeed in them 5418
  An excellent example for you
  To follow,—for those Whose hope is in God
  And in the Last Day.
  But if any turn away,
  Truly God is Free of all 5419
  Wants, Worthy of all Praise.

SECTION 2.

7. We trans be that God
Will grant love (and friendship) 51:20
Between you and those whom
Ye (now) hold as enemies.
For God has power
(Over all things); And God is
Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful.

لَكَ وَ مَا اَمُلِكُ لَكَ مِنَ اللهِ مِنْ شَيْءً رَبَنَا عَلَيْكَ تَوَكَّلْنَا وَإِلَيْكَ اَنْبَنَا وَ إِلَيْكَ الْبَصِيْرُ ۞

٥-رَبُنَا لَا تَجْعَلْنَا نِتُنَةً لِلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا
 وَاغْفِرُلِنَا رَبُنَا *
 إِذَكَ أَنْتَ الْعَزِيْرُ الْعَكِينَةِ

٧- لَقُلُ كَانَ لَكُمْ فِيهِ هِ أَسُوَةٌ حَسَنَةٌ لِمَنْ كَانَ يَرْجُوا اللّهَ وَالْيَوْمَ الْاَخِرَ وَمَنْ يَكُولُ وَمَنْ يَكُولُ فَإِنَّ اللّهَ هُوَ الْغَنِيُّ الْحَمِيْلُ أَ

٤ عَسَى اللهُ أَنْ يُتَجْعَلَ بَيُنْ نَكُمُرُ وَبَيْنَ الْإِنْ يُنَ عَادَيْتُهُ مِّنْهُ مُوَدَّةً * وَ اللهُ عَنْوُرٌ تَحِيْمٌ ۞ وَ اللهُ عَفُورٌ تَحِيْمٌ ۞

5416. This prayer indicates what our attitude should be. We must trust to God, and not to God's enemies to protect and befriend ourselves, our families, or those near and dear to us.

5417. In n. 1198 to viii, 25, I have explained the shades of meaning in the word Fitnat. In ii. 102 Hārūt and Mārūt were a trial to test the righteous who trusted in God from the unrighteous who resorted to evil and superstition. Here the prayer to God is that we should be saved from becoming so weak as to tempt the Unbelievers to try to attack and destroy us.

5418. In them: i.e., in their attitude of prayer and reliance on God, and of dissociation from evil.

5419. If any one rejects God's Message or Law, the loss is his own. It is not God Who needs him or his worship or his sacrifice or his praise. God is independent of all wants, and His attributes are inherently deserving of all praise, whether the wicked give such praise or not, in word or deed.

5420. Apparent religious hatred or enmity or persecution may be due to ignorance or over-zeal in a soul, which God will forgive and use eventually in His service, as happened in the case of Hadhrat 'Umar, who was a different man before and after his conversion. As stated in n. 5414 above, we should hate evil, but not men as such.

- 8. God forbids you not,
  With regard to those who
  Fight you not for (your) Faith
  Nor drive you out
  Of your homes,
  From dealing kindly and justly 5121
  With them: For God loveth
  Those who are just.
- 9. God only forbids you,
  With regard to those who
  Fight you for (your) Faith,
  And drive you out
  Of your homes, and support
  (Others) in driving you out,
  From turning to them
  (For friendship and protection).
  It is such as turn to them
  (In these circumstances),
  That do wrong.
- When there come to you
  Believing women refugees, 5422
  Examine (and test) them:
  God knows best as to
  Their Faith: if ye ascertain 5423
  That they are Believers,
  Then send them not back
  To the Unbelievers.
  They are not lawful (wives)

٨- لَا يَنْفُ مُكُوُاللَّهُ عَنِ الَّذِينَ لَمْ يُقَاتِلُوْكُونِي الرّين وَلَمْ يُخْرِجُوْكُمْ مِّنْ دِيَالِكُمْ أَنْ تَارُّوْهُمُ وَ تُقْسِطُوا إِلَيْهِمْ " ان الله يُحتُ الْمُقْسِطِينَ ۞ ٩-إِنَّمَا يَنْهَا كُمُ اللَّهُ عَنِ الَّذِيْنِي قَٰ تَلُوْكُمْ وَ ٱخْرَجُوْ كُفْرُ مِّنْ دِيَارِ كُفْر وَ ظُهُوُوْا عَلَى إِخْرَاجِكُمْ أَنْ تُوَكُّوْهُمْ ومن تتاكفه فأولنك همرالظلمون ٨٠ - يَاتِيْهَا الَّذِينَ إَمَنُوَا إِذَا جَاءَكُهُ مُهْجِرْتٍ فَامْتَعِنُوْهُنَّ آللهُ أَعْلَمُ بِإِيْمَانِهِنَ فَانْ عَلِمْتُكُوْهُنَّ مُؤْمِنٰتِ فَلَا إلى الْكُفَّارُ لَا هُنَّ جِكُّ

5421. Even with Unbelievers, unless they are rampant and out to destroy us and our Faith, we should deal kindly and equitably, as is shown by our holy Prophet's own example.

5422. Under the treaty of Hudaibiya [see Introduction to S. xlviii, paragraph 4, condition (3)], women under guardianship (including married women), who fled from the Quraish in Mecca to the Prophet's protection at Medina were to be sent back. But before this Ayat was issued, the Quraish had already broken the treaty, and some instruction was necessary as to what the Medina Muslims should do in those circumstances. Muslim women married to Pagan husbands in Mecca were oppressed for their Faith, and some of them came to Medina as refugees. After this, they were not to be returned to the custody of their Pagan husbands at Mecca, as the marriage of believing women with non-Muslims was held to be dissolved if the husbands did not accept Islam. But in order to give no suspicion to the Pagans that they were badly treated as they lost the dower they had given on marriage, that dower was to be repaid to the husbands. Thus helpless women refugees were to be protected at the cost of the Muslims.

5423. The condition was that they should be Muslim women. How were the Muslims to know? A non-Muslim woman, in order to escape from her lawful guardians in Mecca, might pretend that she was a Muslim. The true state of her mind and heart would be known to God alone. But if the Muslims, on an examination of the woman, found that she professed Islam, she was to have protection. The examination would be directed (among other things) to the points mentioned in verse 12 below.

For the Unbelievers, nor are
The (Unbelievers) lawful
. (husbands)

For them. But pay The Unbelievers what they Have spent (on their dower). And there will be no blame On you if ye marry them 5424 On payment of their dower To them. But hold not To the guardianship of 5125 Unbelieving women: ask For what ye have spent On their dowers, and let The (Unbelievers) ask for What they have spent (On the dowers of women Who come over to you). Such is the command. Of God: He judges (With justice) between you. And God is Full of Knowledge and Wisdom.

11. And if any
Of your wives deserts you
To the Unbelievers, 5426
And ye have an accession
(By the coming over of
A woman from the other side),
Then pay to those
Whose wives have deserted

لَّهُمْ وَلاَ هُمْ يَجِلُوْنَ لَهُنَّ أَ وَاتُوْهُمْ مَّا اَنْفَقُوا الْ وَلاَجُنَا حَ عَلَيْكُمْ اَنْ تَنْكِحُوهُنَّ إِذَا اَتَيْتُمُوْهُنَّ اُجُوْرِهُنَّ الْكَوْافِرِ وَلاَ تُمْسِكُوا بِعِصَدِ الْكَوَافِرِ وَلَيْكَنْكُوا مَا اَنْفَقُوا الْكَوْافِرِ وَلَيْكَنْكُوا مَا اَنْفَقُوا اللهِ فَلِكُمْ حُكْمُ اللهِ يَحْكُمُ بَيْنَكُورُ اللهِ وَاللهُ عَلِيْعٌ حَكِيْمٌ (

۱۱- وَ إِنْ فَالْتَكُوْ شَيْءٌ مِّنْ آزُوالِحِكُوْ إِلَى الْكُفَّالِ فَكَاقَبُنْتُهُ فَاتُوا الَّذِيْنَ ذَهَبَتْ آزُواجُهُوْ

5425. Unbelieving women in a Muslim society would only be a clog and a handicap. There would be neither happiness for them, nor could they conduce in any way to a healthy life of the society in which they lived as aliens. They were to be sent away, as their marriage was held to be dissolved; and the dowers paid to them were to be demanded from the guardians to whom they were sent back, just as in the contrary case the dowers of believing women were to be paid back to their Pagan ex-husbands (n. 5422 above).

5426. A very unlikely contingency, considering how much better position the women occupied in Islam than under Pagan custom. But all contingencies have to be provided for equitably in legislation. If a woman went over to the Pagans, her dower would be recoverable from the Pagans and payable to the deserted husband. If a woman came over from the Pagans, her dower would be payable to the Pagans. Assuming that the two dowers were equal, the one would be set off against the other as between the two communities; but within the communities the deserted individual would be compensated by the individual who gains a wife. If the dowers were unequal, the balance would be recoverable as between the communities, and the adjustment would then be made as between the individuals. In practice the common Fund compensated the deserted husband in anticipation of any necessary adjustments.

The equivalent of what they Had spent (on their dower). And fear God, In Whom ye believe.

12. Prophet! 5427 When believing women come To thee to take the oath Of fealty to thee, that they Will not associate in worship Any other thing whatever With God, that they Will not steal, that they Will not commit adultery (Or fornication), that they Will not kill their children. That they will not utter Slander, intentionally forging Falsehood, and that they Will not disobey thee In any just matter,— Then do thou receive Their fealty, and pray to God 5128 For the forgiveness (of Their sins): for God is Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful.

قِثْلَ مَا ٓ اَنْفَقُوْا ۗ وَاتَعُوا اللهَ الَّذِي َ اَنْتُمْ بِهِ مُؤْمِنُونَ ○

١٠- يَايَّهُمَا النَّبِيُّ إِذَا جَاءَكَ الْمُؤْمِنْتُ
 يُبَايِعُنْكَ عَلَى
 اَنْ لَا يُشْرِكُنَ بِاللهِ شَيْئًا
 وَلَا يَشْرُفُنَ وَلَا يَرْنِيْنَ
 وَلَا يَشْرُفُنَ وَلَا يَرْنِيْنَ
 وَلَا يَاتِيْنَ بِمُشْتَانٍ
 وَلَا يَاتِيْنَ بِمُشْتَانٍ
 وَلَا يَاتِيْنَ بِمُشْتَانٍ
 وَلَا يَاتِيْنَ بِمُشْتَانٍ
 وَلَا يَاتِيْنَ بِمُثْتَانٍ
 وَلَا يَاتِيْنَ بِمُثْتَانٍ
 وَلَا يَعْمُونُ لِهُنَّ اللهَ ثَالِيعَهُ فَوْلَ لَهُنَّ اللهَ ثَالِيعُهُنَّ
 إِنَّ اللهُ عَنْفُوزُ لَرْجِيمُحُرَّ
 إِنَّ اللهُ عَنْفُوزُ لَرْجِيمُحُرَّ
 إِنَّ اللهُ عَنْفُوزُ لَرْجِيمُحُرَّ

٣- يَاكَيُّهُا الَّذِيْنَ أَمَنُوُا لَاتَتَوَلُّوْا قَوْمًا غَضِبَ اللهُ عَلَيْهِمْ

5427. Now come directions as to the points on which women entering Islam should pledge themselves. Similar points apply to men, but here the question is about women, and especially such as were likely, in those early days of Islam, to come from Pagan society into Muslim society in the conditions discussed in notes 5422 and 5423 above. A pledge on these points would search out their real motives: (1) to worship none but the One True God; (2) not to steal; (3) not to indulge sex outside the marriage tie; (4) not to commit infanticide; (the Pagan Arabs were prone to female infanticide); (5) not to indulge in slander or scandal; and (6) generally, to obey loyally the law and principles of Islam. The last was a comprehensive and sufficient phrase, but it was good to indicate also the special points to which attention was to be directed in those special circumstances. Obedience was of course to be in all things just and reasonable: Islam requires strict discipline but not slavishness.

5428. If pledges are sincerely given for future conduct, admission to Islam is open. If there is anything in the past, for which there is evidence of sincere repentance, forgiveness is to be prayed for. God forgives in such cases: how can man refuse to give such cases a real chance?

5429. So we come back to the theme with which we started in this Sūra: that we should not turn for friendship and intimacy to those who break God's Law and are outlaws in God's Kingdom. The various phases of this question, and the legitimate qualifications, have already been mentioned, and the argument is here rounded off. Cf. also lviii, 14.

Of the Hereafter they are Already in despair, just as The Unbelievers are In despair about those (Buried) in graves. 6430

قَنْ يَكِشِنُوْا مِنَ الْأَخِرَةِ ﴿ يَكُمَا يَكِشِنَ الْكُفَّادُ مِنَ اَصْلِفِ الْقُبُوْرِ ۚ

<sup>5430.</sup> The Unbelievers, who do not believe in a Future Life, can therefore have no hope beyond this life. Miserable indeed is this life to them; for the ills of this life are real to them, and they can have no hope of redress. But such is also the state of others—People of the Book or not—who wallow in sin and incur the divine Wrath. Even if they believe in a Future Life, it can only be to them a life of horror, punishment, and despair. For those of Faith the prospect is different. They may suffer in this life, but this life to them is only a fleeting shadow that will soon pass away. The Reality is beyond; there will be full redress in the Beyond, and Achievement and Felicity such as they can scarcely conceive of in the terms of this life.

INTRODUCTION TO SURA LXI (Saff).

This is the fifth Sūra of the series of short Medina Sūras beginning with S. lvii. Its subject-matter is the need for discipline, practical work, and self-sacrifice in the cause of the Ummat. Its date is uncertain, but it was probably shortly after the battle of Uhud, which was fought in Shawwāl, A.H. 3.

Summary.—God's Glory shines through all Creation: but what discipline can you show to back your words with action? What lessons can you learn from the stories of Moses and Jesus? Help the Cause, and God's help will come with glorious results (lxi. 1-14, and C. 240).

C. 240.—God's glory shines through all the universe.

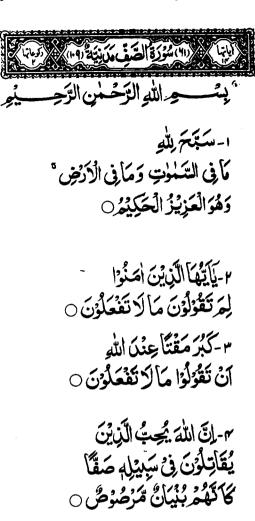

(lxi. 1-14.) What deeds of unity and discipline,
Of love and righteousness, have you
To show in conduct? Or do you
Only mock and insult the apostles
As they did of old? Nay, trust in God
And strive your utmost in His Cause.
Little have you to give, but glorious
Is the reward that God will give you,—
Now and in the Eternal Life to come!

Sūra LXI.

Saff, or Battle Array.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- In the heavens and On earth, let it declare The Praises and Glory Of God: for He is The Exalted in Might, The Wise.
- 3. Grievously odious is it In the sight of God That ye say that Which ye do not.
- 4. Truly God loves those Who fight in His Cause In battle array, as if They were a solid Cemented structure.
- 5. And remember, Moses said 5434
  To his people: "O my people!

٥- وَإِذْ قَالَ مُوْسَى لِقَوْمِهِ يَلْقَوْمِ

<sup>5431.</sup> This verse is identical with lix. 1. The latter illustrated the theme of the wonderful working of God's providence in defeating the wiles of His enemies. Here the same theme is illustrated by showing the need for unshaken discipline if we are to receive the help of God.

Why do ye vex and insult
Me, though ye know
That I am the apostle
Of God (sent) to you?"
Then when they went wrong, 5135
God let their hearts go wrong.
For God guides not those
Who are rebellious transgressors.

- 6. And remember, Jesus,
  The son of Mary, said:
  "O Children of Israel!
  I am the apostle of God
  (Sent) to you, 5136 confirming 5137
  The Law (which came)
  Before me, and giving
  Glad Tidings of an Apostle
  To come after me,
  Whose name shall be Ahmad." 5138
  But when he came to them
  With Clear Signs, 5139
  They said, "This is Evident sorcery!"
- 7. The ho doth greater wrong Than one who invents

لِمُرْتُوُّ ذُوْنَنِيْ وَقَنْ تَعُلَمُوْنَ آنِّ رَسُوُلُ اللهِ النَّكُمْرُ فَكَتَا زَاغُوَّا اَزَاغَ اللهُ قُلُوْبَهُمُرُ وَاللهُ لَا يَهْدِي الْقَوْمَ الْفَسِقِيْنَ ۞

٨- وَإِذْ قَالَ عِيْسَى ابْنُ مَرْيَمَ يَبْنِيَ اِسْرَآءِيُلَ إِنِّ رَسُوْلُ اللهِ اِلْيُكُمْ مُصَيِّقًا لِمَا بَيْنَ يَكِي مِنَ التَّوُلِ اللهِ وَمُبَشِّرًا بِرَسُولِ يَالِقَ مِنْ بَعْنِي اَسْمُكُ آخُمِكُ السَّمُكَ آخُمِكُ فَلْتَا جَآءَهُمْ بِالْمِيْنِيْ قَالُوْا هَٰذَا سِحْرٌ مُعِينِيْ ۞

٥- وَمَنْ ٱظْلَمُ مِتَنِ افْتَرٰى

5435. The sinner's own will deviates, i.e. goes off from the right way, and he does wrong. That means that he shuts off God's grace. God then, after his repeated rebellion, withdraws the protecting Grace from him, and the sinner's heart is tainted: there is "a disease in his heart", which is the centre of his being: his spiritual state is ruined. God's guidance is withdrawn from him.

5436. The mission of Jesus was to his own people, the Jews. Cf. Matt. x. 5-6. See also Matt. xv. 24: "I am not sent but to the lost sheep of Israel;" also Matt. xv. 26: "It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs."

5437. Cf. Matt. v. 17.

5439. Our holy Prophet was foretold in many ways; and when he came, he showed forth many Clear Signs, for his whole life from beginning to end was one vast miracle. He fought and won against odds. Without learning from men he taught the highest wisdom. He melted hearts that were hard, and he strengthened hearts that were tender and required support. In all his sayings and doings men of discernment could see the working of God's hand; yet the ignorant Unbelievers called it all Sorcery!—called that unreal which became the most solid fact of human history!

Falsehood against God, Even as he is being invited 5440 To Islam? And God Guides not those Who do wrong.

- 8. Their intention is
  To extinguish God's Light
  (By blowing) with their mouths:
  But God will complete
  (The revelation of) His Light,
  Even though the Unbelievers
  May detest (it).
- 9. It is He Who has sent
  His Apostle with Guidance
  And the Religion of Truth,
  That he may proclaim it
  Over all religion, 5142
  Even though the Pagans
  May detest (it).

SECTION 2.

عَلَى اللهِ الْكَنِابَ وَهُوَيُهُ اَلَى الْإِسْلَامِ وَاللهُ لَا يَهُ بِي الْقَوْمَ الطَّلِمِينَ ۞ ^-يُرِينُ وَنَ لِيُطْفِؤُوا نُوْرَ اللهِ بِاَفْوَاهِهِمْ وَ اللهُ مُتِمُ نُوْرِهٖ وَ اللهُ مُتِمُ الْكَافِرَةِ

هُوَ الَّذِي آرُسُلَ رَسُولَا إِالْهُ لَى الْهُ لَى الْهُ لَى الْهُ لَى الْهُ لَى الْمُحْقِقِ الْمُحْقِقِ الْمُحْقِقِ الْمُحْقِقِ الْمُحْقِقِ الْمُحْقِقِ الْمُحْقِقِ الْمُحْقِيلِ الْمُحْقِقِ اللّهِ اللّهُ اللّهِ الللّهِ اللّهِ اللّهِ الللّهِ اللّهِ اللّهِ اللّهِ اللّهِ اللّهِ اللّهِ الللّهِ اللّهِ الللّهِ اللّهِ اللّهِ الللّهِ اللّهِ اللّهِ اللّهِ الللّهِ الللّهِ الللّهِ اللّهِ الللّهِ الللّهِ الللّهِ الللّهِ

. - يَايُهُمَا الَّذِيْنَ أَمَنُوْا هَلْ آدُلُكُمْ عَلَى تِجَادَةٍ تُنْجِيْكُمْ مِّنْ عَنَابٍ ٱلِيْمِ

5440. It is wrong in any case to uphold falsehoods and debasing superstitions, but it is doubly wrong when these are put forward in rivalry or opposition to the light of eternal Unity and Harmony which is Islam. See C. 7-11. God sends His guidance freely, but withdraws His Grace from those who wilfully do wrong.

5441. God's Light is unquenchable. A foolish, ignorant person who thinks of extinguishing it is like a rustic who wants to blow out electric light as he might blow out a rush candle! "With their mouths" also implies the babble and cackle of Ignorance against God's Truth. The more the foolish ones try to quench God's Light, the clearer it shines, to shame them!

5442. "Over all religion": in the singular; not over all other religions, in the plural. There is really only one true Religion, the Message of God, submission to the Will of God: this is called Islam. It was the religion preached by Moses and Jesus; it was the religion of Abraham. Noah, and all the prophets, by whatever name it may be called. If people corrupt that pure light, and call their religions by different names, we must bear with them, and we may allow the names for convenience. But Truth must prevail over all. See also ix. 33, n. 1290, and lxviii 28, n. 4912.

5443. Tijārat: bargain, trade, traffic, transaction: something given or done, in return for something which we desire to get. What we give or do on our part is described in verse 11 below, and what we get is described in verse 12. It is truly a wonderful bargain: what we are asked to give is so little; what we are promised in return is so much. There comes God's unbounded Bounty and Munificence. Cf. also ix. 111, where the bargain is stated in another way.

- 11. That ye believe in God
  And His Apostle, and that Ye strive (your utmost)
  In the Cause of God,
  With your property
  And your persons:
  That will be best for you,
  If ye but knew!
- 12. He will forgive you
  Your sins, and admit you
  To Gardens beneath which
  Rivers flow, and to beautiful
  Mansions in Gardens
  Of Eternity: that is indeed
  The supreme Achievement.
- 13. And another (favour Will He bestow), which ye 5115 Do love, help from God And a speedy victory.

  So give the Glad Tidings To the Believers.

ا - تُؤْمِنُونَ بِاللهِ وَرَسُولِهِ وَ تَجَاهِدُونَ فِي سَبِيْلِ اللهِ بِإَمْوَالِكُمْ وَ اَنْفُسِكُمُ ذَلِكُمْ خَيْرٌ لَكُمْ اِنْ كُنْ تُمُورَتَكُ لَكُونَ فِي

١٠- يَغْفِرُ لَكُورُ ذُنُوبَكُمْ
 ١٥ ويُلْخِلَكُمْ حَلَّتٍ تَجْرِي مِنْ تَحْتِهَا الْاَثَهُرُ
 ١٥ مسكِنَ طِيبَةً فِي جَنْتِ عَنْنِ عَنْنِ الْعَوْزُ الْعَظِيمُ فَي جَنْتِ عَنْنِ الْعَوْزُ الْعَظِيمُ فَي الله وَ فَتْحُرُ قَرِيبًا الله وَ فَتْحُرْبُونِ فَيْ الله وَ فَتْحُرُ قَرِيبًا الله وَ فَتْحُرُ قَرْنِيبًا الله وَ فَيْنَانِ الله وَ فَنْهُ وَالله وَ فَيْعُرُونُ الله وَ فَتْحُرُ قَرْنِيبًا الله وَ فَيْنِ الله وَ فَيْعَانِيبُ الله وَ فَيْنِهُ وَاللهِ وَاللهِ الله وَ فَيْنِهُ وَالله وَ فَيْنِهُ وَالله وَ فَيْعُونُ وَاللهِ وَالْهُ وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالْهُ وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالْهُ وَالله والله وَالله وَالْعُولِيلِهُ وَالله وَالْعُلَالِي وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله وَالله

مَّدِّيَا يَّهُمَّا الَّذِيْنَ امَنُوَا كُونُوَا اَنْصَارَ اللهِ كَمَّا قَالَ عِيْسَى ابْنُ مَرْيَحَ لِلْحَوَارِبِّنَ مَنْ اَنْصَادِی إِلَى اللهِ قَالَ الْعَوَارِثُونَ

5444. It would indeed be a great and wonderful bargain, to give so little and get so much, if we only knew and understood the comparative value of things,—the sacrifice of our fleeting advantages for forgiveness, the love of God, and eternal bliss.

5445. The supreme Achievement has already been mentioned, viz: the Gardens of Eternity in the Presence of God. But lest that seem too remote or abstract for the understanding of men not spiritually advanced, another type or symbol or metaphor is mentioned which the men who first heard this Message could at once understand and appreciate—"which ye do love"; viz: Help and Victory. For all striving in a righteous Cause we get God's help: and however much the odds against us may be, we are sure of victory with God's help. But all life is a striving or struggle,—the spiritual life even more than any other; and the final victory there is the same as the Garden of Eternity.

5446. If we seek God's help, we must first help God's Cause, i.s. dedicate ourselves to Him entirely and without reserve. This was also the teaching of Jesus, as mentioned in this verse. As found in the New Testament, the metaphor used is that of the Cross. "Then said Jesus to his disciples, if any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." (Matt. xvi. 24).

5447. See iii. 52, and n. 392; and for the Biblical reference, see the last note. The names of the twelve Disciples will be found in Matt. x. 2-4.

"We are God's helpers!"
Then a portion of the Children
Of Israel believed, and
A portion disbelieved:
But We gave power
To those who believed,
Against their enemies,
And they became
The ones that prevailed. 5148

تَحُنُ أَنْصَالُ اللهِ فَامَنَتُ كُلَّائِفَةً ثَنِّ بَنِيَ إِسْرَآءِ فِلَ وَكَفَرَتْ ظَائِفَةً ثَ فَايَّكُ نَا الَّذِيْنَ أَمَنُوْا عَلَى عَدُوهِ فِي فَايَّكُ نَا الَّذِيْنَ أَمَنُوْا عَلَى عَدُوهِ فِي

5448. A portion of the Children of Israel-the one that really cared for Truth-believed in Jesus and followed his guidance. But the greater portion of them were hard-hearted, and remained in their beaten track of formalism and false racial pride. The majority seemed at first to have the upper hand when they thought they had crucified Jesus and killed his Message. But they were soon brought to their senses. Jerusalem was destroyed by Titus in A.D. 70, and the Jews have been scattered ever since. "The Wandering Jew" has become a bye-word in many literatures. On the other hand, those who followed Jesus permeated the Roman Empire, brought many new races within their circle, and through the Roman Empire, Christianity became the predominant religion of the world until the advent of Islam. So is it promised to the people of Islam: they must prevail if they adhere to the Truth. Badr (A.H. 2) was a landmark against Pagan Arabia; Qādisiya (A.H. 14) and Madain (A.H. 16) against the might of Persia: Yarmuk (A.H. 15) against the might of the Byzantine Empire in Christian Syria; and Heliopolis (A H. 19) against the same Empire in Christian Egypt and Africa. These were symbols in external events. The moral and spiritual landmarks are less tangible, and more gradual, but none the less real. Mark how the arrogance and power of Priesthood have been quelled; how superstition and a belief in blind Fate have been checked; how the freedom of human individuals has been reconciled with the sanctity of marriage in the law of Divorce; how the civil position of women has been raised; how temperance and sobriety have been identified with religion; what impetus has been given to knowledge and experimental science; and how economic reconstruction has been pioneered by rational schemes for the expenditure and distribution of wealth.

INTRODUCTION TO SURA LXII (Jumu'a).

This is the sixth Sūra in the Medina series of short Sūras which began with S. lvii.

The special theme here is the need for mutual contact in the Community for worship and understanding: for the spirit of the Message is for all, ignorant and learned, in order that they may be purified and may learn wisdom.

The date has no special significance: it may be placed in the early Medina period, say between A.H. 2 and 5.

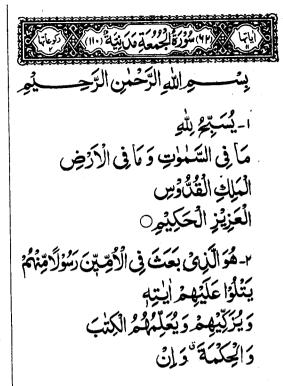

Summary.—The Revelation has come among unlearned men, to teach purity and wisdom not only to them but to others, including those who may have an older Message but do not understand it: meet solemnly for the Assembly (Friday) Prayer, and let not worldly interests deflect you therefrom. (lxii. 1-11, and C. 241).

C. 241.—God's care for His creatures is universal. (lxii. 1-11.) His Revelation is for all-ignorant And lowly as well as learned and high-placed,-Now and for ever. None can arrogantly Claim exclusive possession of God's gifts: If they do, search their hearts within, and you Will find them afraid of Death and Judgment. Men of Faith! On the Day of Assembly, When you hear the call, hasten earnestly To answer it: leave off business, and join In common worship and devotion. You may disperse about your ordinary business, But remember the Praises of God always: It is He alone that can provide For your every need, and His gifts are best.

Sura LXII.

Jumu'a, or the Assembly (Friday)
Prayer.
In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- In the heavens and
  On earth, doth declare 5119
  The Praises and Glory
  Of God,—the Sovereign, 5150
  The Holy One, the Exalted
  In Might, the Wise.
- 2. It is He Who has sent
  Amongst the Unlettered 5451
  An apostle from among Themselves, to rehearse
  To them His Signs, 5453
  To sanctify them, and
  To instruct them in Scripture, 5453
  And Wisdom,—although 5454

5449. See n. 5408 to lix. 24, where I have explained the difference in signification between sabbaha and yusabbihu. The latter form is used here, to express an actual fact. 'Everything declares the Praises and Glory of God, because God's mercies extend to all His creatures: He sends His Revelation for the benefit of the ignorant and unlettered as well as for those who have learning in their midst, especially as the latter are apt, by the very weight of their ponderous learning, to miss the real point and spirit of God's Message.'

5450. See lix. 23, and n. 5402. Here we have two of the divine attributes repeated from lix. 23 and two from the end of lix. 24, implying a reminiscence of all the beautiful divine attributes mentioned in that passage.

5451. The Unlettered: as applied to a people, it refers to the Arabs, in comparison with the People of the Book, who had a longer tradition of learning. but whose failure is referred to in verse 5 below. As applied to individuals, it means that God's Revelation is for the benefit of all men, whether they have worldly learning or not.

5452. His Signs: God's wonderful Signs in His Creation and in His ordering of the world. It may include the Verses of the Qur-ān, but they are more specifically referred to as "Scripture" in the next line but one.

5453. Cf. ii. 129, and n. 129. Read again the attributes in the last verse. God is full Sovereign, and therefore cares for all His subjects, including the meanest and most ignorant, and sends His apostles or messengers to them. He is the Holy One, and therefore purifies and sanctifies those who were steeped in superstition and wickedness. He is Exalted in Power, and therefore He can confer all these blessings on the most unlikely people (verse 3), and no one can stay His hand. He is wise, and therefore He instructs in wisdom, both through written Scriptures, and in other ways, e.g., by means of a knowledge of life and its laws, and an understanding of His wonderful universe.

5454. Previous ignorance or error is no bar to a person or nation receiving the blessings of God's revelation, provided such person or nation has the will to come to God and the capacity to bear His Message. For an instance of incapacity through arrogance, see verse 6 below. For some remarks on the Arabs as vehicles of the new Light, see C. 12-15.

They had been, before, In manifest error:—

- 3. As well as (to confer All these benefits upon)
  Others of them, 5155 who
  Have not already joined them:
  And He is Exalted
  In Might, Wise.
- 4. Such is the Bounty of God, Which He bestows
  On whom He will: 5156
  And God is the Lord
  Of the highest bounty.
- Who were charged
  With the (obligations
  Of the) Mosaic Law,
  But who subsequently failed
  In those (obligations), is
  That of a donkey 5157
  Which carries huge tomes
  (But understands them not).
  Evil is the similitude
  Of people who falsify
  The Signs of God:
  And God guides not
  People who do wrong.
- 6. Say: "O ye that Stand on Iudaism! 5558

كَانُوا مِنْ قَبْلُ لَفِيْ ضَلْلِ مُبِيْنٍ ٥

٣- وَ الْحَرِيْنَ مِنْهُمْ لَكَا يَلْحَقُوا بِهِمْ وَهُوَ الْعَزِيْزُ الْحَكِيْمُ

5455 Others of them: refers to other persons or peoples who may be ignorant, i.e., others than those among whom the holy Prophet came as an apostle. In other words his Message is for his Arab people and his non-Arab contemporaries as well as those who live in other ages, and have no personal contact with him or his Companions.

5456. That is, according to His wise Will and Plan, and also as a result of His unbounded generosity to all.

5457. The Children of Israel were chosen as special vehicles for God's Message early in history. When their descendants corrupted the Message and became guilty of all the abominations against which prophets like Isaiah inveighed with such zeal and fire, they merely became like beasts of burden that carry learning and wisdom on their backs but do not understand or profit by it.

5458. Standing on Judaism is a very different thing from following the Law and Will of God. An arrogant claim to be a chosen people, to be the exclusive possessors of divine teaching, to be exempt from any punishment for breaches of the divine law, (cf. ii. 88), is presumptuous blasphemy. It may be Judaism, but it is not in the spirit of Moses.

If ye think that ye
Are friends to God,
To the exclusion of
(Other) men, then express
Your desire for Death,
If ye are truthful!" 5169

- 7. But never will they Express their desire
  (For Death), because of
  The (deeds) their hands
  Have sent on before them!
  And God knows well
  Those that do wrong!
- 8. Say: "The Death from which Ye flee will truly Overtake you: then will Ye be sent back
  To the Knower of things

  Will tell you (the truth 5460
  Of) the things that ye did!"

SECTION 2.

إِنْ زَعَمْتُمُ أَكُمُ أَوْلِيَا أَهُ لِلْهِ مِنْ دُوْنِ الْكَاسِ فَكَمْنُوا الْمُوْتَ إِنْ كُنْتُمْ صٰدِ قِيْنَ

٥- يَالَيُهُا الَّذِيْنَ أَمَنُوَّا إِذَا نُوْدِيَ لِلصَّلْوَةِ مِنْ يَوْمِ الْجُمُعَةِ

5459. Cf. ii. 94.96. If they claimed to be special friends of God, why do they not eagerly desire death, which would bring them nearer to God? But of all people they are the most tenacious of this life and the good things of this life! And they know that their grasping selfish lives have run up a score of sin against them, which will meet its recompense.

5460. Before God's Judgment-Seat, when Judgment is established, we shall see the full inwardness of all deeds in this world. The veil of illusion and delusion will be torn off. All our secret motives will be laid bare. The results of all our little plots and plans and their reactions on our spiritual and eternal welfare will be clearly visible to us. All make-believe will disappear.

5461. Friday, "the Muslim Sabbath", is primarily the Day of Assembly, the weekly meeting of the Congregation, when we show our unity by sharing in common public worship, preceded by a Khutba, in which the Imām (or Leader) reviews the week's spiritual life of the Community and offers advice and exhortation on holy living. Notice the gradations of social contact for Muslims if they followed the wise ordinances of their Faith. (1) Each individual remembers God for himself or herself five or more times every day, in the home or place of business, or local mosque, or open air, as the case may be. (2) On Friday in every week, there is a local meeting in the central mosque of each local centre,—it may be a village, or town, or ward of a big city. (3) At the two 'Ids every year, there is a larger local area meeting in one centre, the 'Id-gah. (4) Once at least in a lifetime, where possible, a Muslim shares in the vast international assemblage of the world, in the centre of Islam, at the Meccan Pilgrimage. A happy combination of decentralisation and centralisation, of individual liberty and collective meeting, and contact at various stages or grades. The mechanical part of this ordinance is easy to carry out. Are we carrying out the more difficult part?—the spirit of unity, brotherhood, mutual consultation, and collective understanding and action?

Hasten earnestly to the Remembrance

Of God, and leave off Business (and traffic): 5162 That is best for you If ye but knew! 5163

- 10. And when the Prayer
  Is finished, then may ye
  Disperse through the land,
  And seek of the Bounty
  Of God: and celebrate
  The Praises of God
  Often (and without stint):
  That ye may prosper. 6164
- Some bargain or some
  Amusement, they disperse
  Headlong to it, and leave
  Thee standing. Say:
  "The (blessing) from the Presence
  Of God is better than
  Any amusement or bargain!
  And God is the Best
  To provide (for all needs)." 5465

فَاسُعُوا الْهِ ذِكْرِ اللهِ وَ ذَرُوا الْبَيْعَ مُ ذَلِكُمْرَ خَيْرٌ لَكُمْرُ إِنْ كُنْتُمْ تَعُلَمُونَ ۞

٠٠- فَإِذَا تُضِيبَتِ الصَّلَّوةُ فَانْتَثِرُوْا فِي الْأَرْضِ وَابُتَكُوُّا مِنُ فَضْلِ اللهِ وَاذْكُرُوا اللهَ كَثِيْرُا لَعَكَّدُ ثُفْلِحُوْنَ ۞

5462. The idea behind the Muslim weekly "Day of Assembly" is different from that behind the Jewish Sabbath (Saturday) or the Christian Sunday. The Jewish Sabbath is primarily a commemoration of God's ending His work and resting on the seventh day (Gen. ii. 2; Exod. xx. 11): we are taught that God needs no rest, nor does He feel fatigue (ii 255). The Jewish command forbids work on that day but says nothing about worship or prayer (Exod. xx. 10); our ordinance lays chief stress on the remembrance of God. Jewish formalism went so far as to kill the spirit of the sabbath, and call forth the protest of Jesus: "the sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath" (Mark. ii. 27). But the Christian Church, although it has changed the day from Saturday to Sunday, has inherited the Jewish spirit: witness the Scottish Sabbath; except in so far as it has been secularised. Our teaching says: 'When the time for Jumu'a Prayer comes, close your business and answer the summons loyally and earnestly, meet earnestly, pray, consult and learn by social contact: when the meeting is over, scatter and go about your business'.

5463. The immediate and temporal worldly gain may be the ultimate and spiritual loss, and vice versă.

5464. Prosperity is not to be measured by wealth or worldly gains. There is a higher prosperity,—the health of the mind and the spirit.

5465. Do not be distracted by the craze for amusement or gain. If you lead a righteous and soberlife, God will provide for you in all senses, better than any provision you can possibly think of.

INTRODUCTION TO SÜRA LXIII (Munāfiqūn).

This is the seventh of the ten short Medina Sūras dealing with a special feature in the social life of the Brotherhood.

The special feature here dealt with is the wiles and mischief of the Hypocrite element in any community, and the need of guarding against it and against the temptation it throws in the way of the Believers.

The battle of Uhud (Shawwāl A.H. 3) unmasked the Hypocrites in Medina: see iii. 167, and n. 476. This Sūra may be referred to some time after that event, say about 4 A.H. or possibly 5 A.H. if the words reported in verse 8 were uttered in the expedition against the Banū Muṣṭaliq, A.H. 5. (See n. 5475 below).

Summary.—False are the oaths of the Hypocrites: they only seek selfish ends: Believers should beware of their wiles and strive devotedly always for the Cause (lxiii, 1-11, and C. 242).

C. 242.—The oaths of Hypocrites are a screen For their misdeeds. They think they deceive (lxiii, 1-11.) With their fair exteriors and plausible talk, But their minds are impervious to the real Truth. They may plot to withhold from men of God Such things of this world as they may command; They may plot to expel and persecute the righteous; They may call them ill names and slight them. But to God belong the treasures of the heavens And the earth, and He will bestow according To His wise and universal Plan. Let not The world's foolish craze divert the Believers From the service of God-from good deeds and Charity. Now is the time: all vain will be Your pleas and your regrets when the shadow Of Death cuts off your last chance of Repentance!

Sūra LXIII.

Munāfiqun, or the Hypocrites.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. When the Hypocrites 5466
  Come to thee, they say,
  "We bear witness that thou
  Art indeed the Apostle
  Of God." Yea, God
  Knoweth that thou art
  Indeed His Apostle,
  And God beareth witness
  That the Hypocrites are Indeed liars.
- 2. They have made their oaths 5167
  A screen (for their misdeeds):
  Thus they obstruct (men)
  From the Path of God:
  Truly evil are their deeds.
- 3. That is because they believed, Then they rejected Faith: So a seal was set 5468 On their hearts: therefore They understand not.
- 4. At them, their exteriors 5469

5466. The hypocrite element, if one exists in any society, is a source of weakness and a danger to its health and its very existence. When the holy Prophet came to Medina in Hijrat, his arrival was welcome to all the patriotic citizens: it not only united them in common life and healed their old differences, but it brought honour and light to them in the person of the greatest living Teacher of Truth. But there were some baser elements filled with envy. Such hopes as they had entertained of attaining power and leadership by playing on the animosities of the factions were now dashed to the ground. They now began to work underground. For fear of the majority they dared not oppose the new growing Brotherhood of Righteousness They tried to undermine it by intriguing secretly with its enemies and swearing openly its loyalty to the holy Prophet. They were thoroughly unmasked and discredited at the battle of Uhud. See iii. 167, and n. 476.

5467. Cf. lviii. 16, and n. 5358. When they say that Muhammad is the Apostle of God, it is God's own truth: but what is in their hearts? Nothing but falsehood.

5468. Cf. ii. 7. Their double dealing has fogged their understanding. In Arabic the heart is taken to be the seat of understanding as well as of affection.

5469. The Hypocrites at all times are plausible people, and so were the Hypocrites of Medina. They present a fine exterior; they dress well; they can usually afford fine equipages; they try to win the confidence of every one, as they have no scruples in telling lies, and apparently expressing agreement with every one. Their words are fair-spoken, and as truth does not check their tongues, their flattery and deception know no bounds. But all this is on the outside. As they have no sincerity, nothing that they say or do is worth anything.

Please thee; and when
They speak, thou listenest
To their words. They are
As (worthless as hollow)
Pieces of timber propped up, 5170
(Unable to stand on their own).
They think that every
Cry is against them. 5171
They are the enemies;
So beware of them.
The curse of God be
On them! How are they
Deluded (away from the Truth)!

- 5. And when it is said
  To them, "Come, the Apostle
  Of God will pray for your 5173
  Forgiveness", they turn aside
  Their heads, and thou wouldst
  See them turning away
  Their faces in arrogance.
- 6. We tis equal to them
  Whether thou pray for
  Their forgiveness or not. 5473
  God will not forgive them.
  Truly God guides not
  Rebellious transgressors.
- They are the ones who say,
   "Spend nothing on those
   Who are with God's Apostle, 5474
   To the end that they treasures of God.

كَانَهُ مُ الْكَانَةُ وَلَوْا تَشَكَمُ لِقَوْلِهِمْ مُكَانَهُ مُ الْفَوْلِهِمْ مُكَانَهُ وَكُانَهُمُ اللّهُ اللّهُ مُكَانَعُ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ مُلَاكِمُ اللّهُ الللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّه

5471. Their conscience always troubles them. If any cry is raised, they immediately get alarmed, and think it is against themselves. Such men are worse than open enemies.

5472. Even hypocrisy like other sins can be forgiven by repentance and amendment, provided there is a will and earnest desire to turn from evil and seek the Grace of God. In this case there was none.

5473. The stiff-necked rejecters of God's Truth have made a wide gulf between themselves and God's Grace. No prayer for them will help them. In the attitude of rebellion and transgression they cannot obtain God's forgiveness.

5474. The  $Muh\bar{a}jir\bar{u}n$ , who had come to be with the holy Prophet in Medina in exile, were received, helped, entertained by the  $Ans\bar{a}r$  (Helpers). The Hypocrites in Medina did not like this, and tried in underhand ways to dissuade the good folk of Medina from doing all they could for the exiles. But their tricks did not succeed. The small Muslim community grew from strength to strength untilthey were able to stand on their own resources and greatly to augment the resources of their hosts as well. It is goodness that produces strength and prosperity, and God holds the keys of the treasures of man's well-being. It is not for God's enemies to dole out or withhold the unbounded

<sup>5470.</sup> Good timber is strong in itself and can support roofs and buildings. Hollow timber is useless, and has to be propped up against other things. The Hypocrites are like rotten timber. They have no firm character themselves, and for others they are unsafe props to rely upon.

May disperse (and quit Medina)."
But to God belong
The treasures of the heavens
And the earth; but
The Hypocrites understand not.

8. They say, "If we 5475
Return to Medina, surely
The more honourable (element)
Will expel therefrom the meaner".
But honour belongs to God
And His Apostle, and
To the Believers; but
The Hypocrites know not.

5475. Words of this import were spoken by 'Abdullāh ibn Ubai, the leader of the Medina Hypocrites, to or about the Exiles, in the course of the expedition against the Banū Mustaliq in the fourth or fifth year of the Hijra. He had hopes of leadership which were disappointed by the coming to Medina of a man far greater than he. So he arrogated to himself and his clique the title of "the more honourable (element)" and slightingly spoke of the Emigrants as the "meaner" element that had intruded from outside,

5476. Riches and human resources of all kinds are but fleeting sources of enjoyment. They should not turn away the good man from his devotion to God. "Remembrance of God" includes every act of service and goodness, every kind thought and kind deed, for this is the service and sacrifice which God requires of us. If we fail in this, the loss is our own, not any one else's: for it stunts our own spiritual growth.

5477. "Substance" or "Sustenance", in every sense, literal and metaphorical. Whatever good we enjoy comes from God, and it is our duty to use some of it in the service of others, for that is Charity and the service of God. Every unselfish act is Charity. And we must not postpone our good resolutions to the future. Death may come suddenly on us, and we cannot then be allowed to plead for more time. Every present moment calls urgently for its good deed.

INTRODUCTION TO SÜRA LXIV (Tagābun).

This is the eighth of the short Medina Sūras, each dealing with a special aspect of the life of the Community.

The special aspect spoken of here is the mutual gain and loss of Good and Evil, contrasted in this life and in the Hereafter.

It is an early Medina Sura, of the year 1 of the Hijra or possibly even of the Meccan period just before the Hijrat. (See n. 5494 below).

Summary:—Both the Unbelievers and the Believers were created by the One True God, Who created all and knows all: why should Unbelief and Evil exult in worldly gain when their loss will be as manifest in the Hereafter as will be the gains of the Believers? (lxiv. 1-18, and C. 243).

C. 243.—The self-same God created all men.

(lxiv. 1-18.) If some do good and others evil,

And ye wonder how the good do suffer

And the evil thrive, remember the Final

Goal, when true adjustments will

Be made. The Gainers here will be

The Losers there, and the Losers Gainers.

Some of this exchange you will see

Even here, in this life, for Unbelievers

Who deny the Hereafter; but in the Hereafter,

Full account and true adjustment

Of good and ill will follow before

The Judgment-Seat: nay, Good will get

More than its full reward: for God

Is Bounteous, Merciful, Mighty, Wise.

Sūra LXIV.

Tagābun, or Mutual Loss and Gain.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,

Most Merciful.

- In the heavens and
  On earth, doth declare 5479
  The Praises and Glory
  Of God: to Him belongs
  Dominion, and to Him belongs
  Praise: and He has power
  Over all things.
- 2. It is He Who has Created you; and of you
  Are some that are
  Unbelievers, and some
  That are Believers:
  And God sees well
  All that ye do.
- 3. He has created the heavens
  And the earth
  In just proportions,
  And has given you shape,
  And made your shapes
  Beautiful: and to Him
  Is the final Goal.

مَا فِي السَّلُوتِ وَ مَا فِي الْأَرْضِ كة الْمُلُكُ وَلَهُ الْحَمْثُ وَهُوَ عَلَى كُلِّ شَيْءٍ قَرِي*يُ*رُ <sub>۞</sub> ٧-هُوَ الَّذِي نَحْلَقُكُمُ ڣۜٮڹٛڬؙڡؙۯڰٳڣٷٷڝڹ۬ػؙ<sub>ڰۯ</sub>ڰٷؙڝؚڽؙۜ؞ وَاللَّهُ بِمَا تَعْمَلُونَ بَصِيْرٌ ۞ ٣- خَكَنَ التَّكُمُوٰتِ وَ الْإَرْضَ بِالْحَقِّ وصوركم فاخسن صوركون وَالْنُهُ الْمُصِيْرُ

5479. Cf. lxii. 1, and n. 5449. All things by their very existence proclaim the Glory and the Praises of God. He has dominion over all things, but He uses His dominion for just and praiseworthy ends. He has power over all things: therefore He can combine justice with mercy, and His Plan and Purpose cannot be frustrated by the existence of Evil along with Good in His Kingdom.

5480. It is not that He does not see Rebellion and Evil, nor that He cannot punish them. He created all things pure and good, and if evil crept in by the grant of a limited free-will by Him, it is not unforeseen: it is in His wise and universal Plan, for giving man a chance of rising higher and ever higher.

5481. Cf. xl. 64, and n. 4440: also vii. 11 and n. 996. In addition to the beauty and grandeur of all God's Creation, He has endowed man with special aptitudes, faculties and capacities, and special excellencies which raise him at his best to the position of God's vicegerent on earth. "Beautiful" also includes the idea of "adapted to the ends for which they were created".

5482. "The final Goal": not only of mankind, but of all things created, whether material or in the realm of ideas and events. All things return to God: as they derive their origin from Him, so is the return or destination of all of them to God.

- 4. He knows what is
  In the heavens
  And on earth;
  And He knows what
  Ye conceal and what
  Ye reveal: yea, God
  Knows well the (secrets)
  Of (all) hearts.
- 7. Reached you, of those
  Who rejected Faith aforetime?
  So they tasted the evil
  Result of their conduct;
  And they had
  A grievous Penalty.
- 6. That was because there
  Came to them apostles
  With Clear Signs,
  But they said:
  "Shall (mere) human beings 5485
  Direct us?" So they rejected
  (The Message) and turned away.
  But God can do without (them):
  And God is 5486
  Free of all needs,
  Worthy of all praise.

5483. Not only does He create and develop and sustain all things; but all thoughts, motives, feelings, ideas, and events are known to Him. Therefore we must not imagine that, if some evil seems to go unpunished, it is not known to Him or has escaped His notice. His Plan is wise and good in its fullest compass: sometimes we do not see its wisdom and goodness because we see only a broken fragment of it, as our own intelligence is narrow.

5484. "The evil result of their conduct" begins to manifest itself in this very life, either in external events, or in internal restlessness and agonies of conscience. But its culminating force will be seen in the "grievous Penalty" of the Hereafter.

5485. This is referred to in a more expanded form in xiv. 9-11, which see.

5486. Their obedience is not necessary to God, nor will their rejection of Truth affect he validity of Truth or injure the progress of Truth. God is free of all needs or dependence on any circumstance whatever. He sends His Message for the good of mankind, and it is man who suffers by ignoring, rejecting, or opposing it.

5487. In other words, they think that there is no future life, and no responsibility for our actions beyond what we see in the present life. If that were true, all the profits of fraud and roguery, which remain unpunished in this world—and many do remain unpunished in this world—will remain with the wicked; and all the losses and pain suffered by integrity and righteousness, if they find no compensation in this life, will never find any compensation. This would be an odd result in a world of justice. We are taught that this is not true,—that it is certain that the balance will be redressed in a better future world; that there will be a resurrection of what we call the dead; and that on that occasion the full import of all we did will be made plain to us, and our moral and spiritual responsibility will be fully enforced.

5488. "The Light which We have sent down": i.e., the light of Revelation, the light of conscience, the light of reason, and every kind of true light by which we may know God and His Will. If we play false with any such lights, it is fully known to God.

5489. The Day of Judgment will truly be "a Day of Mutual Loss and Gain", as the title of this Sūra indicates. Men who thought they were laying up riches will find themselves paupers in the Kingdom of Heaven. Men who thought they were acquiring good by wrong-doing will find their Kingdom of Heaven. On the other hand the meek and lowly of this life will acquire great efforts were wasted: xviii. 104. On the other hand the meek and lowly of this life will acquire great dignity and honour in the next; the despised ones doing good here will be the accepted ones there; the persecuted righteous will be in eternal happiness. The two classes will as it were change their relative positions.

5490. "Remove from them their ills". The ills may be sins faults, mistakes, or evil tendencies; God will of His grace cover them up, and blot out the account against them; or they may be sorrows, sufferings, or disappointments: God may even change the evil of such persons into good, their apparent calamities into opportunities for spiritual advancement; xxv. 70. This is because of their sincere Faith as evidenced by their repentance and amendment.

5491. For "Gardens" as the symbol or type of the highest Bliss, see paragraphs 8-9 of Appendix XII, printed at the end of S. liv.; pp. 1466-67.

.5492. What we consider calamities may be blessings in disguise. Pain in the body is often a signal of something wrong, which we can cure by remedial measures. So in the moral and spiritual world, we should in all circumstances hold firmly to the faith that nothing happens without God's knowledge and leave; and therefore there must be some justice and wisdom according to His great universal Plan. Our duty is to find out our own shortcomings and remedy them. If we try to do so in all sincerity of heart, God will give us guidance.

5493. The Apostle comes to guide and teach, not to force and compel. The Apostle's teaching is clear and unambiguous, and it is open and free to all. Cf. also v. 95.

And your children are (some That are) enemies to 5194

5494. In some cases the demands of families, i.e., wife and children may conflict with a man's moral and spiritual convictions and duties. In such cases he must guard against the abandonment of his convictions, duties, and ideals to their requests or desires. But he must not treat them harshly. He must make reasonable provision for them, and if they persist in opposing his clear duties and convictions, he must forgive them and not expose them to shame or ridicule, while at the same time holding on to his clear duty. Such cases occurred when godly men undertook exile from their native city of Mecca to follow the Faith in Medina. In some cases their families murmured, but all came right in the end.

5495. For the different words for "forgiveness" see n. 110 to ii. 109.

5496. Children may be a "trial" in many senses: (1) their different ways of looking at things may cause you to reflect, and to turn to the highest things of eternal importance; (2) their relationship with you and with each other may confront you with problems far more complicated than those in separate individual lives, and thus become a test of your own strength of character and sense of responsibility; (3) their conflict with your ideals (see n. 5494 above) may vex your spirit, but may at the same time search out your fidelity to God; and (4) their affection for you and your affection for them, may be a source of strength for you if it is pure, just as it may be a danger if it is based on selfish or unworthy motives. So also riches and worldly goods have their advantages as well as dangers.

5497. "Fear God" combined with "as much as you can" obviously means: "lead lives of self-restraint and righteousness": the usual meaning of Taqueā: see n. 26 to ii, 2.

5498. Charity is meant to help and do good to other people who need it. But it has the highest subjective value for the person who gives it. Like mercy "it blesseth him that gives and him that takes". It purifies the giver's soul: the affection that he pours out is for his own spiritual benefit and progress. Cf. Coleridge: "He prayeth best who loveth best all things both great and small, for the Great God Who loveth us, Who made and loveth all".

<sup>5499.</sup> Cf lix 9. Our worst enemy is within ourselves,—the grasping selfishness which would deprive others of their just rights or seize things which do not properly belong to it. If we can get over this covetous selfishness, we achieve real Prosperity in justice and truth.

<sup>5500.</sup> Cf. ii. 245 and n. 276. Our Charity or Love is called a loan to God, which not only increases our credit account manifold, but obtains for us the forgiveness of our sins, and the capacity for increased service in the future.

<sup>5501.</sup> Cf. xiv. 5, n. 1877; and xxxv. 30, n. 3917. God's appreciation of our service or our love goes far deeper than its intrinsic merits or its specific expression on our side. His reward is beyond our deserts, and passes over our defects. He judges by our motives, which He can read through and through: see next verse.

<sup>5502.</sup> God's Appreciation and Forbearing Kindness can reach so far beyond our merits, because (1) His universal knowledge comprehends hidden motives, which others cannot see in us; (2) His power is so great that He can afford to reward even the unworthy; and (3) His Wisdom is so great hat He can turn even our weakness into our strength.

INTRODUCTION. TO SURA LXV (Talāq)

This is the ninth of the ten short Medina Sūras dealing with the social life of the Community. The aspect dealt with here is Divorce, and the necessity of precautions to guard against its abuse. The relations of the sexes are an important factor in the social life of the Community, and this and the following Sūra deal with certain aspects of it. "Of all things permitted by Law", said the Prophet, "divorce is the most hateful in the sight of God". (Abū Dā-ūd, Sunan, xiii. 3). While the sanctity of marriage is the essential basis of family life, the incompatibility of individuals and the weaknesses of human nature require certain outlets and safeguards if that sanctity is not to be made into a fetish at the expense of human life. That is why the question of Divorce is in this Sūra linked with the question of insolent impiety and its punishment.

The date is somewhere about A.H. 6, but the chronology has no significance.

Summary.—Provision to be made for women in case of Divorce; insolent impiety always leads to punishment (lxv. 1-12, and C. 244).

C. 244.—Guard well your truth and pure integrity
(lxv. 1-12.) In sex relations. Keep the tie

Of marriage sacred; but where it must
Be dissolved, use all precautions to ensure Justice to the weaker party and protect
The interests of unborn or new-born lives
As well as social decency; and close not
To the last the door of reconciliation.
God's Laws must be obeyed: 'tis man's
Own loss if he is deaf to the Voice
Which teaches him, or blind to the Light
Which guides him. God's universe
Of beauty and wonder stands strong in wisdom:
Let man but ture himself thereto.

Sūra LXV.

Talāq, or Divorce.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

1. Prophet! 5508 When ye Do divorce women.5501 Divorce them at their Prescribed periods. 5505 And count (accurately) Their prescribed periods: And fear God your Lord: 5506 And turn them not out Of their houses, nor shall They (themselves) leave. 5507 Except in case they are Guilty of some open lewdness, Those are limits Set by God: and any Who transgresses the limits Of God, does verily Wrong his (own) soul: Thou knowest not if 5503. Note that in the first instance the Prophet is himself addressed individually, as the Teacher and representative of the Community. Then the actual directions: "when ye.....": are addressed to the Community collectively.

5504. "Of all things permitted by law, Divorce is the most hateful in the sight of God"; see Introduction to this Sūra. The general directions and limitations of Divorce may be studied in ii. 228-232, 236-237, 241, and notes; also iv. 35.

5505. 'Iddat,' as a technical term in divorce law, is explained in n. 254 to ii. 228. Its general meaning is "a prescribed period": in that general sense it is used in ii. 185 for a prescribed period for fasting.

5506. The prescribed period (see last note) is in the interests of the wife, of the husband, of an unborn child (if there is any), and of sex laws in nature, and therefore the elementary dictates of refined human society. In English Law the six months' interval between the decree nisi and the decree absolute in divorce attains the same purpose in a round-about way. The Commentators suggest that the divorce should not be pronounced during the courses. Read with ii. 222, this implies that any incipient differences between husband and wife should not be forced to an issue at a time when sex is least attractive and almost repulsive. Everything should be done to strengthen the social and spiritual aspects of marriage and keep down stray impulses of animal instinct. The parties are to think seriously in a mood of piety, keeping the fear of God in their minds.

5507. As Islam treats the married woman as a full juristic personality in every sense of the term a married woman has a right, in the married state, to a house or apartment of her own. And a house or apartment implies the reasonable expenses for its upkeep and for her own and her children's maintenance. And this is obligatory not only in the married state, but during the 'iddat, which is necessarily a most trying period for the woman. During this period she must not only not be turned out, but it is not decent for her to leave of her own accord, lest the chances of reconciliation should be diminished: see the next note,

- Perchance God will Bring about thereafter Some new situation. 5508
- 2. Thus when they fulfil Their term appointed, Either take them back On equitable terms 5509 Or part with them On equitable terms: And take for witness Two persons from among you, Endued with justice, And establish the evidence 5510 (As) before God. Such Is the admonition given To him who believes In God and the Last Day. And for those who fear God, He (ever) prepares 5511 A way out,
- 3. And He provides for him From (sources) he never Could imagine. And if Any one puts his trust In God, sufficient is (God) For him. For God will

5508. A reconciliation is possible, and is indeed recommended at every stage. The first serious differences between the parties are to be submitted to a family council on which both sides are represented (iv. 35); divorce is not to be pronounced when mutual physical attraction is at an ebb (n. 5506); when it is pronounced, there should be a period of probationary waiting: dower has to be paid and due provision has to be made for many things on equitable terms; every facility has to be given for reconciliation till the last moment, and impediments are provided against hasty impulses leading to rupture. "Thou knowest not if perchance God will bring about thereafter some new situation."

5509. Cf. ii. 231. Everything should be done fairly and squarely, and all interests should be safeguarded.

- 5510. Publicity and the establishment of proper evidence ensure that no one will act unjustly or selfishly. All should remember that these are matters of serious import, affecting our most intimate lives, and therefore our position in the spiritual kingdom.
- 5511. In these very delicate and difficult matters, the wisdom of jurists provides a less satisfactory solution than a sincere desire to be just and true, which is described as the "fear of God". Where such a desire exists. God often provides a solution in the most unexpected ways or from the most unexpected quarters; e.g., the worst enemies may be reconciled, or the cry or the smile of an infant baby may heal seemingly irreparable injuries or unite hearts seemingly alienated for ever. And Faith is followed at once by a psychological feeling of rest for the troubled spirit.

Surely accomplish His purpose: 5512 Verily, for all things Has God appointed A due proportion.

- As have passed the age
  Of monthly courses, for them
  The prescribed period, if ye
  Have any doubts, is
  Three months, and for those

  For those who carry (Life within their wombs),
  Their period is until
  They deliver their burdens:
  And for those who Fear God, He will
  Make their path easy. 5514
- 5. That is the Command Of God, which He Has sent down to you: And if any one fears God, He will remove his ills 5515 From him, and will enlarge His reward.
- 6. Let the women live (In 'iddat) in the same

٧- أَسُكِنُو هُنَّ مِنْ حَيْثُ

- 5512. Our anger and our impatience have to be curbed. Our friends and our mates or associates may seem to us ever so weak and unreasonable, and the circumstances may be ever so disheartening; yet we must trust in God. How can we measure our own weakness or perhaps blindness? He knows all. His universal Purpose is always good. His Will must be accomplished, and we should wish for its accomplishment. His ordering of the universe observes a due, just, and perfect proportion.
- 5513. Cf, ii. 228. For normal women, the 'iddat' is the three monthly courses after separation: if there are no courses or if the courses are in doubt, it is three calendar months. By that time it will be clear whether there is pregnancy: if there is, the waiting period is till after delivery.
- 5514. Cf. n. 5511 above. If there is a true and sincere desire to obey the Will of God and do right, the difficulties will vanish, and these delicate matters will be settled for the greatest happiness of all.
- 5515. God's ordinance is nothing arbitrary. It is to help us, and to lead us on to our highest good, temporal and spiritual. If we obey God, His wisdom will not only solve our difficulties, but it will remove other ills that we may have, subjective and objective. Like a good shepherd, he will lead us on to more and more luscious pastures. With each step higher, our position becomes more and more sure and our reward more and more precious.

Style as ye live, According to your means: Annov them not, so as To restrict them. 6516 And if they carry (life In their wombs), then 5517 Spend (your substance) on them Until they deliver Their burden: and if They suckle your (offspring), Give them their recompense: And take mutual counsel Together, according to What is just and reasonable. And if ye find yourselves 5518 In difficulties, let another Woman suckle (the child) On the (father's) behalf.5519

7. Let the man of means
Spend according to
His means: and the man
Whose resources are restricted,
Let him spend according
To what God has given him.
God puts no burden
On any person beyond
What He has given him.
After a difficulty, God
Will soon grant relief. 55-20

5516. Cf. n. 5507 above. A selfish man, because he has divorced his wife, may, in the probationary period before the divorce becomes absolute, treat her with contumely, and while giving her residence and maintenance, may so restrict it as to make her life miserable. This is forbidden. She must be provided on the same scale as he is, according to his status in life. There is still hope of reconciliation, and if not, yet the parting must be honourable.

5517. If there is pregnancy, a sacred third life comes on the scene, for which there is added responsibility (perhaps added hope of reconciliation) for both parents. In any case no separation is possible until after the child is born. Even after birth, if no reconciliation between parents is possible, vet for the nursing of the child and for its welfare the care of the mother remains the duty of the father, and there must be mutual counsel between him and the mother in all truth and sincerity.

5518. "If ye find yourselves in difficulties": e.g., if the mother's milk fails, or if her health fails, or if any circumstance arises which bars the natural course of the mother nursing her own child. There may be psychological difficulties also.

5519. That is, the father must stand all expenses, without cutting down the reasonable allowance to which the mother is entitled in the circumstances.

5520. We must trust in God, and do whatever is possible for us in the interests of the young life for which we are responsible. We must not be frightened by difficulties. God will give us relief and provide a solution if we act with honest integrity. Cf. xciv. 5-6.

5521. Insolent impiety consists not only in the breach of the rites of religion. Even more vital is the defiance of the laws of nature which God has made for us. These laws, for us human beings include those which relate to our fellow-beings in society, to whom kindness and consideration form the basis of our social duties. Our duties to our families and our children in intimate matters such as were spoken of in the last Section, are as important as any in our spiritual life. Peoples who forgot the moral law in marriage or family life perished in this world and will have no future in the Hereafter. The lessons apply not only to individuals but to whole nations or social groups.

5522. This refers to the present life: apparently the Hereafter is implied in verse 10 below.

5523. See last note.

5524. There is no excuse for us to go astray, seeing that God in His infinite Mercy has explained to us His Message by His many Signs around us and clearly by means of the human Teachers and Apostles whom He has sent for our instruction; see next verse.

12. God is He Who Created seven Firmaments 5526
And of the earth
A similar number. 5527
Through the midst
Of them (all) descends 5528
His Command: that ye may Know that God has power
Over all things, and that
God comprehends all things
In (His) Knowledge.

مِنَ التُّطْلُمْتِ إِلَى النُّوْرِ وَمَنَ ثُيُوْمِنَ بِاللّهِ وَيَعْمَلُ صَالِحًا يُمْخِلُهُ جَنْتِ تَجْرِئُ مِنْ تَحْتِمَا الْاَنْهُ وَ خلريْنَ فِيهُا آبَكُا " خلريْنَ فِيهُا آبَكُا " قَنْ آخسَنَ الله لَهُ رِنْهًا ٥ تَنْ الْاَرْضِ مِثْلَهُنَ " يَتَكُولُ الْاَمْرُ بَيْنَهُنَ " يَتَكُولُ الْاَمْرُ بَيْنَهُنَ " يَتَكُلُ اللّهُ قَلْ آجَاطُ بِكُلِ شَيْءٍ عَلَيْ اللّهَ عَلَى كُلِ شَيْءٍ عَلَيْ اللّهَ عَلَى كُلِ شَيْءٍ عَلَيْ اللّهَ عَلَى كُلِ شَيْءٍ عِلْمًا فَ

5525 Cf. xxiv. 40: the unbelievers' state is "like the depths of darkness in a vast deep ocean, overwhelmed with billow topped by billow, topped by dark clouds; depths of darkness, one above another." Cf. ii 257: "God is the Protector of those who have Faith: from the depths of darkness He will lead them forth into light."

5526. "Seven Firmaments." The literal meaning refers to the seven orbits or firmaments that we see clearly marked in the motions of the heavenly bodies in the space around us: see xxiii. 17, n. 2876. In poetical imagery there are the seven Planetary spheres, which form the lower heaven or heavens, with higher spheres culminating in the Empyrean, or God's Throne of Majesty: see notes 4035-36 to xxxvii. 6. The mystical meaning refers to the various grades in the spiritual or heavenly kingdom, the number seven being itself a mystical symbol, comprising many and yet forming an indivisible integer, the highest indivisible integer of one digit.

5527. See the last note, about the mystic number seven. As there are grades one above the other in the spiritual kingdom, there are similar grades in our life on this earth. If we take the literal meaning,—just as we see the heavenly spheres one above another, over our heads, so we can see that the crust of the earth is built up of geological strata one above another.

5528. But in all spheres of life and Creation, whatever conception we are able to form of them, it is certain that the Command or Law of God runs, through them all, for His knowledge and power extend through all things,

INTRODUCTION TO SURA LXVI (Tahrim).

This is the tenth and last of the series of short Medina Sūras which began with S. lvii: see Introduction to that Sūra. The point dealt with here is: how far the turning away from sex or the opposition of one sex against another or a want of harmony between the sexes may injure the higher interests of society.

The date may be taken to be somewhere about A.H. 7.

Summary.—The failings of the weaker sex should not turn away men from normal social life: harmony and mutual confidence should be taught and enforced, and God's blessing will descend on the virtuous even if their lot is cast with the wicked (lxvi. 1-12, and C. 245).

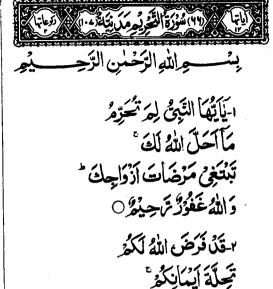

C. 245.—The relations between the sexes are embittered (lxvi. 1-12.) By misunderstandings and conflicts that produce Unhappiness and misery, personal and social. Harmony and confidence are due between The sexes, not disgust or isolation, which may Please some but cause injustice to others. Respect each other's confidence, and if You fail, repent and make amends. The good man seeks virtue for himself And his family. If Evil is yoked to Good, It must take the fruit of its own deeds; The worldly tie will profit naught; But Good should firmly make a stand And will be saved, for God doth care For all His true devoted Servants.

Sūra LXVI.

Taḥrīm, or Holding (something) to be Forbidden.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. Prophet! Why
  Holdest thou to be forbidden
  That which God has 5529
  Made lawful to thee?
  Thou seekest to please 5520
  Thy consorts. But God
  Is Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful.
- 2. God has already ordained 5531
  For you, (O men),
  The dissolution of your oaths
  (In some cases): and God
  Is your Protector, and He Is Full of Knowledge
  And Wisdom.
- 3. A matter in confidence 5582

وَهُوَ الْعَلِيْمُ الْخَكِيْمُ ٥ ٣-وَإِذْ أَسَرُّ النَّبِيُّ

واللهُ مَوْلِكُمُ *

5529. The Prophet's household was not like other households. The Consorts of Purity were expected to hold a higher standard in behaviour and reticence than ordinary women, as they had higher work to perform. See n. 3706 to xxxiii. 28. But they were human beings after all, and were subject to the weaknesses of their sex, and they sometimes failed. The imprudence of Hadhrat 'Aisha (see n. 2962 to xxiv. 11) once caused serious difficulties: the holy Prophet's mind was sore distressed, and he renounced the society of his wives for some time. This renunciation seems to be referred to here. The situation was none the less difficult for him because she was a daughter of Hadhrat Abū Bakr, one of the truest and most intimate of his Companions and lieutenants. Hadhrat 'Umar's daughter Hafsa was also sometimes apt to presume on her position, and when the two combined in secret counsel, and discussed matters and disclosed secrets to each other, they caused much sorrow to the holy Prophet, whose heart was tender and who treated all his family with exemplary patience and affection.

5530. The tender words of admonition addressed to the Consorts in xxxiii. 28-34 explain the situation far better than any comments can express. If the holy Prophet had been a mere husband in the ordinary sense of the term, he could not have held the balance even between his private feelings and his public duties. But he was not an ordinary husband, and he abandoned his renunciation on his realisation of the higher duties with which he was charged, and which required conciliation with firmness

5531. Cf. ii. 224. If your vows prevent you from doing good, or acting rightly, or making peace between persons, you should expiate the vow, but not refrain from your good deed.

5532. Who these two consorts were, and what was the matter in confidence which was disclosed, we are not expressly told, but the facts mentioned in n. 5529 above will help us to understand this passage. It is needless to drag in all the petty womanish tittle-tattle which some Commentators have conjecturally collected, or the malicious insinuations of those who have not understood the saintly greatness of the holy Prophet. The sacred words imply that the matter was of great importance as to the principle involved, but that the details were not of sufficient importance for permanent record. For the lessons to be drawn, see the notes following.

To one of his consorts,
And she then divulged it
(To another), and God made it
Known to him, he confirmed 5573
Part thereof and repudiated
A part. Then when he Told her thereof, she said,
"Who told thee this?"
He said, "He told me
Who knows and is well-acquainted
(With all things)"

- 4. If ye two turn in repentance 5531
  To Him, your hearts
  Are indeed so inclined;
  But if ye back up
  Each other against him,
  Truly God is his Protector,
  And Gabriel, and (every)
  Righteous one among those
  Who believe,—and furthermore, 5633
  The angels—will back (him) up.
- 5. It may be, if he Divorced you (all), 5536

الى بَعُضِ أَزُوَاحِهُ حَدِائِثًا فَلْتَا نَبُّاكُ بِهِ وَاظْهُرَهُ اللّٰهُ عَلَيْهِ عَرَّفَ بَعُضَةُ وَاعْرَضَ عَنْ بَعْضٍ فَلْتَا نَبُاهَا بِهِ قَالَ نَبَّانِي الْعَلِيْمُ الْخَبِيْرُ مُ-انَ تَتُوْبًا اللّٰهِ مُانَ تَظْهُرًا عَلَيْهِ وَانَ اللّٰهُ هُو مَوْلَمَهُ وَجِهْرِيْلُ وَصَالِحُ الْمُؤْمِنِيْنَ وَالْمَلْفِكَةُ بَعْنَ ذٰلِكَ ظَهِيْرُ

ه عَلَى رَبُلا إِنْ طَلَعُكُنَّ

5533. The moral we have to draw is manifold. (1) If anything is told us in confidence, especially by one at the head of affairs, we must not divulge it to our closest friend. (2) If such divulgence is made in the most secret whispers, God's Plan is such that it will come to light and expose those guilty of breach of confidence. (3) When the whispered version is compared with the true version and the actual facts, it will be found that the whispered version is in great part untrue, due to the misunderstanding and exaggeration inevitable in the circumstances. (4) The breach of confidence must inevitably redound to the shame of the guilty party, whose surprise only covers a sense of humiliation. See next note.

5534. There are further lessons. (5r Both the party betraying confidence and that encouraging the betrayal must purge their conduct by repentance. (6) Frank repentance would be what their hearts and conscience themselves would dictate, and they must not resist such amends on account of selfish obstinacy. (7) If they were to resist frank repentance and amends, they are only abetting each other's wrong, and they cannot prevail against all the spiritual forces which will be ranged on the side of the right.

5535. Do not forget the dual meaning: immediate, in application to the holy Prophet, and general, being the lesson which we ought all to learn. The holy Prophet could not be injured by any persons doing anything against him, even though they might unconsciously put him in great jeopardy: for God, the Angel Gabriel (who was the Messenger to him), and the whole Community, would protect him,—to say nothing of the army of angels or hidden spiritual forces that always guarded him. Cf. xxxiii. 56. The general lesson for us is that the good man's protection is that of the spiritual forces around him; it is divine protection, against which human weakness or folly will have no power.

5536 From the case of two in verse 4, we now come to the case of all the Consorts generally, in verse 5. Cf. xxxiii. 28-30. Their duties and responsibilities were higher than those of other women, and therefore their failure would also be more serious. This is only hypothetical, in order to show us the virtues expected of them: faith and devotion, worship and service, readiness for travel or higher, whether they were young or old, new to married life or otherwise. From them again the more general application follows—to all women in Islam.

That God will give him
In exchange Consorts
Better than you,—
Who submit (their wills),
Who believe, who are devout,
Who turn to God in repentance,
Who worship (in humility),
Who travel (for Faith) and fast,—
Previously married or virgins.

- 6. O ye who believe! 5528
  Save yourselves and your Families from a Fire
  Whose fuel is Men 5529
  And Stones, over which
  Are (appointed) angels
  Stern (and) severe, 5540
  Who flinch not (from Executing) the Commands
  They receive from God,
  But do (precisely) what
  They are commanded.
- 7. (They will say),
  "O ye Unbelievers!
  Make no excuses
  This Day! Ye are being 5541

آن يُبُبِ لَهُ آزُوا جُاخَيُرًا مِنْكُنَّ مُسْلِماتٍ ثُمُؤْمِناتٍ فَنِتْتِ تَنْبِلْتِ غَيْلَاتٍ سَلِمِنْتِ فَيْبَاتٍ وَ آبَكَادًا ۞ إِنَّهُ مَكُمُّ وَ آهَلِيكُمُّ وَالْأَوْلَ آنَهُ مُنَكُمُّ وَ آهَلِيكُمُ وَ الْجِعَارَةُ وَقُودُهُ النَّاسُ وَ الْجِعَارَةُ عَلَيْهَا مَلَائِكُمْ فَ النَّاسُ وَ الْجِعَارَةُ عَلَيْهَا مَلَائِكُمْ فَ النَّاسُ وَ الْجِعَارَةُ تَوْفُودُهُ النَّاسُ وَ الْجِعَارَةُ عَلَيْهَا مَلَائِكُمْ فَ النَّاسُ وَ الْجِعَارَةُ وَيَغْعَلُونَ مَا يُؤْمَرُونَ ۞ وَيَغْعَلُونَ مَا يُؤْمَرُونَ ۞

> ٤-يَالَيُّهُمُّ الَّذِنِينَ كَفَرُوْا لِاتَعْتَذِنِ رُواالْيُؤُمِّ إِنْسَا

5538. Note how we have been gradually led up in admonition from two Consorts to all consorts, to all women, to all Believers, and to all men and women including Unbelievers. We must carefully guard not only our own conduct, but the conduct of our families, and of all who are near and dear to us. For the issues are most serious, and the consequences of a fall are most terrible.

5539. "A Fire whose fuel is Men and Stones." Cf. ii. 24. This is a terrible Fire: not merely like the physical fire which burns wood or charcoal or substances like that, and consumes them. This spiritual Fire will have for its fuel men who do wrong and are as hard-hearted as stones, or stone Idols as symbolical of all the unbending Falsehoods in life.

5540. Cf. lxxiv. 31. We think of the angel nature as gentle and beautiful, but in another aspect perfection includes justice, fidelity, discipline, and the firm execution of duty according to lawful Commands. So, in the attributes of God Himself, Justice and Mercy, Kindness and Correction are not contradictory but complementary. An earthly ruler will be unkind to his loval subjects if he does not punish evil-doers.

5541. 'This is no hardship or injustice imposed on you. It is all but the fault of your own deeds; the result of your own deliberate choice.'

But requited for All that ye did!"

SECTION 2.

- Turn to God With sincere repentance: In the hope that Your Lord will remove 5513 From you your ills And admit you to Gardens Beneath which Rivers flow,-The Day that God Will not permit To be humiliated The Prophet and those Who believe with him. Their Light will run 6511 Forward before them And by their right hands, While they say, "Our Lord! Perfect our Light for us. And grant us Forgiveness: For Thou hast power Over all things."
- 9. Prophet! Strive hard 5515
  Against the Unbelievers
  And the Hypocrites,
  And be firm against them.

٨- يَالَيُهُمَا الَّذِينَ أَمْنُوا تَوْبَةً نَصُوْحًا أَلَى اللهِ تَوْبَةً نَصُوحًا أَلَى اللهِ تَوْبَةً نَصُوحًا أَلَى اللهِ تَوْبَةً نَصُوحًا أَلَى اللهِ تَوْبَةً نَصُوحًا أَنْ يُكُفِّرَ كَمْنُ مَعْنَا اللّهُ اللّهِ اللّهُ النّبِي مَنْ تَحْتِهَا الْاَهْلَىٰ وَيُوكُونَ مَعْنَا اللّهُ النّبِي مَنْ اللهُ اللّهِ مَنْ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ مَنْ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ مَنْ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ مَنْ اللّهُ اللّهُ مَنْ اللّهُ اللّهُ مَنْ اللّهُ الللّهُ الللّهُ اللّهُ اللّهُ اللللّهُ الللّهُ الللّهُ اللّهُ الللللّهُ اللّهُ الللّهُ ا

٥-يَايَّهُا النَّبِيُّ جَاهِبِ الْكُفَّارَ وَ الْمُنْفِقِيْنَ وَ اغْلُظُ عَلَيْهِمُ

5542. The opposition of sex against sex, individual or concerted, having been condemned, we are now exhorted to turn to the Light, and to realise that the good and righteous can retain their integrity even though their mates, in spite of all their example and precept, remain in evil and sin.

5543. Whatever may have been the faults of the past, unite in good deeds, and abandon petty sectional jealousies, and God will remove your difficulties and distresses, and all the evils from which you suffer. Indeed He will grant you the Bliss of Heaven, and save you from any humiliation which you may have brought on yourselves by your conduct and on the revered Prophet and Teacher whose name you professed to take.

5544. See lvii. 12, and n. 5288. The darkness of evil will be dispelled, and the Light of God will be realised by them more and more. But even so they will not be content: for they will pray for the least taint of evil to be removed from them. and perfection to be granted to them. In that exalted state they will be within reach of perfection,—not by their own merits, but by the infinite Mercy and Power of God.

5545. See ix. 73, where the same words introduce the argument against the Hypocrites. Here they introduce the argument against wickedness, which, though given the privilege of association with goodness and piety, persisted in wicked deeds, and in favour of those noble souls, which, though tied to wickedness, retained their purity and integrity. Two examples of each kind are given,—of women, as this Sūra is mainly concerned with women.

Their abode is Hell,— An evil refuge (indeed).

10. Sod sets forth,
For an example
To the Unbelievers,
The wife of Noah 5546
And the wife of Lüt: 5547
They were (respectively)
Under two of our righteou
Servants, but they were
False to their (husbands), 5548
And they profited nothing
Before God on their account,
But were told: "Enter ye
The Fire along with (Others) that enter!"

11. And God sets forth,
As an example
To those who believe,
The wife of Pharaoh: 5549

وَ مَا وْنِهُمْ جَهَا نَمْ وْ وَبِئْسَ الْمَصِيْرُ ٥

- ضَرَبَ اللهُ مَثَلًا لِلَنِ يُنَ كَفَرُوا الْمُرَاتَ نُوْجِ وَالْمُرَاتَ لَوْطِ * كَانْتَا شَخْتَ عَبْدَيْنِ مِنْ عِبَادِنَا صَالِحَيْنِ فَنَّ انتَهُمَا فَكَمْ يُغْنِيا عَنْهُمَا مِنَ اللهِ شَيْئًا وَقِيْلَ ادْخُلُ النَّارَ مَمَ اللهِ شَيْئًا وَقِيْلَ ادْخُلُ النَّارَ مَمَ اللهِ شَيْئًا اللهِ فَصَرَبَ اللهُ مَثَلًا

لِلَّأِنْ يُنَ الْمَنُوا الْمُرَاكَ فِرْعَوْنَ مُ

5546. Read Noah's story in xi. 36-48. Evidently his contemporary world had got so corrupt that it needed a great Flood to purge it, "None of thy people will believe except those who have believed already. So grieve no longer over their evil deeds," But there were evil ones in his own family. A foolish and undutiful son is mentioned in xi. 42-46. Poor Noah tried to save him and pray for him as one "of his family"; but the answer came: "he is not of thy family; for his conduct is unrighteous". We might expect such a son to have a mother like him, and here we are told that it was so. Noah's wife was also false to the standards of her husband, and perished in this world and in the Hereafter.

5548 "False to their husbands": not necessarily in sex, but in the vital spiritual matters of truth and conduct. They had the high privilege of the most intimate relationship with the noblest spirits of their age: but if they failed to rise to the height of their dignity, their relationship did not save them. They could not plead that they were the wives of pious husbands. They had to enter Hell like any other wicked women. There is personal responsibility before God. One soul cannot claim the merits of another, any more than one pure soul can be injured by association with a corrupt soul. The pure one should keep its purity intact. See the next two examples.

5549. Traditionally she is known as 'Asiya, one of the four perfect women, the other three being Mary the mother of Jesus, Khadīja the wife of the holy Prophet, and Fātima his daughter. Pharaoh is the type of arrogance, godlessness, and wickedness. For his wife to have preserved her Faith, her humility, and her righteousness was indeed a great spiritual triumph. She was probably the same who saved the life of the infant Moses: xxviii. 9.

Behold she said:
"O my Lord! build
For me, in nearness 5550
To Thee, a mansion
In the Garden,
And save me from Pharaoh
And his doings,
And save me from
Those that do wrong";

12. And Mary the daughter 5551
Of 'Imrān, who guarded
Her chastity; and We
Breathed into (her body) 55552
Of Our spirit; and she Testified to the truth
Of the words of her Lord
And of his Revelations,
28 And was one of the
30 Devout (servants).5553

إِذْ قَالَتُ رَبِّ ابْنِ لِي عِنْدَكَ بَيْتًا فِي الْجَنَّةِ وَنَجِّنِيُ مِنْ فِرْعَوْنَ وَعَدَلِهِ وَنَجِّنِيُ مِنَ الْقَوْمِ الظّٰلِيدِيْنَ ﴾ وَنَجِّنِيُ مِنَ الْقَوْمِ الظّٰلِيدِيْنَ ﴾

۱۰- وَمَرُيْمَ ابْنَتَ عِمْرُنَ الْتِی اَحْصَنَتْ فَرْجَهَا فَنَفَخْنَا فِيهُ مِنْ رُوْحِنَا وَصَدَّاقَتْ بِكَلِمْتِ دَتِهَا وَصَدَّاقَتْ بِكَلِمْتِ دَتِهَا وَكُتُهِه وَكَانَتْ مِنَ الْقَرْتِيْنَ أَ

5550. Her spiritual vision was directed to God, rather than to the worldly grandeur of Pharaoh's court. It is probable that her prayer implies a desire for martyrdom, and it may be that she attained her crown of martyrdom.

5551. 'Imran was traditionally the name of the father of Mary the mother of Jesus: see n. 375 to iii. 35. She was herself one of the purest of women, though the Jews accused her falsely of unchastity: cf. xix. 27-28.

5552 Cf. xxi. 91. As a virgin she gave birth to Jesus: xix. 16 29. In xxxii. 9, it is said of Adam's progeny, man, that God "fashioned him in due proportion, and breathed into him something of His spirit". In xv. 29, similar words are used with reference to Adam. The virgin birth should not therefore be supposed to imply that God was the father of Jesus in the sense in which Greek mythology makes Zeus the father of Apollo by Latona or of Minos by Europa And yet that is the doctrine to which the Christian idea of "the only begotten Son of God" leads.

well as in the revelations which he came to confirm (and to foreshadow). She was of the company of the Devout of all ages. The fact that Qānitīn (devout) is not here in the feminine gender implies that the highest spiritual dignity is independent of sex. And so we close the lesson of this Sūra, that while sex is a fact of our physical existence, the sexes should act in harmony and co-operation, for in the highest spiritual matters we are all one, "We made her and her son a Sign for all peoples, Verily this Brotherhood of yours is a single Brotherhood, and I am your Lord and Cherisher; therefore serve Me and no other" (xxi, 91-92)

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXVII (Mulk).

We have now done fourteen-fifteenths of the Qur-an, and have followed step by step the development of its argument establishing the Ummat or Brotherhood of Islam.

There is a logical break here. The remaining fifteenth consists of short spiritual Lyrics, mostly of the Meccan period, dealing mainly with the inner life of man, and in its individual aspects. They may be compared to Hymns or Psalms in other religious literature. But these short Quranic Sūras have a grandeur, a beauty, a mystic meaning, and a force of earnestness under persecution, all their own. With their sources in the sublimest regions of the Empyrean, their light penetrates into the darkest recesses of Life, into the concrete facts which are often mistaken for the whole of Reality, though they are but an insignificant portion and on the surface and fleeting. There is much symbolism in language and thought, in describing the spiritual in terms of the things we see and understand.

It is the contrast between the shadows of Reality here and the eternal Reality, between the surface world and the profound inner World, that is urged on our attention here.

This Sūra of 30 verses belongs to the Middle Meccan period, just before S. lxix. and S. lxx. God is mentioned here by the name Rahmān (Most Gracious), as He is mentioned by the names of Rabb (Lord and Cherisher) and Rahmān (Most Gracious) in S. xix.

C. 246.—Lordship in right and in fact belongs (Ixvii. 1-30.) To God Most Gracious, Whose Goodness And Glory and Power are writ large On all His Creation. The beauty and order Of the Heavens above us proclaim Him. Then who can reject His Call but those In pitiful delusion? And who can fail To accept, that truly knows himself And the mighty Reality behind him? The earth and the good things thereof are prepared For man by his Gracious Lord, Who guards Him from hourly dangers. Who sustains The wonderful flight of the Birds in mid-air? Above, and below, and in mid-air can we see His boundless Signs. We know that His Promise Of the Hereafter is true. The spring and source Of the goodness of things is in Him, and will Appear triumphant when the Hour is established.

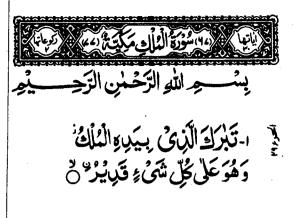

Süra LXVII.

Mulk, or Dominion.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,

Most Merciful,

- 1. Slessed 5551 be He
  In Whose hands
  Is Dominion; 5555
  And He over all things
  Hath Power;—
- 2. He Who created Death 5556
  And Life, that He
  May try which of you
  Is best in deed: 5557
  And He is the Exalted 5558
  In Might, Oft-Forgiving;—

٢-الَّذِي خَلَقَ الْمُؤَتَ وَالْحَيْوَةَ لِيَبُلُوكُوْ اَيُّكُوْ اَحْسَنُ عَمَلًا * وَهُو الْعَزِيْرُ الْعَفُورُ لِ

5554. What do we mean when we bless the name of God, or proclaim (in the optative mood) that the whole Creation should bless the name of the Lord? We mean that we recognise and proclaim His beneficence to us; for all increase and happiness is through Him, "in His hands",—in the hands of Him Who also holds Dominion or Power. In our human affairs we sometimes see the separation of Dominion or Power from Goodness or Beneficence: in the divine nature we recognise that there is no separation or antithesis.

5555. Mulk: Dominion, Lordship, Sovereignty, the Right to carry out His Will, or to do all that He wills. Power (in the clause following) is the Capacity to carry out His Will, so that nothing can resist or neutralise it. Here is beneficence completely identified with Lordship and Power; and it is exemplified in the verses following. Note that "Mulk" here has a different shade of meaning from Malakūt in xxxvi. 83. Both words are from the same root, and I have translated both by the word "Dominion". But Malakūt refers to Lordship in the Invisible World, while Mulk to Lordship in the Visible World. God is Lord of both.

5556. "Created Death and Life." Death is here put before Life, and it is created. Death is therefore not merely a negative state. In ii. 28 we read: "Seeing that ye were without life (literally, dead), and He gave you life; then will He cause you to die, and will again bring you to life; and again to Him will ye return." In liii, 44, again, Death is put before Life. Death, then, is: (1) the state before life began, which may be non-existence or existence in some other form; (2) the state in which Life as we know it ceases, but existence does not cease; a state of Barzakh (xxiii, 100), or Barrier or Partition, after our visible Death and before Judgment; after that will be the new Life, which we conceive of under the term Eternity.

5557. Creation, therefore, is not in mere sport, or without a purpose with reference to man. The state before our present Life, or the state after, we can scarcely understand. But our present Life is clearly given to enable us to strive by good deeds to reach a nobler state.

5558. All this is possible, because God is so Exalted in Might that He can perfectly carry out His Will and Purpose, and that Purpose is Love, Mercy, and Goodness to His creatures.

- 3. He Who created
  The seven heavens 5559
  One above another:
  No want of proportion
  Wilt thou see
  In the Creation
  Of (God) Most Gracious.
  So turn thy vision again:
  Seest thou any flaw?
- 4. Again turn thy vision 5560
  A second time: (thy) vision
  Will come back to thee
  Dull and discomfited,
  In a state worn out.
- 5. And We have,
  (From of old),
  Adorned the lowest heaven 5561
  With Lamps, and We Have made such (Lamps)
  (As) missiles to drive 5663
  Away the Evil Ones,
  And have prepared for them
  The Penalty
  Of the Blazing Fire.
- 6. Kor those who reject
  Their Lord (and Cherisher) 5563

٣-الآن ئى خَلَقَ سَبْعَ سَلْوَتٍ طِبَاقًا ۗ مَا تَرْى فِى خَلْقِ الرَّحْلْمِن مِنْ تَفْوُتٍ ۚ فَانْجِعِ الْبَصَرَ ۚ هَلْ تَرْى مِنْ فُطُوْرٍ ۞

> ٧٠- ثُمَّ ارْجِع الْبَصَرَكَرَّتَ يُنِ يَنْقِلِبُ إِلَيْكَ الْبَصَرُ خَاسِئًا وَهُو حَسِيْرٌ ٥ هُ- وَلَقَلُ زَيَّ نَا السَّمَاءُ اللَّ نَيَا بِمَصَابِيْحَ وَجَعَلْنَهَا رُجُومًا لِلشَّيْطِيْنِ وَجَعَلْنَهَا رُجُومًا لِلشَّيْطِيْنِ وَاغْتَنْ نَا لَهُمْ

٧- وَلِلَّذِينَ كُفَرُ وَابِرَتِهِمْ

5560. Reverting to the symbolism of the external or visible world, we are asked to observe and study it again and again, and as minutely as our powers will allow. However closely we observe it, we shall find no flaw in it. Indeed the region of enquiry is so vast and stretches so far beyond our ken, that our eyes, aided with the most powerful telescopes, will confess themselves defeated in trying to penetrate to the ultimate mysteries. We shall find no defect in God's handiwork: it is our own powers that we shall find fail to go beyond a certain compass.

5561. "Lowest (or nearest) heaven": see n. 4035 to xxxvii. 6.

5562. The symbolic imagery of the shooting stars has been explained in xv. 16-18, notes 1951-54; and in xxxvii. 6-10, and notes thereon. The symbolism here takes us a step further. 'You find in the visible heavens perfection and beauty. The lights and the fires you see are holy and beneficent. But if you make fetishes of them, or hand yourselves to evil superstitions of your own imagination, are you not playing with Blazing Fire? Who can define the limits of your Penalty?'

5563. We have seen how the fire in the stars can suggest the beauty and order of the external world; and yet, when it meets with resistance and disharmony, it can burn and destroy. So in the moral and spiritual world. What can be a greater sign of evil, disharmony, and rebellion than to reject the Cherisher and Sustainer, on Whom our life depends, and from Whom we receive nothing but goodness? The Punishment, then, is Fire in its fiercest intensity, as typified in the next two verses.

Is the Penalty of Hell: And evil is (such) destination.

- 7. When they are cast therein, They will hear The (terrible) drawing in 5564 Of its breath Even as it blazes forth,
- 8. Almost bursting with fury:
  Every time a Group
  Is cast therein, its Keepers 5565
  Will ask, "Did no Warner
  Come to you?"
- 9. They will say: "Yes indeed;
  A Warner did come to us,
  But we rejected him
  And said, 'God never
  Sent down any (Message):
  Ye are innothing but
  An egregious delusion!'" 5666
- 10. They will further say: "Had we but listened Or used our intelligence, 5567 We should not (now)

> ٠٠- وَ قَالُوالَوَكُنَا نَسُمَعُ اَوْ نَعْقِلُ مَا كُنَّا فِيَ

5564. For  $shah\bar{\imath}q$  see n. 1607 to xi. 106. There  $shah\bar{\imath}q$  (sobs) was contrasted with  $zaf\bar{\imath}r$  (sighs): in the one case it is the drawing in of breath, and in the other the emission of a deep breath. Here the latter process is represented by the verb  $f\bar{a}ra$ , to swell, to blaze forth, to gush forth. In xi. 40, the verb  $f\bar{a}ra$  was applied to the gushing forth of the waters of the Flood; here the verb is applied to the blazing forth of the Fire of Punishment. Fire is personified: in its in-take it has a fierce appetite; in the flames which it throws out, it has a fierce aggressiveness. And yet in ultimate result evil meets the same fate, whether typified by water or fire.

5565. Cf. xxxix. 71, n. 4348. "Every time": it may not be the same angels who are guarding the gates of Hell every time new inmates come in. The pure, innocent angel nature does not know the crookedness of human evil, and is surprised at so many human beings coming in for punishment: it wonders if no warning was conveyed to men. whereas in fact men have a warning in Clear Signs during all the period of their probation. The Clear Signs come from Revelation, from their own conscience, and from all nature around them.

5566. God's Signs were not only rejected or defled, but their very existence was denied. Nay, more, even their possibility was denied, and alas! righteous people and spiritual Teachers were persecuted or mocked (xxxvi 30). They were called fools or madmen, or men under a delusion!

5567. Man has himself the power given to him to distinguish good from evil, and he is further helped by the teachings of the great Apostles or World Teachers. Where such Teachers do not come into personal contact with an individual or a generation, the true meaning of their teaching can be understood by means of the Reason which God has given to every human soul to judge by. It is failure to follow a man's own lights sincerely that leads to his degradation and destruction.

Be among the Companions Of the Blazing Fire!"

- 11. They will then confess 5568

  Their sins: but far

  Will be (Forgiveness)

  From the Companions

  Of the Blazing Fire!
- 12. As for those who
  Fear their Lord unseen, 5569
  For them is Forgiveness
  And a great Reward.
- 13. And whether ye hide
  Your word or publish it,
  He certainly has (full) knowledge,
  Of the secrets of (all) hearts.
- 14. Should He not know,—
  He that created? 5570
  And He is the One
  That understands the finest
  Mysteries (and) is
  Well-acquainted (with them).

SECTION 2.

15. Wet is He Who has

Made the earth manageable 5571

أضطب التنعير

ا-فَاعُتَرَّفُوْا بِنَكْمِمُ فَسُمُنُقًا لِرَّصُلْبِ السَّعِيْرِ ۞

١٠-إِنَّ الَّذِيْنَ يَخْشُوْنَ رَبَّهُمْ بِالْغَيْبِ لَهُمُّ مَّغْفِرَةٌ ۚ وَٱجْرُّكِبِيْرٌ ۞

٣٠-وَ أَسِرُوْا قَوْلَكُمْ أَوِ اجْهَرُوْا بِهِ ۚ إِنَّهُ عَلِيْمٌ ُ بِنَاتِ الصُّلُوْدِ ۞

> ١٠- اَلَا يَعْلَمُ مَنْ خَلَقَ * وَهُوُ اللَّطِيْفُ الْخَبِيْرُ ۚ

٥١- هُوَ الَّذِي جَعَلَ لَكُمُ الْأَرْضَ ذَلُوْلًا

5568. They will then have passed through the fire of Judgment and will now be in the fire of Punishment. The Reality will not only now be clear to them, but after the questionings of the angels they cannot even pretend to make any excuses. They will freely confess, but that is not repentance, for repentance implies amendment, and the time for repentance and amendment will have long been past.

5569. See n. 3902 to xxxv. 18. Read "unseen" adverbially. To fear the Lord is to love Him so intensely that you fear to do anything which is against His Will, and you do it because you realise Him intensely in your hearts, though you do not see Him with your bodily senses. Nor is it of any consequences whether other people see your love or the consequences that flow from your love, for your good deeds are for the love of God and not for show in the eyes of men. Such intensity of love obtains forgiveness for any past, and is indeed rewarded with God's love, which is immeasurably precious beyond any merits you may possess.

5571. Zulūl is used in ii. 71 for an animal trained and tractable; here it is used to qualify the earth, and I have translated 'manageable'. Man has managed to make paths through deserts and over mountains; through rivers and seas by means of ships; through the air by means of airways; he has made bridges and tunnels and other means of communication. But this he has only been able to do because God has given him the necessary intelligence and has made the earth tractable to that intelligence.

For you, so traverse
Ye through its tracts
And enjoy of the Sustenance
Which He furnishes: but Unto Him is the Resurrection. 5572

- 16. Do ye feel secure that
  He Who is in Heaven
  Will not cause you
  To be swallowed up 5578
  By the earth when it
  Shakes (as in an earthquake)?
- 17. Or do ye feel secure
  That He Who is in Heaven
  Will not send against you
  A violent tornado 5674
  (With showers of stones),
  So that ye shall
  Know how (terrible)
  Was My warning?
- 18. But indeed men before them Rejected (My warning):
  Then how (terrible) was
  My rejection (of them)? 5575
- 19. Do they not observe The birds above them, 5676

١٥- أوَّ لَمْ يَرُوْا إِلَى الطَّايْرِ فَوْقَهُمْ

5572. In describing God's gifts and mercies and watchful care in this our temporary sojourn on this earth, it is made clear that the ultimate end is the Hereafter. The real Beyond, which is the goal, is the life after the Resurrection.

5573. Cf. xvii. 68, and n. 2263. Also cf. the story of Qārūn in xxviii. 76-82. If we feel safe on land, it is because God has made this earth amenable, manageable and serviceable to us (verse 15 above). But if we defy God and break His Law, have we any security, that even this comparatively unimportant safety in a fleeting world will last? Looking at it from a purely physical point of view, have there not been dreadful earthquakes, typhoons, and tornadoes?

5574. Cf. xvii. 68; and xxix. 40, n. 3462. Such a violent wind destroyed the wicked Cities which defied Lūţ's warning.

5575. Cf. xxii. 42-44, and n. 2822.

5576. The flight of birds is one of the most beautiful and wonderful things in nature. The make and arrangement of their feathers and bones, and their stream-line shapes, from beak to tail, are instances of purposive adaptation. They soar with outstretched wings; they dart about with folded wings; their motions upwards and downwards, as well as their stabilisation in the air, and when they rest on their feet, have given many ideas to man in the science and art of aeronautics. But who taught or gave to birds this wonderful adaptation? None but God, Whose infinite Mercy provides for every creature just those conditions which are best adapted for its life.

Spreading their wings
And folding them in? 5577
None can uphold them
Except (God) Most Gracious:
Truly it is He
That watches over all things.

- 20. Nay, who is there
  That can help you,
  (Even as) an army, 6078
  Besides (God) Most Merciful?
  In nothing but delusion
  Are the Unbelievers.
- 21. Or who is there
  That can provide you 5579
  With Sustenance if He.
  Were to withhold His provision?
  Nay, they obstinately persist
  In insolent impiety
  And flight (from the Truth).
- 22. We sthen one who
  Walks headlong, with his face 5680
  Grovelling, better guided,—
  Or one who walks 5681
  Evenly on a Straight Way?

الله صفّتِ وَيَقْبِضُنَ الْهِ صَلَّى اللهُ صَالَحُهُ اللهُ الرَّحُمْنُ الْهِ الرَّحُمْنُ الْهُ الرَّحُمْنُ الْ الله بِكُلِّ شَيْءٍ بَصِيْرُ ۞

٢٠- أَمِّنْ هٰنَ الْآنِى هُوَجُنْنُ لَكُوْرِ
 يَنْصُرُكُورُ مِّنْ دُوْنِ الرَّحْمٰنِ لَٰ
 إن الحَّافِقُ وَنَ إِلَّا فِي غُرُوْرٍ ۚ

١٦- اَمَّنْ هٰنَ اللّٰنِ يُ يَرُزُفُكُمُ
 إِنْ اَمْسَكَ رِنْمَ قَاءُ *
 بِلْ لَجُوْا فِي عُتُورٍ وَ نُفُوْدٍ ۞

۲۷-آفکن تیکشی مُکِبَّا عَلَی وَجُهِهُ آهُلَی آمَن یَکشی سَویًا عَلَی صِرَاطٍ مُسْتَقِیْمٍ ٥

5577. In the Arabic, there is an artistic touch which it is not possible to reproduce in the translation. Sāffāt (spreading their wings) is in the form of the active participle, suggesting the continuous soaring on outspread wings; while yaqbidhna (folding them in) is in the Aorist form, suggesting the spasmodic flapping of wings.

5578. Not the greatest army that man can muster is of any use against the Wrath of God; while the constant watchful care of God is all-in-all to us, and we can never do without it. If the godless wander about in search for blessings otherwise than in the Mercy and Grace of God, they are wandering in vain delusions.

5579. "Sustenance" here, as elsewhere, (e.g., in xvi. 73, n. 2105), refers to all that is necessary to sustain and develop life in all its phases, spiritual and mental, as well as physical. God Most Gracious is the Source of all our Sustenance, and if we persist in looking to Vanities for our Sustenance, we are pursuing a mirage, and, if we examine the matter, we are only following obstinate impulses of rebellion and impiety.

5580. Cf. xxvii. 90, and n. 3320. The man of probity is the man who walks evenly on a Straight Way, his feet guided by God's Light and his heart sustained by God's Mercy. The man who chooses evil grovels, with his face down, in paths of Darkness, stumbling on the way, and in constant distrust and fear, the fear of Evil. The two kinds of men are poles apaft, although they live on the same earth, see the same Signs, and are fed with the same Mercies from God.

5581. Like Abraham trying to guide his unbelieving father: Cf. xix, 43,

1582

- 23. Say: "It is He Who 5582
  Has created you (and made 5583
  You grow), and made
  For you the faculties
  Of hearing, seeing,
  Feeling and understanding:
  Little thanks it is ye give.
- 24. Say: "It is He Who
  Has multiplied you
  Through the earth, 5584
  And to Him shall ye
  Be gathered together."
- 25. Mehey ask: When will
  This promise be (fulfilled)?—
  If ye are telling 5585
  The truth.
- 26. Say: "As to the knowledge
  Of the time, it is
  With God alone: 5586
  I am (sent) only
  To warn plainly in public."
- 27. At length, when they
  See it close at hand, 5587
  Grieved will be the faces
  Of the Unbelievers,

٣٧- قُلُ هُوَالَّانِيَ اَنْتَاكُمُ وَجَعَلَ لَكُمُو السَّمُعَ وَالْاَبْصَارُ وَالْاَفْئِلَةَ الْ السَّمُعَ وَالْاَبْصَارُ وَالْاَفْئِلَةَ الْاَفْئِلَةَ الْاَئْفِ علام قُلُ هُوَالَّانِي ذَرَاكُمُ فِي الْاَرْضِ وَ إِلَيْهِ وَتُحْشَرُونَ ۞ وَ إِلَيْهِ وَتُحْشَرُونَ ۞

> ٥٥-وَ يَقُولُونَ مَنَى هٰلَا الْوَعُلُ إِنْ كُنْتُمُوطِ فِينَ⊙

٢٧- قُلُ إِنَّمَا الْعِلْمُ عِنْكَ اللَّهِ وَإِنَّمَا آنَا نَذِيْرُ ثُمِينُنَّ ٥

٣- فَلَمَّا رَاوْهُ زُلْفَةً سِيْنَتُ وُجُوْهُ الَّنِيْنَ كَعْمُوْا

5582. The Teacher is asked to draw constant attention to God, the source of all growth and development, the Giver of the faculties by which we can judge and attain to higher and higher spiritual dignity. And yet, such is our self-will, we use our faculties for wrong purposes and thus show our ingratitude to God.

5583. For anshaa see n. 923 to vi. 98.

5584. Mankind, from one set of parents, has been multiplied and scattered through the earth. Men have not only multiplied in numbers, but they have developed different languages and characteristics, inner and outer. But they will all be gathered together at the End of Things, when the mischief created by the wrong exercise of man's will will be cancelled, and the Truth of God will reign universally.

5585. The Unbelievers are sceptical, but they are answered in the next two verses.

5586. The Judgment is certain to come. But when it will exactly come, is known to God alone. The Prophet's duty is to proclaim that fact openly and clearly. It is not for him to punish or to hasten the punishment of evil. Cf. xxii. 47-49.

5587. "It", i.e., the fulfilment of the promise, the Day of Judgment. When it is actually in sight, then the Unbelievers realise that those whom they used to laugh at for their Faith were in the right, and that they themselves, the sceptics, were terribly in the wrong.

And it will be said
(To them): "This is
(The promise fulfilled),5588
Which ye were calling for!"

28. Say: "See ye?—

If God were
To destroy me,
And those with me, 5080
Or if He bestows
His Mercy on us,—
Yet who can deliver
The Unbelievers from
A grievous Penalty?"

29. Say: "He is (God)
Most Gracious: we have Believed in Him,
And on Him have we
Put our trust:
So, soon will ye know 5550
Which (of us) it is
That is in manifest error."

30. Say: "See ye?—
If your stream be
Some morning lost 5501
(In the underground earth),
Who then can supply you
With clear-flowing water?"

وَقِيْلَ هٰذَا الَّذِي كُنْتُمُ بِهٖ تَكَعُونَ ۞

٨٧- قُلُ آرَءُ يُنْ تُمُو إِنْ آهُلُكُنِى اللهُ وَمَنْ مَعِى آوْ رَحِمَنَا لَا فَمَنْ يُجِيرُ الْكَفِرِيْنَ مِنْ عَدَابِ آلِيْمِ عَدَابِ آلِي مِنْ مِنْ الْمَنْابِهِ عَدَابُ هُوَ إِنْ ضَلْلٍ مُبِينٍ ٥ مَنْ هُوَ إِنْ ضَلْلٍ مُبِينٍ ٥

٣- قُلُ أَرْءَيْتُهُ إِنْ أَصْبَحَ مَا وُكُهُ غَوْرًا فَكُنْ يَالْتِيْكُهُ بِكَاءً مِعَيْنٍ ٥ فَكُنْ يَالْتِيْكُهُ بِكَاءً مِعِيْنٍ ٥

5588. They had defiantly asked for it. Now that it has come near, and it is too late for repentance, there is "weeping and gnashing of teeth".

5589 The sceptics might say and do say to the righteous: "Ah well! if calamities come, they involve the good with the bad, just as you say that God showers His mercies on both good and evil!" The answer is: "Don't you worry about us; even supposing we are destroyed, with all who believe with us, is that any consolation to you? Your sins must bring on you suffering, and nothing can ward it off. If we get any sorrows or sufferings, we take them as a mere trial to make us better, for we believe in God's goodness and we put our trust in Him." See next verse.

5590. See the end of the last note. "Our Faith tells us that God will deliver us from all harm if we sincerely repent and lead righteous lives. You, Unbelievers, have no such hope. When the real adjustment of values is established, you will soon see whether we were in the wrong or you!"

5591. The Sūra is closed with a parable, taken from a vital fact of our physical life, and leading up to the understanding of our spiritual life. In our daily life, what would happen if we woke up some fine morning to find that the sources and springs of our water-supply had disappeared and gone down into the hollows of the earth? Nothing could save our life. Without water we cannot live, and water cannot rise above its level, but always seeks a lower level. So in spiritual life. Its sources and springs are in the divine wisdom that flows from on high. God is the real source of that life, as He is of all forms of life. We must seek His Grace and Mercy. We cannot find grace or mercy or blessing from anything lower. His Wisdom and Mercy are like fresh clear-flowing spring-water, not like the muddy murky wisdom and goodness of this lower world which is only relative, and which often hampers life rather than advances it.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA LXVIII (Qalam).

This is a very early Meccan revelation. The general Muslim opinion is that a great part of it was second in order of revelation, the first being S. xcvi. (Iqraa), verses 1-5: see Itqān, Chapter 7.

The last Sūra having defined the true Reality in contrast with the false standards set up by men, this illustrates the theme by an actual historical example. Our holy Prophet was the sanest and wisest of men: those who could not understand him called him mad or possessed. So, in every age, it is the habit of the world to call Truth Falsehood and Wisdom Madness, and, on the other hand, to exalt Selfishness as Planning, and Arrogance as Power. The contrast is shown up between the two kinds of men and their real inner worth.

Summary.—Let the good carry on their work, in spite of the abuse of the [Companions of Evil: let all remember God, before Whom all men are on trial (lxviii. 1-33, and C. 247).

True Judgment comes from God, and not from the false standards of men (lxviii. 34-52, and C. 248).

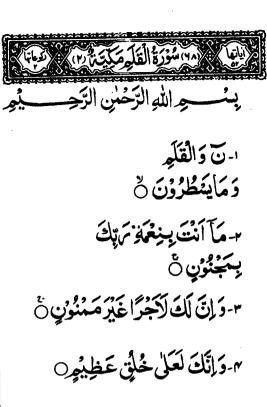

C. 247.—The Pen is the symbol of the permanent Record,
(Ixviii. 1-33.) The written Decree, the perfect Order
In the government of the world. And by that token,
The man of God comes with a Plan
And Guidance that must win against
All detraction. Truth is high above Slander.
But men must be tried against selfishness
And overweening confidence in themselves
Such as would lead them to forget God
And His providence,—like the brothers who built
Castles in the air about their garden
And found it desolate in one night's storm.
But repentance brought them forgiveness:
Thus work the Wrath and the Mercy of God.

Sūra LXVIII.

Qalam, or the Pen, or Nun (see n. 5592).

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Mercitul.

- 1. Num. 5693 By the Pen 5693 And by the (Record) Which (men) write,—
- 2. Thou art not, By the grace of thy Lord, Mad or possessed. 5594
- 3. Nay, verily for thee

- 4. And thou (standest)
  On an exalted standard
  Of character.

5592. Nun is an Abbreviated Letter: see Appendix I at the end of S. ii.

Nün may mean a fish, or an ink-holder, or it may be just the Arabic letter of the alphabet, N. In the last case, it may refer to either or both of the other meanings. Note also that the Arabic rhyme in this Sūra ends in N. The reference to ink would be an appropriate link with the mystic Pen in verse 1. The reference to the fish would be appropriate with reference to the story of Jonah in verses 48-50. Jonah's title is "the Companion of the Fish", (Zun-Nūn, xxi. 87), as he was, in the story, swallowed by the Fish. The letter N could also symbolically represent Jonah in the Arabic form Yūnus, where the characteristic "Firm Letter" is N.

5593. The mystic Pen and the mystic Record are the symbolical foundations of the Revelation to man. The adjuration by the Pen disposes of the flippant charge that God's Messenger was mad or possessed. For he spoke words of power, not incoherent, but full of meaning, and through the Record of the Pen, that meaning unfolds itself, in innumerable aspects to countless generations. Muhammad was the living Grace and Mercy of God, and his very nature exalted him above abuse and persecution.

5594. People usually call any one mad whose standards are different from their own. And madness is believed by superstitious people to be due to demoniacal possession, an idea distinctly in the minds of the New Testament writers: for Luke speaks of a man from whom the "devils" were cast out, as being then "clothed, and in his right mind" (Luke, viii, 35).

5595. Instead of being out of his right mind, the man of God had been raised to a great spiritual dignity, a reward that was not like an earthly reward that passes away, but one that was in the very core of his being, and would never fail him in any circumstances. He was really granted a nature and character far above the shafts of grief or suffering, slander or persecution.

- 6. Which of you is Afflicted with madness.

5596. Though Mustafa's nature raised him above the petty spite of his contemporaries, an appeal is made to their reason and to the logic of events. Was it not his accusers that were really mad? What happened to Walid ibn Mugaira, or Abū Jahl, or Abū Lahab?—and to God's Apostle and those who followed his guidance? The world's history gives the answer. And the appeal is not only to his contemporaries, but for all time.

5597. Men set up false standards of judgment. The right standard is that of God. For His knowledge is complete and all-embracing; He reads hidden motives as well as things that appear before men's sight; and He knows the past history in which the roots of present actions are embedded, as well as the future consequences of present actions.

5598. The enemies of God's truth are sometimes self-deceived. But quite often they have a glimmering of the truth in spite of their desire to shut their eyes. Then they compromise, and they would like the preachers of inconvenient truths to compromise with them. On those terms there would be mutual laudation. This easy path of making the best of both worlds is a real danger or temptation to the best of us, and we must be on our guard against it if we would really enter into the company of the Righteous who submit their wills to the Will of God. Abū Jahl freely offered impossible compromises to the holy Prophet.

5599. The type of each of these hateful qualities is not uncommon, though the combination of all in one man makes him peculiarly despicable, as was Walid ibn Mugaira, who was a ringleader in calumniating our Prophet and who came to an evil end not long after the battle of Badr, in which he received injuries.

5600. It is only liars who swear on all occasions, small or great, because their ordinary word is not believed in. The true man's word, according to the proverb, is as good as his bond.

- 11. A slanderer, going about With calumnies,
- 12. (Habitually) hindering (all) good, Transgressing beyond bounds, Deep in sin,
- 13. Violent (and cruel),—<sup>5601</sup>
  With all that, base-born,—

١٧- سَنَسِمُهُ عَلَى الْخُرْطُوْمِ

٤٠-إنَّا بَكُونَهُ مُرَكَّمًا بَكُونَاۤ ٱصْحِبَ

5601. Besides the self-deceiver and the easy-going man, there is a third type, even more degraded. He has no idea of truth or sincerity. He is ready to swear friendship with every one and fidelity to every cause. But at the same moment he will slander and backbite, and cause mischief even between good but credulous persons. Evil seems to be his good, and good his evil. He will not only pursue evil courses himself but prevent other people from doing right. When checked, he resorts to violence. In any case, he will intrude where he has no right, claiming relationship or power or consideration in circles which would gladly disown him. He is vain of his wealth or because he has a large following at his beck and call. Religion is to him merely old-fashioned superstition.

5602 "Because" may connect with "heed not" in verse 10, or with "violent and cruel" in verse 13. In the former case, we construe: 'Pay no attention to despicable men of the character described, simply because they happen to have wealth or influence, or much backing in man-power'. In the latter case, we construe: 'the fellow is violent and cruel, because he is puffed up with his wealth or riches or backing in man-power'. In the eyes of God such a man is in any case branded and marked out as a sinner.

5603. God's Signs, by which He calls us, are everywhere—in nature and in our very heart and soul. In Revelation, every verse is a Sign, for it stands symbolically for far more than it says. "Sign" (Ayat) thus becomes a technical term for a verse of the Qur-an.

5604. Cf. vi. 25.

5605. Literally, proboscis, the most sensitive limb of the elephant. The sinner makes himself a beast and can only be controlled by his snout.

١٠- فَتَنَادُوا مُصْبِعِيْنَ ٥

۲۲-اَنِ اغْدُوْا عَلَى حَرْثِكُوْ

5606. "Why do the wicked flourish?" is a question asked in all ages. The answer is not simple. It must refer to (1) the choice left to man's will, (2) his moral responsibility, (3) the need of his tuning his will to God's Will, (4) the long-suffering quality of God, which allows the widest possible chance for the operation of (5) His Mercy, and (6) in the last resort, to the nature of spiritual Punishment, which is not a merely abrupt or arbitrary act, but a long, gradual process, in which there is room for repentance at every stage. All these points are illustrated in the remarkable Parable of the People of the Garden, which also illustrates the greed, selfishness, and heedlessness of man, as well as his tendency to throw the blame on others if he can but think of a scapegoat. All these foibles are shown, but the Mercy of God is boundless, and even after the worst sins and punishments, there may be hope of an even better orchard than the one lost, if only the repentance is true, and there is complete surrender to God's Will. But if, in spite of all this, there is no surrender of the will, then, indeed, the punishment in the Hereafter is something incomparably greater than the little calamities in the Parable.

5607. We must always remember, in all our plans, that they depend for their success on how far they accord with God's Will and Plan. His universal Will is supreme over all affairs. These foolish men had a secret plan to defraud the poor of their just rights, but they were put into a position where they could not do so. In trying to frustrate others, they were themselves frustrated.

5608. It was a terrible storm that blew down and destroyed the fruits and the trees. The whole place was changed out of all recognition

5609. Awaking from sleep, they were not aware that the garden had been destroyed by the storm overnight. They were in their own selfish dreams: by going very early, they thought they could cheat the poor of their share. See next note,

If ye would gather The fruits."

- 23. So they departed, conversing In secret low tones, (saying)—
- 24. "Let not a single indigent berson break in upon you Into the (garden) this day."
- 25. And they opened the morning, Strong in an (unjust) resolve.
- 26. But when they saw
  The (garden), they said:
  "We have surely lost our way: 6611
- 27. "Indeed we are shut out (Of the fruits of our labour)!" 5612
- 28. Said one of them,

  More just (than the rest): 5613

  "Did I not say to you,

  'Why not glorify (God)?'"
- 29. They said: "Glory
  To our Lord! Verily we
  Have been doing wrong!"

5610. The poor man has a right in the harvest—whether as a gleaner or as an artisan or a menial in an Eastern village. The rich owners of the orchard in the Parable wanted to steal a march at an early hour and defeat this right, but their greed was punished, so that it led to a greater loss to themselves. They wanted to cheat but had not the courage to face those they cheated, and by being in the field before any one was up, they wanted to make it appear to the world that they were unconscious of any rights they were trampling on.

5611. Their fond dreams were dispelled when they found that the garden had been changed out of all recognition. It was as if they had come to some place other than their own smiling garden. Where they had expected to reap a rich harvest, there was only a howling wilderness. They reflected. Their first thought was of their own personal loss, the loss of their labour and the loss of their capital. They had plotted to keep out others from the fruits: now, as it happened, the loss was their own.

5612, Cf. lvi. 67. Also see last note.

5613. This was not necessarily a righteous man, but there are degrees in guilt. He had warned them, but he had joined in their unjust design.

- 30. Then they turned, one Against another, in reproach. 5614
- 31. They said: "Alas for us!

C. 248.—To evil and good there can never be the same

(Ixviii. 34-52.) End: no authority can the unjust produce

For their false imaginings. In shame

Will they realise this on the Day when all

Illusions will vanish and they find that the time

For repentance is past. The good man should wait

And should never lose patience, even though

Things go dead against him. Jonah suffered

In agony, but his sincere repentance

Brought him the grace of his Lord, and he Joined the company of the Righteous:

For Truth is firm and unshaken, is calm

And works good, through all God's Creation.

5614. When greed or injustice is punished, people are ready to throw the blame on others. In this case, one particular individual may have seen the moral guilt of defying the Will of God and the right of man, but if he shared in the enterprise in the hope of profit, he could not get out of all responsibility.

5615. If the repentance was true, there was hope. For God often turns a great evil to our good. If not true, they only added hypocrisy to their other sins.

The Parable presupposes that the garden came into the possession of selfish men, who were so puffed up with their good fortune that they forgot God. That meant that they also became harsh to their fellow-creatures. In their arrogance they plotted to get up early and defeat the claims of the poor at harvest time. They found their garden destroyed by a storm. Some reproached others, but those who sincerely repented obtained mercy. The "better garden" may have been the same garden, flourishing in a future season under God's gift of abundance.

5616. Even in this life the punishment for heedless or selfish arrogance and sin comes suddenly when we least expect it. But there is always room for God's Mercy if we sincerely repent. If the Punishment in this life seems to us so stupefying, how much worse will it be in the Hereafter, when the Punishment will not be only for a limited time, and the time for repentance will have passed?

5617. All symbols of delight, expressed in terms of sense, are spiritualized by their being referred to the presence of God. The Garden is a joy, but the joy of this spiritual Garden is the sense of nearness to God. See also Appendix XII, paragraphs 8 to 10 (following S. liv), pp. 1466 67.

5618. The spiritual arrogance which rejects faith in God is perhaps the worst Sin, because it makes itself impervious to the Mercy of God, as a bed of clay is impervious to the absorption of water. It sets up its own standards and its own will, but how can it measure or bind the Will of God? It sets up its own fetishes,—idols, priests, gods, or godlings. The fetishes may be even God-given gifts or faculties. Intellect or Science, if pushed up to the position of idols. If they are made rivals to God, question them: Will they solve God's mysteries, or even the mysteries of Life and Soul?

5619. It is clearly against both logic and justice that men of righteousness should have the same .End as men of sin. Even in this life, man cannot command whatever he chooses, though he is allowed a limited freedom of choice. How can he expect such a thing under a reign of perfect Justice and Truth?

5620. Nor can the Pagans plead that they have any special Covenants with God which give them a favoured position above other mortals. The "Chosen Race" idea of the Jews is also condemned. It is quite true that a certain race or group, on account of special aptitude may be chosen by God to uphold His truth and preach it. But this is conditional on their following God's Law. As soon as they become arrogant and selfish, they lose that position. They cannot have a perpetual and unconditional lease till the Day of Judgment.

- 40. Ask thou of them, Which of them will stand Surety for that!

5622. That is, when all mystery will vanish. The Shin is a Symbol for the most hidden mystery, as it is usually doubly covered, first by the skin, and secondly, by clothing. When it is laid bare, men will be summoned to adoration, not necessarily in words, but by the logic of facts, when the Reality will be fully manifest: the Glory will be too dazzling for the Unbelievers, whose past deliberate refusal, when they had freedom to choose, and yet rejected, will stand in their way.

5623. Their past memories, combined with their present position, will then fill them with a sense of the deepest dismay and humiliation. See last note.

5624. Sālimān: whole, in full possession of the power of judgment and will; not constrained, as they now will be, by the Punishment staring them full in the face.

5625. Notice the transition between "Me" and "We" in this verse, and again to "I" and "My" in the next verse. The first person plural ordinarily used in the holy Qur-an as God's Word, is the plural of respect. In Royal decrees the first person plural is similarly used. When the first person singular is used, it marks some special personal relation, either of Mercy or favours (as in ii, 38 or ii, 150) or of punishment, as here. (Cf. n. 56 to ii, 38).

> ەم.لۇلاً اَنْ تَكْدَّكُ نِعْمَةٌ مِّنْ دَّتِهٖ

5626. Cf. vii. 182. We must not be impatient if we see the wicked flourish. It may be that the very appearance of flourishing here may be a part of the Punishment. There may be an eventual punishment by a sort of Cataclysm; but evolutionary punishment is gradual and sure. In any case we cannot see God's Plan, as a whole, and it is not for us to question it.

5627. Cf. lii. 40. n. 5074. It costs the Unbelievers nothing to hear the Preacher, for the Preacher asks for no reward, and indeed suffers for their benefit. The Preacher need not look even for appreciation or conversions. Mustafā is addressed in the first instance, but there is always a universal interpretation. The righteous man asks for no reward for his preaching or example: if he did, the value would be too great for the world to pay for. The Unbelievers behave as if they had the secret of the Unseen, but they are empty triflers, for, if they only tried to formulate spiritual laws, they would fail.

5628. Cf. lii 41, n. 5075. The Unseen is certainly not within their knowledge or control. If it were, they could clearly write it down for their own guidance or the guidance of others. They should listen to the words of inspiration, sent by the Knower of all things.

5629. This was  $Zun-N\bar{u}n$ , or Jonah, for whom see n. 2744 to xxi. 87-88. Cf. also xxxvii. 139-148 and the notes there. Jonah was asked to preach to the people of Nineveh, a wicked city. He met with hostility and persecution, fled from his enemies, and took a boat. He was caught in a storm and thrown into the sea. He was swallowed by a fish or whale, but he repented in his living prison, and was forgiven. But the people of Nineveh were also forgiven, for they, too, repented. Here is a double allegory of God's mercy and forgiveness, and a command to patience, and complete and joyful submission to the Will of God.

Cast off on the naked 5680 Shore, in disgrace.

- 50. Thus did his Lord 5631 Choose him and make him Of the company Of the Righteous. 5632
- Vould almost trip thee up 5613 With their eyes when they Hear the Message; and they Say: "Surely he is possessed!"
- 52. But it is nothing less
  Than a Message 5634
  To all the worlds.

5630. Cf. xxxvii. 145-146, and n. 4126.

5631. Jonah was chosen by God's Grace and Mercy to be God's Apostle to Nineveh. If in his human frailty he lost a little patience, he suffered his punishment, but his true and sincere repentance and recognition of God's goodness and mercy restored him from his physical and mental distress, and from the obscuration of the spiritual Light in him.

5632. Cf. iv. 69, n. 586. In the beautiful Fellowship of the Righteous there is room for all, of every grade of spiritual advancement, from the highest to the most ordinary. But, as in democratic politics every citizen's rights and status have complete recognition, so, in the spiritual Fellowship, the badge of Righteousness is the bond, even though there may be higher degrees of knowledge or experience.

5633. The eyes of evil men look at a good man as if they would "eat him up", or trip him up, or disturb him from his position of stability or firmness. They use all sorts of terms of abuse—"madman" or "one possessed by an evil spirit", and so on. Cf. lxviii. 2 above, and n. 5594. But the good man is unmoved, and takes his even course. The Message of God is true and will endure, and it is a Message to all Creation.

5634. This is the extreme antithesis to madness or demoniacal possession. So far from the holy Prophet uttering words disjointed or likely to harm people, he was bringing the Message of true Reality, which was to be the cure of all evil, evil in every kind of world. For the different kinds of worlds see n. 20 to i. 2.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA LXIX (Hāqqa).

This Sūra belongs to the early middle period of Meccan Revelation. The eschatological argument is pressed home: 'the absolute Truth cannot fail; it must prevail; therefore be not lured by false appearances in this life; it is Revelation that points to the sure and certain Reality'.

C. 249.—In this fleeting world few things are what They seem. What then is sure Reality? (lxix. 1-52.) Nations and men in the past assumed Arrogance and perished because they were unjust, But that destruction was but a foretaste Of the Doom to come in the Hereafter, when all Creation will be on a new plane, and true values Will be fully established: to the Righteous Will be Bliss, and to Evil, Punishment. The Word of Revelation is not a Poet's Imagination or a Soothsayer's groping Into the future. It is God's own Message, Of Mercy to the Righteous, and warning To those who reject the Truth. Praise And Glory to the name of God Most High!

Sūra LXIX.

Haqqa, or the Sure Reality.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. Mehe Sure Reality! 5635
- 2. What is the Sure Reality?
- 3. And what will make Thee realise what The Sure Reality is?
- 4. Mahe Thamud 5636
  And the 'Ad people
  (Branded) as false
  The Stunning Calamity! 5637
- 5. But the Thamud,— They were destroyed By a terrible Storm <sup>5638</sup> Of thunder and lightning!
- 6. And the 'Ad,—<sup>5639</sup>
  They were destroyed
  By a furious Wind,
  Exceedingly violent;

ا َ اَلْكَأَقَّةُ ٥ ٢- مَا الْكَآقَةُ ٥ ٣- وَمَآ اَدُرْ لِكَ مَا الْكَآقَةُ ٥

> م َ كُنَّ بَتْ تُمُوْدُ وَعَادُّا بِالْقَالِعَةِ ۞

ه-فَامَّا ثُنُوْدُ فَأَهُلِكُوْا بِالطَّاعِيةِ

٣- وَامَّا عَادُّ فَأَهْلِكُوْا بِرِيْحٍ صَرْصَرٍ عَاتِيَةٍ ۗ

5635. Al-hāqqa: the sure Truth: the Event that must inevitably come to pass; the state in which all falsehood and pretence will vanish, and the absolute Truth will be laid bare. The questions in the three verses raise an air of mystery. The solution is suggested in what happened to the Thamūd and the 'Ad, and other people of antiquity, who disregarded the Truth of God and came to a violent end, even in this life,—symbolically suggesting the great Cataclysm of the Hereafter, the Day of Doom.

5636. For these two peoples of antiquity, see n. 1043 to vii. 73, and n. 1040 to vii. 65.

5637. Another description of the terrible Day of Judgment. This word Qari'a also occurs as the title of S. ci.

5638. The Thamud were addicted to class arrogance. They oppressed the poor. The prophet Ṣāliḥ preached to them, and put forward a wonderful she-camel as a symbol of the rights of the poor, but they ham-strung her. See n. 1044 to vii. 73. They were destroyed in a mighty calamity, an earthquake accompanying a terrible thunderstorm.

5639. The 'Ad were an unjust people spoilt by their prosperity. The prophet Hūd preached to them in vain. They were apparently destroyed by a terrible blast of wind. See n. 1040 to vii, 65. See also xli. 15-16, n. 4483, and liv. 19, n. 5144.

- 7. He made it rage
  Against them seven nights
  And eight days in succession:
  So that thou couldst see
  The (whole) people lying
  Prostrate in its (path),
  As if they had been
  Roots of hollow palm-trees
  Tumbled down!
- 8. Then seest thou any
  Of them left surviving? 5611
- 9. And Pharaoh, 5642
  And those before him, 5643
  And the Cities Overthrown, 5644
  Committed habitual Sin,
- 10. And disobeyed (each) The apostle of their Lord; So He punished them With an abundant Penalty.
- Of Noah's Flood) overflowed Beyond its limits, 5615 Carried you (mankind), In the floating (Ark),

٥-سَحُرَهَا عَلَيْهِمْ سَبْعَ لِيَالِ وَتُعْلِنِيهَ آيَامِرْ حُسُوْمًا " فَكْرَى الْقُوْمَ فِيهَا صَرْعَى " كَانَهُمْ آغِجَارُ نَخْلٍ خَادِيةٍ أَ

٠١-نَعُصُوْارُسُوْلَ رَبِّهِمْ فَاكَخَلَهُمْ ٱلْخُلَةُ ٱلْإِبِيَةُ ۞

١١-إنَّا لَتَنَاطَعُا الْمَاثُمُ حَمَلُنَاكُمُ فِي الْجَارِيَةِ كُ

<sup>5641.</sup> The calamity was thorough. The 'Ad were destroyed, and then the Thamud, and only the tradition of them was left behind. See the references in n. 5636.

<sup>5643.</sup> If we follow the sequence of peoples whose sins destroyed them, as mentioned in vii. 59-158, we begin with Noah, then have the 'Ad and the Thamūd, then the Cities of the Plain, then Midian, then the people whose prophet was Moses (who occupies a central place in the canvas), and then the Pagan Quraish, to whom came the last and greatest of the prophets, our holy Prophet Muhammad. This is the chronological sequence. Here there is no detail, nor even complete mention. But Noah is alluded to last, and the 'Ad and the Thamūd mentioned first, because the latter two belong to Arab tradition, and this is specially addressed to the Pagans of Mecca. Pharaoh is mentioned rather than Moses for the same reason, and any others are "those before Pharaoh".

<sup>5645.</sup> It was a widespread Flood. Cf. vii. 59-64; also xi. 25-49. Noah was ridiculed for his preparations for the Flood: see xi. 38, n. 1531. But God had commanded him to build an Ark, in order that mankind in that region should be saved from perishing in the Flood. But only those of Faith got into the Ark and were saved. As the Ark was built to God's command, God "carried you (mankind) in the floating (Ark)".

- 12. That We might

- 13. Mhen, when one Blast is sounded On the Trumpet, 5648
- 14. And the earth is moved,
  And its mountains, 6619
  And they are crushed to powder
  At one stroke,—
- 15. On that Day
  Shall the (Great) Event
  Come to pass,
- 16. And the sky will be Rent asunder, for it will That Day be flimsy,
- 17. And the angels will be On its sides, 6650

٣-لِنجْعَلُهُمَا لَكُمُّوْتَنَأَكِرُةً وَتَعِيمُنَا اُذُنَّ وَاعِيدة ۖ

٣- فَإِذَا نُفِخُ فِي الصُّورِ نَفْخَةٌ وَاحِلَّةٌ ۖ

١٥- فَيُوْمُئِنِ وَتَعَتِ الْوَاقِعَةُ ٥

١١- وَ انْتُنْقَتِ السَّمَاءُ فَهِي يَوْمَئِذٍ وَاهِيَةً كُ

١١- وَالْمَلُكُ عَلَى اَرْجَا فِهَا *

5646. It was a memorial for all time, to show that evil meets with its punishment, but the good are saved by the mercy o God.

5647. Cf. the biblical phrase, "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear" (Matt. xi. 15). But the phrase used here has a more complicated import. An ear may hear, but for want of will in the hearer the hearer may not wish, for the future or for all time, to retain the memory of the lessons he has heard, even though for the time being he was impressed by it. The penetration of the truth has to be far deeper and subtler, and this is desired here.

5648. We now come to the Inevitable Event, the Day of Judgment, the theme of this Sūra. This is the first Blast referred to in xxxix. 68, n. 4343.

5649. The whole of our visible world, as we now know it, will pass away, and a new world will come into being. The mountains are specially mentioned, because they stand as the type of hardness, size, and durability. They will be "crushed to powder", i.e., lose their form and being at one stroke.

5650. The whole picture is painted in graphic poetical images, to indicate that which cannot be adequately described in words, and which indeed our human faculties with their present limited powers are not ready to comprehend. The heavens will be rent asunder. We imagine the angels to live in the heavens. How shall we picture their state? They will gather round the sides, for the veils which hid the Glory of God will be gone, and that Glory will be the Throne, the symbol of His power and authority, of His justice and truth. Cf. also xxxix. 75.

And eight will, that Day, Bear the Throne 5651 Of thy Lord above them.

- 18. 用 hat Day shall ye be Brought to Judgment:
  Not an act of yours
  That ye hide will be hidden.
- 19. Then he that will be Given his Record In his right hand 5652 Will say: "Ah here! Read ye my Record!
- 20. "I did really understand 5653
  That my Account would
  (One Day) reach me!"
- 21. And he will be In a life of Bliss,
- 22. In a Garden on high,
- 23. The Fruits whereof 5654 (Will hang in bunches)

Low and near.

24. "Eat ye and drink ye, With full satisfaction;

- وَ يَحْبِلُ عَرْشَ رَبِكَ فَوْقَهُمْ يَوْمَئِنٍ تُلْنِيكُ أُنْ
  - ٨٠-يَوْمُئِينٍ تُغْرَضُوْنَ لَا تَخْفَلْىمِنْكُمْرِخَافِيكَةٌ ۞
  - ٩١- فَامَّا مَنْ أُوْقِ كِتْبَهُ بِيَمِيْنِهُ وَيُعُولُ هَا وُمُراقَرُ وُاكِتْلِيهُ ۚ
  - ٢- إِنَّى ظُنَنُتُ آنِيْ مُلْتِي حِسَابِيَهُ ٥
    - ۱۷-فَهُو فِي عِيْشَةٍ رَّاضِيَةٍ ۲۷-فِي جَنَّةٍ عَالِيَةٍ كَ
      - ۲۳- قُطُوُفْهَا دَانِيَةٌ ۞ موهن من دره مرس

٢٠-كُلُوا وَ الشَّرَبُوا هَنِيَّ

5651. See last note. Angels represent manifestations of divine glory. The number eight has perhaps no special significance, unless it be with reference to the shape of the "Throne". The Oriental Throne is often octagonal, and its bearers would be one at each corner. Or, if it is a square throne, there might be four bearers, and four in relief at any given time, making eight in all. The whole description is symbolical, as representing the majesty of God Most High.

5652. Cf. xvii. 71, where the righteous are described as those who are given their record in their right hand at Judgment. In lvi. 27, 38, and other passages, the righteous are called "Companions of the Right Hand".

5653. The righteous one rejoices that the faith he had during this world's life was fully justified, and is now actually realised before him. He quite understood and believed that good and evil must meet with their due consequences in the Hereafter, however much appearances may have been against it in the life in the lower world, "in the days that are gone."

5654. The symbolism is that of ripe, luscious grapes, hanging low in heavy bunches, so near that they could be gathered and enjoyed in dignified ease. Cf. also lv. 54; lxxvi. 14.

Because of the (good)
That ye sent before you, 5655
In the days that are gone!" 5666

- 25. And he that will
  Be given his Record
  In his left hand, 5657
  Will say: "Ah! would
  That my record had not
  Been given to me!
- 26. "And that I had never Realised how My account (stood)!
- 27. "Ah! would that (Death) 5658
  Had made an end of me!
- 28. "Of no profit to me Has been my wealth!
- 29. "My power has Perished from me!"... 5659
- 30. (The stern command will say):
  "Seize ye him,
  And bind ye him, 5660

بِمَا ٱسُلَفْتُمْ فِي الْاِيَّامِ الْخَالِيَةِ

۵۱- وَاَهَا مَنْ أُوْنِيَ كِتْبَهُ فِيْهِمَالِهِ ۗ فَيَقُولُ يَلِكَتَنِيُ لَهُ أُونُتَ كِتْنِيكَهُ ۚ

٢٩- هَلَكَ عَبِّى سُلُطِنِيَهُ ۚ

٣٠- خُنُ وَءُ فَعُلُوْءُ كُ

5655. Cf. ii. 110: "Whatever good ye send forth for your souls before you, ye shall find it with God: for God sees well all that ye do."

5656. It will be a wholly new world, a new earth and a new heaven, when the blessed might well think with calm relief of "the days that are gone". Cf. xiv. 48, and n. 1925. Even Time and Space will be no more, so that any ideas that we may form here will be found to have become wholly obsolete by them.

5657. This is in contrast to the righteous ones who will receive their record in their right hand. Cf. lxix. 19, n. 5652. The righteous are glad when they remember their past: their memory is itself a precious possession. The unjust are in agony when they remember their past. Their memory is itself a grievous punishment.

. 5658. The death as from this life was but a transition into a new world. They would wish that that death had been the end of all things, but it will not be.

5659. The intensest agony is when the soul loses power over itself, when the personality tries to realise itself in new conditions and cannot: this is life in death.

5660. Perhaps the word for 'bind' should be construed: 'bind his hands round his neck, to remind him that his hands when they were free were closed to all acts of charity and mercy': Cf. xvii. 29.

- 31. "And burn ye him In the Blazing Fire.
- 32. "Further, make him march In a chain, whereof 5661 The length is seventy cubits!
- 33. "This was he that

5661. The effects of sin are described in words of glowing imagery. (1) "Seize him": the first step of the sinner is that he loses his spiritual liberty, and becomes a slave to passion, prejudice envy, hatred, and all the brood of evil. (2) "Bind him": his hands are bound round his neck; all his powers and generous impulses are checked and his sympathies are dried up. (3) "Burn him in the Blazing Fire": he is then consumed in the Flames of Destruction, for which he has made himself fit. (4) "Make him march in a chain": the consequences of sin ramify and extend, and it becomes a long chain, a chain seventy cubits long, that holds him in thrall from not one but many points of view. "Oh! what a tangled web we weave, when first we practise to deceive!" "Seventy" implies an indefinitely large number as in ix, 80.

5662. The grip of sin was fastened on sinners because they forsook God. They ran after their own lusts and worshipped them, or they ran after God's creatures, ignoring Him Who is the cause and source of all good.

5663. Cf. cvii. 3; lxxxix, 18. The practical result of their rebellion against the God of Mercy was that their sympathies dried up. Not only did they not help or feed those in need, but they hindered others from doing so. And they have neither friend nor sympathy (food) in the Hereafter.

5664. They wounded many people by their cruelty and injustice in this life. And the symbol of their reward is that they should feed on the corruption that issues from such wounds. Who but a sinner can contemplate such a thing?

SECTION 2.

38. So I do
Call to witness 5665
What ye see

39. And what ye see not,

- 40. That this is

  Verily the word

  Of an honoured apostle; 5666
- 41. It is not the word
  Of a poet: 5667
  Little it is
  Ye believe!
- 42. Nor is it the word
  Of a soothsayer: 5668
  Little admonition it is Ye receive.
- 43. (This is) a Message
  Sent down from the Lord
  Of the Worlds.
- 44. And if the apostle
  Were to invent
  Any sayings in Our name,

۸۳- فَكُلُ اُفْسِمُ بِمَا تُبْصِرُونَ ﴿
۲۹- وَمَا لَا تُبْصِرُونَ ﴿
۸۰- وَمَا لَا تُبْصِرُونَ ﴿
۸۰- وَمَا هُوَ بِقُولِ شَاعِرٍ ﴿
نَا هُو بِقُولِ شَاعِرٍ ﴿
نَا مُو مِنْ اللَّهِ مِنْ الْمُولِ كُورِ مِنْ وَنَ ﴾
فَلِيكُلُ مِنَ النَّوْلِ كَاهِنٍ ﴿
مَا مُولِ بِقُولِ كَاهِنٍ ﴿
مَا مَنْ رَبِي الْعَلِيمُ فِي رَبِ الْعَلِيمُ فِي ﴾

٣٣- وَلَوْ تَقَوَّلَ عَلَيْنَا بَعْضَ الْأَقَاوِيْلِ فَ

5665. This is an adjuration in the same form as that which occurs in lvi. 75, lxx. 40, xc. 1, and elsewhere. God's Word is the quintessence of Truth. But what if someone doubts whether a particular Message is God's Word communicated through His Apostle, or merely an imaginary tale presented by a poet, or a soothsayer's vain prophecy? Then we have to examine it in the light of our highest spiritual faculties. The witness to that Word is what we know in the visible world, in which falsehood in the long run gives place to truth, and what we know in the invisible world, through our highest spiritual faculties. We are asked to examine and test it in both these ways.

5666. Honoured apostle: one that is worthy of honour on account of the purity of his life, and may be relied upon not to invent things but to give the true inner experiences of his soul in Revelation.

5667. A poet draws upon his imagination, and the subjective factor is so strong that though we may learn much from him, we cannot believe as facts the wonderful tales he has to tell. And the poet who is not a Seer is merely a vulgar votary of exaggerations and falsehoods.

5668. A soothsayer merely pretends to foretell future events of no profound spiritual consequence. Most of his prophecies are frauds, and none of them is meant to teach lessons of real admonition. Such admonition is the work of an honoured apostle.

- 45. We should certainly seize him By his right hand, 6669
- 46. And We should certainly
  Then cut off the artery
  Of his heart: 5670
- 47. Nor could any of you Withhold him 5571 (From Our wrath).
- 48. But verily this Is a Message for The God-fearing.
- 49. And We certainly know
  That there are amongst you
  Those that reject (it).
- 50. But truly (Revelation)
  Is a cause of sorrow 5673
  For the Unbelievers.
- 51. But verily it is Truth 5678
  Of assured certainty.
- 52. So glorify the name <sup>5674</sup>
  Of thy Lord Most High.

- ٥٥- لَاخَذُنَا مِنْهُ بِالْيَمِيْنِ فَ ٣٩- ثُمَّ لَقَطَعُنَا مِنْهُ الْوَتِيْنَ 6
- ٥٠٠ فَكَا مِنْكُمْ مِنْ أَحْدِاعَنْهُ خِزِيْنَ
  - مَا وَ إِنَّا هُ لَتَكُنُّ كِرَةٌ لِلْمُتَّقِينَ ۞
- ٥٠٠- وَإِنَّا لَنَعُنُكُمُ أَنَّ مِنْكُمُ مِّكُنِّ بِيْنَ
  - ·ه- وَ إِنَّهُ لَكُسْرَةٌ عَلَى الْكُفِرِينَ O
    - اه-وَ إِنَّهُ لَحَقُّ الْيُقِينِ
  - ٥٢- فَسَرِيْحُ بِالسُورَةِكَ الْعَظِيْرِ فَ

5669. The right hand is the hand of power and action. Any one who is seized by his right hand is prevented from acting as he wishes or carrying out his purpose. The argument is that if an impostor were to arise, he would soon be found out. He could not carry out his fraud indefinitely. But the men of God, however much they are persecuted, gain more and more power every day, as did the holy Prophet, whose truth, earnestness, sincerity, and love for all, were recognised as his life unfolded itself.

5670. This would effectually stop the functioning of his life,

5671. The protection which the men of God enjoy in circumstances of danger and difficulty would not be available for impostors.

5672. The Message of God is glad tidings for those who believe in Him and follow His Law, for it is a message of Mercy and Forgiveness through repentance and amendment. But in the case of the wicked it is a cause of sorrow, for it denounces sin and proclaims the punishment of those who do not turn from evil.

5673. All Truth is in itself certain. But as received by men, and understood with reference to men's psychology, certainty may have certain degrees. There is the probability or certainty resulting from the application of man's power of judgment and his appraisement of evidence. This is 'ilm-ul-yaqīn, certainty by reasoning or inference. Then there is the certainty of seeing something with our own eyes. "Seeing is believing." This is 'ain-ul-yaqīn, certainty by personal inspection. See cii. 5, 7. Then, as here, there is the absolute Truth, with no possibility of error of judgment or error of the eye, (which stands for any instrument of sense-perception and any ancillary aids, such as microscopes, etc.). This absolute Truth is the haqq-ul-yaqīn spoken of here.

5674. As God has given us this absolute Truth through His Revelation, it behoves us to understand it and be grateful to Him. We must celebrate His praises in thought, word and deed,

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXX (Ma'ārij).

This is another eschatological Sūra closely connected in subject-matter with the last one. Patience and the mystery of Time will show the ways that climb to Heaven. Sin and Goodness must each eventually come to its own.

Chronologically it belongs to the late early or early middle Meccan period, possibly soon atter S. lxix.

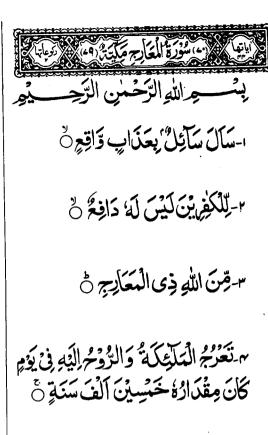

C. 250.—Man can ascend to the Presence of God, (lxx. 1-44.) But by gradual Ways and in process of Time. But what is Time? A Day is as fifty Thousand years, on two different planes. What seems near is far, and what seems far is near. So will be Judgment, when things as we know them Will be transformed completely in a world Evil will come to its own, All new. Whatever its masks in this transitory world, And good will surely reach its goal. The good life is patient, in prayer And well-doing, Faith and the earnest search For the Good Pleasure of God, purity and probity. These are the paths to the Heights and the Gardens Of Bliss. No evil can enter there: For the evil are other ways, leading By steep descent to dark Ignominy!

Sūra LXX.

Ma'ārij, or the Ways of Ascent.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. A questioner asked 5675
  About a Penalty
  To befall—
- 2. The Unblievers,
  The which there is none
  To ward off,—
- 3. (A Penalty) from God, Lord of the Ways Of Ascent. 5676
- 4. A he angels and
  The Spirit 5677 ascend
  Unto Him in a Day 5678
  The measure whereof
  Is (as) fifty thousand years:

5675. Any one might ask, When will Judgment come? That question usually implies doubt. The answer is: the mystery of Time is beyond man's comprehension. But there is something which touches him closely and concerns his conduct and his future welfare, and that is explained in four propositions. (1) Judgment is sure to come, and none can ward it off; (2) it will exact a dreadful Penalty from Unbelievers, but the rightecus have nothing to fear; (3) it will be a Penalty from God, the Lord of both Justice and Mercy; it will not be merely a blind calamity of fate; and (4) further we are reminded of another title of God, "Lord of the Ways of Ascent"; which means that though He sits high on His Throne of Glory, He is not inaccessible, but in His infinite Mercy has provided ways of ascent to Him; see next note

5676. Ma'ārij: stair-ways, ways of ascent. In xliii. 33, the word is used in its literal sense: "silver stair-ways on which to go up". Here there is a profound spiritual meaning. Can we reach up to God Most High? In His infinite grace He gives that privilege to angels and spiritual beings, man being such in his highest aspect. But the way is not easy, nor can it be travelled in a day. See the next two notes.

5677.  $R\bar{u}h$ : "The Spirit". Cf. lxxviii. 38, "the Spirit and the angels"; and xcvii. 4, "the angels and the Spirit". In xvi. 2, we have translated  $R\bar{u}h$  by "inspiration". Some Commentators understand the angel Gabriel by "the Spirit". But I think a more general meaning is possible, and fits the context better. Man is gifted with the Spirit of God: xv. 29. In the spiritual kingdom we are all raised to the light of the Countenance of God, and His Glory transforms us.

5678. But such a glorious transformation is not to be attained without the highest spiritual exertion, and if we measure time as we measure it on the plane of this life, it may take thousands of years. In the spiritual plane it may be just a day or a moment. Cf. xxxii, 4-5, and notes 3632 and 3634.

 And no friend will ask After a friend,<sup>5683</sup>

11. Though they will be put In sight of each other,— The sinner's desire will be: Would that he could 5679. The man of God, persecuted and in trouble with the world, should yet hold Patience—not the sort of patience which goes with complaints expressed or suppressed, as in the early history of Job, but the sort of patience that is content with the ordering of God's world, for he believes and knows it to be good, as did the holy Prophet Muhammad. Such a patience is akin to Good Pleasure, for it arises from the purest faith and trust in God.

5680. The men of evil may see the just retribution for their sins so far off that they doubt whether it would ever come. But in God's sight, and on the scale of the Universal Plan, it is quite near; for time as we know it hardly exists in the spiritual world. It may come even in this life: but it is bound to come eventually.

5681. Cf. xviii. 29, (where the wrong-doer will have a drink like melted brass in Hell); and xliv. 45, (where his food will be like molten brass). Here the appearance of the sky is compared to molten brass, or, as some understand it, like the dregs of oil. What is conveyed by the metaphor is that the beautiful blue sky will melt away.

5682. Cf. ci. 5, where the metaphor of carded wool is used. The mountains which seem so solid will be like flakes of wool driven by the carder's hand.

5683. The world as we know it will have so completely passed away that the landmarks in the heavens and on earth will also have vanished. Not only that, but the human relationships of mind and heart will have been transformed by sin into something ugly and dreadful. The sinners will be so overcome with terror at the realisation of their personal responsibility that they will desert their most intimate friends, and indeed their very sight of each other will add to their agony.

5684. The sinner will offer his children, his family, his kinsmen, who had sheltered and protected him,—in fact everything on earth that he could—as a ransom for himself. Such would be his selfishness and his agony.

5685. What would not the sinner give for his own deliverance! But nothing could save him. The Fire of Hell would be roaring for him!

5686. It would be a Fire not only burning his body, but reaching right up to his brains and his understanding, and—as is said in civ. 7—his heart and affections also. In other words the Penalty typified by the Fire will burn into his inmost being.

5687. The analysis of sin is given in four master-strokes, of which the first two refer to the will or psychology of the sinner, and the last two to the use he makes of the good things of this life. (1) Sin begins with turning your back to the Right, refusing to face it squarely, running away from it whether from cowardice or indifference. (2) But Conscience and the sense of Right will try to prevent the flight; the Grace of God will meet the sinner at all corners and try to reclaim him; the hardened sinner will deliberately turn away his face from it, insult it, and reject it. (3) The result of this psychology will be that he will abandon himself to greed, to the collection of riches, and the acquisition of material advantages to which he is not entitled; this may involve hypocrisy, fraud, and crime. (4) Having acquired the material advantages, the next step will be to keep others out of them, to prevent hoarded wealth from fructifying by circulation, to conceal it from envy or spite. This is the spiritual Rake's Progress.

5688. Man, according to the Plan of God, was to be in the best of moulds (xcv. 4). But in order to fulfil his high destiny he was given free-will to a limited extent. The wrong use of this free-will makes his nature weak (iv. 28), or hasty (xvii. 11), or impatient, as here. That becomes his nature by his own act, but he is spoken of as so created because of the capacities given to him in his creation.

5689. In adversity he complains and gets into despair. In prosperity he becomes arrogant and forgets other people's rights and his own shortcomings. Cf., xli, 49-50.

5690. The description of those devoted to Prayer is given in a number of clauses that follow, introduced by the words "Those who...". "Devoted to Prayer" is here but another aspect of what is described elsewhere as the Faithful and the Righteous. Devotion to prayer does not mean merely a certain number of formal rites or prostrations. It means a complete surrender of one's being to God. This means an earnest approach to and realisation of God's Presence ("steadfastness in Prayer"); acts of practical and real charity; an attempt to read this life in terms of the Hereafter; the seeking of the Peace of God and avoidance of His displeasure; chastity; probity true and firm witness; and guarding the sacredness of the Presence (verse 34).

5691. See n. 5001 to li. 19. True charity consists in finding out those in real need, whether they ask or not. Most frequently those who ask are idle men who insolently wish to live upon others. But all cases of those who ask should be duly investigated, in case a little timely help may set the erring on the way. But the man with wealth or talent or opportunity has the further responsibility of searching out those in need of his assistance, in order to show that he holds all gifts in trust for the service of his fellow-creatures.

5692. A true fear of God is the fear of offending against His holy Will and Law, and is therefore akin to the love of God. It proceeds from the realisation that all true peace and tranquillity comes from attuning our will to the universal Will, and that sin causes discord, disharmony, and displeasure,—another name for the Wrath of God.

5693. Some would construe this verse: "And their Lord's displeasure is one against which there is no security"; meaning that the punishment of sin may come suddenly at any time, when you least expect it.

5694. Captives of war may be married as such: see iv. 25: but their status is inferior to that of free wives until they are free. This institution of the captives of war is now obsolete. Such inferiority of status as there was, was in the status of captivity, not in the status of marriage as such, in which there are no degrees except by local customs, which Islam does not recognise.

5695. For obligations of trusts and covenants, express or implied, see n. 682 to v. 1. They are just as sacred in ordinary everyday life as they are in special spiritual relationships. In addition, our life itself, and such reason and talents as we possess, as well as our wealth and possessions are trusts, of which we must fulfil the duties punctiliously.

5696. If we know any truth of any kind, to that we must bear witness, as affecting the lives or interests of our fellow-beings,—firmly, not half-heartedly, without fear or favour, even if it causes loss or trouble to us, or if it loses us friends or associates.

5697. Worship or prayer includes honest work, charity, and every good deed. To guard the sacredness of this ideal is to sum up the whole duty of man. We began with "steadfastness in prayer" in verse 23 above, and after a review of various aspects of the good man's life, close with the sacredness of worship, i.e. living as in the sight of God.

5698. Before thee. The Unbelievers did not believe in a Hereafter. When the Bliss of the Hereafter was described, as in the last verse, they ridiculed it and pretended to be running in for it as in a race. They are here rebuked in the same tone of sarcasm.

5699. The animal part of man is nothing to be proud of, and they know it. It is by spiritual effort, and long preparation through a good life that a man can rise above the mere animal part of him to his high dignity as a spiritual being, and his noble destiny in the Hereafter.

5700. For the form of adjuration, cf. lxix. 38, n. 5665; also lvi. 75. Here the witness placed before us by God is His own power and glory manifested in the splendour of sunrise and sunset at different points through the solar year.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXXI (Nuh).

This is another early Meccan Sūra, of which the date has no significance. The theme is that while Good must uphold the standard of Truth and Righteousness, a stage is reached when it must definitely part company with Evil, lest Evil should spread its corruption abroad. This theme is embodied in the prayer of Noah just before the Flood. The story of Noah's agony is almost a Parable for the holy Prophet's persecution in the Meccan period.

C. 251.—The Prophet's Message, as was that of Noah,

(lxxi. 1-28.) Is a warning against sin, and the Good News of Mercy

Through the door of Repentance: for God is loving
And long-suffering, and His Signs are within us
And around us. But the sinners are obstinate:

They plot against Righteousness, and place their trust
In futile falsehoods. They will be swept away,
And the earth will be purged of Evil. Let us

Pray for Mercy and Grace for ourselves,
For those nearest and dearest to us,
And for all who turn in faith to God,
In all ages and all countries,
And amongst all Peoples.

Sūra LXXI.

Nuh, or Noah.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. No e sent Noah 5705
  To his People
  (With the Command):
  "Do thou warn thy People
  Before there comes to them
  A grievous Penalty."
- 2. He said: "O my People!
  I am to you
  A Warner, clear and open: 5706
- 3. "That ye should worship God, fear Him, And obey me: 5707
- 4. "So He may forgive you Your sins and give you Respite for a stated Term: For when the Term given By God is accomplished, It cannot be put forward: 6708 If ye only knew."
- 5. Is e said: "O my Lord!
  I have called to my People
  Night and day:

به اتآ أَرْسَلْهُ أَنُوْحًا إِلَى قَوْمِ إَنْ أَنْنِ رُقَوْمُكَ مِنْ قَبْلِ اَنْ يَالْتِيهُ مُوعَنَى الْ الْلِيْمُ ٧- قال ينقوم إِنَّىٰ لَكُوْنَ إِنْ ثُمِّينِينٌ ٥ ٣- أن اعْبُنُ وا الله وَاتَّقُوْهُ وَ أَطِيعُونَ فَ إِنَّ أَجُلَ اللَّهِ إِذَاجَاءَ لَا يُؤَخَّرُ لَا كُنْتُونَ تَعْلَمُونَ ٥ إِنَّى دُعُونُكُ قُومِيْ لِنَالًا ۚ وَمُمَارًا إِنَّ

5705. Noah's mission is referred to in many places. See specially xi. 25-49 and notes. His contemporaries had completely abandoned the moral law. A purge had to be made, and the great Flood made it. This gives a new starting point in history for Noah's People,—i.e. for the remnant saved in the Ark.

5706. His Warning was to be both clear (i.e. unambiguous) and open (i.e. publicly proclaimed). Both these meanings are implied in  $Mub\bar{\imath}n$ . Cf. lxvii. 26. The meaning of the Warning was obviously that if they had repented, they would have obtained mercy.

5707. Three aspects of man's duty are emphasized: (1) true worship with heart and soul; (2) God-fearing recognition that all evil must lead to self-deterioration and Judgment; (3) hence repentance and amendment of life, and obedience to good men's counsels.

5708. God gives respite freely; but it is for Him to give it. His command is definite and final; neither man nor any other authority can alter or in any way modify it. If we could only realise this to the full in our inmost soul, it would be best for us and lead to our happiness.

- 6. "But my call only Increases (their) flight (From the Right). 5709
- 7. "And every time I have Called to them, that Thou
  Mightest forgive them,
  They have (only) thrust
  Their fingers into their ears,
  Covered themselves up with 5710
  Their garments, grown obstinate,
  And given themselves up
  To arrogance.
- 8. "So I have called to them Aloud;
- 9. "Further I have spoken To them in public 6711 And secretly in private,
- "Saying, 'Ask forgiveness From your Lord; For He is Oft-Forgiving;
- 11. "'He will send rain 5718
  To you in abundance;

٧- نَكُمْ يَزِدُهُمْ دُعَآءِ يَ إِلَّا فِرَادًا

٥- وَ إِنِّى كُلَّهَا دَعَوْتُهُمْ لِتَغْفِمَ لَهُمُ جَعَلُوًّا اَصَابِعَهُمْ فِى اَذَانِهِمْ وَ اسْتَغْشُوْ الْثِيَابَهُمُ مُواَصَّرُوْا وَ اسْتَكْبُرُوا اسْتِكْبَارًا ۚ

م-ثُمَّر إِنِّن دَعَوْتُهُمْ جِهَارًا ٥

٩- ثُعْرَ إِنِّيُ آعُلَنْتُ لَهُمْرُ وَأَسْرُرُتُ لَهُمْ إِسْرَارًا ١- فَقُلْتُ اسْتَغْفِرُوْا رَبَّكُمْرُ إِنَّهُ كَانَ عَفَّالًاكُ النَّهُ كَانَ عَفَّالًاكُ النَّهُ كَانَ عَفَّالًاكُ

5709. When convincing arguments and warnings are placed before sinners, there are two kinds of reactions. Those who are wise receive admonition, repent, and bring forth fruits of repentance, i.e. amend their lives and turn to God. On the other hand, those who are callous to any advice take it up as a reproach, fly farther and farther from righteousness, and shut out more and more the channels through which God's healing Grace can reach them and work for them.

5710. The literal meaning would be that, just as they thrust their fingers into their ears to prevent the voice of the admonisher reaching them, so they covered their bodies with their garments that the light of truth should not penetrate to them, and that they should not even be seen by the Preacher. But there is a further symbolic meaning. "Their garments" are the adornments of vanities, their evil habits, customs, and traditions, and their ephemeral interests and standards. They drew them closer round them to prevent the higher Light reaching them. They grew obstinate and gave themselves up to the grossest form of selfish arrogance.

- 5711. Noah used all the resources of the earnest preacher: he dinned the Message of God into their ears; he spoke in public places; and he took individuals into his confidence, and appealed privately to them; but all in vain.
- 5712. They had perhaps been suffering from drought or famine. If they had taken the message in the right way, the rain would have been a blessing to them. They took it in the wrong way, and the rain was a curse to them, for it flooded the country and drowned the wicked generation. In the larger Plan, it was a blessing all the same; for it purged the world, and gave it a new start, morally and spiritually.

- 12 "'Give you increase
  In wealth and sons;
  And bestow on you
  Gardens and bestow on you
  Rivers (of flowing water). 5718
- 13. "'What is the matter
  With you, that ye
  Place not your hope
  For kindness and long-suffering
  In God,—
- 14. "'Seeing that it is He That has created you In diverse stages? ""
- 15. "'See ye not
  How God has created
  The seven heavens
  One above another, 5715
- 16. "'And made the moon
  A light in their midst,
  And made the sun
  As a (Glorious) Lamp? 571
- 17. "'And God has produced You from the earth, Growing (gradually), 5717

5713. Each of these blessings—rain and crops, wealth and man-power, flourishing gardens, and perennial streams—are indications of prosperity, and have not only a material but also a spiritual meaning. Note the last point, "rivers of flowing water". The perennial springs make the prosperity as it were permanent: they indicate a settled population, honest and contented, and enjoying their blessings here on earth as the foretaste of the eternal joys of heaven.

5714. Cf. xxii. 5, and notes 2773-2777; also xxiii. 12-17, and notes 2872-2875. The meaning here may be even wider. Man in his various states exhibits various wonderful qualities or capacities, mental and spiritual, that may be compared with the wonderful workings of nature on the earth and in the heavens. Will he not then be grateful for these Mercies and turn to God, Who created all these marvels?

5715. See n. 5559 to lxvii. 3.

5716. Cf. xxv. 61, where the sun is referred to as the glorious Lamp of the heavens: "Blessed is He Who made the Constellations in the skies, and placed therein a lamp, and a moon giving light."

5717. Cf. iii. 37, where the growth of the child Mary the Mother of Jesus is described by the same word  $nab\overline{a}t$ , ordinarily denoting the growth of plants and trees. The simile is that of a seed sown, that germinates, grows, and dies, and goes back to the earth. In man, there is the further process of the Resurrection. Cf. also xx. 55.

5719.  $Fij\bar{a}j$  implies valley-roads or passes between mountains. Though there are mountain chains on the earth, God's artistry has provided even in such regions, valleys and channels by which men may go about. Mountain roads usually follow the valleys.

5719-A. Sinners always resent it as a reproach that righteous men should speak to them for their own good. They prefer smooth flatterers, and they worship power even though the depositaries of power are selfish men, who neither profit themselves nor profit others by the wealth and man-power that they collect round themselves. They forget that mere material things may be a delusion and a snare unless the moral and spiritual factor behind them sanctifies them.

5720. Having got material resources, the wicked devise plots to get rid of the righteous whose presence is a reproach to them. For a time their plots may seem tremendous and have the appearance of success, but they can never defeat God's Purpose.

5721. For an account of how these Pagan gods and superstitions connected with them originated, and how they became adopted into the Arabian Pagan Pantheon, see Appendix XIII at the end of this Sura, pp. 1619-1623.

  They were drowned
  (In the flood), 5723
  And were made to enter
  The Fire (of Punishment):
  And they found—
  In lieu of God—
  None to help them.
- 26. And Noah said:
  "O my Lord! Leave not
  Of the Unbelievers,
  A single one on earth! 5724
- 27. "For, if Thou dost leave (Any of) them, they will But mislead Thy devotees, And they will breed none But wicked ungrateful ones.
- 28. "O my Lord! Forgive me, My parents, all who Enter my house in Faith, And (all) believing men

- ۲۳-وَقُلُ اَضَلَّوْا كَثِيْرًا ۚ وَلَا تَزِدِ الظّٰلِمِيْنَ اِلْاَضَلَٰلُا ۞
  - ٢٥- مِمَا حَطِينَا تِهِمْ أُغُرِفُوا
     فَادُخِلُوا نَارًا اللهِ فَادُخِلُوا نَارًا اللهُ مُر
     مِنْ دُونِ اللهِ اَنْصَارًا ٥
- ۲۹- وَقَالَ نُوْحُ رُبِ لَاتَنَارُ عَلَى الْوَرُضِ مِنَ الْكَفِرِيْنَ دَيَّارًا ٥

5722. Such Pagan superstitions and cults do not add to human knowledge or human well-being. They only increase error and wrong-doing. For example, how much lewdness resulted from the Greek and Roman Saturnalia! And how much lewdness results from ribald Holi songs! This is the natural result, and Noah in his bitterness of spirit prays that God's grace may be cut off from men who hug them to their hearts. They mislead others: let them miss their own mark! See also verse 28 below.

5723. The Punishment of sin seizes the soul from every side and in every form. Water (drowning) indicates death by suffocation, through the nose, ears, eyes, mouth, throat, and lungs. Fire has the opposite effects: it burns the skin, the limbs, the flesh, the brains, the bones, and every part of the body. So the destruction wrought by sin is complete from all points of view. And yet it is not death (xx. 74); for death would be a merciful release from the Penalty, and the soul steeped in sin has closed the gates of God's Mercy on itself. There they will abide, unless and "except as God willeth" (vi. 128). For time and eternity, as we conceive them now, have no meaning in the wholly new world which the soul enters after death or Judgment.

5724. The Flood was sent in order to purge all sin. The prayer of Noah is not vindictive. It simply means, "Cut off all the roots of sin". See next note.

APPENDIX XIII.

Ancient Forms of Pagan Worship (see lxxi. 23, n. 5721).

From prehistoric times man has sought to worship powers of nature, or symbols representing those powers, or idols representing those symbols. In vulgar minds they become debased superstitions, and seem to come into competition with the worship of the one True God.

- 2. The five names mentioned in lxxi 23 represent some of the oldest Pagan cults, before the Flood as well as after the Flood, though the names themselves are in the form in which they were worshipped by local Arab tribes. The names of the tribes have been preserved to us by the Commentators, but they are of no more than archæological interest to us now. But the names of the false gods are interesting to us from the point of view of comparative religion, as, under one form or another, such cults still exist in countries which have not accepted the Gospel of Unity, as they have always existed since man turned from his Maker and Sustainer to the worship of created things or invented fancies.
- 3. The names of the five false gods and the symbols under which they were represented were as follows:—

•	Pagan god	Shape		Quality represented
3. 4.	Wadd Suwa' Yagūth Ya'ūq Nasr	 Man Woman Lion (or Bull) Horse Eagle, or Vultue or Falcon.	   re,	Manly Power. Mutability, Beauty. Brute Strength. Swiftness. Sharp Sight, Insight.

It is not clear whether these names are to be connected with true Arabic verbal roots or are merely Arabicised forms of names derived from foreign cults, such as those of Babylonia or Assyria, the region of Noah's Flood. The latter supposition is probable. Even in the case of Wadd (Affection, Love) and Nasr (Eagle), which are good Arabic words, it is doubtful whether they are not, in this connection, translations or corruptions of words denoting foreign cults.

4. In studying ancient comparative mythologies we must never forget the following facts. (1) Men's ideas of God always tend to be anthropomorphic. The qualities which they admire they transfer to their godhead. (2) But fear in primitive man also leads to the transfer of anything mysterious or imagined to be injurious, to the Pantheon. Such things have to be placated in order that they may not injure man. Thus in popular Hinduism the goddess of small-pox, which causes terror over an ignorant countryside, has to be worshipped, placated, or appeared with sacrifice. (3) This leads to the worship of animals noxious to man, such as serpent-worship, which has prevailed and still prevails in many primitive areas. In ancient Egyptian mythology the Crocodile (so common in the Nile), the Dog, the Bull, and the Ibis were worshipped both literally and symbolically. See Appendix V, p. 409. (4) But as men's knowledge grows, and they observe the wonderful heavenly bodies and their motions, they begin to feel their sublimity, beauty and mystery, and they transfer their worship to the heavenly bodies. The first great astronomers in the ancient world were the Babylonians and Chaldæans. Among them was Abraham's homeland. The allegory of Abraham (vi. 74-82 and notes) points to the importance of the cult of the worship of heavenly bodies and the fallacy in them. "It is those who believe, and confuse not their beliefs with wrong—that are truly in security, for they are on right guidance" (vi. 82). The Sabæan worship of heavenly bodies in Arabia had probably its source in Chaldæa (see last paragraph of n. 76 to ii. 62). (5) A further refined step in Paganism is to worship abstractions, to treat concrete things as symbols of abstract qualities which they represent. For example, the planet Saturn with its slow motion was treated as phlegmatic and evil. The planet Mars with its fiery red light was treated as betokening war and havoc and evil, and so on. Jupiter, with its magnificent golden light, was treated as lucky and benignant to any who came under its influence. Venus became the symbol and the goddess of carnal love. The Pagan Arabs erected Time (Dahr) into a deity, existing from eternity to eternity, and dispensing good and ill fortune to men. The ancient Ægean religion treated the vital principle in the same way, as spontaneous and eternal, and traces of this are found in many religions, ancient and modern. (6) The next step was to reincarnate as it were these qualities in beings of flesh and blood, with lives, feelings, and passions like those of ordinary men and women, and to fill up a confused Pantheon with gods and goddesses that quarrelled, hated, loved, were jealous, and suffered or enjoyed life like human beings. In such a Pantheon there was room for demi-gods and real human heroes that were worshipped as gods. Greek poets and artists were past masters in carrying out this process, under cover of which they discussed profound human problems with great power. They made religion dramatic. While they gained in humanism, they lost the purer spiritual conceptions which lift the divine world far above the futilities and crimes of this life. Hierarchical Christianity has suffered from this inheritance of the Greek tradition. (7) Where there was a commingling of peoples and cultures, several of these ideas and processes got mixed up together. Gods and goddesses of different origins were identified one with another, e.g. Artemis, the chaste virgin huntress goddess of the Greek Pantheon, was identified with Diana of the Romans, Diana of the Ephesians (representing the teeming life of nature), and Selene the cold moon-goddess. Similarly Diana was identified with the Egyptian Isis, and Diana's twin-brother Apollo (the sun) with the Egyptian Osiris. Forces of nature, animals, trees, qualities, astronomical bodies, and various other factors got mixed up together, and formed a shapeless medley of superstitions, which are all condemned by Islam.

5. To revert to the worship of the heavenly bodies. The countless fixed stars in the firmament occupied always the same relative positions in the heavens, and did not impress the imagination of the ancients like the objects which stood out vividly with mysterious laws of relative motion. A few individual stars did attract the worshippers' attention; e.g. Sirius the Dog star, the brightest fixed star in the heavens, with a bluish tinge in its light, and Algol the variable star, being Beta of the constellation

Perseus, whose variations can be perceived by the naked eye in two or three nights, became connected with many legends, myths, and superstitions. It is probably Sirius that is referred to as the fixed star in the Parable of Abraham (vi. 76). With regard to the fixed stars in their myriads, the astronomers turned their fancy to devising Groups or Constellations. But the moving "stars", or planets, each with its own individual laws of motion, stood out to them personified, each with a motion and therefore will or influence of its own. As they knew and understood them, they were seven in number, viz.: (1) and (2) the moon and the sun, the two objects which most closely and indubitably influence the tides, the temperatures, and the life on our planet; (3) and (4) the two inner planets, Mercury and Venus, which are morning and evening stars, and never travel far from the sun; and (5), (6), and (7) Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn, the outer planets, whose elongations from the sun on the ecliptic can be as wide as possible. The number seven became itself a mystic number, as explained in n. 5526 to lxv. 12.

- 6. It will be noticed that the sun and the moon and the five planets got identified each with a living deity, god or goddess, with characteristics and qualities of its own. The solar myth was a myth of very fruitful vitality, and got mixed up with many other myths and ideas. In late Roman religion it appears in the story of Apollo, the sun-god of light and learning and of manly beauty, twin brother to Diana the moongoddess. In ancient Egypt it appears in the myth of Horus, the falcon-eyed, or of Ra or Rè, the Eye, which sees all things. Further, the eagle, or falcon, or hawk, became itself identified with the sun, with its piercing light. The sun myth mixes itself up with the myth of the Nile and with the cycle of legends connected with Isis and Osiris, who were subsequently identified with the moon and the sun divinities. In Babylon the name Shamash (Arabic, Shams) proclaims the glory of the sun-god corresponding to the old Sumerian Utu or Babbar, while the hymns to Sūrya (the sun) in the Rig-Veda and the cult of Mithra in Persia proclaim the dominance of sun-worship.
- 7. Moon-worship was equally popular in various forms. I have already referred to the classical legends of Apollo and Diana, twin brother and sister, representing the sun and the moon. The Egyptian Khonsu, traversing the sky in a boat, referred to the moon, and the moon legends also got mixed up with those about the god of magic, Thoth, and the Ibis. In the Vedic religion of India the moon god was Soma, the lord of the planets, and the name was also applied to the juice which was the drink of the gods. It may be noted that the moon was a male divinity in ancient India; it was also a male divinity in ancient Semitic religion, and the Arabic word for the moon (qamar) is of the masculine gender. On the other hand, the Arabic word for the sun (shams) is of the feminine gender. The Pagan Arabs evidently looked upon the sun as a goddess and the moon as a god.
- 8. Of the five planets, perhaps Venus as the evening star and the morning star alternately impressed itself most on the imagination of astro-mythology. This planet was in different places considered both male and female. In the Bible (Isaiah, xiv. 12), the words "How art thou fallen, O Lucifer, son of the morning!" are understood to refer to the Morning Star in the first instance, and by analogy to the King of Babylon. The Fathers of the Christian Church, on the other hand, transferred the name Lucifer to Satan, the power of evil. Mercury is a less conspicuous planet, and was looked upon as a child in the family, the father and mother being the moon and the sun, or the sun and the moon (according to the sex attributed to these divinities), or else either the sun or the moon was the father and Venus the mother (the sexes being inter-changeable in the myths). Of the three outer planets, Jupiter is the most conspicuous: indeed, after the sun and the moon, it is the most conspicuous object in the heavens, and was reputed to be beneficent and to bestow good fortune. The sun and the moon being considered in a class apart, Jupiter was considered the father of the planets, and possibly his worship got occasionally mixed up with that of the sun. Mars and Saturn, as has already been stated, were considered malevolent planets, to be feared for the mischief that they might do; for the Pagan Pantheons worshipped powers both of good and evil.

9. It is remarkable that the days of the week are named after the seven planets of geocentric astronomy, and if we take them in alternate sequence they indicate the order in which their heavens were arranged with reference to proximity to the earth. The following table represents this grouping:—

Planet	Presiding god or goddess	Day of the week in alternate sequence
Moon	Diana	Sunday
Mercury	Mercury	Tuesday
Venus	Venus	Thursday
The Sun	Apollo	Saturday
Mars	Mars	Monday
Jupiter	Jupiter	Wednesday
Saturn	Saturn	Friday

This alternate sequence is carried into a circle, as the total number is seven, itself a mystic number.

These cross-currents and mixtures of nature-worship, astral-worship, heroworship, worship of abstract qualities, etc., resulted in a medley of debasing superstitions which are summed up in the five names, Wadd, Suwa', Yaguth, Ya'uq, and Nasr, as noted in paragraph 3 above. The time of Noah is taken to be the peak of superstition and false worship, and the most ancient cults may thus be symbolically brought under these heads. If Wadd and Suwa' represented Man and Woman, they might well represent the astral-worship of the moon and the sun, or the sun and the moon, or they might represent human self-glorification, the worship of Self as against God, or they might represent the worship of Manly Power and Female Beauty, or other abstract qualities of that kind. On the other hand, it is possible that the worship of Jupiter and Venus itself got mixed up with the worship of the sun-moon pair. One pair being identified with another pair in a Septet, the number seven was reduced to five, and the five (itself a mystic number) might itself represent the seven planets as then worshipped. Further, it may be that Nasr (the vulture, falcon, hawk, or eagle, the Egyptian Horus) also represents a solar myth, mixed up with the cult of the planets. These cross-currents of astro-mythological mixtures of cults are well-known to students of ancient popular religions. If the five names, from another angle of vision, represent qualities, the Wadd-Suwa' pair (Sun-Moon, Jupiter-Venus) would represent manly power and womanly beauty or mutability respectively, and the three remaining ones (paragraph 3) might represent Brute Strength, like that of a Bull or a Lion; Swiftness like that of a Horse or sharpness (of sight or intelligence) like that of a vulture, hawk, or eagle,

It may be noted that the five names of deities mentioned here to represent very ancient religious cults are well-chosen. They are not the names of the deities best known in Mecca, but rather those which survived as fragments of very ancient cults among the outlying tribes of Arabia, which were influenced by the cults of Mesopotamia (Noah's country). The Pagan deities best known in the Ka'ba and round about Mecca were Lat, 'Uzza, and Manat. (Manat was also known round Yathrib, which afterwards They were all female goddesses. Lat almost became Medina.) See liii. 19-20. certainly represents another wave of sun-worship: the sun being feminine in Arabic and in Semitic languages generally. "Lat" may be the original of the Greek "Leto", the mother of Apollo the sun-god (Encyclopædia of Islam, I, p. 380). If so, the name was brought in prehistoric times from South Arabia by the great Incense Route (n. 3816 to xxxiv 18) to the Mediterranean. 'Uzzā probably represents the planet Venus. The origin of Manat is not quite clear, but it would not be surprising if it also turned out to be astral. The 360 idols established by the Pagans in the Ka'ba probably represented the 360 days of an inaccurate solar year. This was the actual "modern" Pagan worship as known to the Quraish contemporary with our Prophet. In sharp contrast to this is mentioned the ancient antediluvian worship under five heads, of which fragments persisted in outlying places, as they still persist in different forms and under different names in all parts of the world where the pure worship of God in unity and truth is not firmly established in the minds and hearts of men.

References: The classical work on Arabian idol-worship is Ibn al-Kalbi's Kitāb-ul-aṣnām, of the late second century of the Hijra. The book is not easily accessible. Our doctors of religion have evinced no interest in the study of ancient cults, or in comparative religion, and most of them had not before them the results of modern archæology. But a modern school of Egyptian archæologists is arising, which takes a great deal of interest in the antiquities of their own country. For astral worship consult Hastings' Encyclopædia of Religion and Ethics, articles on "Sun, Moon, and Stars," as worshipped in different countries. Consult also Sir E. A. Wallis Budge, Gods of the Egyptians, London 1904; A. H. Sayce, Religions of Ancient Egypt and Babylonia, Gifford Lectures, Edinburgh 1902; M. Jastrow, Religion of Babylonia and Assyria, Boston 1898; E. W. Hopkins, Religions of India, London 1896; G. A. Barton, Sketches of Semitic Origins, New York 1902. Any Classical Dictionary would give details of Greek and Roman Mythology. It is curious that the Indus Civilization, which resembles the Second Pre-diluvian Culture of Elam and Mesopotamia, does not clearly disclose any signs of astral worship. But this study is still in its tentative stage. There is tree and animal worship, phallic worship, and the worship of the great Mother-goddess. Animal worship regards strength, courage, virility, or swiftness, as in the Pagan Arabian deities we have been considering. See Sir John Marshall, Mohenjo Daro and the Indus Civilization, 3 vols. London 1931.

Sir J. G. Frazer, in his Adonis, Attis, and Osiris (4th ed., London 1914, Vol. I, pp. 8-9) refers to Allatu or Eresh-Kigal as "the stern queen of the infernal regions" in Babylonian religion: she was the goddess of the nether regions, of darkness and desolation, as her counterpart Ishtar was the chief goddess of the upper regions, of reproduction and fertility, associated with the planet Venus.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA LXXII (Jinn).

This is a late Meccan Sūra, of which we can be tolerably certain of the date. It was two years before the Hijrat, when the Prophet, despised and rejected in his native city of Mecca, went to evangelise the lordly men of Ṭāif. They maltreated him and nearly killed him; what caused him even greater pain was the maltreatment of the humble and lowly men who went with him. Ṭabarī has handed down that memorable Prayer of faith and humility which he offered in the midst of his suffering. On his return journey to Mecca, a glorious vision was revealed to him,—hidden spiritual forces working for him,—people not known to him accepting his mission while his own people were still rejecting him. Within two months some strangers from Medina had privately met him and laid the foundations of that Hijrat which was to change the fate of Arabia and the course of world-history.

C. 252.—Spiritual Truth finds its lodgment (lxxii, 1-28.) In all sorts of unexpected places, and in all sorts Of unexpected ways. The man of God, When most depressed by the buffets of a world Steeped in selfishness, sees a glorious vision: Hidden spiritual forces work for him, Make known the truth in marvellous ways. And proclaim the Goodness and Judgment of God. They reject all Error and lead others to purify Their wills and come to God. Behold! Every place and time, every gift Is meet for the service of God, the One, The True, Whose Word the righteous one Proclaims and must proclaim at all cost. Man's Duty is plain, but in the Kingdom Of God, through God's chosen ones, We rise to higher and higher Mysteries, As may be expedient for us. Yet when Or how our End may be, is not given To man to know: let him but take The Treasures well-guarded, that come to him, And praise the Lord of all Knowledge and Wisdom! Sūra LXXII.

Jinn, or the Spirits.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

5727. Revelation may be through various channels, and one of the channels may be a vision, by which the Prophet sees and hears events clearly passing before him. This particular vision may be the same as that referred to more briefly in xlvi. 29-32, where see n. 4809. The Jinns had evidently heard of previous revelations, that of Moses (xlvi. 30), and the error of Trinitarian Christianity (lxxii. 3). The people from whom they come have all sorts of good and bad persons, but they are determined to preach the good Message of Unity which they have heard and believed in.

5728. For Jinns, see n. 929 to vi. 100. We may take these to be spirits ordinarily unseen, or people who were strangers in Arabia, but had in their own private way heard and believed in the Gospel of Islam.

5729. The Holy Qur-an would be to them a wonderful Recital-both in subject-matter and in the circumstance that it had come in Arabia among a pagan and ignorant nation.

5730. They abjure paganism and also the doctrine of a son begotten by God, which would also imply a wife of whom he was begotten. Cf. vi. 101.

Should say aught that is Untrue against God. 6781

- 6. 'Arue, there were persons
  Among mankind who took shelter
  With persons among the Jinns,
  But they increased them
  In folly. 6732
- 7. 'And they (came to) think
  As ye thought, that God
  Would not raise up
  Any one (to Judgment).
- 8. 'And we pried into
  The secrets of heaven;
  But we found it filled
  With stern guards
  And flaming fires. 5738
- 9. 'We used, indeed, to sit there In (hidden) stations, to (steal) A hearing; but any Who listens now 5734 Will find a flaming fire Watching him in ambush.

 فَهَا بِالرَّصَلَ الْ

5731. No one ought to entertain false notions about God. For by joining false gods in our ideas of worship, we degrade our conception of ourselves and the duty we owe to our Creator and Cherisher, to Whom we have to give a final account of life and conduct. If we worship idols or heavenly bodies, or human beings, or any creatures, or false fancies born of self or foolish abstractions, or the lusts and desires of our own hearts, we are not only doing violence to Truth, but we are causing discord in the harmony of the world.

5733. See notes 1951, 1953, and 1954 to xv. 17-18. See also n. 5562 to lxvii. 5. The speakers here have repented of sin and evil; but they recognise that there are evil ones among them, who love stealth and prying, but their dark plots will be defeated by vigilant guardians of the Right, whose repulse of the attacks of evil is figured by the shafts of meteoric light in the heavens.

5734. What is the force of "now"? It refers to the early Meccan period of Revelation. It means that whatever excuse there may have been before, for people to try to seek out the hidden truths of the Unseen World through spirits, there was none now, as the perspicuous Qur-ān had restored the Message of Unity and cleared religion of all the cobwebs, mysteries, and falsehoods with which priestcraft and pious fraud had overlaid it. The result is that such seekers after false hidden knowledge will find themselves confronted now by the flaming fire of the Qur-ān, which, like the shafts of meteoric light (see last note), will lie in wait for and nip such priestcraft and black magic in the bud,

- 10. 'And we understand not Whether ill is intended To those on earth, 5735 Or whether their Lord (Really) intends to guide Them to right conduct.
- 11. 'Mehere are among us
  Some that are righteous,
  And some the contrary:
  We follow divergent paths.
- 12. 'But we think that we Can by no means frustrate God throughout the earth, Nor can we frustrate Him By flight. 5736
- 13. 'And as for us,
  Since we have listened
  To the Guidance, we have Accepted it: and any
  Who believes in his Lord
  Has no fear, either 6787
  Of a short (account)
  Or of any injustice.
- 14. 'Amongst us are some
  That submit their wills
  (To God), and some
  That swerve from justice.
  Now those who submit
  Their wills—they have

<sup>5735.</sup> To these spirits this revolutionary gospel is yet new, and appears like a flaming sword which destroys falsehood while it protects Truth. They frankly confess that they do not clearly understand whether on the whole it will be a mercy to mankind or a punishment for mankind forsaking the paths of God. But they rightly feel that it must be a blessing if all seek right Guidance.

<sup>5736.</sup> See last note. In any case, they know that God's Truth and God's Plan must prevail, and no one can frustrate God's purpose; or escape from it. Why not then bring the human will into conformity with it, and find Peace, as they have found, by the acceptance of Faith?

<sup>5737.</sup> Possibly, from this world's standards, it may be that a man suffers for his Faith. He may be laughed at, persecuted, and actually hurt, "in mind, body, or estate". But he is not perturbed. He takes it all cheerfully, because he knows that when his full account is made up—real gain against apparent loss,—he is a gainer rather than a loser. And his Faith tells him that God is a just God, and will never allow him to suffer any injustice, or permit the account of his merit to appear one whit shorter than it is.

<sup>5738.</sup> Any one who responds to true Guidance, and submits his will to God, finds that he makes rapid progress in the path of right conduct and right life. He gets more and more assurance that his destination is the Garden of Bliss.

Sought out (the path)
Of right conduct:

- 15. 'But those who swerve,— They are (but) fuel For Hell-fire'—<sup>5739</sup>
- 16. (And God's Message is):
  "If they (the Pagans)
  Had (only) remained
  On the (right) Way,
  We should certainly have
  Bestowed on them Rain 6740
  In abundance.
- 17. "That We might try them By that (means).
  But if any turns away
  From the remembrance of his Lord, He will Cause him to undergo
  A severe Penalty.
- 18. "And the places of worship 5749
  Are for God (alone):
  So invoke not any one
  Along with God;

تَحْرُوْا رَشُكُا ۞

٥١- وَ اَمِّنَا الْقُسِطُونَ فَكَانُوالِكِهَا لَهُ حَطَبًا ٥ ١١- وَ اَنُ لُو اسْتَقَامُوْا عَلَى الطَّرِيْقَة عَلَى الطَّرِيْقَة عَلَى قَالُ عَلَى قَالُهُ مُ مِنْ اَهُ مَا اَهُ عَلَى قَالُهُ مُنَا الْمَا صَعَلَى اِلْمَا مَا الْمَا الْمَا صَعَلَى الْمُ

> ٨١- وَ أَنَّ الْمُسْلِيدِ لَا لِللهِ فَلَا تَنْ عُوا مُعَ اللهِ آحَدُ الْ

5739. An unjust life carries its own condemnation. It does no good to itself or to any one else. It bears no fruit. It becomes merely fuel for the Fire of Punishment.

5740. Rain: literally, water: stands for all kinds of blessings, material, moral, and spiritual. Among the spiritual blessings, is the insight into higher things, which results from our will and endeavour to stand firm on the right Way, the natural, moral, and spiritual Law established by God. All blessings come by way of trial: the more we have, the more is expected of us. A man of gifts, talents, or insight is expected to show a higher standard of love and unselfishness than one less gifted, just as a rich man is expected to give more in charity than a poor man.

5741. To remember God is to realise His presence, acknowledge His Goodness, and accept His guidance. If we fail to do so, by deliberately turning away, He will withdraw His Grace, and that will be a severe Penalty indeed.

5742. This is a Meccan Sūra, and Masjid must be understood, not in the later technical sense of a Mosque, but in the root meaning, of any place, or occasion of worship or humble prostration in the service of God, or any limbs or faculties or accessories used in such worship, e.g. hands and feet, lips and voice, understanding or organisation. A number of meanings therefore follow. (1) No place of worship whatever should be used for the worship of any other but the true God. The Ka'ba was then full of idols, but the idols and their votaries were usurpers. (2) Worship should not be mixed up with vain objects, but should be reserved for the sincere service of God. (3) All our gifts are for God's service, which includes the service of His creatures, and not for our vainglory.

19. "Yet when the Devotee 5748
Of God stands forth
To invoke Him, they 5744 just
Make round him a dense crowd."

SECTION 2.

- 20. Say: "I do
  No more than invoke
  My Lord, and I join not
  With Him any (false god)."
- 21. Say: "It is not
  In my power to cause 5745
  You harm, or to bring
  You to right conduct."
- 22. Say: "No one can
  Deliver me from God 5746
  (If I were to disobey Him),
  Nor should I find refuge
  Except in Him,
- 23. "Unless I proclaim what
  I receive from God
  And His Messages:
  For any that disobey God
  And His Apostle,—for them
  Is Hell: they shall dwell
  Therein for ever."

٩- وَ أَنَّهُ لَتَنَا قَامَ عَبْنُ اللهِ يَـ نُعُوهُ كَادُوَا يَكُوْنُونَ عَلَيْهِ لِبِنُ اللهِ

٢٢-قُلُ إِنِّى لَنُ يُجِيْرُ نِي مِنَ اللهِ اَحَلَّ لَا وَكُنْ اَجِلَ مِنْ دُوْنِهُ مُلْتَكَلَّالُ

5743. The Devotee of God: the holy Apostle Muhammad.

5744, They. The immediate reference was to the Pagan Quraish who were then in possession of the Ka'ba and who put all sorts of obstacles and indignities in the way of the holy Prophet for preaching the One True God and denouncing idol-worship. They used to surround him and mob him and to treat him as if he was guilty of some dreadful crime. But the wider application refers to the habit of the world to make a marked man of any who diverges from the beaten paths of their favourite sins and who pleads earnestly for the cause of Truth and righteousness. They ridicule him; they surround him with jeers and obloquy; and they try to make the physical condition of his life as difficult for him as possible.

5745. 'Do not suppose that I am going to harm you individually or socially; the very opposite is my wish; but I cannot force you to right conduct; that must depend upon the purification of your own faith and will.'

5746. 'My mission is from God. I cannot choose but obey. He has charged me to deliver the Message, and if I were to disobey him, I would myself be worthy of His punishment, and no one can save me. From every kind of trouble and difficulty my only refuge is in Him. I must proclaim His Message: otherwise I am false to the mission He has entrusted to me.'

- 24. At length, when they
  See (with their own eyes)
  That which they are promised,—
  Then will they know
  Who it is that is
  Weakest in (his) helper
  And least important
  In point of numbers.
- 25. Say: "I know not whether The (Punishment) which ye Are promised is near, 57.48 Or whether my Lord Will appoint for it A distant term.
- 26. "He (alone) knows the Unseen, Nor does He make any one Acquainted with his Mysteries,—5749
- 27. "Except an apostle 5750
  Whom He has chosen:

٣٠- حَتَى إِذَا رُأَوْا مِّا يُوْعَدُونَ فَسَيَعْ لَمُوْنَ مِّنْ آضْعَفْ نَاصِرًا وَاقَالُ عَدُدُان

۵۱- قُلُ إِنْ اَدْرِئَ اَعْرِيْكِ مَّا تُؤْعَدُوْنَ اَمْرِيْكِ مَّا تُؤْعَدُوْنَ ۲۹- عٰلِمُ الْغَيْب فَلَا يُظْهِرُ عَلَى غَيْبِهَ اَحَدُّالٌ فَلَا يُظْهِرُ عَلَى غَيْبِهَ اَحَدُّالٌ

5747. When the Hereafter arrives, and true values are restored, they will see clearly that the Promise of God was true, and that death on this earth was not the end of all things. Then they will see that those who were accounted weak on this earth will, in the realm of Reality, be the strong ones; those who seemed to have no following here will have, there, all the great and true ones with them, to help them and welcome them to their own ranks,

5748. The coming of Judgment is certain. But the exact time, relatively to our standards on this earth, no one can tell. God alone knows it. Even a Prophet of God, as such, does not know the Mysteries of the Unseen World, except in so far as they have been revealed to him by God's Revelation. Of. vi. 50, and notes 867-68.

5749. "Mystery", or the Unseen, has two aspects. The relative Unseen is so with reference to a particular person, because of the intervention of Time, Space, or particular circumstances. For example, I cannot see to-day a house which I saw last year, because it has since been pulled down. Or I cannot in Lahore see the "Gateway of India" in Bombay, although any one in Bombay can see it. Or I cannot see the satellites of Jupiter with the naked eye, though I can through a telescope. But the Absolute Unseen, the Absolute Mystery, or God's Mystery, is something which no creature can know or see, except in so far as God reveals it to him. And God reveals such things to the extent that is good for men, through His chosen apostles, among whom the greatest is Muhammad, the personified Light of Unity. The exact time of the Hour of Judgment has not been so shown, because we must not wait for it, but live as if it is to be at this minute. See last note and next note, and the references there.

And then He makes A band of watchers <sup>6751</sup> March before him And behind him,

28. "That he may know
That they have (truly) 5751-A
Brought and delivered
The Messages of their Lord:
And He surrounds 5753
(All the mysteries) that are
With them, and takes account
Of every single thing." 5763

فَاِتَّهُ يَسُلُكُ مِنْ بَيْنِ يَكَيْهِ وَمِنْ خَلْفِهِ رَصَّدًا ٥ُ

> ۲۸-لِیعُلَمُ اَنُ قَکْ اَبُلَغُوْ ارسٰلٰتِ رَبِّهِمْ وَ اَحَاطُ بِمَا لَکَ یُهِمْ وَ اَحْضَی کُلُّ شَیْءِ عَکَدًا ۚ

5751. There is much mystic doctrine here. Revelation is not a mechanical or material thing. It has to be safeguarded from being distorted or corrupted by ignorance, selfishness, or the powers of evil. How can its precious and subtle worth and the spiritual safeguards against its misuse by human folly or the perversity of evil, be expressed in plain human words? We can imagine a very great treasure, which has to be transmitted. To guard it against evilly-disposed persons, a strong escort is required, to march in front and behind, so as to protect it from all sides. When it reaches its destination, the escort presents its credentials and an Invoice showing the Treasure being transmitted. Then the destined receiver knows that it has come intact and feels satisfied. So about spiritual Revelation. The spiritual man recognises the credentials and checks the contents on the tablets of his own heart and insight. He has then no doubt that it is a true Message from God, and that those who bring it are the true messengers "of their Lord".

5751-A. They: the band of watchers. In "he may know" it is better to construe "he" to refer to the apostle who receives the Message from the "watchers".

5752. Ahāta: surrounds, encompasses, encloses, guards on all sides, keeps under his own possession and control, and does not allow to be corrupted or debased. See last note but one.

5753. In the spiritual Kingdom,—as indeed, in all things,—God's knowledge, wisdom, and Plan comprehend all things, great and small. There is nothing which we do, nothing which happens that is outside His account.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXXIII (Muzzammil).

This is one of the earliest Sūras to have been revealed. The first was S. xcvi. 1-5 (Iqraa), in the fortieth year of the Prophet's life, say about 12 years before the Hijra. Then there was an interruption (Fatra), of which the duration cannot be exactly ascertained, as there was no external history connected with it. The usual estimate puts it at about six months, but it may have been a year or two years. The years were then counted by the luni-solar calendar: see Appendix xi., p. 1077. The second Sūra in chronological order was probably a great portion of S. lxviii. (Qalam), which came after the Fatra was over. About the same time came this Sūra (say third) and S. lxxiv., which follows (say fourth), and the remainder of xcvi. We may roughly put the date of this Sūra at about 11 to 10 years before the Hijra.

The subject-matter is the significance of Prayer and Humility in spiritual life and the terrible fate of those who reject Faith and Revelation.

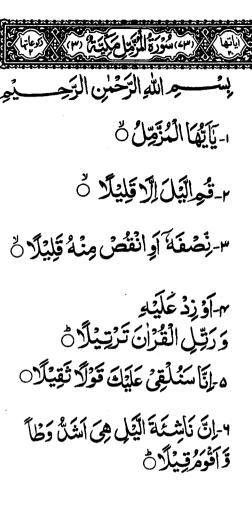

C. 253.—Devote yourself to the service of God
(lxxiii. 1-20.) In the stillness of the night, but not
All night. In the world's persecution rely
On God, Who will deal with His enemies fittingly.
Let not God's service be a matter
Of difficulty to you: do all your duties
In whole-hearted remembrance of God,
And ever seek His bountiful Grace.

Sūra LXXIII.

Muzzammil, or Folded in Garments.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- thou folded In garments! <sup>5751</sup>
- 2. Stand (to prayer) by night, But not all night,—<sup>5755</sup>
- 3. Half of it,—
  Or a little less,
- 4. Or a little more; And recite the Qur-an 5756 In slow, measured rhythmic tones.
- 5. Soon shall We send down To thee a weighty Message. 5767
- 6. Truly the rising by night
  Is most potent for governing
  (The soul), and most suitable
  For (framing) the Word 5758
  (Of Prayer and Praise).

5754. Muzzammil: Some Commentators understand by this, "properly dressed for prayer", or "folded in a sheet, as one renouncing the vanities of this world". Muzzammil is one of the titles of our holy Prophet. But there is a deeper mystic meaning in this and the address "Thou wrapped up" of the next Sūra. Human nature requires warm garments and wrappings to protect the body from cold or heat or rain. But in the spiritual world these wrappings are useless: the soul must stand bare and open before God, in the silence of the night, but not too austerely, as the following verses show.

5755. The Prophet was prone to austerities in the cave of Hiraa, both before and after he received his mission, spending days and nights in prayer and contemplation. See C. 29. Midnight and after-midnight contemplation and prayers have technically received the name of Tahajjud. See also verse 20 below; also xvii. 79.

5756. At this time there was only S. xcvi., S. lxviii, and possibly S. lxxiv, and the opening Sūra (Al-Hamd); but the heart of the Apostle had received enlightenment, and that Light was gradually finding expression in the verses of the Qur-ān. For us, now, with the whole of the Qur-ān before us, the injunction is specially necessary. The words of the Qur-ān must not be read hastily, merely to get through so much reading. They must be studied, and their deep meaning pondered over. They are themselves so beautiful that they must be lovingly pronounced in tones of rhythmic music.

5757. The Qur-an as completed by degrees, after the Fatra (see Introduction to this Sura).

5758. For contemplation, prayer, and praise, what time can be so suitable as the night, when calm and silence prevail, the voices of the market-place are still, and the silent stars pour forth their eloquence to the discerning soul.

- 7. True, there is for thee
  By day prolonged occupation
  With ordinary duties: 6759
- 8. But keep in remembrance
  The name of thy Lord
  And devote thyself
  To Him whole-heartedly.
- 9. (He is) Lord of the East
  And the West: there is
  No god but He:
  Take Him therefore
  For (thy) Disposer of Affairs.
- 10. And have patience with what They say, and leave them With noble (dignity).
- 11. And leave Me
  (Alone to deal with)
  Those in possession of
  The good things of life, 6761
  Who (yet) deny the Truth;
  And bear with them
  For a little while.
- 12. With Us are Fetters 5762

٥-إِنَّ لَكَ فِي النَّهُ ارْسَبْعُ الْمُونِ لَا ثُ

٨- وَاذْكُرِ اسْمَ رَبِكَ وَتَبَتَّلُ إِلَيْهِ تَبْتِيْلًا ٥ُ

٥-رَبُ الْمَثَرِقِ وَالْمَغَرِبِ
الْكَالَّةُ الْاَهُوَ
الْكَالَةُ الْاَهُوَ
الْقِفْ لَهُ وَكِيلُلَا
ا-وَاصْلِرُ عَلَى مَا يَقُولُونَ
وَاهِبُوهُمْ هَجُواجَمِيلُلانَ
الْحَدُرُ فِي مَا يَقُولُونَ
الْحَدُرُ فِي مَا يَقُولُونَ
وَالْمُكَنِّ لِهِ فِي أَولِي النَّعْمَةُ
وَالْمُكَنِّ لِهِ فِي أُولِي النَّعْمَةُ

١١- إِنَّ لَكُ يُنَا ٱنْكَالُا

ومَعَلَّهُمْ قَلْنُلَان

5759. A man of God, as a man, a member of a family, or a citizen, has many ordinary duties to perform; and his work may be made difficult and irksome in protecting those who listen to his preaching and are therefore molested and persecuted by the world. But while discharging all his ordinary duties, he should work as in the presence of God, and in all matters and at all times retain the sense of God's nearness. His work may be on earth, but his heart is in Heaven.

5760. God is all-in-all. He is not in one place, but in all; and He is Lord of all places. He rules the world. Therefore be not discouraged by the plots or enmity of wicked men. Leave all things to God; trust Him; He is just and will do justice. Only turn away from the unjust, but in a worthy and noble way; i.e. to show them clearly that you do not fear them, but that you leave all affairs in God's hands. If we divide the world into hemispheres from north to south, "East and West" will cover all directions.

5761. Men who enjoy the good things of life have special cause for gratitude to God, Who bestowed them. When they are in the ranks of God's enemies, none but God can adequately deal with them.

5762. The result of sin is the loss of spiritual liberty ("fetters"). The limbs with which a man was intended to move freely about his business in the service of God are tied more and more closely, until they become paralysed, and his will itself becomes degraded.

(To bind them), and a Fire 6768 (To burn them),

- 13. And a Food that chokes, 5764 And a Penalty Grievous. 5765
- 14. One Day the earth
  And the mountains
  Will be in violent commotion.
  And the mountains will be
  As a heap of sand
  Poured out and flowing down. 5766
- 15. We have sent to you,

  (O men!) an apostle,

  To be a witness concerning you,

  Even as We sent

  An apostle to Pharaoh.

وٌ بَحِيمًا لُ

٣٠- وَطَعَامًا ذَا غُصَّةٍ وَعَنَ ابًا الِيُمَّانَ

٣- يُؤْمُرَ تَرْجُفُ الْآرْضُ وَالْجِبَالُ وَكَانَتِ الْجِبَالُ كَتِيْبُا مَهِيْلًا ۞

۵۱-ٳ؆ٛۜٲۯڛڵڹٵۧٳڵؿػٛڎۯڛؙٷڰ ۺؘٳۿؚٮٞٵۼڶؿػؙڎ ػؠٵۧ۩ٚڛڵؽٵڸڶ؋ۯۼۏڹۯۺٷڰ۞

5763. Another effect of sin is the fire in his being, the conflagration in his soul. Evil passions seize him; he loses his peace of mind; and the fine talents and capacities in him fall off and are reduced to ashes like timber in a burning house.

5765. In general terms, the Penalty of sin may be described as a Penalty Grievous, an Agony. It may come in this very life, but that in the Hereafter is certain! See next verse.

We can also consider punishments from another aspect. The first object of punishment is to protect the innocent from the depredations of the criminal: we have to bind him. The next object is to produce in his neart the fire of repentance, to consume his evil proclivities and to light his conscience. Where that is not enough, a more drastic punishment for the callous is something which causes him pain in things which ordinarily cause him pleasure, such as food, drink, and the satisfaction of physical needs. People in whom the higher spiritual faculties are dead may perchance be awakened through the lower physical features of their life, which appeal to them. Where this also fails, there is finally the complete Agony, a type or symbol too terrible to contemplate.

5766. The Judgment is described as a violent commotion which will change the whole face of nature as we know it. Even the hard rock of mountains will be like loose sand running without any cohesion.

5767. Our holy Apostle has to warn his age, i.e. the present age, reclaim it from sin, and be a witness for the righteous and against evil, as Moses did his office in his age. For Pharaoh, his arrogance, and his punishment, see x. 75-92.

- 16. But Pharaoh disobeyed <sup>5768</sup>
  The apostle; so We
  Seized him with
  A heavy Punishment.
- 17. Then how shall ye,
  If ye deny (God),
  Guard yourselves against
  A Day that will make
  Children hoary-headed?—5769
- 18. Whereon the sky will be Cleft asunder?
  His Promise needs must Be accomplished.
- 19. Verily this is an Admonition: 5770

  Therefore, whoso will, let him
  Take a (straight) path
  To his Lord!

SECTION 2.

20. MAhy Lord doth know
That thou standest forth
(To prayer) nigh two-thirds
Of the night, or half

٧١- فَعُطَى فِرْعَوْنُ الرَّسُوْلَ فَاخَذُنْ لَهُ آخُذُا وَّبِيلًا ۞

٥١- فكَيْنَفَ تَتَقُونَ إِنْ كَفَرْتُمُ يَوْمًا يُجُعُلُ الْوِلْكَ انَ شِينْبًا تَ

٩- اِنَ هٰذِهٖ تَـٰنَ كِرَةٌ ۚ فَكُنْ شَآءُ اتَّخَذَ اللَّ رَبِّهٖ سَبِيْلًا ۚ

٨- إِنَّ رَبِّكَ يَعُلَمُ اَنَّكَ تَقُوْمُ اَدُنْ مِنْ ثُلُثِي الْيُلِ وَنِصْفَهُ

5768. Pharaoh the earthly king faces Moses the prophet of God. In earthly eyes it was Moses who disobeyed Pharaoh. In spiritual relations, it was Pharaoh who disobeyed Moses. Pharaoh represented an ancient and mighty kingdom, with a long history behind it, and a pride in its learning and science, art, organisation, and power. Moses led a depressed people, hewers of wood and drawers of water. But the might of God was behind him. What became of the wisdom, power, and armies of Pharaoh? They were renr asunder when the day came, and the terror and surprise must have been the same as if the heavens had been rent asunder, and children's hair had turned grey! But formidable revolutions turn children grey-haired in another way. Nations that were as children became wise before they in their turn decayed, and from similar disobedience to the laws of God. For God's law must stand and be fulfilled when all else is swept away.

5769. If already you deny and disobey God in this life of probation, how can you stand up to the Day of Judgment, the Day of the terrible Reality? That Day is described in two metaphors: (1) It will be a time of such stress that even children will become like hoary-headed men; (2) What we look upon as the eternal sky, ever the same, will be cleft asunder: cf. lxxxii. 1. In other words, the shape of things will be completely altered, both within man and in outer nature, and all true values will be restored. For the Promise of God, in this as in all other respects, cannot but be fulfilled.

5770. This is no empty threat. It is an admonition for your good. If you have the will, you can at once come for the Grace and Mercy of God, and obtain it. For Repentance and Amendment are the straight Way to the nearness of God.

The night, or a third 5771 Of the night, and so doth A party of those with thee. But God doth appoint Night And Day in due measure. He knoweth that ye are Unable to keep count thereof.5772 So He hath turned to you (In mercy): read ve. Therefore, of the Our-an 5773 As much as may be Easy for you. He knoweth That there may be (some) Among you in ill-health: Others travelling through the land, Seeking of God's bounty: Yet others fighting 5774 In God's Cause. Read ye, Therefore, as much of the Our-an As may be easy (for you); And establish regular Prayer And give regular Charity: And loan to God A Beautiful Loan. 5775

5771. Cf., above, lxxiii. 2-4. The Prophet, and a zealous band of his disciples, were often up, two-thirds of the night, or a half, or a third, rejecting sleep and giving themselves up to Prayer and Praise and the reading of the Qur-ān. They are told that this was too severe a tax on them, especially if their health was affected, or they were on a journey, or they were striving, with might and main, in other ways, for the cause of God. See the lines following.

5772. The usual meaning taken is that the counting of the exact hours of night and day may not be possible for ordinary people, in order to determine exactly the half, or the third, or the two-thirds of a night. The length of the night and the day varies every day of the solar year, and the precise hour of midnight can only be determined by exact observation in clear skies or by chronometers, which is not possible for everyone. But I understand it in a wider meaning. God fixes night and day in due proportions; for rest and work, and according to seasonal variations. For prayer and praise no meticulous observations of that kind are necessary or possible. God's service can be done in many ways as detailed below. But we must give some time to devotion, as may be most easy and convenient to us, in various circumstances of health, travel, and the performance of various duties,

5773. The reading of the Qur-ān here is almost equivalent to Prayer and religious devotion. This is not to be made into an obsession or a burden. Cf. xx. 2: "We have not sent down the Qur-ān to thee to be an occasion for thy distress." We must do it whole-mindedly, but not by formal mechanical computations.

5774. This refers to  $Jih\bar{a}d$ . The better opinion is that this particular verse was revealed in Medina, long after the greater part of the Sūra. The reference, further on, to canonical Prayers and regular Charity ( $Zak\bar{a}i$ ), points to the same conclusion.

5775. Cf. ii. 245, and n. 276, where the meaning of "a Beautiful Loan" is explained. See also lvii. 18. The "Beautiful Loan" should be that of our own souls. We should expect no returns in kind, for that is not possible. But the reward we shall find with God will be infinitely greater and nobler. Cf. the biblical phrase, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven" (Matt. vi. 20).

. LXXIII. 20. ]

And whatever good

Ye send forth
For your souls,<sup>5776</sup>
Ye shall find it
In God's Presence,—
Yea, better and
Greater, in Reward.
And seek ye the Grace
Of God: for God is <sup>5777</sup>
Oft-Forgiving, Most Merciful.

وَمَا تُقَدِّمُوا لِالْنَفْسِكُمُ مِّنَ خَنْدٍ تَجَكُّاوَهُ عِنْكَ اللهِ هُوخَيْدًا وَاعْظَمَ اَجْرًا * وَاسْتَغْفِرُوا اللهَ * إِنَّ اللهَ غَفُورٌ رَّحِيْمٌ * إِنَّ اللهَ غَفُورٌ رَّحِيْمٌ *

5776. Any good that we do raises our own spiritual status and dignity. We must not think that when we speak of God's service or God's Cause, we are doing anything for His benefit; He is independent of all needs whatsoever.

<sup>5777.</sup> This emphasizes the need of God's Grace. Whatever good we do, our own merits are comparatively small. God's Grace must lift us up and blot out our shortcomings. Even in piety there may be an arrogance which may become a sin. We should always seek God's Mercy in all humility.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXXIV (Muddaththir).

This Sūra dates from about the same time as the last one. Its subject-matter is also similar: Prayer and Praise, and the need of patience in a period of great spiritual stress: the unjust who cause sorrow and suffering now will themselves experience agony in the Hereafter.

C. 254.—The Seer, by devotion and contemplation, (lxxiv. 1-56.) Prepares himself for the duties of Guide And Leader to mankind: but when there comes The clear Call, he must stand forth And proclaim the Message,—in purity, Unselfish devotion, and patience long-suffering;-To save men from the Distress of the Final Day. For many there be who glory in a life Of ease and plenty, arrogant splendour, And the applause of men, who scorn God's Truth And reject the divine. How will they fare When the Judgment comes, and the Penalty? Every Fact in Life's grand Pageant Is but a Portent for the Future. Every soul is in pledge and must Redeem itself by Faith and Prayer, By Charity and earnest care for the Realities Of Life. Bring but the will, and God Will guide,—the Lord of Righteousness, The Lord of Mercy and Forgiveness!

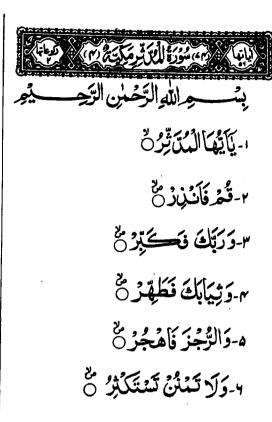

Sūra LXXIV.

Muddaththir, or One Wrapped Up.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,

Most Merciful

- 1. thou wrapped up 5778
  (In a mantle)!
- 2. Arise and deliver thy warning!
- 3. And thy Lord Do thou magnify!
- 4. And thy garments 5779
  Keep free from stain!
- 5. And all abomination shun! 5780
- Nor expect, in giving, Any increase (for thyself)! <sup>5781</sup>

5778. As usual, in these wonderful early mystic verses, there is a triple thread of thought: (1) A particular occasion or person is referred to; (2) a general spiritual lesson is taught; and (3) a more profound mystical reverie is suggested. As to (1), the Prophet was now past the stage of personal contemplation, lying down or sitting in his mantle; he was now to go forth boldly to deliver his Message and publicly proclaim the Lord; his heart had always been purified, but now all his outward doings must be dedicated to God, and conventional respect for ancestral customs or worship must be thrown aside; the work of his Apostleship was the most generous gift that could flow from his personality, but no reward or appreciation was to be expected from his people, but quite the contrary; there would be much call on his patience, but his contentment would arise from the good pleasure of God. As to (2), similar stages arise in a minor degree in the life of every good man, for which the Prophet's life is to be a universal pattern. As to (3), the Sufis understand, by the mantle and outward wrappings, the circumstances of our phenomenal existence, which are necessary to our physical comfort up to a certain stage; but we soon outgrow them, and our inner nature should then boldly proclaim itself; not that it brings any credit or reward with men; the very hope or expectation of such would be inconsistent with our higher nature, which should bear all checks and rejoice in the favour of God.

5779. Possibly, in its immediate application, there is a reference to the dirt and filth which the Pagans used to throw at the Prophet to insult and persecute him.

5780. Rujz or Rijz; abomination: usually understood to refer to idolatry. It is even possible that there was an idol called Rujz. But it has a wider signification, as including a mental state opposed to true worship, a state of doubt or indecision.

5781. The legal and commercial formula is that you give in order to receive. And usually you expect to receive what is worth to you a little more than you give. The spiritual consideration is that you give, but expect nothing from the receiver. You serve God and God's creatures,

- 7. But, for thy Lord's (Cause),<sup>5782</sup> Be patient and constant!
- 8. Kinally, when the trumpet Is sounded,
- 9. That will be—that Day—A Day of Distress,—5783
- 10. Far from easy
  For those without Faith.
- 11. The ave Me alone, (to deal) 5784
  With the (creature) whom
  I created (bare and) alone!—5785
- 12. To whom I granted Resources in abundance,
- 13. And sons to be By his side!—5786
- 14. To whom I made (Life) smooth and comfortable!
- 15. Yet is he greedy— That I should add (Yet more);—<sup>5787</sup>

٨ وَلِرُتِكَ فَاصْبِرُ ٥

٣٠ و مَ لَكُ لُثُ لَكُ تَنْهِيْدًا لِ

٥١- ثُمُرُ يُظْمُعُ أَنْ أَزِيْكُ نَ

5782. Our zeal for God's Cause itself requires that we should not be impatient, and that we should show constancy in our efforts for His Cause. For we have faith, and we know that He is All-Good, All-Wise, and All-Powerful, and everything will ultimately be right.

5783 The Sinner's course is now shown in contrast to the Seeker's. The Sinner may be self-complacent now: but what will be his position when the Reckoning comes? Not easy; indeed a Day of Distress!

5784. The question of Justice and Punishment to men is for God alone. For man at his best can see only one side of truth, and only God is All-Knowing. He alone can judge the limits of Justice and Mercy.

5785. Man's adventitious advantages—wealth, power, position, talents—are not due to his own merits. They are gifts from God, Who created him. In himself he came bare and alone.

5786. The great ones of the earth may have wealth, a large following, sons by their side to defend them and do their bidding, and man-power to help them in their battles. Life may be smooth and agreeable to them. But their responsibility is to God.

5787. The Sinner takes God's gifts as if they were his right. The more he gets, the more is he greedy. Yet to God's Signs and revelations he is wilfully deaf or even openly rebellious. But he is only preparing the way for his own undoing.

16. By no means!

۲۹-ساصلينه سَقَرَ

<sup>5788 &</sup>quot;A mount of calamities" or disasters: may be understood as a phrase for cumulative disasters in a spiritual sense.

<sup>5790.</sup> The Commentators understand the reference to be to Walid ibn Mugaira, who was a wealthy Sybarite, Pagan to the core, and an inveterate enemy to the holy Prophet. He and Abū Jahl did all they could, from the beginning of the preaching of Islam, to abuse and persecute the Preacher, to run down his doctrine, and to injure those who believed in it. But the meaning for us is much wider. There are Walids in all ages. They cannot understand divine inspiration, and seek to explain its wonderful influence over the lives of men by some such unmeaning formula as "magic". The eternal Hope is to them mere human delusion!

<sup>5791.</sup> The Sinner's perversity can only end in the Fire of Punishment. It enters his very being, See next note.

- 27. And what will explain

  To thee what Hell-Fire is?
- 28. Naught doth it permit
  To endure, and naught
  Doth it leave alone!—
- 29. Darkening and changing The colour of man!
- 30. Pver it are Nineteen. 5793
- 31. And We have set none <sup>5794</sup>
  But angels as guardians
  Of the Fire; and We
  Have fixed their number <sup>5796</sup>

٨٠-وَمَأَ اَدُرْبِكَ مَاسَقَرُ ٥ ٨٠-لا تُنَبِّقِي وَلَا تَكَرُرُ ٢٩-لَوَّاحَةُ لِلْبُشَرِ أَ

٣-عَلَيْهَا تِسْعَةَ عَشَرَ ٣-وَمَاجَعَلْنَآ أَصْعِبَ النَّادِ الْاَمَلَائِكَةٌ وَمَاجَعَلْنَا عِلَّاتُهُمُ اللَّا فِتُنَةً

5792 He is in a state in which he neither lives nor dies (lxxxvii. 13). Looked at in another way, the things that in a good man are meant to last and grow, are for the sinner destroyed, and no part of his nature is left untouched. The brightness of his very manhood is darkened and extinguished by sin.

5793. Who are the Nineteen? And why this number? The nineteen guardians of the Fire are understood symbolically to be angels or faculties of man. Imam Fakhruddin Razī refers to a classification of nineteen faculties or powers in man, which if used properly lead to his spiritual advancement, but if misused, lead to his perdition. These faculties or powers may well be compared to angels, for angels are the powers or instruments of action in the spiritual world. The rebellious angels are types of faculties put to wrong use.

5794. Cf. lavi. 6, and n. 5540

There was a great volume of angelology in the religious literature of the People of the Book (i.e. the Jews and Christians) to whom (among others) an appeal is made in this verse. The Essenes, a Jewish brotherhood with highly spiritual ideas, to which perhaps the prophet Jesus himself belonged, had an extensive literature of angelology. In the Midrash also, which was a Jewish school of exegesis and mystical interpretation, there was much said about angels. The Eastern Christian sects contemporary with the birth of Islam had borrowed and developed many of these ideas, and their mystics owed much to the Gnostics and the Persian apocalyptic systems. In the New Testament the relation of the angels with Fire is referred to more than once. In Rev. ix 11 we have "the angel of the bottomless pit, whose name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon, but in the Greek tongue hath his name Apollyon". In Rev. xiv. 18 there is an "angel which had power over fire", and in Rev. xvi. 8 an angel has "power...given unto him to scorch men with fire". In the Old Testament (Daniel vii. 9-10) the essence of all angels is fire: thousand thousands of them issued as a fiery stream from before the Ancient of Days, whose "throne was like the fiery flame, and His wheels as burning fire".

5795. The mystic significance of numbers is a favourite theme with some writers, but I lay no stress on it. In Christian theology the number of the Beast, 666, in Rev. xiii, 18 has given rise to much controversy, and may refer only to the numerical value of the letters in the name of the Roman Emperor Nero. In our own literature I think that we ought to avoid too much insistence on speculative conjectures. But I will note one suggestion for what it is worth. The number is itself an indivisible number, and may be represented by the formula, twice seven plus five. Now seven is a mystic number: see lxv. 12, and n. 5526; there are seven heavens, seven gates of Hell (xv. 44), and so on. Five is also a mystic number: there are five senses in man, five canonical prayers, and so on. As there are seven heavens and a similar number of layers of the earth (lxv. 12), man's externally perceived world has fourteen layers, and if his subjective world can be counted in five units according to his five senses, the number of stages controlling his conduct may be counted as nineteen.

Only as a trial For Unbelievers,—in order That the People of the Book May arrive at certainty. And the Believers may increase In Faith,— and that no doubts May be left for the People Of the Book and the Believers. And that those in whose hearts Is a disease and the Unbelievers May say, "What symbol Doth God intend by this?" 5796 Thus doth God leave to stray Whom He pleaseth, and guide Whom He pleaseth: and none Can know the forces Of thy Lord, except He.5797 And this is no other than A warning to mankind.

SECTION 2.

32. Day, verily:
By the Moon, 5798

الكِنْ مَن كَفَرُوا لِيَسْتَيُقِنَ الْكِنِينَ أُوتُوا الْكِنْ مِن أُوتُوا الْكِنْ مَن أَوْتُوا الْكِنْ الْمَنْوَا الْكِنْ الْمَنْوَا الْكِنْ الْمَنْوَا الْكِنْ الْمَنْوَا الْكِنْ الْمَنْوَ الْكُونُونُ وَلَا يَرْتَا الْكِنْ الْمَنْوَلُ الْكُونُونُ أَوْتُوا الْكِنْ مَا تُولُولِهِ مَرْصَّ وَلَي قُلُولِهِ مَرْصَّ مَن اللَّهُ اللهُ مِلْ اللهُ مِلْ اللهُ مَن يَشَاءُ وَلَا اللهُ مِنْ اللهُ مَن يَشَاءُ وَمَا يَعْلَمُ جُنُودُ دَرِيكَ اللهُ مَن يَشَاءُ وَمَا يَعْلَمُ جُنُودُ دَرِيكَ اللهُ هُو اللهُ هُو اللهُ هُو اللهُ مَن يَشَاءُ وَمَا يَعْلَمُ جُنُودُ دَرِيكَ اللهُ هُو اللهُ هُو اللهُ هُو اللهُ مَن يَشَاءُ وَمَا يَعْلَمُ مُنْ يَشَاءُ وَمَا يَعْلَمُ اللهُ مَن يَشَاءُ وَمَا يَعْلَمُ مُنْ اللهُ هُو مُن يَشَاءُ اللهُ هُو اللهُ اللهُ هُو اللهُ هُو اللهُ هُو اللهُ هُو اللهُ هُو اللهُ هُو اللهُ اللهُ هُو اللهُ اللهُ هُو اللهُ اللهُ

٣٠-كُلُا وَالْقَمْرِ نُ

5796. There are four classes of people mentioned here. (1) The Muslims will have their faith increased, because they believe that all revelation, symbolic or otherwise, is from God Most Merciful, and all His forces will work in their favour. (2) The People of the Book, those who had received previous revelations of an analogous character, the Jews and Christians, had numerous sects disputing with each other on minute points of doctrine; but they will now, if they believe, find rest from controversies in a broad symbolical understanding of scripture. (3) Those in whose hearts is a disease (see ii. 8-10, notes 33-34), the insincere ones, the hypocrites, will only be mystified, because they believe nothing and have rejected the grace and mercy of God. (4) The Unbelievers have frankly done the same and must suffer similar consequences.

5797. It is a necessary consequence of moral responsibility and freedom of choice in man, that he should be left free to stray if he chooses to do so, in spite of all the warning and the instruction he receives. God's channels of warning and instruction—His spiritual forces—are infinite, as are His powers. No man can know them. But this warning or reminder is addressed to all mankind.

All things are referred to God. But we must not attribute evil to Him. In iv. 79 we are expressly told that the good comes from God, and the evil from ourselves.

5798. An oath in human speech cal in evidence something sacred in the heart of man. In God's Message, also, when delivered in human language, solemn emphasis is indicated by an appeal to something striking among the Signs of God, which will go straight to the human heart which is addressed. In each case the symbol of the appeal has reference to the particular point enforced in the argument. Here we are asked to contemplate three wonderful phenomena, and they lead up to the conclusion in verse 38. (1) The moon, next after the sun, is the most striking luminary to our sight. Its reflected light has for us even a greater mystery than the direct light of the sun, which looks to us like pure fire. The moon was worshipped as a deity in times of darkness. But in reality, though she rules the night, her rays are only reflections, and are wanting in warmth and vitality. So every soul which looks up to a mere creature of God for a sort of vicarious salvation is in spiritual darkness or error; for the true source of spiritual light and life is God, and God alone. For (2) the Night and (3) the Dawn, see the following note.

- 33. And by the Night 5799
  As it retreateth,
- 34. And by the Dawn As it shineth forth,—
- 35. This is but one 5800 Of the mighty (portents),
- 36. A warning to mankind,—
- 37. To any of you that
  Chooses to press forward,
  Or to follow behind;—5801
- 38. Every soul will be (held)
  In pledge for its deeds. 5803
- 39. Except the Companions Of the Right Hand, 5803

٣٣- وَالْكُلِ إِذْ آَدُبُونُ ٣٣- وَالْصُّبْحِ إِذَا آَسُفَرَ فَ ٣٣- إِنَّهَا لِإِحْلَى الْكُبُرِ فَ ٣٣- نَذِيْرًا لِلْبُشَرِ فَ ٣٣- لِمِنْ شَآءُ مِنْكُوْاَنُ يَتَعَقَّلُ مَ اَوْيَتَا خَرَلُ ٣٣- كُلُّ نَفْسٍ بِمَا كُسُبَتْ رَهِيْنَةً فَى ٣٣- إِلَا آَصْطِبَ الْيَمِيْنِ قَ

5799. (2) The Night when it is illuminated by the Moon is light in a sense, but it is really dark and must give place to (3) the Dawn when it comes, as the harbinger of the Sun. So in spiritual matters, when every soul realises its own responsibility, it will look less and less to reflected lights, and through the beauty of a dawn-like awakening, will be prepared more and more for the splendour of the light of God Himself, the goal of the Heaven of our dreams.

5800. "This is but one," etc. There are numerous Signs of God, of which Judgment is one, and one of the mightiest portents. Or the reference may be to the waning of the Moon, the decline of the night, and the glorious sunrise, as tokens or symbols of the world renewed when the present transitory world passes away.

5801. Three interpretations are possible. (1) Those pressing forward may be the Righteous, and those following behind may be the laggards, the Unbelievers, who reject God's love, care, and mercy. (2) Men of two kinds of temperament may be referred to: those who are always in the van and those who are always in the rear. God's Message is open to both. But there may be a danger to both: in the one case, over-confidence, or hope in wrong things; in the other case, missing great opportunities so that their spiritual lives may be "bound in shallows and in miseries". Extremes should be avoided. (3) Or it may mean that the warning is effective only for those willing to move forwards or backwards, as the case may be, but is lost on the inert or the lethargic. For our moral and spiritual progress, we have in some cases to go forwards, but in some cases we have to retreat from false positions. The hopeless case is that of the obstinate man, whose heart is so dead that he dares not advance to the right or withdraw from the wrong.

5802. Cf. lii. 21. Man cannot shift his responsibility to vicarious saviours or saints. His redemption depends upon the grace of God, for which he should constantly and whole-heartedly strive by means of right conduct. If he does so he will be redeemed and he will join the Companions of the Right Hand.

5803. Cf. n. 5223 to lvi. 3, and see lvi. 27-38. The Companions of the Right Hand will be the Righteous or the Blessed in the Hereafter. Their grounds of merit will be Prayer, Charity, Earnestness, and Faith in God's just Judgment: all of which are within the reach of the humblest Seeker. They are not separate acts or virtues, but are all inter-connected. At Judgment, the pledge of their soul will be redeemed by God's Grace at the Taking of the Account.

40. (They will be) in Gardens (Of Delight): they will Question each other,

41. And (ask) of the Sinners:

42. "What led you Into Hell-Fire?"

S. LXXIV. 40-50.1

43. They will say:
"We were not of those
Who prayed;

44. "Nor were we of those Who fed the indigent;

45. "But we used to talk Vanities with vain talkers;

46. "And we used to deny The Day of Judgment,

5804. Cf. xv. 99, and n. 2018. The Hour that is Certain is usually taken to be Death. But it has also a more general meaning, referring to a state of mind in spiritual progress. If there is no faith, the light of Truth is shut out, or put off from time to time, until a crisis comes when the Truth becomes only too real, but the time for repentance is past, and there is only room for the agony of regrets.

5805. If the Day of Judgment is inevitable, it is strange that men should not heed a plain warning, but go on as if they were thoughtless and obstinate asses stampeding from a lion. Instead of heeding the warning, they try to avoid it. They are frightened at God's Word.

- 51. Fleeing from a lion!
- 52. Forsooth, each one of them
  Wants to be given before
  Scrolls (of revelation) spread out!
- 53. By no means! But They fear not the Hereafter.
- 54. Nay, this surely Is an admonition:
- 55. Let any who will, 5807

  Keep it in remembrance!
- 56. But none will keep it
  In remembrance except
  As God wills: He 5808
  Is the Lord of Righteousness,
  And the Lord of Forgiveness.

<sup>5806</sup> Cf. xvii. 93: "Until thou send down to us a book that we could read." The Unbelievers pretend in ridicule that they would believe if a special message written on open scrolls and addressed to them severally were brought to them by a miracle! There is a disease in their hearts and understandings. The Teacher's warning is plain, and enough for any reasonable man who has the will to seek God.

<sup>5807.</sup> The Qur-an itself is the admonition—the latest among the revealed Books of God. If man has the will to learn, he will keep the Message always before Him, and God's grace will help him to carry it out in his conduct.

<sup>5808.</sup> Righteousness as well as Forgiveness have their source in God's Will. Man's Righteousness has no meaning except in relation to the universal Will. For Taqua see n. 26 to ii. 2. If we take the word here in the sense of "the fear of God", the translation would be: "He alone is worthy to be feared, and He alone is entitled to grant Forgiveness."

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXXV (Qiyamat).

This Sūra belongs to the early Meccan period, but comes chronologically a good deal later than the last two Sūras.

Its subject-matter is the Resurrection, viewed from the point of view of Man, especially unregenerate Man, as he is now, and as he will be then,—his inner and psychological history.

C. 255.—Eschew all Evil: for man was not created Without purpose or without responsibility. (lxxv. 1-40) The Day of Account will come, and his own Conscience bears witness that he Must walk straight; for he must face That Day's Realities. With patience await The unfoldment of God's wise Purpose. The Hereafter ever in view. The faces Of the Blest will beam with brightness and beauty. For the others, Death will be a terror,-For duties neglected and sins committed. Woe unto man that he thinks not now Of God's Purpose and the noble Destiny For which God gave him Life and its Gifts.

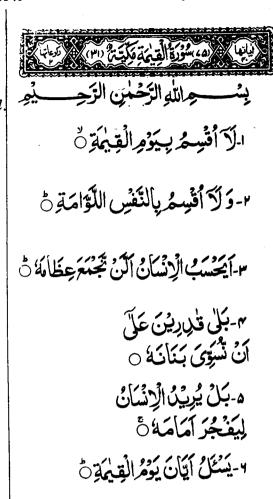

Sūra LXXV.

Qivāmat, or the Resurrection.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 2. And I do call to witness

  The self-reproaching spirit: 6810
  (Eschew Evil).
- 3. Noes man think that We Cannot assemble his bones? 5811
- 4. Nay, We are able to put Together in perfect order The very tips of his fingers. 5812
- 5. But man wishes to do
  Wrong (even) in the time
  In front of him. 5813
- 6. He questions: "When 5814
  Is the Day of Resurrection?"

5809, Cf. lxx. 40, and n. 5700. Here the point to be enforced is understood: I have added it in brackets: "eschew Evil". The appeal is made to two considerations: (1) That every act has to be accounted for, and evil must have its recompense at the Resurrection; and (2) that man's own spirit has a conscience which would reproach him for sin, if he did not suppress that inner voice.

5810. Our doctors postulate three states or stages of the development of the human soul: (1) Ammāra (xii 53), which is prone to evil, and, if hot checked and controlled, will lead to perdition; (2) Lawwāma, as here, which feels conscious of evil, and resists it, asks for God's grace and pardon after repentance and tries to amend; it hopes to reach salvation; (3) Mulmainna (lxxxix. 27), the highest stage of all, when it achieves full rest and satisfaction. Our second stage may be compared to Conscience, except that in English usage Conscience is a faculty and not a stage in spiritual development.

5811. The Unbelievers' usual cry is: "What! when we are reduced to bones and dust, how can our personality be called to account?" (xvii. 49). The answer is: God has said so, and He will do it; for the death here is not the end of all things.

5812. An idiom for the most delicate parts of his body.

5813. It is bad enough not to repent of past sins. But the evil-doer who rejects a Day of Reckoning and has no conscience wants to go on in his career of sin and jeopardise his future also.

5814. The question is sceptical or derisive He does not believe that there is any chain of consequences in the Hereafter. He does not believe in a Hereafter.

- 7. At length, when The Sight is dazed, tells
- 8. And the moon is Buried in darkness. ***

- 11. By no means!
  No place of safety!
- 12. Before thy Lord (alone),
  That Day will be
  The place of rest.
- 13. That Day will Man Be told (all) that he Put forward, and all That he put back. 5818
- 14. Nay, man will be Evidence against himself, 5819
- Even though he were To put up his excuses.

  - ٥١- و لَو اللَّهِي مَعَاذِيْرَهُ ٥

5815. At the Hour of Judgment the full light and glory of the Lord will shine, and the effulgence will daze man's eyes. For the world as we knew it will go to pieces and a new World will come into being.

5816 Not only will man's sight be dazed, but the great luminaries themselves will lose their light. The moon with its present reflected light will then cease to shine. All reflected or relative truth or goodness will sink into nothing before the true and only Reality.

5817. To the moon the sun is the original light, but the sun itself is a created light, and it will sink into nothingness along with the moon. Both will be like empty shells "whose lights are fled, whose glories dead", because the Prototype of all Light now shines in full splendour in a new World. See n. 4344 to xxxix. 69.

5818. All good and bad deeds, positive and negative, i.e. all sins of commission and omission, and all the good that a man did and all the evil that he omitted, all the influence that he radiated before him and all that he left behind him.

5819. Cf. xxiv. 24, and n. 2976: "On the Day when their tongues, their hands, and their feet will bear witness against them as to their actions." It is not what a man says about himself, or what others say of him, that determines judgment about him. It is what he is in himself. His own personality betrays him or commends him.

٢٢- وُجُوهُ يُؤْمَنِنِ تَاضِرَةً ٥

٣٠- إلى رَبِّهَا نَاظِرَةً خَ

<sup>5820</sup> Cf. xx. 114, and n. 2639: "Be not in haste with the Qur-an before its revelation to thee is completed." S 1xxv. is an earlier revelation, and the shade of meaning is slightly different. The immediate meaning was that the holy Prophet was to allow the revelation conveyed to him to sink into his mind and heart and not to be impatient about it; God would certainly complete it according to His Plan, and see that it was collected and preserved for men, and not lost; that the inspired one was to follow it and recite it as the inspiration was conveyed to him; and that it carries its own explanation according to the faculties bestowed by God on man. The general meaning follows the same lines: we must not be impatient about the inspired Word; we must follow it as made clear to us by the faculties given to us by God.

<sup>5821</sup> Cf. xxi. 37 Man loves haste and things of haste. For that reason he pins his faith on transitory things that come and go, and neglects the things of lasting moment, which come slowly, and whose true import will only be fully seen in the Hereafter.

<sup>5822.</sup> This passage (especially with reference to verses 26.28) would seem to refer to what our Doctors call the Lesser Judgment ( $Qiy\bar{a}mat-us$ - $Sugr\bar{a}$ ), which takes place immediately after death, and not to the Greater or General Judgment, which may be supposed to be referred to in such passages as occur in S. Ivi. There are other passages referring to the Lesser Judgment immediately after death; e.g. vii 37, etc. If I understand aright, the punishment of sin takes place in three ways: (1) it may take place in this very life, but this may be deferred, to give the sinner respite; (2) it may be an agony immediately after death, with the Partition or Barzakk (xxiii. 100) separating the sinner from the final Resurrection; and (3) in the final Resurrection, when the whole of the present order gives place to a wholly new World; xiv. 48.

5823. A symbolic picture of the agony of death.

5824. He=the dying man, whose soul is referred to in verse 26 above.

5825. When the soul has departed, the legs of the dead body are placed together in position, in preparation for the rites preliminary to the burial.  $S\bar{a}q$  (literally, leg) may also be taken metaphorically to mean a calamity: calamity will be joined to calamity for the poor departed sinner's soul, as his life-story in this world is now done. Willy-nilly, he will now have to go before the Throne of Judgment.

5826. His indictment in this and the succeeding verse consists of four counts: (1) he neglected prayer; (2) he neglected charity; (3) he rejected Truth; and (4) he turned away. In lxxiv. 43-46, the four counts are: (1) neglecting prayer; (2) neglecting charity; (3) talking vanities; (4) denying the Day of Judgment; see n. 5803. Nos. (1) and (2) are identical in both places, and Nos. (3) and (4) are analogous. Rejecting the truth is equivalent to talking vanities and making an alliance with falsehoods. Denying the Day of Judgment means behaving as if no account was to be given of our actions, i.e. turning away from right conduct. An additional touch is found here in verse 33. See next note.

32.	But on the contrary
	He rejected Truth
	And turned away!

33. Then did he stalk
To his family
In full conceit! 5827

34. Woe to thee,
(O man!), yea, woe!

35. Again, woe to thee, (O man!), yea, woe!

36. Does Man think

That he will be left

Uncontrolled, (without purpose)? 5828

37. Was he not a drop
Of sperm emitted

38. Then did he become
A leech-like clot;
Then did (God) make
And fashion (him)
In due proportion.

(In lowly form)? 5829

39. And of him He made Two sexes, male And female.

40. Has not He, (the same),
The power to give life
To the dead?

٣٠- وَ لَكُونَ كُنَّ بَ وَتُوكِّلٌ خُ

٣٣- ثُمَّ ذَهَب إِلَى اَهْلِهِ يَتَمَظَّى حُ

٣٠-اَكُوْ يَكُ نُطْفَةً مِّنْ مَرْتِي يُتُمْنَى ٥ ٣٠-ثُمُّ كَانَ عَلَقَةً فَخَلَقَ فَسَوْى ٥ فَخَلَقَ فَسَوْى ٥

٣- ٱكَيْنَ ذَٰلِكَ بِقَدِدٍ عَلَى آنْ يُنْجِئَ الْكُوْنَىٰ خَ

5827. Conceit or arrogance is the root-cause of most Evil. By that cause fell Iblis: see ii. 34.

5828. Sudan: has many implications: (1) uncontrolled, free to do what he likes; (2) without any moral responsibility; not accountable for his actions; (3) without a purpose, useless; (4) forsaken.

5829. Cf. xxii. 5, where the argument is developed in greater detail. The briefer argument here may be stated thus. His lowly animal origin makes him no higher than a brute; his fœtal development is still that of a brute animal; then at some stage come human limbs and shape; the divine spirit is poured into him, and he is fashioned in due proportion for his higher destiny. In spite of that the mystery of sex remains in his nature; we are living souls, yet men and women. God Who creates these wonders,—has He not the power to bring the dead to life at the Resurrection?

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA LXXVI (Dahr).

The revelation of this Sūra was probably in the early Meccan period, with the possible exception of some verses, but its date has no significance.

Its theme is the contrast between the two classes of men, those who choose good and those who choose evil, with special reference to the former.

The title of the Sūra recalls a Pagan Arab idea, which personified Time as existing spontaneously from eternity to eternity and responsible for the misery or the happiness of mankind. In xlv. 24 we read: "They say, 'nothing but Time can destroy us'." This attitude is of course wrong. Time is a created thing: it has its mysteries, but it is no more eternal than matter. It is also relative to our conceptions and not absolute, as Einstein has proved. It is only God Who is Self Subsisting, Eternal from the beginning and Eternal to the end, the absolute Existence and Reality. We must not transfer His attributes to any figments of our imagination.

This deification of Time (Dahr) as against a living personal God has given rise to the term dahrīya, as applied to an atheist or a materialist.

The whole of the Sūra is full of the highest symbolism, as is generally the case with Meccan Sūras, and this should always be remembered in their interpretation.

C. 256.—Man was evolved out of nothing, and through low (lxxvi. 1-31.) Beginnings; but he was given Insight
And Understanding. God showed him the Way;
And if man doth wilfully reject the Right,
Man but chooses Chains and Yokes and a Blazing Fire within his own soul. Not so
The Devotees of Right: they attain
The Mystic Fountain of Kafūr:
For, purely out of love for God,
They do good to God's Creatures, and serve them.
The Light of Beauty and Joy will be
On them. In full felicity and honour
Will they live in the garden of Delights, and share
In the Banquet—the Presence and Glory Divine!

The Righteous are patient in Constant Devotion: God's Way is open to all: whosoever Has the Will, may attain to the Perfect Goal.

Sūra LXXVI.

Dahr, or Time. or Insan, or Man.

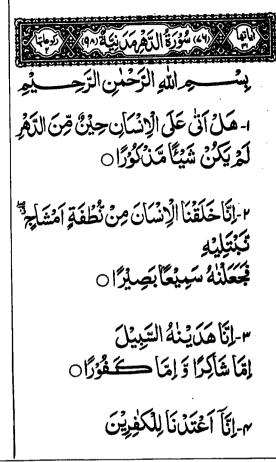

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. That as there not been 5830

  Over Man a long period

  Of Time, 5831 when he was

  Nothing—(not even) mentioned?
- 2. Verily We created
  Man from a drop
  Of mingled sperm, 5832
  In order to try him:
  So We gave him (the gifts).
  Of Hearing and Sight.
- 3. We showed him the Way:
  Whether he be grateful
  Or ungrateful (rests 5818)
  On his will).
- 4. Kor the Rejecters We have prepared

5830. The undoubted fact is mentioned in the form of a question, to get the assent of man. It is certain that the physical world existed long before man was ever heard of or mentioned, as geological records prove. It is also true that the spiritual world existed long before man came on the scene: see ii, 30-31. Man is here taken in a generic sense.

5831. Dahr is Time as a whole, or for a long period. Time used to be deified by the Pagan Arabs, as explained in the Introduction to this Sūra. An analogy can be found in the Greek ideas connected with Chronos or Kronos, themselves a blend of different myths. Kronos (or Time), they said, was the father of Zeus himself.

5832. Mingled: the female ovum has to be fertilised with the male sperm before a new animal can be born. Man as an animal has this humble origin. But he has been given the gift of certain faculties of receiving instruction (typified by Hearing) and of intellectual and spiritual insight (typified by Sight). His life has therefore a meaning: with a certain amount of free-will, he is to be God's vicegerent on earth (ii. 30). But he must be trained and tried, and that is the whole problem of human life.

5833. Besides the gift of the faculties, Man has been shown the Way by means of Revelation, through men of the highest spiritual standing. If he is grateful, he will accept Guidance, be of the Righteous, and join the company of the Blessed. If not, he rejects his destiny, puts chains round himself, thus losing his freedom, yokes round himself, thus burdening himself with sin, and gets into the Blazing Fire of Punishment, which scorches his inmost being. See next verse. His choice rests on his will.

Chains, Yokes, and A Blazing Fire. 5834

- 5. As to the Righteous, They shall drink
  Of a Cup (of Wine)
  Mixed with Kafur,—5835
- 6. A Fountain where
  The Devotees of God
  Do drink, making it
  Flow in unstinted abundance.
- 7. And they fear a Day
  Whose evil flies far and wide. 5886
- 8. And they feed, for the love Of God, the indigent, The orphan, and the captive,—5839

سَلْسِلُاوُ آغُلُلُا وَسَعِيْرًا ٥

ه-إِنَّ الْاَبْرُارِيَشُرَبُونَ مِنْ كَايِس كَانَ مِزَاجُهَا كَانُوْرًا ٥

٧-عَيْنَا يَشُرُبُ بِهَا عِبَادُ اللهِ

٥-يُونُونَ بِالنَّنَ رِ وَ يَخَافُونَ يَوْمًا كَانَ شَرُّهُ مُسْتَطِيْرًا ۞ ٨-وَيُطُعِمُونَ الطَّعَامَ عَلَى حُبِّتِهِ مِسْكِيئًا وَ يَبَيْمُا وَ آسِيْرًا ۞

5835. Kāfār is literally Camphor. Symbolically it represents a fountain in the Realms of Bliss. It is a seasoning added to the Cup of pure, beatific Wine, which causes no intoxication (lvi. 18-19), but stands for all that is wholesome, agreeable, and refreshing. Camphor is cool and refreshing, and is given as a soothing tonic in Eastern medicine. In minute doses its odour and flavour are also agreeable.

5836. They: i e. the Righteous: they are known in the present life by the virtues symbolically described in verses 7-10, and in the life of the Hereafter they will enjoy the Bliss symbolically described in verses 11-22.

5837. Cf. xxii. 29. The vows must be vows of spiritual service, which of course includes service to humanity, such as is mentioned in the next verse. They are Devotees of God, and they must perform all vows and contracts (v. 1 and n. 682). Vows of the Pagan sort, savouring of a sort of "bribe" to the Deity, are not approved.

5838. That is, they prepare for the Judgment to come, where the effects of Sin will not be transitory but far-reaching.

5839. The captive: when taken literally, it refers to the old state of things when captives of war had to earn their own food, or their own redemption; even ordinary prisoners in jail for criminal offences often starved unless food was provided for them by private friends or from their own earnings. But there is a further symbolic meaning, which applies to the indigent, the orphans, and the captives, viz., those who are so in a spiritual sense: those who have no mental or moral resources, or have no one to look after them, or are held down in social or moral or economic captivity. They hunger for spiritual food, or perhaps their appetite is deadened, but the Righteous understand and supply their real needs. It has also been held that "captives" include dumb animals who are under subjection to man; they must be properly fed, housed, and looked after; and the righteous man does not forget them.

- 9. (Saying), "We feed you For the sake of God alone: No reward do we desire From you, nor thanks. 5840
- 10. "We only fear a Day
  Of distressful Wrath
  From the side of our Lord." 5811
- 11. But God will deliver
  Them from the evil
  Of that Day, and will
  Shed over them a Light 5842
  Of Beauty and
  A (blissful) Joy.
- 12. And because they were Patient and constant, He will Reward them with a Garden And (garments of) silk. 5843
- 13. Reclining in the (Garden)
  On raised thrones, 5814
  They will see there neither
  The sun's (excessive heat)
  Nor (the moon's) excessive cold.5845
- 14. And the shades of the (Garden)
  Will come low over them,
  And the bunches (of fruit),
  There, will hang low
  In humility. 6846

٩-اِنْمَا نُطْعِمُكُوْ لِوَجْهِ اللهِ لَا نُرِيْنُ مِنْكُوْرِجَزَآءٌ وَلَا شُكُوْرًا ٥

5840. These words need not be actually uttered. They express the true motives of pious and unpretentious Charity.

<sup>5841.</sup> It is a Day of Wrath for sin and evil. But the truly righteous are not self-righteous. They have the fear of God in their minds: they know they are human, and they fear lest they should be found wanting in the sight of God. But God in His Mercy gives them a bountiful Reward.

<sup>5845.</sup> The sun and the moon as we know them will be no longer there. It will be a new world on a different plane. But to give us an idea of comfort we recall the excessive heat of the sun especially in tropical climates, and the excessive cold of the moon especially in northern climates, and we negative them both. That is, the temperature metaphorically will be just that delightful one that is most agreeable to our sensations as we know them now. The moon is not mentioned, but Zamharīr (excessive cold) is sometimes used for the moon.

<sup>5846.</sup> Without sun and moon there will of course be no shade in the literal sense of the word. But for full comfort in the metaphor, there will be sheltering shade for rest and change from whatever light there be. But the whole idea in the metaphor here is that of humility. Even the shadows show humility: cf. xiii. 15. So does the fruit in hanging low for man. Man has now reached the height of his dignity.

5847. Cf. xliii. 71, where "dishes and goblets of gold" are mentioned. As the whole thing is symbolical, gold or silver, or crystal does not matter. The idea conveyed is that of rarity, preciousness, and spotless splendour.

5848. That is, silver polished and white, and shining like crystal.

5849. Cf. above, lxxvi. 5-6, and n. 5835, where the Cup of  $K\bar{a}f\bar{u}r$  (Camphor) was mentioned for coolness and refreshment to the Righteous, who had just passed the great Event of Judgment. The second stage is symbolised by verses 12-14, when they enter the Garden in Garments of Silk, and find that their former humility in the probationary life is rewarded with high honour in the new world they have entered. The third stage is in verses 15-21, where they settle down in Bliss, with Garments of fine silk and heavy brocades, with Ornaments and Jewels, with an ordered Feast of set service, and the Cup of  $Zanjab\bar{\imath}l$ . This word literally means Ginger. In Eastern medicine Ginger is administered to give warmth to the body and zest to the taste. Metaphorically, this is appropriate for the Royal Feast which is now figured forth.

5850. This fountain Salsabīl brings us another metaphorical idea. The word literally means: "Seek the Way". The Way is now open to the presence of the Most High. The Banquet is spread. Get thyself ready. It is a "Realm Magnificent" (verse 20) in a new spiritual world.

5851. Cf. lvi. 17, and n. 5231.

5852. Pearls for beauty and splendour: scattered, because they are moving to and fro all round the Banquet.

A Bliss and A Realm Magnificent.

> ٢٠- فَأَصْلِرُ لِعُكْثِمِ مَنْ يَكُ وكا تطغ منهم

٢٥- وَإِذْكُو السَّحَرَ 5853, Cf. xviii. 31. The bracelets are there said to be of gold. But as the whole thing is symbolic to convey the idea of rarity and costliness, either gold or silver serves the purpose of symbolism. See n. 5847 above. 5854. This would seem to be the culmination of the honour which the Blessed receive at the Royal and Divine Banquet. The Wine Pure and Holy is the Sight, metaphorically, in Sufi language, of the Face and Eves of God. The words in the next verse express the sort of speech which will make the Guest a denizen of Heaven.

5855. The Qur-an was being revealed stage by stage as the occasion demanded, and at the date of this Sura it was still one of the earlier stages. Persecution, abuse, and false charges were being levelled against the man of God, but he is bidden to stand firm and do his duty. In a minor degree this applies to all of us who suffer in the cause of Truth.

5856. Three methods of Prayer and Devotion are mentioned: (1) to remember and celebrate the holy name of God always; (2) to spend a part of the night in humble prostration; and (3) to glorify Him in the long hours of a weary night of waiting and watching. As to (1), "morning and evening" means all the waking hours of our life, but in the special hours of morning and evening, the physical world without us, and the inner world within us, combine to make us specially receptive of spiritual influences. "Name" has a mystic meaning. The "name" of God includes His attributes, as a locked golden casket might include priceless jewels. Any one may carry the casket, even though he may not be worthy to handle the jewels. If he carries the casket, he is in potential possession of the jewels, and he hopes some time to get the key which opens the jewels to him. So the tyro, who celebrates the holy name of God, hopes some day to see the "Face" of God and be blessed with the privilege of proximity to His Person. For (2) and (3) see next note.

Of thy Lord morning And evening,

  And glorify Him 5857

  And put away behind them 5858
  A Day (that will be) hard.
- 28. It is We Who created. Them, and We have made Their joints strong; 5869 But, when We will, We can substitute The like of them 5860 By a complete change.
- 29. This is an admonition:
  Whosoever will, let him
  Take a (straight) Path
  To his Lord.
- 30. But ye will not, Except as God wills: 5861

رُبِكَ بُكْرُةً وَآصِيْلًا ﴿

۲۷-وَمِنَ الْيَلِ فَاسْجُنُ لَهُ وُسَبِيّنُهُ لِيَلَا طَوِيْلًا ۞

 ٢٠- اِنَّ هٰنِ ﴿ تَنْ لَكِنَ ﴾
 ٢٠- اِنَّ هٰنِ ﴿ تَنْ لَكِنَ ﴾
 ٢٠- اِنَّ هٰنِ ﴿ تَنْ لَكِنَ إِلَىٰ رَبِّهٖ سَبِيلًا
 ٣- وَمَا تَشَاءُ وَنَ إِلَا اَنْ يَشَاءُ اللهُ *

5857. See last note. (2) Humble prostration to God means some visible mode or symbol of dedication. That is best done at night, when the soul, free from worldly occupations, is alone with its God. (3) The weary hours of a long night are no longer weary, but become full of meaning when we join in concert with the whole Creation, which glorifies God: lvii, 1.

5858. Fleeting life: Cf. lxxv. 20. They: the immediate reference was to the Pagan Quraish; the general reference is to the Unbelievers of all ages. They reject, or at least put away the thought of, a Hereafter, a Day that will be hard, for the easy pleasures of a fleeting life.

5859. God has not only created men, but "made their joints strong", i.e. given them the power and strength to withstand the temptations of Evil and stand firmly in the Path of Right.

5860. If, in spite of God's loving care, any particular men or group of men, misuse their powers or wilfully disobey God's Law, God will set them aside, and substitute others in their place, with like powers. God's gifts are free, but let no one think that he can monopolise them or misuse them without being called to answer for the trust. And the man of God must not be discouraged by the whole world being at some moment completely against him. God can in a moment make a complete change. Either the same men that fought against him will be his zealous adherents, or another generation will spring up, which will carry the flag of Righteousness to victory. God's Will and Plan work in their own good time.

5861. Man in himself is weak; he must seek God's Grace; without it he can do nothing; with it he can do all. For God knows all things, and His wisdom comprehends the good of all.

For God is full of Knowledge and Wisdom.

31. He will admit

To His Mercy Whom He will; 5863

But the wrong-doers,—

For them has He prepared
A grievous Penalty.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXXVII (Mursalāt).

This Sūra belongs to the early Meccan period, somewhere near to S. lxxv. (Qiyāmat). The theme is somewhat similar. It denounces the horrors of the Hereafter, for those who rejected Truth. The refrain, "Ah woe, that Day, to the Rejecters of Truth!" which occurs ten times in its fifty verses, or, on an average, once in every five verses, indicates the leitmotif.

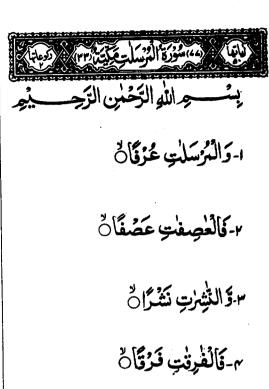

C. 257.—The winds in the world of nature are types (lxxvii. 1-50.) Of God's Bounty and Power: they gently bring The beneficent rain, and when roused to wrath, They clean the world and wipe out Infection. So works God's Revelation, in sunshine And storm. It will root out Evil, and restore True values at Judgment. Truly terrible Will be that Day for the evil ones. It will be a Day of Sorting out: Ah woe, that Day, to the Rejecters of Truth! Will man not learn from his own little story, Or from nature around him? The Blazing Fire Will be indeed an enveloping Punishment. How dreadful the contrast with the Bliss of the Righteous! Learn, ye, therefore, Humility, and approach God's Throne in Repentance and Earnest Endeavour.

S ra LXXVII.

Mursalat, or Those Sent Forth.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. Sy the (Winds) Sent Forth 6863 One after another (To man's profit); 5864
- 2. Which then blow violently In tempestuous Gusts, 5865
- 3. And scatter (things)
  Far and wide;
- 4. Then separate them, One from another,

5863. This highly mystical Sūra begins with an appeal to five things, as pointing to the substantive statement in verse 7, that the Day of Justice and Judgment is bound to come, and we must prepare for it. It is difficult to translate, but easy to understand, if we remember that a triple thread of allegory runs through this passage (verses 1-7). The five things or phases, which will be presently considered in detail, refer to (a) Winds in the physical world, (b) Angels in the spiritual world, and (c) Prophets in the human world, connecting it with the spiritual world.

5864. Understanding the reference to Winds, we can see that they are powerful factors in the government of the physical world. (1) They come gently as harbingers of the blessings of rain and fertility (xv. 22; xxx. 48); but (2) they can come as violent tornadoes, uprooting and destroying (li. 41-42); (3) they can scatter seeds far and wide, and (4) they can separate chaff from grain, or clear the air from epidemics; and (5) they literally carry sound, and therefore Messages, and metaphorically they are instrumental in making God's Revelation accessible to hearers, whether by way of justification or repentance for the Penitent, or warning for unrepentant Sinners. All these things point to the power and goodness of God, and we are asked to believe that His promise of Mercy and Justice in the Hereafter is indeed true.

Cf. this passage with li. 1-6 (Zāriyāt) with which it has many affinities,

5865. If we understand the reference to be, not to Winds, but to Angels, they are agencies in the spiritual world, which carry out similar functions, changing and revolutionising the face of the world. (1) They come softly, on beneficent errands of Mercy; (2) they are charged with the mission of punishment and destruction for sin. as in the case of the two angels who came to Lut (xv. 57-66); (3) they distribute God's Mercies as the Winds distribute good seeds; (4) they sort out the good from the evil among men; and (5) they are the agency through which God's Messages and Revelations are conveyed to the Prophets (see No. 5 in the last note).

- 5. Then spread abroad A Message, 8866
- 6. Whether of Justification Or of Warning;—
- 7. Assuredly, what ye are Promised must come to pass.
- 8. Mhen when the stars Become dim; 5867
- 9. When the heaven Is cleft asunder;
- 10. When the mountains are Scattered (to the winds) as dust;
- 11. And when the apostles
  Are (all) appointed a time
  (To collect);—5868
- 12. For what Day are these (Portents) deferred?

٥- قَالْمُلْقِيْتِ ذِكْرًا لُ

١١- وَإِذَا الرُّسُلُ أَقِّتَتُ ٥

١٢- لِأَيِّ يَوْمِ أَجِعَلَتْ الْ

5866. If we understand the reference to Prophets or Messengers of God, or the verses of Revelation which would be particularly appropriate for verses 5-6, we also get a satisfactory solution of the Allegory. (1) The Prophets have followed one another in a series: the verses of the Qur-ān came, one after another as needed; in both cases it was for man's spiritual profit; (2) they caused great disturbance in a spiritually decadent world; they pulled down evil institutions root and branch, and substituted new ones; (3) they proclaimed their truths far and wide, without fear and without favour; (4) through them were sorted out men of Faith and rebels against God's Law; and (5) they gave a Message, through which just men were justified through repentance, and evil men were warned of their sins.

Some Commentators take one or other of these allegories, and some apply one allegory to a few of these verses, and another to another few. In my opinion the Allegory is wide enough to comprehend all the meanings which I have sketched. I wish a translation could do justice to those marvellously terse sentences in the original.

5867. Now, in four verses (8-11), we are told, again allegorically, though we can take them literally if we like, the things that will happen in those last days. The lustre of the stars will become dim; in fact they will disappear: cf. lxxxi. 2, and lxxii. 2. The heaven's canopy will be torn asunder: cf. lxxxii. 1, and lxxiii. 18. The mountains will be uprooted and fly about like dust: cf. lxix. 14; lxxxi. 3; etc. All the old landmarks of the physical world as we know it will be swept away.

5868. The Resurrection will be established. In the world which will then have passed away, inspired Prophets had been sent in succession at different times to all nations. Now they will be gathered together in one place before the Judgment-seat to bear witness as to the righteous or the evil ones within their respective spheres of work. Cf. xxxix. 69.

5869. Cf. xxxvii. 21. and n 4047; also xliv. 40, and n. 4718 That will be the Day of Judgment or Day of Decision. Good will then be completely separated from Evil. And the men who rejected Truth and flourished on Falsehood will find that in the world of Realities they will be absolutely nowhere. Hence the refrain of this Sūra, "Ah woe, that Day, to the Rejecters of Truth!" It sounds like a dirge on Sin.

5870. God's Law is always the same. Sin or corruption prepares its own destruction. It was so with the generation of Noah. In Arab tradition it was so with the 'Ad and the Thamud. In our own day we see relics of prehistoric civilisations, in Egypt, Mesopotamia, the Indus Valley, and the Ægean: these were men of wonderful skill and resource, but they went under. If our generations, which pride themselves on their science and skill, desert God's Law, they will be certain to meet the same fate.

5871. Cf. xxxii. 8, n. 3638. Man is ashamed of the process of physical creation, by which he comes into being. Yet he is arrogant in life and neglectful of the Future.

5872. See n. 2873 to xxiii. 13. The silent growth in the mother's womb, and the protection and sustenance which the growing life receives from the life of the mother, are themselves wonders of creation.

م٠- وَيُلُ يَوْمَئِنٍ لِلْهُكُلِّنِ بِينَ

5873. The period roughly of nine months and ten days is subject to many adjustments. In fact throughout our pre-natal as well as post-natal life there are wonderful and nicely-balanced adjustments of which we are ourselves unconscious. Should we not turn in love and gratitude to God our Creator?

5874. Perhaps the life in the womb, in relation to the life after birth, is an allegory for our probationary life on earth in relation to the eternal Life to come. Perhaps, also, our state when we are buried in the tomb suggests an allegory to the life in the womb, in relation to the life in the Hereafter.

5875. What a wonderful parable! The earth is a place where death and life, decay and growth and decay, green grass, stubble, and fuel, corruption and purification jostle together,—one often leading to the other. The drama which we see with our own eyes in this world should enable us to appreciate the wonders in the spiritual world where the despised and rejected receive the highest honour, Lazarus rests in Abraham's bosom, and the Pharaoh is led in chains for his arrogance and his sin.

5876. See n. 2038 to xvi. 15. The solid mountains are frequently referred to: cf xiii. 3. The parable here is that the mountains are of hard, solid rock, and yet they act as sponges to collect, store up, and filter sweet and wholesome water, which on account of their altitude they are able to distribute by gravity to the lower, dry land by means of rivers or springs. Any one who has seen the parched Meccan valleys and the delicious springs in the mountains around, or the Zubaida Canal, which is the main source of Mecca's water-supply, will appreciate the aptness of the metaphor, but it applies to any country, though not to so striking a degree. If the wisdom and power of God can do such things before your eyes, how can you reject His teaching of a still more wonderful future Life?

- 29. (Yt will be said:)
  "Depart ye to that
  Which ye used to reject

- 32. "Indeed it throws about Sparks (huge) as Forts, 6878
- 33. "As if there were

٣٠- وَيُكُ يُوْمَئِنِ لِلْمُكَذِّبِ إِنْ ٥

ه-هنا يُؤمُر

5877. The Sinners, instead of reposing in cool shades, will only see the blazing Fire. The only shadow they will see will be that of Smoke, ascending in three columns, right, left, and above, i.e., completely enveloping them. But it will give no comfort or coolness. On the contrary, it will contain huge sparks. The triple column may be explained in allegory by the black stain they threw on their life by the misuse of their faculties—converting Love into Hate, Understanding into Superstition and Folly, and Spiritual Insight into Worldly Greed, The Blaze of their Sins is cumulative: the columns of smoke show the kinds of sin, as, in the physical fire, different kinds of fuel give different kinds of smoke.

5878. Qaşr: Fort, big building, palace. An alternative reading is Qaşar, plural of Qaşarat (-un), meaning bundles of wood used for fuel: Ibn 'Abbās apud Bukhāri. I almost prefer this latter reading.

5879. The yellow sparks flying swiftly one after another suggest a string of camels marching swiftly, such as the Arabs of Nejd and central Arabia are so proud of. There is a double allegory. It refers not only to the colour and the rapid succession of sparks, but to the vanity of worldly pride, as much as to say: "your fine yellow camels in which you took such pride in the world are but sparks that fly away and even sting you in the Hereafter!" Smoke with sparks may also assume fantastic shapes like long-necked camels.

5880. They will be dumbfounded; i.e. (when read with the next verse), they will not be in a position to put forward any valid defence or plea. Facts will speak too plainly against them. They might perversely try to deny false worship: vi. 23: but their own tongues and limbs will bear witness against them: xxiv. 24. Nor does the fighting out or settling of doctrinal disputes in the Hereafter (xxxix 31) amount to putting forward pleas in defence.

5881. We may suppose this as spoken primarily to the Quraish who were plotting against the Prophet. You may use all your wisdom and that of your ancestors, but you will not be able to defeat God or His Plan. See next verse.

5882. The plots against the holy Prophet were plots against God's Truth, and therefore against God. Can any one hope to profit by such plots? Can any one defeat God's Plan and Purpose? Let them try. They will only ruin themselves, as the Pagan leaders did. There can only be pity for such men. What will be their state in the Hereafter? "Ah woe, that Day, to the Rejecters of God's Truth!"

5883. This is in contrast to the triple shade of smoke and sin for the sinners, which neither gives them coolness nor protects them from the Blazing Fire. In mystic lore the Shades and Springs of Heaven are also interpreted allegorically. The Shade. ie. Covering, of God's Good Pleasure, will be the greatest Boon of all, and the Spring of God's Love will be inexhaustible.

- 42. And (they shall have)
  Fruits,—all they desire. [88]
- 43. "Eat ye and drink ye

  For that ye worked
  (Righteousness). 5885
- 44. Thus do We certainly Reward the Doers of Good.
- 45. Ah woe, that Day,

  To the Rejecters of Truth!
- 46. ( ye Unjust!)

  Eat ye and enjoy yourselves
  (But) a little while, 6886

  For that ye are Sinners.
- 47. Ah woe, that Day,

  To the Rejecters of Truth!
- 48. And when it is said
  To them, "Prostrate yourselves!"
  They do not so. 5887

٣٧- وَ فَوَاكِهَ مِنَا يَشُتُهُونَ ٥ ٣٣- كُلُوًا وَاشْرَبُواْ هَنِيَّاً بِمَا كُنُ تُمُ تَعْمَلُونَ ٥

5884. Fruits: see n. 4671 to xliii. 73, where the allegorical meaning of "fruit" and "eating" is explained.

5885. The fruits of righteousness are contentment in this life and the supreme Bliss in the next.

5886. "Eat" is of course symbolical of having the good things of life in this world. It may be that they are only given for a trial. Because their minds and wishes run to wrong things, the opportunities for wrong are multiplied, as the impetus for good or for evil increases progressively. They are asked to believe and repent. But if they do not, they are to be pitied, even for the good things of this life, for they will come to an evil End in the Hereafter.

5887. Prostration is a symbol of humility and a desire to get nearer to God by Prayer and a good life. Those who refuse to adopt this Path are to be pitied: how will they fare at Judgment?

1670

49. Ah woe, that Day,

To the Rejecters of Truth!

50. Then what Message, 29 After that, 5888 30 Will they believe in?

<sup>5888. &</sup>quot;That" may refer to verse 48: they were given plain and clear Guidance, and they refused to accept it: after that what kind of Message will they accept? The Guidance referred to is obviously that of Islam or the Qur-an.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA LXXVIII (Nabaa).

This beautiful Meccan Sūra is not quite so early as the last (S. İxxvii) nor quite so late as S. lxxvi, but nearer in time to the latter.

It sets forth God's loving care in a fine nature-passage, and deduces from it the Promise of the Future, when Evil will be destroyed and Good will come to its own; and invites all who have the will, to seek refuge with their Lord.

C. 258.—The Great News for man, in his spiritual Destiny, (lxxviii. 1-40.) Is the Judgment to come, the Day of Sorting Out. Do not the Power, the Goodness, and the Justice Of God reveal themselves in all nature?-The Panorama around us. the voice in our souls. And the harmony between heaven and earth? That Day is sure to arrive at its time Appointed, when behold! the present order Then will the Fruits Will pass away. Of Evil appear, and the Fruits of Righteousness. God's blessings will be more than the merits of men; But who can argue with the Fountain of Grace? And who can prevent the course of Justice? Let us then, before it becomes too late, Betake ourselves to our Lord Most Gracious!

Sūra LXXVIII.

Nabaa, or The (Great) News.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. © oncerning what Are they disputing?
- 2. Concerning the Great News, 5889
- 3. About which they Cannot agree.

- 5. Verily, verily they shall Soon (come to) know!
- 6. The ave We not made

  Expanse,
- 7. And the mountains as pegs?

5889. Great News: usually understood to mean the News or Message of the Resurrection or the Hereafter, about which there were various schools of thought among the Jews and Christians and other nations. There is practically nothing about the Resurrection in the Old Testament, and the Jewish sect of Sadducees even in the time of Christ denied the Resurrection altogether. The Pagan ideas of a future life—if any—varied from place to place and from time to time. Even in the early Christian Church, as we learn from Paul's First Epistle to the Corinthians, there were contentions in that little community (I. Corinthians, i. 11), and some definitely denied the resurrection of the dead (ib., xv. 12).

Great News may also be translated Great Message or a Message Supreme. as I have translated at xxxviii. 67. In that case it would refer to the Qur-ān, or the Message of Revelation, or the Message of the Holy Prophet, about which there was great contention in those days. As this Message also lays great stress on the Day of Judgment and the Resurrection, the practical result by either mode of interpretation amounts to the same.

5890. See n. 2038 to xvi. 15. Cf. also xiii, 3 and xv. 19. The spacious expanse of the earth may be compared to a carpet, to which the mountains may metaphorically be supposed to act as pegs. The Signs of God are thus enumerated: the great panorama of outer nature (verses 6-7); the creation of Man in pairs, with the succession of rest and work fitting in with the succession of night and day (verses 8-11); the firmaments above, with their splendid lights (verses 12-13); and the clouds and rain and abundant harvests, which knit sky and earth and man together (verses 14-16). These point to God, and God's Message points to the Future Life.

- And (have We not) created You in pairs,
- 9. And made your sleep For rest,
- 10. And made the night As a covering, 5891
- 11. And made the day
  As a means of subsistence? 1862
- 12. And (have We not)
  Built over you
  The seven firmaments, 5893.
- 13. And placed (therein)
  A Light of Splendour? 5894
- 14. And do We not send down From the clouds water In abundance, 5893
- 15. That We may produce
  Therewith corn and vegetables,
- 16. And gardens of luxurious growth?

١١- وَجُنْتِ ٱلْفَافَا لَ

5891. The darkness of the night is as a covering. Just as a covering protects us from exposure to cold or heat, so this covering gives us spiritual respite from the buffets of the material world, and from the tiring activities of our own inner exertions. The rest in sleep (in verse 9) is supplemented by the covering of the night with which we are provided by God.

5892. "Subsistence" in English only partly covers the idea of ma'āsh, which includes every kind of life activity. The Day is specially illuminated, so runs the figure of speech, in order that these life-activities of all kinds may be fully exercised.

5893. See n. 5526 to lxv. 12 and n. 2876 to xxiii. 17, also xxxvii 6 and notes there.

5894. That is, the sun. C1, xxv. 61; xxxiii. 46 (where it is used metaphorically for the holy Prophet); and lxxi. 16.

5895. Note how the evidences of God and His beneficence are set out in four groups. (1) Look to external nature on the earth around you (verses 6-7); (2) your own nature, physical, mental and spiritual (verses 8-11); (3) the starry heavens, and the glory of the sun (verses 12-13); and (4) the interdependence of earth, air, and sky in the cycle of water, clouds, rain, corn and gardens, all serving in their several ways to further the whole plan of the World as it affects us. Can you not then believe that a Creator who does this will sort out Good and Evil on an appointed Day with real justice and power?

- 1674
- 17. We erily the Day

- 20. And the mountains Shall vanish, as if They were a mirage.

 ١٧- النَّظَا غِيْنَ مَا بًا خُ
 ١٧٠- النِشِيْنَ فِيْمَا اَحُقَابًا خُ

5897. The angel charged with the sounding of the Trumpet is Isrāfīl. It will herald Judgment. Cf. 1. 20; also xxxix, 68, and n. 4343; and lxix, 13, n. 5648.

5898. A sign that the present order of things will have ceased to exist, and a new world will have come into being. Such a figure applies to the heavens in this verse and to the earth in the next verse. The mystery of what is beyond the heavens will have vanished through the doors which will then be opened. The solid mountains, as we suppose them to be, will have vanished like an unsubstantial mirage.

5899. Hell, the embodiment of evil, is lying in wait like an ambush for every one. We should be on our guard. For the transgressors, those who have wilfully rebelled against God, it will be a definite destination, from which there is no return, except, it may be, after ages, i.e. unless God so wills: Cf. vi. 128, and n. 951.

5900. Cf. x. 4, and n. 1390; also xxxviii. 57, and n. 4213.

- 29. And all things have We Preserved on record.
- 30. "So taste ye (the fruits Of your deeds); For no increase 5903 Shall We grant you, Except in Punishment."

SECTION 2.

- 31. We erily for the Righteous There will be A fulfilment of (The Heart's) desires; 5904
- 32. Gardens enclosed, and Grapevines: 5905

٢٧-جَزَآءُ وِفَاقًا ٥

٧- إِنَّهُمُ كَانُوا لَا يُرْجُونَ حِسَابًا ٥

٣٠- وَكُنَّ بُوْا بِإِيٰتِنَا كِنَّا ابَّا هُ

٢٩- و كُلُّ شَيْءَ أَحْصَيْدً

فَكُنُ ثُنِيْ يُكُورُ إِلَّا عَنَا إِلَّا خَالًا خُ

٣٠- حَكَائِقَ وَأَغْنَاكًا ٥

5901. Their transgressions go on progressively as they refuse to repent and turn to God. The fire of misery begins to blaze forth more and more flercely, and there is nothing to cool that blaze; their food and drink themselves are tainted with the disorder of contradictory elements,-boiling hot drink, with intensely cold, murky, and disgusting fluids. These are fitting punishments for their crimes, which are inconsistent with the pure and gentle mould in which God had originally cast their nature.

5902. It was not isolated acts, but a continued course of evil conduct; they repudiated the moral and spiritual responsibility for their lives; and they impudently called Truth itself by false names and disdained God's Signs, which were vouchsafed for their instruction. These are not mere impressions; these are hard facts "preserved on record", so that every deed can have its due weight in making up the account.

5903. Just as there is a progressive deterioration in the sinner's soul when he surrenders himself to evil, so there is a progressive increase in the Penalty which he suffers.

5904. This is true Salvation. It is not only safety and felicity, but the attainment of the final Goal, the supreme Achievement, the Fulfilment of the highest in human nature, the satisfaction of the true and pure desires of the heart,—seeing the "Face of God". See n. 4733 to xliv. 57.

5905. The supreme Achievement, or the Fulfilment of the Heart's Desires, spoken of in the last verse, is now described in three symbols (verses 32-34), as further explained by two negatives (verse 35). The first symbol is the enclosed Fruit-Garden, and the symbol taken for the fruit is the Grape. As shown in paragraphs 8-10 of Appendix XII following S. liv, the Garden in its many aspects is the most frequent symbol adopted for Bliss. Here the symbolism is further particularised. The most carefully-tended Garden is a Fruit-Garden, with walls all round to protect it, and the most characteristic fruit mentioned here is the luscious Grape, both because it is a Fruit, and because it yields wine-the pure Wine of divine Love.

5906. The second symbol is Companions of Equal Age, Maidens or Virgins, symbols of purity, grace, beauty, innocence, truth, and sympathy. See paragraph 12 of Appendix XII. The feminine itself here symbolises these qualities, and such will be the Companions for those who have been in this world either women or men, for there are no separate heavens for them. The stress here is laid on "Equal Age", for only by that symbol can complete sympathy and understanding be figured. As heaven will be "beyond the flight of Time, beyond the reign of Death", age or youth has no meaning there except as tokens of temperaments, tastes, and feelings, all of which will have their sacred Fulfilment, 5907. The third symbol, the Cup, takes us partly to the Grapes mentioned in verse 32 and partly to the Springs or Rivers mentioned with the Garden in so many places. See paragraphs 10 and 13 of Appendix XII. Full to the Brim brings to our mind the unbounded Bounty of God, 5908. The explanation of the three symbols is made further clear by the two negatives. (1) There will be no talk of vanities, such as are usually associated on this earth with pleasant Gardens Companions of equal age, or generous Cups flowing in Assemblies. (2) There will be no Untruth or Falsehood, Insincerity or Hollowness there. Everything will be on a plane of absolute Truth and Reality.

5909. The Recompense is not exactly a Reward in proportion to merit, but is rather a Gift or a Bounty from the Merciful,—a Gift most amply sufficient to satisfy all desire on that plane of purity. See paragraphs 3-6 of Appendix XII for a discussion of the doctrine of Rewards and Punishments. "A Gift (amply) sufficient" might almost be translated: a liberal and bountiful gift. Cf. the phrase, A'tā fa aḥsaba—he gave generously, or bountifully.

5910. No one has the right or the power to argue with God about the Gifts which He may bestow on His devotees beyond their deserts, (verse 36 above) or about the Penalty which His justice may inflict for sin or wrong-doing. He is high above all Creation. But He is also Most Gracious. Therefore He may permit special Dignitaries, of honour in His eyes, to plead for sinners, but they will only plead in truth and righteousness; see verse 38 below.

- 38. Me Day that
  The Spirit ** and the angels
  Will stand forth in ranks,
  None shall speak
  Except any who is Permitted by (God) Most Gracious,
  And he will say
  What is right. ** 12.2.**
- 39. That Day will be
  The sure Reality: 5913
  Therefore, whoso will, let him
  Take a (straight) Return
  To his Lord!
- 40. Verily, We have warned you Of a Penalty near,—<sup>5916</sup>
  The Day when man will See (the Deeds) which His hands have sent forth, And the Unbeliever will say, "Woe unto me! Would that I were (mere) dust!" <sup>5915</sup>

٣٠- يَوْمَرِيَقُوْمُ الرُّوْمُ وَالْمَلَوَكَةُ صَفَّا الْأُ لَا يَتَكَكُلُمُوْنَ الِا مَنْ اَذِنَ لَهُ الرِّحْمِنُ وَ قَالَ صَوَابًا ۞

٣٥- ذلك اليؤمُر الحَقُّ * فَكُنُ شَاءَ التَّحَنَ إلى رَبِّهِ مَا بًا ۞

٣-إِنَّا اَنْنَارُنْكُوْعَنَابًا قِرِيْبًا ۗ يُوْمَرِينُفُلُوالْنَرُءُ مَا قَكَّامَتْ يَـٰكُهُ وَيَقُوْلُ الْكُفِرُ يِلْيُنَتَنِىٰ كُنْتُ تُكْرِبًا ۚ

<sup>5911.</sup> The Spirit: see n. 5677 to lxx. 4. Some Commentators understand by "the Spirit" the angel Gabriel as he is charged specially with bringing Messages to human apostles: see xxi. 193, n. 3224. Or perhaps he may be considered the chief of the angels. But it is better to take a wider meaning.—the souls of men collectively as they rise to the Judgment-Seat of God.

<sup>5912.</sup> See n. 5910 above. No one has the right to speak before the Judgment-Seat; but certain great Dignitaries may be given permission to plead for mercy for sinners, and they will only so plead if the mercy is not nugatory of God's universal justice.

<sup>5913.</sup> Cf. lxix. 1 and n. 5635. Judgment is sure to come, and Truth will then be free from all veils. Why should not man, therefore, now in this life of probation, turn back to God, and understand and do His Will?

<sup>5914.</sup> Is Judgment very near? Yes. There are three stages of Judgment. (1) Many of our sins and wrong-doings find their penalty in this very life. It may not be an open or striking event, but it corrodes the soul and conscience all the time. Let us therefore turn back to God in repentance and ask for forgiveness. (2) Where the Penalty is not actually perceived or is not visible in this life, Death is considered the Lesser Judgment for each individual soul: see n. 5822 to lxxv. 22. Death may come to anyone at any time, and we must all be ready for it. (3) Then there is the final Judgment, when the whole of the present order passes away, and there is a New World. Time as we know it will not exist. Fifty thousand years as we reckon now will be but as a Day: lxx. 4. According to those standards even this Final Judgment is quite near, and we must prepare for it. For it will be too late then for repentance.

<sup>5915.</sup> The Unbeliever, the Rejecter of God, will then find himself in a world of absolute Reality, in which there will be no place for him. He will neither live nor die: xx. 74. He will wish that he could be reduced to nothingness, but even that would not be possible.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXXIX (Nazi'āt).

This is also an early Meccan Sūra, of about the same date as the last, and deals with the mystic theme of Judgment from the point of view of Pride and its Fall. The parable of Pharaoh occupies a central place in the argument: for he said, "I am your Lord Most High", and perished with his followers.

C. 259.—Never can Evil escape God's order

(laxix. 1-46.) And law: His angels are ever present

To bring the wicked to their bearings
And they ever strive and press forward to bring Comfort, succour, and God's Mercy to those Who seek it. Then will come the Day
When the proud shall be humbled, though they Deny the coming Judgment. What happened
To Pharaoh? He flouted God's Message specially
Sent to him, and arrogantly proclaimed:

"I am your Lord Most High!" He perished
In this life and will answer for his deeds in the next.

But can ye not see, O men, the mighty
Works of God in the heavens and on earth?—
The darksome splendour of the Night with its Stars,
And the daylight splendour of the Sun?—
How the earth, with its spacious expanse and its mountains,
Yields moisture and pasture, and feeds and sustains
Men and cattle, through God's wise Providence?
Ah! transgress not all bounds and earn not the Fire
Of Punishment, but fear God and His Judgment,
And prepare for the Garden of Perpetual Bliss.
Delay not! The Judgment is sure, and it's nigh!

Sūra LXXIX.

Nazi'at, or Those Who Tear Out.

In the name of God, Most Grac ous,
Most Merciful

- 1. By the (angels) 5916
  Who tear out
  (The souls of the wicked)
  With violence: 5917
- 2. By those who gently Draw out (the souls Of the blessed); 5918
- 3. And by those who glid:
  Along (on errands of mercy), 5919
- 4. Then press forward As in a race,
- 5. Then arrange to do
  (The Commands of their Lord).—

١-وَالنَّزِعْتِ غَرْتًا ٥

۱- و النشطت نَشُطًا ل

٣- وَالسِّيحْتِ سَبْعًا نّ

٣- فَالسِّيقْتِ سَبْقًا لِ

ه-فالمُكربِّرتِ أَمْرًا ٥

5916. The beginning of this Sūra may be compared with the beginning of S, lxxvii. A translator's task in such passages is extremely difficult. He has to do with highly mystical symbols expressed in elliptical language suitable for mysticism, and he has to render them in another language with words of precision intelligible to readers, It is therefore necessary for him to put in part of the Commentary in the Translation in such cases.

The evidence of five things is here invoked in verses 1-5, in order to lead to the conclusion in verse 6 and those following. Or, if we treat verses 3-5 as three stages of the same thing, there are three things to be considered in five stages. What are they? And what is the conclusion? See the following notes.

5917. There is much difference of opinion among the Commentators as to the five things or beings mentioned in these verses. I follow the general opinion in my interpretation, which is that angels are referred to as the agency which in their dealings with mankind show clearly God's Justice. Power, and Mercy, which again point to the Judgment to come, as a certainty which none can evade. The first point, referred to in this verse, is that the souls of the wicked are loath to part with their material body at death, but their will will not count: their souls will be wrenched out into another world. Who will then deny Resurrection and Judgment?

5918. The second point is that in contrast with the wicked, the souls of the blessed will be drawn out gently to their new life. They will be ready for it. In fact death for them will be a release from the grosser incidents of bodily sense. To them the approach of Judgment will be welcome.

5919. At all times there are errands of mercy and blessing and errands of justice, which the angels are prompt to execute by order of God. There are three features of this, thus giving the third, fourth, and fifth points. (3) Their movement is compared to that of gliding or swimming (sabhan). In xxi. 33 this verb is applied to the motion of the celestial bodies: they all "swim along, each in its rounded course". Cf. Shakespeare, Merchant of Venice: "There's not an orb which thou behold'st, But in his motion like an angel sings, Still quiring to the young-eyed cherubims". (4) In hurrying on their errands the angels press forth as in a race. (5) And thus they promptly execute the orders of their Lord.

5920. The evidence of the wonderful working of the spiritual world having been invoked in the first five verses, the conclusion is now drawn and stated. It is certain that one great Day (to be taken in a spiritual sense as the Day of Account), the whole world as we now see it in our lower life will be in violent revolution. It will be like an earthquake destroying all land-marks. But that will affect only things subject to change: they will suffer violent convulsions as a preliminary to their disappearance. But God and His divine order will not change: His "Face" abideth for ever, full of Majesty, Bounty, and Honour (lv. 27).

- 5921. The Commotion will be repeated again and again in the transitory world, to make way for the new world that will then come into being.
- 5922. All hearts will be in agitation: those of the blessed ones to see the beginning of the fulfilment of their Lord's Promise; those of the Rejecters of God for fear of His just Judgment.
- 5923. Similarly all eyes will be cast down: those of the blessed ones in humble modesty, and those of the Rejecters of God, in utter humiliation, sorrow, and shame, for their arrogance and insolence in their probationary life
- 5924. The Unbelievers say now, in their arrogance, insolence, and mocking defiance: "Surely death here is the end of all things! When we are dead and buried, and our bones are rotten, how can we be restored again?" They add, "If that were so, then we should indeed be in a turn of dreadful luck! Instead of gaining by the Resurrection, we should be in terrible loss (with our rotten bones)!" They mean this in biting mockery. But there will indeed be an Account taken, and they will indeed be in a terrible loss, for they will go to perdition!

5925. Judgment will be inaugurated with a single compelling Cry. Cf. xxxvii 19. See also xxxvi. 29 and 49, where the single mighty Blast seems to refer to the sinners being cut off in this life and plunged into the other world where they will be further judged, and xxxvi. 53, where the final Judgment is referred to.

5926 They will have been more or less dormant before the Great Judgment, as contrasted with the Lesser Judgment (n. 5914 to lxxviii. 40, and n. 5822 to lxxv. 22). When the Resurrection comes, they will come fully into the new world, the old heaven and earth having then completely passed away, not only for them but absolutely.

5927. This is just a reference to the story of Moses told more fully in S. xx. 9-76. The lessons drawn are: (1) That even to an arrogant blasphemer and rebel against God's Law, like Pharaoh, God's grace was offered through a major Prophet Moses; (2) that his rejection brought about his signal downfall even in this world; and (3) that his humiliation and punishment will be completed in the Hereafter at Judgment.

5928. Cf. xx. 12.

5929. Cf. xx. 24.

5930. Even for such a one as Pharaoh, intoxicated with his own power and greatness, guidance and grace were offered through Moses.

- 20. Then did (Moses) show him The Great Sign. 5931
- 21. But (Pharaoh) rejected it And disobeyed (guidance);
- 22. Further, he turned his back, Striving hard (against God).
- 23. Then he collected (his men)
  And made a proclamation,
- 24. Saying, "I am your Lord, Most High".
- 25. But God did punish him, (And made an) example
  Of him,—in the Hereafter,
  As in this life. 5932
- 26. Verily in this is
  An instructive warning 5933
  For whosoever feareth (God).

٢٠- ءَ أَنُ ثُمُّ أَشَكُّ خُلُقًا أمِر السَّمَاءُ * بَنْهَا * ثَ

5931. What was the Great Sign? Some Commentators understand by it the "White Shining Hand": see n. 2550 to xx 22.23. Others think it was the miracle of the rod that became a "snake active in motion": see xx. 20, n. 2549. These were among the Greater Signs: xx. 23. In xvii. 101 there is a reference to nine Clear Signs given to Moses, and these are specified in detail in n. 1091 to vii. 133. The fact is, there were many Signs given, "openly self-explained," but Pharaoh and his men "were steeped in arrogance,— a people given to sin" (vii. 133). The pre-eminently Great Sign was therefore the fact of Moses being sent to Pharaoh, which subsequently converted the magicians and the more learned Egyptians to the true God (xx. 70.73), though Pharaoh and his Chiefs resisted and suffered for their sins. The mystics understand by the "Great Sign" the Power of God as enshrined in His mystic Name, which none may know but the adepts in spiritual lore.

5932. See xx. 78-79, also vii. 135-137.

5933. Cf. xxiv. 44.

5934. If man grows arrogant or forgets his accountability to God, in his ignorance or thought-lessness, he is reminded that he is only an insignificant speck in God's spacious Creation. All the excellence that man acquires is the gift of God, Who has bestowed on him a high Destiny if he fulfils the purpose of his creation: ii. 30-39. Then follows a nature passage, pointing to the glory of the heavens and the earth, and how they are both made to subserve the life of man.

- 28. On high hath He raised Its canopy, and He hath Given it order and perfection. 5935
- 29. Its night doth He

٣٣- مُتَاعًا لَكُمْ وَلِاَنْعَامِكُمْ ٥

5935. Cf. ii. 29. The mystery of the heavens with their countless stars and the planets obeying the laws of motion, and the sun and moon influencing the temperature and climates of the earth from thousands or millions of miles, illustrate the order and perfection which God has given to His Creation. Can man then remain exempt from his responsibility for his deeds, endowed as he is with a will, or deny the Day of Sorting Out, which is the Day of Judgment?

5936. Its of course refers to the starry heaven. Both the Night and the Day have each its own beauty and its utility for man, as has been frequently pointed out in the Qur-ān. The night is a period of darkness, but it has also its splendours of light in the moon, or the planets Jupiter or Venus, or stars like Sirius or the Milky Way. These countless lights of night have their own beauty, and by day there is the splendour of the sun for us, which in Creation as a whole, is just one of countless stars.

5937. Moreover: or, more literally, after that. See n. 4475 to xli. 11.

5938. The underground springs and wells of water as well as rivers and glaciers in northern climates are due to the different levels of highlands and lowlands. They spread the moisture evenly as wanted, and give corn, fruits, and vegetables to man, and pastures and feeding grounds to beasts of the fields. For the wonderful circuit or cycle of water between heaven and earth, see notes 3106 (xxv. 49) and 3111 (xxv. 53).

5939. See n. 2038 to xvi. 15. The "eternal hills" are the main reservoirs for the storage and gradual distribution of water, the very basis for the life of man and beast.

5940. This clause I construe to apply to verses 30, 31, and 32 above. Everything on earth has, by God's bountiful providence, been arranged to subserve the use and convenience of man and the lower life which depends upon him. The intermediary between God's providence and the actual use made of God's other gifts is man's own intelligence and initiative, which are also gifts of God.

- 34. Mherefore, when there comes The great, overwhelming (Event),—5941
- 35. The Day when Man Shall remember (all) That he strove for. 5912

- 37. Then, for such as had Transgressed all bounds,
- 38. And had preferred 5944
  The life of this world,
- 39. The Abode will be Hell-Fire;
- 40. And for such as had
  Entertained the fear
  Of standing before 5945
  Their Lord's (tribunal)
  And had restrained
  - (Their) soul from lower Desires,
- 41. Their Abode will be The Garden.

  - ﴿ اللَّهُ اللَّالِي اللَّهُ الللَّهُ اللَّهُ الل
  - ام فَإِنَّ الْجُكَّةَ هِيَ الْمَاوَى ٥

5941. The Judgment, the time for sorting out all things according to their true, intrinsic, and eternal values.

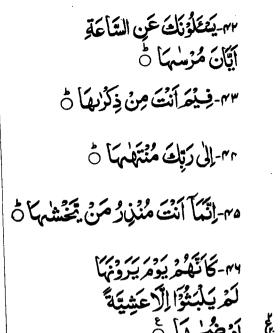

5942. The Judgment will be not only for his acts but for his motives, "all he strove for". In this life he may forget his ill-deeds, but in the new conditions he will not only remember them, but the Fire of Punishment will be plainly visible to him, and not only to him, but it will be "for all to see". This will add to the sinner's humiliation.

5943. Cf. xxvi. 91.

5944. The abiding Punishment will be for those who had wilfully and persistently rebelled against God, "transgressing all bounds", and had given themselves up to the vanities and lusts of this lower life. This Punishment will not touch those who had repented and been forgiven, nor those guilty, through human frailty, of minor sins, whose deeds will be weighed in the balance against their good deeds: ci. 6-9.

5945. The contrast is complete and parallel: the persistent rebels against God's Law, who preferred the lower life, are to dwell in the Fire of Punishment, while those who humbly feared the punishment of sin and believing in their Lord's warnings, restrained their lower desires, will dwell in the Garden. See last note.

- 42. About the Hour,—' When Will be its appointed time?'
- 43. Wherein art thou (concerned)
  With the declaration thereof?
- 44. With thy Lord is
  The Limit 5947 fixed therefor.
- 45. Thou art but a Warner For such as fear it. 5948
- 46. The Day they see it,
  (It will be) as if they
  Had tarried but a single
  Evening, or (at most till)
  The following morn! 5949

5946 Cf. vii. 187 and n. 1159. Only God can reveal it. But were it known, "heavy were its burden through the heavens and the earth".

5947. Our time has no sort of comparison with the timeless state in the new spiritual World in which the final Judgment will take place. Nor can its limits—how long it will last—be set except in the Will of Almighty God, Lord of Supreme Wisdom, Justice, and Goodness: xi 107-108. But it is near, in the sense explained in n. 5914 to lxxviii. 40, 5948. The warning is only effective for those who believe in God and in the Final Account. Such men immediately turn in repentance to God, and it is to lead such men and help them, that Prophets are sent.

5949. Cf. x. 45, where the expression used is: "it will be as if they had tarried but an hour of a day." Here the metaphor used is "a single evening, or, at most, till the following morn". Death is like sleep, and may be compared to the evening of life. In sleep we do not know how the time passes. When we wake up from the sleep of Death at the Resurrection, we shall not know whether it was the following moment or the following hour after we slept, but we shall feel that it is morning, for we shall be conscious of all that goes on, as one awakened in the morning.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXXX ('Abasa).

This is an early Meccan Sūra, and is connected with an incident which reflects the highest honour on the Prophet's sincerity in the Revelations that were vouchsafed to him even if they seemed to reprove him for some natural and human zeal that led him to a false step in his mission according to his own high standards.

He was once deeply and earnestly engaged in trying to explain the holy Qur-ān to Pagan Quraish leaders, when he was interrupted by a blind man, 'Abdullāh ibn Umm-i-Maktūm, one who was also poor, so that no one took any notice of him. He wanted to learn the Qur-ān. The holy Prophet naturally disliked the interruption and showed impatience. Perhaps the poor man's feelings were hurt. But he whose gentle heart ever sympathised with the poor and the afflicted, got new Light from above, and without the least hesitation published this revelation, which forms part of the sacred scripture of Islam, as described in verses 13-16. And the Prophet always afterwards held the man in high honour.

The incident was only a passing incident, but after explaining the eternal principles of revelation, the Sūra recapitulates the Mercies of God to man, and the consequences of a good or a wicked life here, as seen in the spiritual world to come, in the Hereafter.

C. 260.—Men not blest with the good things of this life
(Ixxx. 1-42.) May yet be earnest seekers of Truth
And Purity, and deserve as much attention as those Who seem to wield some influence, yet who
In their pride are self-sufficient. God's Message
Is universal: all have a right
To hear it. Held high in honour, kept
Pure and holy, it should be writ
By none but good and honourable men.

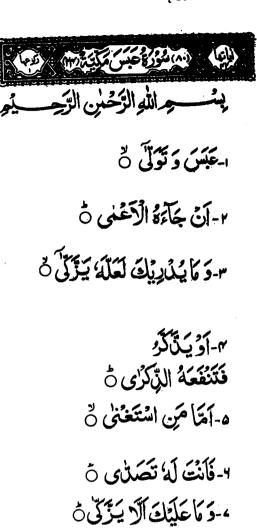

God's Grace is showered on man not less
For his inner growth than in his outward
Life. There must be a final Reckoning,
When each soul must stand on its own past Record:
The faces, then, of the Blest will beam
With Joy and Light, while the Doers of Iniquity
Will hide in Dust and Shame and Darkness.

Sūra LXXX.

'Abasa, or He Frowned.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. (The Prophet) frowned And turned away, 5950
- 2. Because there came to him The blind man (interrupting).
- 3. But what could tell thee
  But that perchance he might Grow (in spiritual understanding)?—
- 4. Or that he might receive Admonition, and the teaching Might profit him? 5951
- 5. As to one who regards
  Himself as self-sufficient, 5952
- 6. To him dost thou attend;
- 7. Though it is no blame
  To thee if he grow not 5953
  (In spiritual understanding).

5950. See the Introduction to this Sura for the incident to which this refers. The lesson is that neither spiritual worth nor the prospect of effective spiritual guidance is to be measured by a man's position in life. The poor, or the blind, the halt, or the maimed, may be more susceptible to the teaching of God's Word than men who are apparently gifted, but who suffer from arrogance and self-sufficiency.

5951. It may be that the poor blind man might, on account of his will to learn, be more likely to grow in his own spiritual development or to profit by any lessons taught to him even in reproof than a self-sufficient leader. In fact it was so. For the blind man became a true and sincere Muslim and lived to become a governor of Madina.

5952. Such a one would be a Pagan Quraish leader, whom the holy Prophet was anxious to get into his fold, in order that the work of preaching God's Message might be facilitated. But such a Message works first amongst the simple and lowly, the poor and despised folk, and the mighty ones of the earth only come in when the stream rushes in with irresistible force.

5953 God's Message is for all, but if the great ones arrogantly keep back from it, it is no fault of the Preacher, so long as he has proclaimed the Message. He should attend to all, and specially to the humble and lowly.

- 8. But as to him who came To thee striving earnestly,
- 9. And with fear (In his heart), 5954
- 10. Of him wast thou unmindful.
- 12. Therefore let whoso will, Keep it in remembrance.
- 13. (Wet ** is) in Books
  Held (greatly) in honour,
- 14. Exalted (in dignity), Kept pure and holy,
- 15. (Written) by the hands
  Of scribes—
- 16. Honourable and Pious and Just.
- 17. What hath made him Reject God?

٥- و اَمّا مَنْ جَآءَ الْهُ يَسْعَى نُ ٥- و هُو يَخْشَى نُ ١٠- فَانَتْ عَنْهُ تَلَمَىٰ ثَ ١١- كَالْاَ ١١- كَالْاَ ١١- كَالْاَ ١١- فَكُنْ شَآءُ ذَكْرَةً ٥ ١١- فِنْ صُحُفِ مُكَوْمَةً نُ ١١- مِنْ صُحُفِ مُكَوْمَةً فَ ١١- مِنْ صُحُفِ مُكَوْمَةً فَ ١١- مِنْ صُحُفِ مُكَوْمَةً فَيْ مُكَوْمَةً فَيْ ١١- مِنْ صُحُفِ مُكَةً مُطَهَّرَةٍ فَيْ

١١- كِرَامِر بَرُرَةٍ ٥

١٠ قُتِلَ الْإِنْسَانُ

5954. The fear in the blind man's heart may have been two-fold. (1) He was humble and Godfearing, not arrogant and self-sufficient; (2) being poor and blind, he feared to intrude; yet his earnest desire to learn the Qur-ān made him bold, and he came, perhaps unseasonably, but was yet worthy of encouragement, because of the purity of his heart.

5955. God's Message is a universal Message, from which no one is to be excluded,—rich or poor, old or young, great or lowly, learned or ignorant. If anyone had the spiritual craving that needed satisfaction, he was to be given precedence if there was to be any question of precedence at all.

5956. At the time this Sūra was revealed, there were perhaps only about 42 or 45 Sūras in the hands of the Muslims. But it was a sufficient body of Revelation of high spiritual value, to which the description given here could be applied. It was held in the highest honour; its place in the hearts of Muslims was more exalted than that of anything else; as God's Word, it was pure and sacred; and those who transcribed it were men who were honourable, just and pious. The legend that the early Sūras were not carefully written down and preserved in books is a pure invention. The recensions made later in the time of the first and the third Khalifas were merely to preserve the purity and safeguard the arrangement of the text, at a time when the expansion of Islam among non-Arabic-speaking peoples made such precautions necessary.

- 18. From what stuff
  Hath He created him?
- 19. From a sperm-drop: 5957

  He hath created him, and then
  Mouldeth him in due proportions;
- 20. Then doth He make
  His path smooth for him;
- 21. Then He causeth him to die, And putteth him in his Grave; 5958
- 22. Then, when it is
  His Will, He will
  Raise him up (again).
- 23. By no means hath he Fulfilled what God Hath commanded him. 5959
- 24. 風气ien let man look At his Food,<sup>5960</sup> (And how We provide it):

٥١- أَنَا صَبَبُنَا الْمَآءُ صَبًّا نُ

5957. Cf. lxxvi. 2, and n. 5832. The origin of man as an animal is lowly indeed. But what further faculties and capacities has not God granted to man? Besides his animal body, in which also he shares in all the blessings which God has bestowed on the rest of His Creation, man has been granted divine gifts which entitle him to be called the Vicegerent of God on earth: ii. 30. He has a will; he has spiritual perception; he is capable of divine love; he can control nature within certain limits, and subject nature's forces to his own use. And he has been given the power of judgment, so that he can avoid excess and defect, and follow the middle path. And that path, as well as all that is necessary for his life in its manifold aspects, has been made easy for him.

5958. Cf. xx. 55. Death is an inevitable event after the brief life on this earth, but it is also in a sense a blessing,—a release from the imperfections of this world, a close of the probationary period, after which will dawn the full Reality. "The Grave" may be understood to be the period between physical death and immortal Life, whatever may be the mode of disposal of the dead body. This intermediate period is the Barzakh or Partition: see n, 2940 to xxiii. 101.

5959. Though all these blessings and stages have been provided by God's Grace for the good of man, yet unregenerate man fails in carrying out the purpose of his creation and life.

5960. After a reference to man's inner history, there is now a reference to just one item in his daily outer life, his food: and it is shown how the forces of heaven and earth unite by God's Command to serve man and his dependants, "for use and convenience to you and your cattle" (verse 32 below). If that is the case with just one item, food, how much more comprehensive is God's beneficence when the whole of man's needs are considered!

- 26. And We split the earth In fragments, 5061
- 27. And produce therein 5962 Corn,
- 28. And Grapes and nutritious Plants,
- 29. And Olives and Dates,
- 30. And enclosed Gardens, 5563 Dense with lofty trees,
- 31. And Fruits and Fodder,—
- 32. For use and convenience
  To you and your cattle. 5964
- 33. At length, when there Comes the Deafening Noise,—5965
- 34. That Day shall a man Flee from his own brother,

<sup>5961.</sup> The water comes from the clouds in plentiful abundance; the earth is ploughed, and the soil is broken up in fragments, and yields an abundant harvest of cereals (Corn), trellised fruit (Grapes), and vegetable food mutritious Plants), as well as fruit that can keep for long periods and serve many uses, like olives and dates.

<sup>5963.</sup> We not only get field crops such as were mentioned in n. 5961 above, but we have the more highly cultivated garden crops, both in the way of lofty trees, and in the way of carefully tended fruits like the fig; and then we have grass and all kinds of fodder.

<sup>5966.</sup> Even those who were nearest and dearest in this life will not be able or willing to help each other on that awful Day. On the contrary, if they have to receive a sentence for their sins, they will be anxious to avoid even sharing each other's sorrows or witnessing each other's humiliation; for each will have enough of his own troubles to occupy him. On the other hand, the Righteous will be united with their righteous families: lii. 21; and their faces will be "beaming, laughing, rejoicing" (lexx. 38-39).

- 37. Each one of them,
  That Day, will have Enough concern (of his own)
  To make him indifferent
  To the others. 5967
- 38. Some Faces that Day Will be beaming,
- 39. Laughing, rejoicing.
- 40. And other faces that Day Will be dust-stained; 5958
- 41. Blackness will cover them:
- 42. Such will be
  The Rejecters of God,
  The Doers of Iniquity.

٣٠- لِكُلِّ امْرِقُ مِّنْهُمُ يُوْمَئِنِ شَانَ يُغَنِينِهِ ٥

٣-وُجُوعٌ يُؤمَنِنِ المُسْفِرَةُ ٥

٣٩-ضَاحِكَةٌ مُّسْتَبُشِرَةٌ ۚ ٣٠-وَوُجُونٌ يَوْمَئِنٍ عَلَيْهَا عَبَرَةٌ ۗ

٣-تَرْهَقُهُمَا قَكَرَةٌ أَ
 ٢٣-أولَّقِكَ هُمُرالكُفَنَ أَوْ الْفَجَرَةُ أَ

<sup>5967.</sup> Cf. lxx, 10-14. No friend will ask after a friend that Day. On the contrary the sinner will desire to save himself at the expense even of his own family and benefactors.

<sup>5968.</sup> The dust on the faces of the sinners will be in contrast to the beaming light on the faces of the righteous; and the blackness in contrast to the "laughing, rejoicing" faces of the righteous. But the dust also suggests that being Rejecters of God, their faces and eyes and faculties were choked in dust, and the blackness suggests that being Doers of Iniquity they had no part or lot in Purity or Light. Another contrast may possibly be deduced: the humble and lowly may be "in the dust" in this life, and the arrogant sinners in sunshine, but the rôles will be reversed at Judgment.

INTRODUCTION TO SURA LXXXI (Talwir).

This is quite an early Meccan Sūra, perhaps the sixth or seventh in chronological order. It opens with a series of highly mystical metaphors suggesting the break-up of the world as we know it (verses 1-13) and the enforcement of complete personal responsibility for each soul (verse 14). Then there is a mystical passage showing how the Quranic Revelation was true, and revealed through the angel Gabriel, and not merely a rhapsody from one possessed. Revelation is given for man's spiritual guidance (verses 14-29).

Comparable with this Sūra are the Sūras lxxxii and lxxxiv which may be read with this.

Summary

C. 261.—How can the soul's self-conviction be fitly

(IXXXI. 1-29.) Expressed, except by types of tremendous

Cataclysms in nature, and still more by tremendous

Searchings in the heart of man? These want

Deep pondering. When once the spiritual Dawn

Has "breathed away" the Darkness of the Night,

The Vision Glorious clears all doubts,

And brings us face to face with Truth.

The highest Archangel in heaven is sent

By God to bring these truths to men

Through their Apostle. God's Grace flows freely:

We have but to tune our Will to His,—

The ever-loving Righteous God.

Süra LXXXI.

Takwir, or the Folding Up.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. When the sun 5969
  (With its spacious light)
  Is folded up; 5970
- 2. When the stars <sup>5971</sup>
  Fall, losing their lustre;
- 3. When the mountains vanish (Like a mirage); 5972
- 4. When the she-camels, Ten months with young, A:e left untended: 5973
- 5. When the wild beasts Are herded together

5969. Verses 1 to 13 are conditional clauses, and the substantive clause is in verse 14. The time will come when nature's processes as we know them will cease to function, and the soul will only then know by self conviction the results of its actions. With reference to an individual soul, its resurrection is its supreme crisis: the whole world of sense, and even of imagination and reason, melts away, and its whole spiritual scroll is laid bare before it.

5970. The conditional clauses are twelve, in two groups of six. The first six affect the outer or physical life of man; the last six, his inmost spiritual life. Let us take them one by one. (1) The biggest factor affecting us in the external physical World is the light, heat, and perhaps electric or magnetic energy of the sun. The sun is the source of all the light, heat, and energy, and indeed the source and support of all the physical life that we know. It is the biggest factor and yet most remote from us in our solar system. Yet the sources of our inner spiritual life will be greater and more lasting, for they will survive it. The sun as the centre of our solar system also stands as a symbol of the present order of things. The physical forces, as defined in Newton's laws of Matter and Attraction, will also break up with the break-up of the sun.

Is folded up: is folded up, or twisted up, like a sheet or a garment.

- 5971. (2) Next after the sun, we can derive faint lights from the innumerable stars in the firmament. For all the ages of which we have any record, these stars have remained fixed. Nothing can be more fixed; yet they can and will fail.
- 5972. Cf. lxxviii, 20. (3) On our own earth the mountains—the "eternal hills "—seem the most striking examples of stability; yet they will be swept away like a mirage, as if they had never existed.
- 5973. (4) The type of Arab property, as well as the type of the Arab pet, was the camel, and the most precious camel was the she-camel just about to be delivered of her young. She would in normal times be most sedulously cared for. But when all our landmarks of this life vanish, even she would be left untended. Nothing would then be as it is now.

S. LXXXI. 5-10.)

(In human habitations); 5274

- 6. When the oceans 5275
  Boil over with a swell;
- 7. When the souls
  Are sorted out, 5976
  (Being joined, like with like);
- 8. When the female (infant), Buried alive, is questioned—
- 9. For what crime She was killed; 5977
- 10. When the Scrolls Are laid open; 5978

٧- وَ إِذَا الَّهِ عَارُ سُجِعَرَتُ كُ

مـوَاذَا النَّفُوسُ زُوِّجَتُ <sup>عِ</sup>

٥- وَ إِذَا الْمُؤَوِّدَةُ سُئِلَتُ ثُخْ

٥- بِأَيِّ ذُنِّي قُتِلَتُ أَ

٠٠-وَ إِذَا الصَّعُفُ ثِثْرَتُ خُ

5974 (5) In the present world, the wild animals fear each other, and they all fear man and normally keep away from human habitations. But when this order passes away, the lion will lie down with the lamb, and there will be scarcely any differentiation between human habitations and the wilds of the forests.

5975. See lii. 6 and n. 5041. (6) The oceans, which now keep their bounds, will surge and boil over, and overwhelm all landmarks. At present the waters seem to have reached their fixed and normal levels, but the whole equilibrium will then be disturbed. Such will be the complete wreck of this transitory world, at the approach of the dawn of the permanent Reality. But these are physical symbols, relating to the outer nature surrounding the physical nature of man. The remaining six, viz.: the 7th to the 12th, describe the ordering of the new spiritual World, from which all present seeming incongruities will be removed.

5977. (8) In this world of sin and sorrow, much unjust suffering is caused, and innocent lives sacrificed, without a trace being left, by which offenders can be brought to justice. A striking example before the Quraish was female infanticide: cf. xvi. 58-59, and n. 2084. The crime was committed in the guise of social plausibility in secret collusion, and no question was asked here. But in the spiritual world of Justice, full questions will be asked, and the victim herself—dumb here—will be able to give evidence, for she had committed no crime herself. The proofs will be drawn from the very means used for concealment.

5978. (9) The Scrolls recording the deeds of men, good or bad, will then be laid open before all. Cf. 1. 17-18, n. 4954; also 1xxxii. 11-12. In the present phenomenal world, things may be concealed; but in the spiritual world of absolute Reality, every secret is opened out, good or bad. The whole tale of acts, omissions, motives, imponderable spiritual hurt, neglect, or help will be laid bare.

- 11. When the World on High 5979
  Is unveiled;
- 12. When the Blazing Fire 5980 Is kindled to fierce heat;
- 13. And when the Garden 5981 Is brought near; -5982
- 14. (Then) shall each soul know What it has put forward. 5983
- 15. So verily I call 5984

  To witness the Planets 5985

  That recede,

اا-وَإِذَا الْتَهُمَاءُ كُشِطَتُ كُنَّ الْمُعَادُهُ كُشُطَتُ كُنْ الْبُحِدِيْمُ سُعِرَتُ كُنْ الْبُحِدِيْمُ سُعِرَتُ كُنْ الْبُحِنَّةُ أُزُلِفَتُ كُنْ الْبُحِنَّةُ أُزُلِفَتُ كُنْ

ها-فَكَرُّ أَقْسِمُ بِالْخُنْسِ نُ

5979. The World on High: literally, the Sky, or Heaven as standing for both the Blazing Fire and the Garden, the Home of the Hereafter. (10) The soul's spiritual Sky—the things it held high or sacred—will be stripped of the thin blue that gave rest—and partly illusion—to its spiritual eye in this world of illusions. Just as when an animal is skinned, its real flesh and blood and inner organs become visible, without any outer coating to hold them together, so the inmost state of the spiritual world will then become plain.

5980. (11) Then will burn the inner Hell,—an intense realisation of spiritual anguish, worse than the fiercest fire.

5981. (12) The last of the Metaphors, the Garden of Bliss—the Light of God's Face (xcii, 20)—will come in sight,—not yet attained, but visible, or "brought near". For the scales have fallen from the eyes, and the soul knows itself.

5982. In Eastern literature, especially in religious allegory, there are usually more meanings than one, enfolded in each other. They must be understood, if the reader wishes to get the full sense of the passage. This applies specially to the Qur-ān. The parallel meaning, favoured by the Sūfis, take the first six physical facts (verses 1-6) also as allegorical. (1) As the sun is the centre of the solar system, so our lower self is the centre of our ordinary motives and desires; the light of that self must be darkened to make room for the Reality. (2) The minor light of the stars is our ordinary human wisdom: this must be dropped before we get spiritual vision. (3) Our worldly ambitions are the mountains, which must vanish similarly. (4) Greed and love of gain are the camels big with young; that must be left untended. (5) Our passions are the wild animals that must be tamed. (6) The oceans of divine grace must boil over and cover our whole being. All this must occur at any point of time, even to an individual in this life when God's Glory shines on him.

Another interpretation would be to apply it to the Lesser Judgment, when the soul passes out of this physical body, see lxxv. 22, n. 5822; lxxviii. 40, n. 5914; and lxxix. 14, n. 5926

5983. This is the conclusion. It is only on such conditions that the soul reaches its full realisation. Put forward: cf. "the Deeds which his hands have sent forth" in lxxviii. 40.

5984. Cf. lvi. 75, n 5258, for the witness that the heavenly bodies bear symbolically to the power, beauty, and goodness of God, in sending His Revelation. See n. 5798 to lxxiv. 32, for the significance of an adjuration in the Qur-ān.

5985. The appeal here is made to three things, the Planets, the Night, and the Dawn. (1) The Planets have a retrograde and a forward motion, and, during occultation, hide or disappear behind the sun or moon, or are otherwise invisible or appear stationary. They behave differently from the millions of stars around them. Yet they are not mere erratic bodies, but obey definite laws, and evidence the power and wisdom of God,

16. Go straight, or hide;

17. And the Night As it dissipates; 5586

18. And the Dawn
As it breathes away

19. Verily this is the word
Of a most honourable Messenger, 5989

Endued with Power,
 With rank before
 The Lord of the Throne, 5989

21. With authority there, (And) faithful to his trust.

22. And (O people!)

 ٢٠ مُطَاعٍ ثَمَّ آمِيْنٍ ٥

٢٢- وَ مَا صَاحِبُكُوْ بِنَجْنُونٍ ٥

5986. How the Night gradually declines after its height at midnight! It seems gradually to steal away, and as Dawn approaches, to merge into Day. So a soul in spiritual darkness gradually awakes to its spiritual Dawn through Revelation.

5987. The slow "breathing out" of the darkness by the Dawn, shows us, by beautiful imagery, that these mysterious operations, of which people in their ignorance are frightened if they have to do with darkness, are really beneficent operations of God. They have nothing to do with evil spirits, or witches, or magic. For three questions were actually raised about the holy Prophet's Ministry by the ignorant. (1) Did his wonderful works come from himself and not from God? (2) Was he possessed of an evil spirit? In other words, was he mad? For that was the theory of madness then current. (3) Was he a soothsayer, or necromancer, or magician? For he had virtues, powers, and eloquence, so extraordinary that they could not understand him.

5988. They are told here that all their three theories were foolish. The Revelation was really from God. Their wonder should cease if they observe the daily miracles worked round them in nature. The bringer of God's Message was the angel Gabriel, and not an evil spirit.

5989. Not only was the bringer of the Revelation, Gabriel, an honourable Messenger, incapable of deceit, but he had, in the angelic kingdom, rank and authority before God's Throne, and he could convey an authoritative divine Message. He was, like the holy Apostle, faithful to his trust; and therefore there could be no question of the Message being delivered in any other way than exactly according to the divine Will and Purpose. These epithets could apply to the Prophet himself, but in view of verse 23 below, it is best to understand them of Gabriel.

5990. After describing the credentials of the Archangel Gabriel, the Text now appeals to the people to consider their own "Companion", the Prophet, who had been born among them and had lived with them, and was known to be an honourable, truthful, and trustworthy man. If Gabriel was the one who brought the Message to him, then there was no question of demoniacal possessoin. And the Prophet had seen him in his inspired vision "in the clear horizon".

- 23. And without doubt he saw him In the clear horizon. 5991
- 24. Neither doth he withhold. Grudgingly a knowledge Of the Unseen. 5992
- 25. Nor is it the word
  Of an evil spirit accursed. 5993
- 26. Mehen whither go ye? 5994
- 27. Verily this is no less
  Than a Message
  To (all) the Worlds: 5995
- 28. (With profit) to whoever Among you wills To go straight: <sup>5996</sup>
- 29. But ye shall not will

  Except as God wills,—

  The Cherisher of the Worlds.

٢٩- وَمَا تَتَنَاءُونَ إِلَا آنَ يَتَنَاءُ اللهُ
 رَبُ الْعَلَمِينَ ۚ

5991. Read along with this the whole passage in liii. 1-18 and notes there; specially n. 5092, where the two occasions are mentioned when there was a vision of inspiration: "Fortruly did he see, of the Signs of his Lord, the Greatest" (liii 18).

5992. Such would be the words of a soothsayer, guarded, ambiguous, and misleading. Here everything was clear, sane, true, and under divine inspiration.

5993. Such as evil suggestions of envy, spite, greed, selfishness, or other vices. On the contrary the teaching of the Qur-ān is beneficent, pointing to the Right Way, the Way of God.  $Raj\bar{\imath}m$ ; literally, driven away with stones, rejected with complete ignominy. Cf. xv. 17. The rite of throwing stones in the valley of Minā at the close of the Meccan Pilgrimage [see n. 217 (6) to ii. 197] suggests symbolically that the Pilgrim emphatically, definitely, and finally rejects all Evil.

5994. It has been shown that this is no word of a mortal, but that it is full of divine wisdom; that its teaching is not that of a madman, but sane to the core and in accordance with human needs; that it freely and clearly directs you to the right Path and forbids you the Path of evil. Why then he sitate? Accept the divine Grace; repent of your sins; and come to the higher Life.

5995. It is not meant for one class or race; it is universal, and is addressed to all the Worlds. For the meaning of "Worlds", see n. 20 to i. 2.

5996 Cf. lxxiv. 55-56. God is the Cherisher of the Worlds, Lord of Grace and Mercy, and His guidance is open to all who have the will to profit by it. But that will must be exercised in conformity with God's Will (verse 29). Such conformity is Islam. Verse 28 points to human free-will and responsibility; verse 29 to its limitations. Both extremes. viz.: cast-iron Determinism and an idea of Chaotic Free-will, are condemned.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA LXXXII (Infifar).

In subject-matter this Sūra is cognate to the last, though the best authorities consider it a good deal later in chronology in the early Meccan Period.

Its argument is subject to the threefold interpretation mentioned in n. 5982 to lxxxi. 13, viz., as referring (1) to the final Day of Judgment, (2) to the Lesser Judgment, on an individual's death, and (3) to the awakening of the Inner Light in the soul at any time, that being considered as Death to the Falsities of this life and a Re-birth to the true spiritual Reality.

C. 262.— How fixed is the order holding together

(Ixxxii. 1-19.) This material universe above and below us?

Yet it must give way before the vast

Unfathomed Truth in which man will see

His past and his future in true perspective.

To God he owes his life and all

Its blessings: will he not see

That the Future depends on Right and Justice?

Righteousness must come to its own,

And so must Discord and Rebellion.

The Day must come when Discord

Must finally cease, and the Peace of God

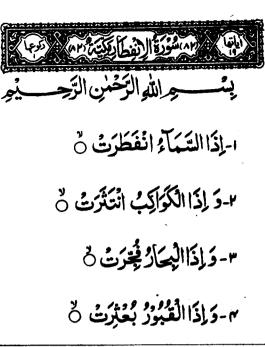

And His Command are all-in-all.

Sūra LXXXII.

Infitar, or The Cleaving Asunder.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. Then 5997 the Sky Is cleft asunder; 5998
- 2. When the Stars Are scattered; 5999
- 3. When the Oceans
  Are suffered to burst forth; 6000
- 4. And when the Graves
  Are turned upside down;—6001

5997. Cf. the passage lxxxi. 1-14 and notes. For the three parallel interpretations, see the Introduction to this Sūra. There are four conditional clauses here, and the substantive clause is in verse 5. In S. lxxxi, there were 12 conditional clauses, and the conclusion was similar, but not expressed in precisely the same terms. See lxxxii. 5, n. 6002 below. The literal interpretation would be that the physical world as we see it now will be destroyed before the final Day of Judgment, establishing the true spiritual Reality. If the four clauses are interpreted metaphorically (see notes 5998-6001), we have a reference to the Lesser Judgment, the individual dawn of the true Reality at Death. If we interpret by the Şūfi method, the spiritual crisis may occur to any soul at any moment when these metaphorical events occur.

5998. Cf. lxxiii. 18, n. 5769. In the literal meaning, the beautiful blue sky overhead, which we take for granted in sunshine and storm, will be shattered to pieces before the new Spiritual World is established. Metaphorically, the partition which seems at present to divide things divine from this phenomenal world has to be shattered before each soul knows the inner Reality about itself.

5999. Cf. lxxxi. 2, where the word for "stars" (Nujūm) is different, and the verb is different. Najm has reference to brightness, and the verb "losing their lustre" was appropriate there, to show the opposite. Kaukab (used here) has more the meaning of a star as fixed in a constellation; and the opposite of a fixed and definite order is "scattered", the verb used here. In fact, throughout this passage, the dominating idea is the disturbance of order and symmetry. The metaphor behind the scattering of the constellations is that in the present order of things we see many things associated together, e.g. rank with honour, wealth with comfort, etc. In the new Spiritual World this will be seen to have been merely fortuitous.

6000. Cf. lxxxi. 6, "when the oceans boil over with a swell". Here, "are suffered to burst forth" expresses the end of the present order of things. This may be in two ways, interpreted literally: (1) The barrier which keeps within their respective bounds the various streams of salt and fresh water (lv. 20, n. 5185) will be removed; (2) the Ocean will overwhelm the whole Globe. Figuratively, the different streams of knowledge, great and small, will be levelled down: for only one Knowledge, the Light Divine, will hold the field.

6001. This item is not mentioned in lxxxi. 1-14. Here it is introduced to show that the whole order of things will be so reversed that even Death will not be Death. We think there is tranquillity in Death; but there will be no tranquillity. Literally, and figuratively, Death will be the beginning of a new Life. What we think to be Death will bring forth Life.

- S. LXXXII. 5-11.]
- (Then) shall each soul know What it hath sent forward 6002 And (what it hath) kept back.
- 6. man! what has
  Seduced thee from
  Thy Lord Most Beneficent?—
- 7. Him Who created thee, Fashioned thee in due proportion, 6003 And gave thee a just bias; 6004
- 8. In whatever Form 6005 He wills, Does He put thee together.
- 12 ay! but ye do Reject Right and Judgment! 6006
- 10. But verily over you (Are appointed angels) 6007
  To protect you,—
- Kind and honourable,—
   Writing down (your deeds):

ا-كِرَامًا كَاتِبِيْنَ ٥

6002. Sent Forward and kept back: may mean: the deeds of commission and omission in this life. Or the Arabic words may also be translated: sent forward and left behind: i.e., the spiritual possibilities which it sent forward for its other life, and the physical things on which it prided itself in this life, but which it had to leave behind in this life. Or else, the things it put first and the things it put last in importance may change places in the new world of Reality. "The first shall be last and the last shall be first".

6003. Cf. xv. 29. God not only created man, but fashioned him in due proportions, giving him extraordinary capacities, and the means wherewith he can fulfil his high destiny.

6004. See n. 834 to vi. 1. Having given a limited free-will, He gave us a just bias through our reason and our spiritual faculties. If we err, it is our will that is at fault.

6005. By "Form" (Sūrat) here I understand the general shape of things in which any given personality is placed, including his physical and social environments, his gifts of mind and spirit, and all that goes to make up his outer and inner life. The Grace of God is shown in all these things, for His Will is formed from perfect knowledge, wisdom, and goodness.

6006. The goodness and mercies of God, and His constant watchful care of all His creatures should make men grateful, instead of which they turn away from the Right and deny the Day of Sorting Out, the Day when every action performed here will find its fulfilment in just reward or punishment.

6007. Besides the faculties given to man to guide him, and the Form and Personality through which he can rise by stages to the Presence of God, there are spiritual agencies around him to help and protect him, and to note down his Record, so that perfect justice may be done to him at the end. For these Guardian Angels, see l. 17-18, and n. 4954. The Record is of course figurative, for man's own good, so that perfect justice may be done. God's own knowledge is perfect, and independent of Records.

- 12. They know (and understand)
  All that ye do.
- 13. As for the Righteous, They will be in Bliss;
- 14 And the Wicked— They will be in the Fire,
- 15. Which they will enter 6008
  On the Day of Judgment,
- 16. And they will not be Able to keep away therefrom.
- 17. And what will explain
  To thee what the Day
  Of Judgment is?
- 18. Again, what will explain

  To thee what the Day

  Of Judgment is? 6009
- 19. (It will be) the Day
  When no soul shall have
  Power (to do) aught
  For another: 6010
  For the Command, that Day,
  Will be (wholly) with God.

١١- يَعْلَمُونَ مَا تَفْعُلُونَ ٥ ۾ واڙَ الْفُجّارُ لَفِيْ جَعِيْمِ ﴿ ه - يَصْلُونُهُما يَوْمَ البّانِين ١١- وَمَا هُمْ عَنْهَا بِغَالَبِينَ ٥ ا - وَمُ آ اَدْرُيكَ مَا يَوْمُ البّانِينَ ٥ مَا فُمَّ مَا آدُريك مَا يَوْمُ الرِّيْنِ ٥

6008. I understand this relative clause to govern "the Fire", i.e., the Punishment. It will be postponed as long as possible, to give the Sinner every chance of repentance and amendment. But once the period of probation is past, it will be irrevocable. There will be no going back from it. By inference, the Righteous may individually reach some stage of Bliss at once, possibly in this life, possibly after death, though the Final Judgment will be the general and complete cessation of this fleeting world and the creation of the world of Eternity.

6009. From our ordinary experiences of this life, we can form no conception of the Final Judgment. We can speak of Rewards and Punishments, the Fruits of Actions, the Resurrection and the Tribunal, the Restoration of True Values, the Elimination of all Wrong, and a hundred other phrases. They might serve to introduce our minds vaguely to a new World, of which they cannot possibly form any adequate conception under present conditions. The question is repeated in verses 17-18 to emphasize this difficulty, and a simple answer is suggested, as explained in the next note.

6010. The answer is suggested by a negative proposition: 'No soul shall have power to do aught for another'. This is full of meaning. Personal responsibility will be fully enforced. In this world we all depend on one another proximately, though our ultimate dependence is always on God, now and for ever. But here a father helps a son forward; husband and wife influence each other's destinies; human laws and institutions may hold large masses of mankind under their grip; falsehood and evil may seem to flourish for a time, because a certain amount of limited free-will has been granted to man. This period will be all over then. The good and the pure will have been separated from the evil and the rebellious; the latter will have been rendered inert, and the former will have been so perfected that their wills will be in complete consonance with God's Universal Will. The Command, thenceforward, will be wholly with God.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXXXIII (Talfif).

This Sūra is close in time to the last one and the next one.

It condemns all fraud—in daily dealings, as well as and especially in matters of Religion and the higher spiritual Life.

C. 263.—Shun Fraud in all things: in little

(Ixxxiii. 1-36.) Things of daily life, but specially

In those subtler forms of higher life,

Which will be exposed to view at Judgment,

However hidden they may be

In this life. Give every one his du

For the Record of ill deeds and good

Is fully kept, and the stains of sin

Corrupt the soul. Reject not the Real

Now, nor mock: for the time will come

When the True will come to its own, and then

The mighty arrogant will be abased!

Sūra LXXXIII.

Tatfif, or Dealing in Fraud.

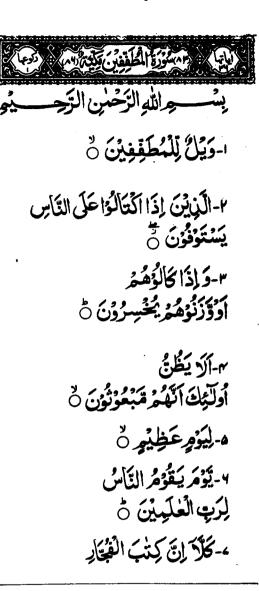

In the name of God, Most Gracious,

Most Merciful.

- 1. Note to those That deal in fraud,—6011
- 2. Those who, when they
  Have to receive by measure
  From men, exact full measure,
- 3. But when they have To give by measure Or weight to men, Give less than due.
- 4. Do they not think

  That they will be called

  To account?—6012
- 5. On a Mighty Day,
- 6. A Day when (all) mankind Will stand before
  The Lord of the Worlds?
- 7. Aug! Surely the Record Of the Wicked is 6011. "Fraud" must here be taken in a widely general sense. It covers giving short measure or short weight, but it covers much more than that. The next two verses make it clear that it is the spirit of injustice that is condemned,—giving too little and asking too much. This may be shown in commercial dealings, where a man exacts a higher standard in his own favour than he is willing to concede as against him. In domestic or social matters an individual or group may ask for honour, or respect, or services which he or they are not willing to give on their side in similar circumstances. It is worse than one-sided selfishness: for it is double injustice. But it is worst of all in religion or spiritual life: with what face can a man ask for Mercy or Love from God when he is unwilling to give it to his fellow-men? In one aspect this is a statement of the Golden Rule, 'Do as you would be done by'. But it is more completely expressed. You must give in full what is due from you, whether you expect or wish to receive full consideration from the other side or not.

6012. Legal and social sanctions against Fraud depend for their efficacy on whether there is a chance of being found out. Moral and religious sanctions are of a different kind, 'Do you wish to degrade your own nature?' 'Do you not consider that there is a Day of Account before a Judge Who knows all, and Who safeguards all interests, for He is the Lord and Cherisher of the Worlds? Whether other people know anything about your wrong or not, you are guilty before God'

- 9. (There is) a Register (Fully) inscribed. 6014
- 10. Woe, that Day, to those That deny—
- 11. Those that deny
  The Day of Judgment. 6015
- 12. And none can deny it
  But the Transgressor
  Beyond bounds,
  The Sinner!
- 13. When Our Signs are rehearsed To him, he says,
  "Tales of the Ancients!" 6016
- 14. By no means!
  But on their hearts
  Is the stain of the (ill)
  Which they do! 6017

6013. This is a word from the same root as Sijn, a Prison. It rhymes with and is contrasted with 'Illīyīn in verse 18 below. It is therefore understood by many Commentators to be a place, a Prison or a Dungeon in which the Wicked are confined pending their appearance before the Judgment-Seat. The mention of the Inscribed Register in verse 9 pelow may imply that Sijjīn is the name of the Register of Black Deeds, though verse 9 may be elliptical and may only describe the place by the significance of its contents.

6014. If we take Sijjin to be the Register itself, and not the place where it is kept, the Register itself is a sort of Prison for those who do wrong. It is inscribed fully: i.e. no one is omitted who ought to be there, and for every entry there is a complete record, so that there is no escape for the sinner. Of course we must not understand a material Register, made up of paper or parchment and written with pen and ink. The whole description is figurative of the inescapable record which sin creates: every detail, of motive, manner, occasion, etc., contributes to the deterioration of the sinner.

6015. The fact of Personal Responsibility for each soul is so undoubted that people who deny it are to be pitied, and will indeed be in a most pitiable condition on the Day of Reckoning, and none but the most abandoned sinner can deny it, and he only denies it by playing with Falsehoods.

6016. Cf. vi. 25; lxviii. 15; etc. They scorn Truth and pretend that it is Falsehood.

6017. The heart of man, as created by God, is pure and unsulfied. Every time that a man does an ill deed, it marks a stain or rust on his heart. But on repentance and forgiveness, such stain is washed off. If there is no repentance and forgiveness, the stains deepen and spread more and more, until the heart is sealed (ii. 7), and eventually the man dies a spiritual death. It is such stains that stand in the way of his perceiving Truths which are obvious to others. That is why he mocks at Truth and hugs Falsehood to his bosom.

- 15. Verily, from (the Light Of) their Lord, that Day, Will they be veiled. 6018
- 16. Further, they will enter The Fire of Hell.
- 17. Further, it will be said To them: "This is The (reality) which ye Rejected as false!
- 18. Ay, verily the Record Of the Righteous is (Preserved) in 'Illīyīn. 6019
- 19. And what will explain
  To thee what 'Illiyun is?
- 20. (There is) a Register (Fully) inscribed, 6020
- 21. To which bear witness
  Those Nearest (to God). 6021
- 22. Maruly the Righteous Will be in Bliss:

٥١- الآ إله مرعن ديهم يُؤمَنِن لَكَ مُجُونُونَ أَ ١١- ثُمَّ إِنَّهُ مُ لَكَ الْوَالْجَويُونَ ١١- ثُمَّ يُقَالُ هٰ ثَمَا الَّذِي فَ كُنْ تُمْ يُقَالُ هٰ ثَمَا الَّذِي فَ كُنْ تُمْ يِهِ ثُكُنِّ بُونَ أَ ١٥- كَلَا إِنَّ كِتْبَ الْرَبْرَادِ لَوْنَ عِلْتِي يُنَ أَ

> ٥١- وَمَا آدُرْلُكُ مَا عِلْيُوْنَ ٥ ٢- كِتْكِ مُرْدُورِهُ ٥

> > ١٠- يَتُمْهُكُ الْمُقَرِّبُونَ ٥

٢٧-إِنَّ الْأَبْرُادَ لَفِيْ نَعِيْمٍ ٥

6018. The stain of evil deeds on their hearts sullies the mirror of their hearts, so that it does not receive the light. At Judgment the true Light, the Glory of the Lord, the joy of the Righteous, will be hidden by veils from the eyes of the Sinful. Instead, the Fire of Punishment will be to them the only reality which they will perceive.

6019. 'Illīyīn: the oblique form of the nominative 'Illīyūn, which occurs in the next verse. It is in contrast to the Sijjīn which occurs in verse 7 above, where see n. 6013. Literally, it means the 'High Places', but it is probably not the same as the 'Heights'  $(A'r\overline{a}f)$  mentioned in vii. 46. Nor need we necessarily identify it with the "dwellings on high" (gurufat) mentioned in xxxiv. 37. Applying the reasoning parallel to that which we applied to Sijjīn, we may interpret it as the Place where is kept the Register of the Righteous.

6020. This repeats verse 9 above, where see n. 6014. But the Register is of the opposite kind, that of the Righteous. It contains every detail of the Righteous. But this is all to be understood in a metaphorical sense.

6021. See lvi. 11, n. 5227; also n. 5223. Those Nearest to God will be witnesses to this Righteous Record; or as it may also be rendered, they will be present at the Record, and watch this Record. Metaphorically, the highest spiritual dignitaries are always helping and assisting at the piling up of the good record of every soul that strives for good, however humble in rank that soul may be.

6024. The Wine will be of the utmost purity and flavour, so precious that it will be protected with a seal, and the seal itself will be of the costly material of musk, which is most highly esteemed in the East for its perfume. Perhaps a better interpretation of the "seal" is to take it as implying the final effect of the drink: just as a seal closes a document, so the seal of the drink will be the final effect of the delicious perfume and flavour of musk, heightening the enjoyment and helping in the digestion. The physical effect is metaphorical of the spiritual purity of Bliss.

6026. Tasnīm literally indicates height, fulness, opulence. Here it is the name of a heavenly Fountain, whose drink is superior to that of the Purest Wine. It is the nectar drunk by Those Nearest to God (n. 5227 to lvi. 11), the highest in spiritual dignity; but a flavour of it will be given to all, according to their spiritual capacity. See Appendix XII, paragraph 13, towards the end; also n. 5835 to lxxvi. 5 (Kāfar fountain), and n. 5849 to lxxvi. 17-18 (Salsabīl).

٣٠- هَلْ ثُوِّبُ الْكُفَّارُ

مَا كَانُوَا يَفْعُلُونَ خُ

6027. The wicked laugh at the righteous in this world in many ways: (1) They inwardly laugh at their Faith, because they feel themselves so superior. (2) In public places, when the righteous pass, they wink at each other and insult them. (3) In their own houses they run them down. (4) Whenever and wherever they see them, they reproach them with being fools who have lost their way, when the boot is really on the other leg. In the Hereafter all these tricks and falsehoods will be shown for what they are, and the tables will be reversed.

6028. But the wicked critics of the Righteous have no call in any case to sit in judgment over them. Who set them as Keepers or guardians over the Righteous? Let them look to their own condition and future first.

6029. The tables will then be reversed, and he laughs best who laughs last.

6030. A repetition of verse 23 above, but with a different shade of meaning. The Righteous on their Thrones of Dignity will be able to see all the true values restored in their own favour: but they will also see something else: they will also see the arrogant braggarts brought low, who brought about their own downfall by their own actions.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXXXIV (Inshiqaq).

Chronologically this Sūra is closely connected with the last one. In subject-matter it resembles more S. lxxxii. and lxxxi., with which it may be compared.

By a number of mystic metaphors it is shown that the present phenomenal order will not last, and God's full Judgment will certainly be established: man should therefore strive for that World of Eternity and True Values.

C. 264.—All mysteries, fair or shrouded in gloom,

(lxxxiv. 1-25.) Will vanish when the full Reality

Stands revealed. If this Life is but Painful

Toil, there's the Hope of the Meeting with the Lord!

That will be Bliss indeed for the Righteous,

But woe to the arrogant dealers in sin!

Like the sunset Glow or the shades of Night,

Or the Moon's ever-changing light, man's life

Never rests here below, but travels ever onwards

Stage by stage. Grasp then God's Message

And reach the Heights, to reap a Reward

That will never fail through all eternity!

Sūra LXXXIV.

Inshiqaq, or The Rending Asunder.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. When the Sky is Rent asunder, 6031
- 2. And hearkens to 60.2

  (The Command of) its Lord,—
  And it must needs

  (Do so);—
- 3. And when the Earth Is flattened out, 6023
- 4. And casts forth
  What is within it
  And becomes (clean) empty,
- 5. And hearkens to 6034
  (The Command of) its Lord,—
  And it must needs
  (Do so);—(then will come
  Home the full Reality).6035

6031. The passing away of this world of sense to make way for a new World of Reality is here indicated by two Facts, which are themselves Symbols for a complete revolution in our whole knowledge and experience. At the beginning of S. lxxxii. and S. lxxxi, other Symbols were used, to lead up to the arguments there advanced. Here the two Symbols are: (1) the Sky being rent asunder and giving up its secrets, and (2) the Earth being flattened out from the globe it is, and giving up its secrets. See the following notes.

6032. We may think that the heavens we see above us,—high and sacred, seemingly vast and limitless, eternal and timeless—are not created matter. But they are. And they remain just so long as God wills it so, and not a moment longer. As soon as His Command issues for their dissolution, they will obey and vanish, and all their mystery will be emptied out. And it must necessarily be so; their very nature as created beings requires that they must hearken to the voice of their Creator, even to the extent of their own extinction.

6033. The Earth is a globe, enclosing within it many secrets and mysteries—gold and diamonds in its mines, neat and magnetic forces in its entrails, and the bodies of countless generations of men buried within its soil. At its dissolution all these contents will be disgorged; it will lose its shape as a globe, and cease to exist.

A more mystic meaning lies behind the ordinary meaning of the vanishing of the heavens and the earth as we see them. Our ideas of them—their subjective contents with reference to ourselves will also lose all shape and form and vanish before the eternal verities.

6034. See n. 6032. We think the earth so solid and real. All our perishable things dissolve into the earth. But the earth itself will dissolve into a truer Reality.

6035. The substantive clause, to follow the two conditional clauses preceding, may be filled up from the suggestion contained in lxxxii, 5.

- 7. Then he who is given His Record in his Right hand, 6037
- 8. Soon will his account

6036. This life is ever full of toil and misery, if looked at as empty of the Eternal Hope which Revelation gives us. Hence the literature of pessimism in poetry and philosophy, which thinking minds have poured forth in all ages, when that Hope was obscured to them. "Our sweetest songs are those that tell of saddest thought." "To each his suffering; all are men condemned alike to groan!" It is the noblest men that have to "scorn delights and live laborious days" in this life. The good suffer on account of their very goodness: the evil on account of their Evil. But the balance will be set right in the end. Those that wept shall be made to rejoice, and those that went 6038. His people: should be understood in a large sense, including all righteous persons of his category, (including of course all those nearest and dearest to him), who are spiritually of his family, whether before him or after him in time.

6040. The wicked will cry for death and annihilation: but they will neither live nor die: xx. 74.

6041. The tables are now turned. His self-complacence and self-conceit in his lower life will now give place to weeping and gnashing of teeth! Cf. n. 6036 above,

- 14. Truly, did he think
  That he would not

٥- لَتُرُكُنُ طَبُقًا عَنْ طَبَقٍ أَ

6042. Most of the Evil in this world is due to the false idea that man is irresponsible, or to a mad and thoughtless indulgence of Self. Man is not irresponsible. He is responsible for every deed, word, and thought of his, to his Maker, to Whom he has to return, to give an account of himself. To remember this and act accordingly is to achieve salvation; to forget or flout that responsibility is to get into the Fire of self-deception and misery.

- 6043. The same form of adjuration as in lxix. 37. The substantive statement is in verse 19 below: "Ye shall surely travel from stage to stage". Nothing in this life is fixed, or will last. Three things are mentioned which on the one hand have remained from age to age for as far back as the memory of man can go, and yet each of them is but a short phase, gone as it were in the twinkling of an eye. See the following notes. So our life here is but a fleeting show. Its completion is to be looked for elsewhere.
- 6044. (1) The sun seems such a great reality that people worshipped him as a divinity. The beautiful glow it leaves when it sets is but momentary: it changes every moment and vanishes with the twilight
- 6045. (2) The Night is a phenomenon you see during almost half every twenty-four hours in ordinary latitudes. At nightfall, all the wandering flocks and herds come home. The men scattered abroad for their livelihood return home to rest and sleep. The Night collects them in their homes, and yet this phase of Homing lasts but a little while Presently all is silent and still. So will it be with our souls when this life is ended with our death. We shall be collected in a newer and larger Homing.
- 6046. (3) The astronomical Full Moon does not last a moment. The moment the moon is full, she begins to decline, and the moment she is in her "inter-lunar swoon", she begins her career anew as a growing New Moon. So is man's life here below. It is not fixed or permanent, either in its physical phases, or even more strikingly, in its finer phases, intellectual, emotional, or spiritual.
- 6047. Man travels and ascends stage by stage. In lxvii. 3 the same word in the form tibaqan was used of the heavens, as if they were in layers one above another. Man's spiritual life may similarly be compared to an ascent from one heaven to another.

- 20. What then is the matter With them, that they Believe not?—6048
- 21. And when the Qur-an Is read to them, they Fall not prostrate, 60.00
- 22. But on the contrary
  The Unbelievers reject (it).
- 23. But God has full Knowledge Of what they secrete (In their breasts).
- 24. So announce to them A Penalty Grievous,
- 25. Except to those who believe And work righteous deeds: For them is a Reward That will never fail. 6050

۲-وَ إِذَا قُرِئَ عَلَيْهِمُ الْقُرْانُ كَرْيَسُجُكُونَ أَنَّ السَّالِيَةِ مِنْ الْقُرْانُ

<sup>6048.</sup> Considering man's high destiny, and the fact that this life is but a stage or a sojourn for him, it might be expected that he would eagerly embrace every opportunity of welcoming God's Revelation and ascending by Faith to heights of spiritual wisdom. There is something wrong with his will if he does not do so. Notice the transition from the second person in verse 19, where there is a direct appeal to God's votaries, to the third person in verses 20-21, where men who are rebels against God's Kingdom are spoken of as if they were aliens.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SŪRA LXXXV (Burūj).

This is one of the earlier Meccan Sūras, chronologically cognate with S. xci. The subject-matter is the persecution of God's votaries. God watches over His own, and will deal with the enemies of Truth as He dealt with them in the past.

C. 265.—Woe to those who persecute Truth!

(lxxxv. 1-22.) They are being watched by mighty Eyes;

They will have to answer when the Judgment comes;

And a clear Record will witness against them.

Are they cruel to men because of their Faith?

The Fire they use will be turned against them.

For God is strong, and will subdue

The mightiest foes. Be warned, and learn

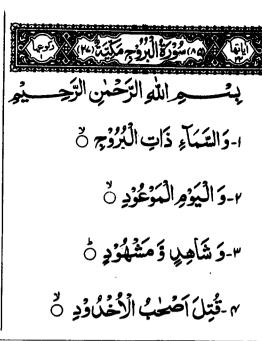

From His gracious Message, preserved through all Time!

Most Merciful.

- 1. By the Sky, (displaying) 6031 The Zodiacal Signs; 6052
- 2. By the promised Day (Of Judgment); 6053
- By one that witnesses, And the subject of the witness; - 6054
- 4. Woe to the makers Of the pit (of fire), 6055

6051. Here is an appeal to three mystic symbols in verses 1-3, and the substantive proposition is in verses 4-8, a denunciation of wicked persecutors of the votaries of God, persecutors who burnt righteous men at the stake for their Faith. The three mystic Symbols are: (1) the Glorious Sky, with the broad belt of the Constellations marking the twelve Signs of the Zodiac; (2) the Day of Judgment, when all evil will be punished; and (3) certain Persons that will be witnesses, and certain Persons or things that will be the subjects of the witness. See the notes following.

6052. See n. 1950 to xv. 16. The Stars of the Zodiac as well as of other Constellations are like the eyes of the Night. It may be that crimes are committed in the darkness of the night (literally or metaphorically). But countless eyes (metaphorically) are watching all the time, and every author of evil will be brought to book.

6053. The Day of Judgment, when the Sinner will have to give an account of every deed, open or hidden, is not merely a matter of speculation. It is definitely promised in revelation, and will inevitably come to pass. Woe then to the Sinners for their crimes.

6054. The literal meaning is clear, but its metaphorical application has been explained in a variety of ways by different Commentators. The words are fairly comprehensive, and should, I think, be understood in connection with Judgment. There the Witnesses may be: (I) the Prophets (iii. 81); God Himself (iii. 81, and x. 61); the Recording Angels (I 21); the Sinner's own misused limbs (xxiv. 24); his record of deeds (xvii. 14); or the Sinner himself (xvii. 14). The subject of the witness may be the deed or crime, or the Sinner against whom the testimony cries out. The appeal to these things means that the Sinner cannot possibly escape the consequences of his crime. He should repent, seek God's Mercy, and amend his life.

6055. Who were the makers of the pit of fire in which they burnt people for their Faith? The words are perfectly general, and we need not search for particular names, except by way of illustration. In ancient history, and in Mediæval Europe, many lives were sacrificed at the stake because the victims did not conform to the established religion. In Arab tradition there is the story of Abraham: Nimrūd tries to burn him to death, but on account of Abraham's Faith, the fire became "a means of safety for Abraham": xxi. 69, and n. 2725. Another case cited is that of Zu-Nuwās, the last Himyarite King of Yemen, by religion a Jew, who persecuted the Christians of Najrān and is said to have burnt them at the stake. He seems to have lived in the latter half of the sixth Christian century, in the generation immediately preceding the Prophet's birth in 570 A.D. While the words are perfectly general, a reference is suggested to the persecution to which the early Muslims were subjected by the Pagan Quraish. Among other cruelties, they were stripped, and their skins were exposed to the burning rays of the Arabian summer sun.

  That they believed in God,

- 10. Mehose who persecute (or draw into temptation)

  The Believers, men and women,
  And do not turn

6056. The persecutors sat calmly to gloat over the agonies of their victims in the well-fed fire.

6057. It is suggested that the persecutors will richly deserve to be punished in the Fire of Hell. That Punishment will be far more real and lasting than the undeserved cruelty which they inflicted on men for their Faith in the One True God.

6058. If we distinguish the Penalty of Hell from that of the Burning Fire, we should take the latter metaphorically, as the Fire burning in their heart for their sins and ill deeds even in this life, the fire of hatred and greed, the fire of shame and sorrow, even in this life.

<sup>6061.</sup> For the various words for "Creation" and the ideas implied in them, see n. 120 to ii. 117.

<sup>6062.</sup> God's Will is itself the Word and the Deed. There is no interval between them. He does not change His mind. No circumstance whatever can come between His Will and the execution thereof. Such are His Power and His Glory. Compare it with that of men, described in the next two verses.

<sup>6063.</sup> In contrast to the real, all-embracing, and eternal power of God, what are the forces of man at their best? Two examples are mentioned. (1) Pharaoh was a proud monarch of a powerful kingdom, with resources and organisation, material, moral, and intellectual, as good as any in the world. When he pitted himself against God's Prophet, he and his forces were destroyed. See lxxix. 15-26. (2) The Thamūd were great builders, and had a high standard of material civilization. But they defied the law of God and perished. See vii. 73-79, and n. 1043.

<sup>6064.</sup> In spite of the great examples of the past, by which human might and skill were shown to have availed nothing when the law of God was broken, the unbelievers persist (in all ages) in defying that law. But God will know how to deal with them.

<sup>6065.</sup> God encompasses every thing. But the wicked will find themselves defeated not only in conditions that they foresee, but from all sorts of unexpected directions, perhaps from behind them, i.e., from the very people or circumstances which in their blindness they despised or thought of as helping them.

<sup>6066.</sup> God's Message is not ephemeral. It is eternal. The "Tablet" is not to be understood in a material sense, made of stone or metal. It is "preserved" or guarded from corruption: xv. 9: for God's Message must endure for ever. That Message is the "Mother of the book"; see n. 347 to iii. 7.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA LXXXVI (Tāriq).

This Sūra also belongs to the early Meccan period, perhaps not far removed from the last Sūra.

Its subject-matter is the protection afforded to every soul in the darkest period of its spiritual history. The physical nature of man may be insignificant, but the soul given to him by God must win a glorious Future in the end.

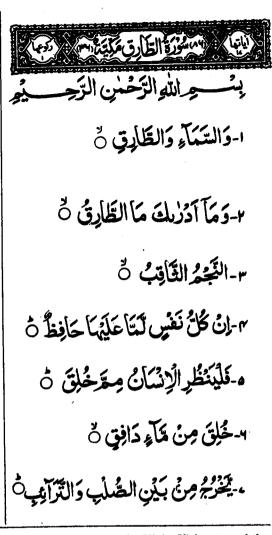

C. 266.—Through the darkest night comes the penetrating light (lxxxvi. 1-17.) Of a glorious Star. Such is the power
Of Revelation: it protects and guides the erring.
For what is man? But a creature of flesh
And bones! But God by His Power doth raise
Man's state to a Life Beyond!—when lo!
All things hidden will be made plain.
Man's help will then be but the Word
Of God, which none can thwart. So wait
With gentle patience—for His Decision.

Sura LXXXVI.

Taria, or The Night-Visitant.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. By the Sky 6067
  And the Night-Visitant 6068
  (Therein);
- 2. And what will explain to thee What the Night-Visitant is?—
- (It is) the Star
   Of piercing brightness;—
- 4. There is no soul but has A protector over it. 6069
- 5. Now let man but think From what he is created!
- 6. He is created from A drop emitted—6070
- 7. Proceeding from between
  The backbone and the ribs: 6071

6067. The appeal here is to a single mystic Symbol, viz: the Sky with its Night-Visitant; and the substantive proposition is in verse 4: "There is no soul but has a protector over it". In the last Sūra we considered the persecution of God's votaries, and how God protects them. Here the same theme is presented in another aspect. In the darkest sky shines out most brilliantly the light of the most brilliant star. So in the night of spiritual darkness—whether through ignorance or distress—shines the glorious star of God's Revelation. By the same token the man of Faith and Truth has nothing to fear. God will protect His own.

6068. This is explained in verse 3 below. The "Star of piercing brightness" is understood by some to be the Morning Star, by others to be the planet Saturn, by others again to be Sirius, or the Pleiads or shooting stars. I think it is best to take the "Star" in the collective or generic sense, for stars shine on every night in the year, and their piercing brightness is most noticeable on the darkest night.

6069. If man has a true spiritual understanding, he has nothing to be afraid of. He is protected by God in many ways that he does not even know. He may be an insignificant creature as a mere animal, but his soul raises him to a dignity above other creation. And all sorts of divine forces guard and protect him.

6070. See n 5832 to lxxvi. 2. See also last note.

6071. A man's seed is the quintessence of his body. It is therefore said metaphorically to proceed from his loins, i.e., from his back between the hip-bones and his ribs. His back-bone is the source and symbol of his strength and personality. In the spinal cord and in the brain is the directive energy of the central nervous system, and this directs all action, organic and psychic. The spinal cord is continuous with the Medulla Oblongata in the brain.

- 8. Surely (God) is able To bring him back (To life)! 6072
- 9. Ache Day that (All) things secret Will be tested,
- 10. (Man) will have No power, And no helper. 6073
- 11. By the Firmament 6074
  Which returns (in its round),
- 12. And by the Earth
  Which opens out 6075
  (For the gushing of springs
  Or the sprouting of vegetation),—
- 13. Behold this is the Word That distinguishes (Good From Evil): 6076
- 14. It is not a thing For amusement.

م-اِتَّاءُ عَلَىٰ رَجُومِهِ لَقَادِرٌ أَ

٥ - يَوْمُرَثُبُلَ السَّرَآئِرُ ٥

> ۱۲-وَالْاَرْضِ دَاتِ الصَّلَعِ ٥

٣- إنَّهُ لَقُولٌ فَصُلُّ ٥

١٠٠٠ و كَمَا هُوَ بِالْهَزَٰكِ ٥

6073. In that new world, all our actions, motives, thoughts, and imaginings of this life, however secret, will be brought into the open, and tested by the standards of absolute Truth, and not by false standards of custom, prejudice, or partiality. In that severe test, any adventitious advantages of this life will have no strength or force whatever, and cannot help in any way.

6074. The Firmament above is always the same, and yet it performs its diurnal round, smoothly and punctually. So does God's Revelation show forth the Truth, which like a circle is ever true to its centre,—which is ever the same, though it revolves through the changing circumstances of our present life.

6075. The earth seems hard, but springs can gush forth and vegetables sprout through it and make it green and soft. So is Truth: hard perhaps to mortals, but through the fertilising agency of Revelation, it allows our inner personality to sprout and blossom forth.

6076. See the last two notes. Revelation—God's Truth—can pierce through the hardest crusts, and ever lead us back to the centre and goal of our spiritual life: for it separates Good from Evil definitely. It is not mere play or amusement, any more than the Sky or the Earth is. It helps us in the highest issues of our life.

- 15. Are but plotting a scheme,
- 16. And I am planning A scheme. 6078
- 17. Therefore grant a delay
  To the unbelievers:
  Give respite to them
  Gently (for awhile). 6079

٣- وَ ٱلْكِينُ كَيْنًا أَ

١٠- فَيُهَ لِللَّهِ مِنْ اللَّهِ مُنْ اللَّهِ لَهُ مُو رُويُكًا أَ

<sup>6977.</sup> Though God in His Mercy has provided a piercing light to penetrate our spiritual darkness, and made our beings responsive to the growth of spiritual understanding, just as the hard earth is responsive to the sprouting of a seed or the gushing of a stream, yet there are evil, unregenerate men who plot and scheme against the beneficent purpose of God. But their plots will be of no avail, and God's Purpose will prevail. It happened so with the Quraish who wanted to thwart the growth of Islam. It will be so in all ages.

<sup>6078.</sup> Makara is applied both to plotting with an evil purpose and planning with a good purpose. Cf. iii. 54, and n. "And the unbelievers plotted and planned, and God too planned, and the best of planners is God."

<sup>6079.</sup> Gentle forbearance with Evil shows our trust in God and God's Plan: for it can never be frustrated. This does not mean that we should assist or compromise with evil, or fail to put it down where we have the power. It means patience and humility where we have no visible power to prevent Evil.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA LXXXVII (A'lā).

This is one of the earliest of the Meccan Sūras, being usually placed eighth in chronological order, and immediately after S. lxxxi.

The argument is that God has made man capable of progress by ordered steps, and by His Revelation will lead him still higher to purification and perfection.

C. 267.—Wonderful are the ways of God

(Ixxxvii. 1-19.) In creation, and the love with which
He guides His creatures' destinies,
Gives them the means by which to strive
For maturity by ordered steps, and reach
The end most fitted for their natures.
His Law is just and easy, and His Grace
Is ever ready to help: let us look
To the Eternal Goal, with hearts and souls
Of Purity, and glorify His name:
For in this changing, fleeting world,
His Word is always true, and will remain,
Through all the ages, ever the same.

Stira LXXXVII.

A'la, or The Most High.

In the name of God, Most Gracious. Most Merciful.

- Calorify the name
   Of thy Guardian-Lord 6000
   Most High,
- Who hath created, 6081
   And further, given
   Order and proportion;
- 3. Who hath ordained laws. 6082 And granted guidance;
- 4. And Who bringeth out 6083

  The (green and luscious) pasture,
- 5. And then doth make it (But) swarthy stubble.
- 6. By degrees shall We Teach thee to declare 6084

٠ سَنْقُرِئُكَ

٥- فَعُمَّلَهُ غُثَانَةٍ أَحُوى أَ

6080. The word "Lord" by itself is an inadequate rendering here for Rabb. For it implies cherishing, guarding from harm, sustaining, granting all the means and opportunities of development. See, n. 20 to i. 2. For shortness, perhaps "Guardian-Lord" will be sufficient in the Text.

6081. The story of Creation is wonderful and continuous. There are several processes which we contemplate in glorifying God's name. First, He brings us into being. Secondly, He endows us with forms and faculties exactly suited to what is expected of us, and to the environments in which our life will be cast, giving to everything due order and proportion.

6082. Thirdly, He has ordained laws and decrees, by which we can develop ourselves and fit ourselves into His whole scheme of evolution for all His Creation. He has measured exactly the needs of all, and given us instincts and physical and psychical predispositions which fit into His decrees. Fourthly, He gives us guidance, so that we are not the sport of mechanical laws. Our reason and our will are exercised, that we may reach the higher destiny of man.

6083. Fifthly, after maturity comes decay. But even in that decay, as when green pasture turns to stubble. we subserve other ends. In so far as we are animals, we share these processes with other forms of material Creation, animal, vegetable, and even mineral, which all have their appointed laws of growth and decay, But man's higher destiny is referred to in subsequent verses.

6084. The soul, as it reaches the Light of God, makes gradual progress, like a man going from darkness into light. So the Qur-ān was revealed by stages. So all revelation from God comes by stages.

As usual, there are two parallel meanings: (1) that connected with the occasion of direct inspiration to the holy Prophet; and (2) the more general Message to mankind for all time. Everyone who understands the Message must declare it, in words, and still more, in his conduct.

S. LXXXVII. 6-12.

(The Message), so thou Shalt not forget, 6085

- 7. Except as God wills: 6006

  For He knoweth

  What is manifest

  And what is hidden.
- 8. And We will make it Easy for thee (to follow)
  The simple (Path). 6087
- 9. Therefore give admonition In case the admonition Profits (the hearer).
- 10. The admonition will be received By those who fear (God):
- 11. But it will be avoided

  By those most unfortunate ones,
- 12. Who will enter The Great Fire, 6000

ئلاتئنگي ڻ

٤-إَلَا مَا شَاءُ اللّهُ * إِنَّهُ يَعْلَمُ الْجُهُرُو مَا يَخْفَى حُ

٨- وَنُيكِتِ رُك لِلْيُسُرِي أَ

٥- فَكُ كِنْ إِنْ نَفَعَتِ الدِّكُولِي أَ

٠٠-سَيْنُ كُرُو مَنْ يَحْشَى ٥

اا - وَيُتَجُنَّهُ إِلَّا الْأَشْقَى ٥

١٠- الَّذِي يَصُلَى النَّارُ الْكُبُرُى ٥

6085. The particular occasion was an assurance to the Prophet, that though he was unlettered, the Message given to him would be preserved in his heart and in the hearts of men. The more general sense is that mankind, having once seized great spiritual truths, will hold fast to them, except as qualified in the following verse.

6086. There can be no question of this having any reference to the abrogation of any verses of the Qur-ān. For this Sūra is one of the earliest revealed, being placed about eighth according to the most accepted chronological order. While the basic principles of God's Law remain the same, its form, expression, and application have varied from time to time, e.g., from Moses to Jesus, and from Jesus to Muhammad. It is one of the beneficent mercies of God that we should forget some things of the past, lest our minds become confused and our development is retarded. Besides, God knows what is manifest and what is hidden, and His Will and Plan work with supreme wisdom and goodness.

6087. The Path of Islam is simple and easy. It depends on no abstruse mysteries or self-mortifications, but on straight and manly conduct in accordance, with the laws of man's nature as implanted in him by God (xxx. 30). On the other hand, spiritual perfection may be most difficult, for it involves complete surrender on our part to God in all our affairs, thoughts, and desires: but after that surrender God's Grace will make our path easy.

6088. This is not so strong as the Biblical phrase, "Cast not pearls before swine" (Matt. vii. 6). The cases where admonition does produce spiritual profit and where it does not, are mentioned below in verses 10 and 11-13 respectively. God's Message should be proclaimed to all; but particular and personal admonitions are also due to those who attend and in whose hearts is the fear of God; in the case of those who run away from it and dishonour it, such particular and personal admonition is useless. They are the unfortunate ones who prepare their own ruin.

6089. The Great Fire is the final Penalty or Disaster in the Hereafter, as contrasted with the minor Penalties or Disasters from which all evil suffers from within in this very life.

- In which they will then Neither die nor live. 6090
- 14. But those will prosper 6091
  Who purify themselves, 6092
- 15. And glorify the name
  Of their Guardian-Lord,
  And (lift their hearts)
  In Prayer.
- 16. Day (behold), ye prefer The life of this world;
- 17. But the Hereafter Is better and more enduring.
- 18. And this is
  In the Books
  Of the earliest (Revelations),—6093
- The Books of Abraham <sup>6094</sup> and Moses.<sup>6095</sup>

٣١- ثُمُرُ لَا يَمُونُ فِيهُا وَلَا يَحُيٰى ٥ ٣١- قَكُ أَنْ لَهُ مَنْ تَزَكَى ٥ ١٥- وَ ذَكَرُ السُمَرَتِهِ فَصَلَى ٥ ٣١- بُلُ ثُوْ شِرُوْنَ الْحَيْوَةَ الدُّيْنَا ٥

١٠- وَالْاخِرَةُ خَيْرٌ وَ اَبْغَىٰ ٥ ١٠- إِنَّ هٰذَا لَفِي الصَّعُفِ الْرُولِيٰ ٥

١٩ صُعُفِ إِبْرَاهِ يُمْرُو مُؤللي أَ

6090. A terrible picture of those who ruin their whole future by evil lives here below. They introduce a discord into Creation, while life should be one great universal concord. And their past clings to them as part of their own will. They are not even like the dry swarthy stubble mentioned in verse 5 above, which grew naturally out of the luscious pasture, for they have grown harmful, in defiance of their own nature. "Neither die nor live": Cf. xx. 74.

6091. Prosper: in the highest and spiritual sense; attain to Bliss or Salvation: as opposed to "enter the Fire".

6092. The first process in godliness is to cleanse ourselves in body, mind, and soul. Then we shall be in a fit state to see and proclaim the Glory of God. That leads us to our actual absorption in Praise and Prayer.

6093. The law of righteousness and godliness is not a new law, nor are the vanity and short duration of this world preached here for the first time. But spiritual truths have to be renewed and reiterated again and again.

6094. No Book of Abraham has come down to us. But the Old Testament recognises that Abraham was a prophet (Gen. xx. 7). There is a book in Greek, which has been translated by Mr. G. H. Box, called the Testament of Abraham (published by the Society for the Promotion of Christian Knowledge, London, 1927). It seems to be a Greek translation of a Hebrew original. The Greek Text was probably written in the second Christian century, in Egypt, but in its present form it probably goes back only to the 9th or 10th Century. It was popular among the Christians, Perhaps the Jewish Midrash also refers to a Testament of Abraham.

6095. The original Revelation of Moses, of which the present Pentateuch is a surviving recension.

See Appendix II., p. 282.

The present Gospels do not come under the definition of the "earliest" Books. Nor could they be called "Books of Jesus": they were written not by him, but about him, and long after his death.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA LXXXVIII (Gāshiya).

This is a late Sura of the early Meccan period, perhaps close in date to S. lii. Its subject-matter is the contrast between the destinies of the Good and the Evil in the Hereafter,—on the Day when the true balance will be restored: the Signs of God even in this life should remind us of the Day of Account, for God is good and just, and His creation is for a just Purpose.

C. 268.—Have you heard of that Tremendous Day (IXXXVIII. 1-26.) When the Good from the Evil will be separated?

There will be Souls that Day will burn And grovel in the blazing Fire of Wrath! No Food can fill their Hunger: no Drink, Alas, can slake their fierce Thirst!

There will be Souls that Day will shout
With Joy to the glory of their Lord!
Their past Endeavour will now be Achievement.
Raised high on Thrones of Dignity they
Will be Guests at the sumptuous Feast of Bliss.

Let man but look at his dominion o'er
The beasts of the field, or his glorious Canopy
Of stars, or the Eternal Hills that feed
His streams, or the wide expanse of Mother
Earth that nurtures him, and he
Will see the ordered Plan of God.
To Him must he return and give account!
Let him, then, learn his Lesson and live!

6096. Gāshiya: the thing or event that overshadows or overwhelms, that covers over or makes people lose their senses. In xii. 107, it is described as the "covering veil of the Wrath of God": where see n. 1790. The Day of Judgment is indicated, as the Event of overwhelming importance, in which all our petty differences of this imperfect world are covered over and overwhelmed in a new world of perfect justice and truth.

6097. Cf. lxxv. 22, 24.

6098. On the faces of the wicked will appear the hard labour and consequent fatigue of the task they will have in battling against the fierce Fire which their own Deeds will have kindled.

6099. The root-meaning implies again the idea of humiliation. Metaphorically, it is understood to be a plant, bitter and thorny, loathsome in smell and appearance, which will neither give fattening nourishment to the body nor in any way satisfy the burning pangs of hunger,—a fit plant for Hell, like Zaqqūm (lvi. 52; or xvii. 60, n. 2250).

- 9. Pleased with their Striving,—6100
- 10. In a Garden on high, 6101
- 11. Where they shall hear No (word) of vanity:
- 12. Therein will be A bubbling spring: 6102
- 13. Therein will be Thrones (Of dignity), raised on high,
- 14. Goblets placed (ready),
- 15. And Cushions set in rows,
- 16. And rich carpets (All) spread out.
- 17. Do they not look
  At the Camels, 6103
  How they are made?—

٩- لَسَعْمِهَا رَاضِيَةٌ ٥
 ١- فَى جَنَّةٍ عَالِيةٍ ٥
 ١١- لَا تَسَمَعُ رِنْهَا الرَّخِيةً ٥

١١- فِيهُمَا عَيْنٌ جَارِيةٌ ٥

٣ - فِيهُا سُرُرٌ مَّرُفُوعَةً ٥

٣١- ٷ ٱڵۅٵڮ مَوْضُوْعَةً ٥ُ ١٥- ٷ نَكَارِقُ مَصْفُوْنَةً ٥ُ ١٤- ٷ زَرَانِيُ مَبْثُوْنَةً ۗ ۞

٤- أفَلَا يَـ نُظُرُونَ إِلَى الْإِيلِ كَيْفَ خُلِقَتْ ثَ

6100. Notice the parallelism in contrast, between the fate of the Wicked and that of the Righteous. In the one case there was humiliation in their faces; in the other, there is joy; where there was labour and weariness in warding off the Fire, there is instead a healthy Striving, which is itself pleasurable,—a Striving which is a pleasant consequence of the spiritual Endeavour in the earthly life, which may have brought trouble or persecution from without, but which brought inward peace and satisfaction.

6101. The most important point is their inward state of joy and satisfaction, mentioned in verses 8-9. Now are mentioned metaphors of outer things of bliss, the chief of which is the Garden: see Appendix XII., following S. liv. The Garden is in contrast to the Fire. Its chief beauty will be that they will hear there nothing unbecoming, or foolish, or vain. It will be a Garden on high, in all senses,—fit for the best, highest, and noblest.

6102. Instead of the boiling hot spring (verse 5) there will be a bubbling spring of sparkling water. Instead of the grovelling and grumbling in the place of Wrath, there will be Thrones of Dignity, with all the accompaniments of a brilliant Assembly.

6103 In case men neglect the Hereafter as of no account, they are asked to contemplate four things, which they can see in every-day life, and which are full of meaning, high design, and the goodness of God to man. The first mentioned is the domesticated animal, which for Arab countries is par excellence the Camel What a wonderful structure has this Ship of the Desert? He can store water in his stomach for days. He can live on dry and thorny desert shrubs. His limbs are adapted to his life. He can carry men and goods. His flesh can be eaten Camel's hair can be used in weaving. And withal, he is so gentle! Who can sing his praises enough?

- 18. And at the Sky, 6104
  How it is raised high?—
- 19. And at the Mountains, 6103

  How they are fixed firm?—
- 20. And at the Earth, 6106
  How it is spread out?
- 21. Meherefore do thou give Admonition, for thou art One to admonish.
- 22. Thou art not one To manage (men's) affairs. 6107
- 23. But if any turn away And reject God,—
- 24. God will punish him
  With a mighty Punishment,
- 25. For to Us will be Their Return;
- 26. Then it will be for Us

  To call them to account.

٨١-وَ إِلَى السَّمَاءِ كَيْفَ رُفِعَتُ ٥٠

١٠- وَإِلَى الْحِبَالِ كَيْفَ نُصِبَتُ ٥

٢٥-إِنَّ إِلَيْنَا إِيابَهُمْ نُ

٢٧- ثُمُّ إِنَّ عَلَيْنَا حِسَابُهُمْ أَ

6104. The second thing they should consider is the noble blue vault high above them,—with the sun and moon, the stars and planets, and other heavenly bodies. This scene is full of beauty and magnificence, design and order, plainness and mystery. And yet we receive our light and warmth from the sun, and what would our physical lives be without these influences that come from such enormous distances?

6105. From every-day utility and affection in the Camel, to the utility in grandeur in the heavens above us, we had two instances touching our individual as well as our social lives. In the third instance, in the Mountains, we come to the utility to human kind generally in the services the Mountains perform in storing water, in moderating climate, and in various other ways which it is the business of Physical Geography to investigate and describe.

6106. The fourth and last instance given is that of the Earth as a whole, the habitation of mankind in our present phase of life. The Earth is a globe, and yet how marvellously it seems to be spread out before us in plains, valleys, hills, deserts, seas, etc.! Can man. seeing these things, fail to see a Plan and Purpose in his life, or fail to turn to the great Creator before Whom he will have to give an account after this life is done?

6107. The Prophet of God is sent to teach and direct people on the way. He is not sent to force their will, or to punish them, except in so far as he may receive authority to do so. Punishment belongs to God alone. And Punishment is certain in the Hereafter, when true values will be restored.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA LXXXIX (Fajr).

This is one of the earliest of the Sūras to be revealed,—probably within the first ten in chronological order.

Its mystic meaning is suggested by contrasts,—contrasts in nature and in man's long history. Thus does it enforce the lesson of Faith in the Hereafter to "those who understand". Man's history and legendary lore show that greatness does not last and the proudest are brought low. For enforcing moral and spiritual truths, the strictest history is no better than legend. Indeed all artistic history is legend, for it is written from a special point of view.

Man is easily cowed by contrasts in his own fortunes, and yet he does not learn from them the lesson of forbearance and kindness to others, and the final elevation of goodness in the Hereafter. When all the things on which his mind and heart are set on this earth shall be crushed to nothingness, he will see the real glory and power, love and beauty, of God, for these are the light of the Garden of Paradise.

C. 269.—Man is apt to forget the contrasts

(Ixxxix. 1-30.) In nature and life, and all that they mean
In his spiritual growth. Perchance his mind
Is so absorbed in what he sees,
That he doubts the vast Realities
He does not see. The Present makes Him blind to the Past and to the Future.
Fooled by glory, he fears not a fall;
And baulked in disaster, he gives up Hope
And sometimes Faith. Let him study
Nature and History, and restore his Faith:
Realising the Sure Event, the Hereafter,
Let him find his fullest fulfilment
In the service and the good-pleasure of God!

Sūra LXXXIX.

Fair, or The Break of Day.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,

Most Merciful

- By the Break of Day; 6108
- 2. By the Nights twice five; 6109
- 3. By the Even And Odd (contrasted); 6110
- 4. And by the Night 6111
  When it passeth away;—

6108. Four striking contrasts are mentioned, to show God's Power and Justice, and appeal to "those who understand". The first is the glory and mystery of the Break of Day. It just succeeds the deepest dark of the Night, when the first rays of light break through. Few people except those actually in personal touch with nature can feel its compelling power. In respect both of beauty and terror, of hope and inspiration, of suddenness and continuing increase of light and joy, this "holy time" of night may well stand as the type of spiritual awakening from darkness to Faith, from Death to Resurrection.

6109. By the Ten Nights are usually understood the first ten nights of Zul-Ḥajj, the sacred season of Pilgrimage. From the most ancient times Mecca was the centre of Arab pilgrimage. The story of Abraham is intimately connected with it: see ii. 125-127 and notes, also n. 217 to ii. 197. In times of Paganism various superstitions were introduced, which Islam swept away. Islam also purified the rites and ceremonies, giving them new meaning. The ten days specially devoted to the Ḥajj introduce a striking contrast in the life of Mecca and of the pilgrims. Mecca, from being a quiet secluded city, is then thronged with thousands of pilgrims from all parts of the world. They discard their ordinary dress—representing every kind of costume—to the simple and ordinary Ihrām (n. 217); they refrain from every kind of fighting and quarrel; they abstain from every kind of luxury and self-indulgence; they hold all life sacred, however humble, except in the way of symbolical and carefully-regulated sacrifice; and they spend their nights in prayer and meditation.

6110. The contrast between even and odd forms the subject of learned argument among those who deal with the mystic properties of numbers. In any case, even and odd follow each other in regular succession: each is independent, and yet neither is self-sufficient. In ultimate analysis every even number is a pair of odd ones. And all things go in pairs: see xxxvi. 36, and n. 3981. In the animal world pairs are but two individuals, and yet each is a complement of the other. Both abstract and concrete things are often understood in contrast with their opposites. Why should we not, in spiritual matters, understand this life better with reference to the Hereafter, and why should we disbelieve in the Hereafter simply because we cannot conceive of anything different from our present life?

6111. That is, the last part of the night, just before full day-light. Note the gradations in spiritual awakening, and their symbols: first, the turn of the night, when just the first rays of day-light break through; secondly, the social and institutional rites of religion, like those during the ten nights of Pilgrimage; thirdly, when the usual contrast between the Here and Hereafter vanishes, and we can see heaven even here; and lastly, when this world vanishes, the full light of Day arrives, and we see Reality face to face.

- 5. Is there (not) in these 6112
  An adjuration (or evidence)
  For those who understand?
- 6. Seest thou not
  How thy Lord dealt
  With the 'Ad (people),—6113
- 7. Of the (city of) Iram, 6114
  With lofty pillars,
- 8. The like of which Were not produced In (all) the land?<sup>6115</sup>
- 9. And with the Thamud 6116 (People), who cut out (Huge) rocks in the valley?—
- 10. And with Pharaoh, Lord of Stakes? 6117

٥- عَلْ فِي ذَٰلِكَ قَسَمَّ لِنِي يَجْرِحُ

٥- اَلَمْ تَرُكَيُفَ فَعَلَ رَبُّكَ بِعَادٍ ٥ ٤- إِرَمَ ذَاتِ الْعِمَادِ ٥

٨-الَّتِىٰ لَوْ يُخْلَقُ مِثْلُهَا فِي الْبِلَادِئْ

٥- وَثُمُوْدُ الْأَنِيْنَ جَابُوا الصَّغُرُ بِالْوَادِ ٥ ١٠- وَفِرْعَوْنَ ذِي الْاَوْ تَادِ ٥ُ

6112. All these mystic Symbols draw our attention, like solemn adjurations in speech, to the profoundest mystery of our inner life, viz,: how from utter depths of darkness—ignorance or even degradation—God's wonderful Light or Revelation can lead us by contrast into the most beautiful sunshine of a glorious spiritual Day. But the contrast suggests also the opposite process as a corollary,—how resistance to God's light would destroy us utterly, converting our greatness or glory to perdition, as happened with the peoples of Arab antiquity, the 'Ad and the Thamūd, and the type of the powerful but arrogant and godless monarch, the Pharaoh of Egypt. Like a man with a bounded horizon, the average man does not understand these long-range mysteries of life, and we have need to pray that we may be of "those who understand".

- 6113. For the 'Ad see n. 1040 to vii 65. They seem to have possessed an ancient civilisation, which succumbed when they persistently broke God's law.
- 6114. Iram would seem to have been an ancient 'Ad capital, in southern Arabia. It boasted of lofty architecture ("lofty pillars"). Some Commentators understand Iram to be the name of an eponymous hero of the 'Ad, in which case the following line, " with lofty pillars", should be construed " of lofty stature". The 'Ad were a tall race.
- 6115. This tract of southern Arabia was once very prosperous (Arabia Felix) and contains ruins and inscriptions. It has always been an object of great interest to the Arabs. In the time of Mu'āwiya some precious stones were found among the ruins in this locality. Quite recently, a bronze lion's head and a bronze piece of gutter with a Sabæan inscription, found in Najrān, have been described in the British Museum Quarterly, vol. XI, No. 4, Sept. 1937.
- 6116. For the Thamud see n. 1043 to vi. 73. Their civilisation shows traces of Egyptian, Syrian, and (later) Greek and Roman influences. They built fine temples, tombs, and buildings out out of the solid rock. The cult of the goddess Lat flourished among them.
- 6117. For "Lord of Stakes", see xxxviii 12. n. 4160 For Pharaoh's arrogance and his fail. see xx. 43, 78-79. The three examples given, the 'Ad, the Thamūd, and Pharaoh, show that neither nations nor individuals, however mighty, prosperous, or firmly established they may be, can live if they transgress the Law of God. The Law of God, which is also the law of the higher nature which He has bestowed on us, made them in the first place great and glorious: when they fell from it and "heaped mischief on mischief", they were swept away.

- (All) these transgressed Beyond bounds in the lands.
- 12. And heaped therein Mischief (on mischief).
- 13. Therefore did thy Lord Pour on them a scourge Of diverse chastisements:
- 14. For thy Lord is
  (As a Guardian)
  On a watch-tower. 6118
- 15. Dow, as for man, 6119
  When his Lord trieth him,
  Giving him honour and gifts,
  Then saith he, (puffed up),
  "My Lord hath honoured me"
- 16. But when he trieth him,
  Restricting his subsistence for him, then saith he
  (In despair), "My Lord
  Hath humiliated me!"
- 17. Day, nay! But ye 6121
  Honour not the orphans!

فَيَقُولُ رُبِّي آهَانِينَ ٥

١٠ كَلَا بَلْ لَا تُكْرِمُونَ الْيَتِيْمَ لَ

6118. Even though God's punishment is delayed, it is not to be supposed that He does not see all things. He is like a Guardian on a watch-tower defending His Law, and protecting the weak and innocent with His mighty arm. God's providence is ever vigilant: His punishment of evildoers is a form of justice to the weak and the righteous whom they oppress. It is part of the signification of His title as Rabb (Cherisher).

6119. Contrast with God's justice and watchful care, man's selfishness and pettiness. God tries us both by prosperity and adversity: in the one we should show humility and kindness; and in the other, patience and faith. On the contrary, we get puffed up in prosperity and depressed in adversity, putting false values on this world's goods.

6120. Subsistence. in both the literal and the figurative sense. God provides for all, but people complain if the provision is measured and restricted to their needs, circumstances, and antecedents, and does not come up to their desires or expectations, or is different from that given to people in quite different circumstances.

6121 Even at our own valuation, if we are favoured with superfluities, do we think of the fatherless children, or the struggling poor? On the contrary, too many men are but ready to embezzle the helpless orphan's inheritance, and to waste their own substance in worthless riot instead of supplying the people's real needs.

- S. LXXXIX. 18-25.]
- 18. Nor do ye encourage One another 6122 To feed the poor!—
- 19. And ye devour Inheritance—6123
  All with greed,
- 20. And ye love wealth
  With inordinate love!
- 21. An ay! When the earth Is pounded to powder, 6124
- 22. And thy Lord cometh, And His angels, Rank upon rank,
- 23. And Hell, that Day, 6125
  Is brought (face to face),—
  On that Day will man
  Remember, but how will
  That remembrance profit him?
- 24. He will say: "Ah!
  Would that I had Sent forth (Good Deeds)
  For (this) my (Future) Life!"
- 25. For, that Day,
  His Chastisement will be

مه. ولا تَعَصُّونَ عَلَى طَعَامِ الْمِسْكِينَ ٥ ٩- وَيَا كُلُونَ الثُّراكَ ٱكُلَّا لَيًّا ٥ ٨- وْ تُحِبُونَ الْمَالَ حُبًّا حَبًّا ٥ ٣- كُلْا إِذَا ذُكْتِ الْارْضُ دَكًّا دَكًّا ٥ ٢٧- وَجَاءَ رَثُكَ وَالْكَاكُ صَفًّا صَفًّا مَ فَا نَ ٢٠- وَجِأَيْءَ يُؤْمَنِنِ رِبِحُكُنْمُ فَ يَوْمَثِن يَتَكُلُّكُو الْوَنْسَاكُ وَ الْمِي لَهُ الذِّكْرُى ٥ ٧٧- يَقُوْلُ يْلَيْتَنِي قَدُّ مُن يحياتي ٥

6122. Kindness and generosity set up standards which even worldly men feel bound to follow out of social considerations even if they are not moved by higher motives. But the wicked find plausible excuses for their own hard-heartedness, and by their evil example choke up the springs of charity and kindness in others.

6123. Inheritance is abused in two ways. (1) Guardians and trustees for the inheritance of minors or women or persons unable to look after their own interests should fulfil their trusts with even more care than they devote to their own interests. Instead of that they selfishly "devour" the property. (2) Persons who inherit property in their own rights should remember that in that case, too, it is a sacred trust. They must use it for the purposes, objects, and duties which they also inherit. It gives them no licence to live in idleness or waste their days in riotous show.

6124. Our attention is now called to the Day of Reckoning. Whether we failed to respect the rights of the helpless here or actually suppressed those rights in our mad love for the good things of this life, we shall have to answer in the realm of Reality. This solid earth, which we imagine to be so real, will crumble to powder like dust before the real Presence, manifested in glory.

6125 The Retribution will at last come, and we shall realise it in our inmost being, all the illusions of this fleeting world having been swept away. Then we shall remember, and wish, too late, that we had repented Why not repent now? Why not bring forth the fruits of repentance now, as a preparation for the Hereafter?

Such as none (else) Can inflict, 6176

عَنَابَةَ آحَكُ ٥

٢٠- وَلَا يُؤْرِثُنُ وَثَاقَهُ آحُنُ اللَّهِ

٣- يَاكَيُّتُهُا النَّفُسُ الْمُظْمَرُنِّنَةُ أَنَّ

۲۰-الْجِعِنَ إِلَى رُبِّكِ رَاضِيَةً مِّرْضِيَّةً ۚ

٢٩- فَأَدْ حُمِلُ فِي عِبْدِي فَ

٣- وَادْخُولَ جَنَّتِي ۗ

6126. "Chastisement" in this verse and the "binding in bonds" in the next verse are two distinct phases of the Penalty. "Chastisement" involves pain and agony, such as cannot be imagined anywhere else, or from any other source, for it touches our inmost soul and cannot be compared with anything our bodies may suffer or others may inflict. "Bonds" imply confinement, want of freedom, the closing of a door which was once open but which we deliberately passed by. We see that others accepted in faith and entered that door. This shutting out of what might have been is worse than any other bonds or confinement we can imagine, and may be worse than actual chastisement.

6127. The righteous enter into their inheritance and receive their welcome with a title that suggests freedom from all pain, sorrow, doubt, struggle, disappointment, passion, and even further desire; at rest, in peace; in a state of complete satisfaction.

In Muslim theology, this stage of the soul is the final stage of bliss. The unregenerate human soul, that seeks its satisfaction in the lower earthly desires, is the Ammāra (xii. 53). The self-reproaching soul that feels conscious of sin and resists it is the Lawwāma (lxxv. 2, and n. 5810).

6128. Note that Evil finds itself isolated, and cries out in lonely agony (verse 24), while Good receives a warm welcome from the Lord of Goodness Himself,—also that it is the soul which enters heaven, and not the gross body which perishes.

6129. The climax of the whole is: "Enter My Heaven!" Men may have imagined all kinds of heaven before, and many types and symbols are used in the sacred Word itself: see Appendix XII, after S. liv. But nothing can express the reality itself better than "My Heaven"—God's own Heaven! May we reach it through God's grace!

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA XC (Balad),

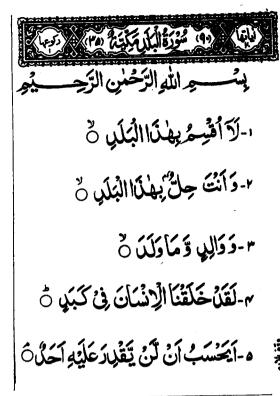

This is an early Meccan revelation, and refers to the mystic relation (by divine sanction) of the holy Prophet with the city of Mecca. He was born in that City, which had already been sacred for ages before. He was nurtured in that City and had (to use a modern phrase) the freedom of that City, belonging, as he did, to the noble family which held the government of its sacred percincts in its hands. But he was an orphan. and orphans in his day had a poor time. But his mind was turned to things divine. He protested against the prevailing idolatry and sin, and his parent City persecuted him and cast him out. He made another City, Yathrib, his own: it became the Madīnat-un-Nabī, the City of the Prophet, and it has ever since been called Madīna. We can speak of Madina as the Prophet's child. But the Prophet ever cherished in his heart the love of his parent City of Mecca, and in the fulness of time was received in triumph there. He purified it from all idols and abominations, re-established the worship of the One True God, overthrew the purse-proud selfish autocracy, restored the sway of the righteous (people of the Right Hand), the liberty of the slave, and the rights of the poor and downtrodden. What a wonderful career centring round a City? It becomes a symbol of the world's spiritual history.

C. 270.—The Prophet's own City persecuted him. (xc. 1-20.) Honoured by his nativity, it sought to slav him: Yet he loved it and purged it of all that was wrong. What toil and struggle did it not involve? Man is made for toil and struggle: Let him not boast of ease and wealth. He will be called to account for all his doings. Let him use his God-given faculties, and tread The steep path that leads to Heaven's Heights: The steps thereto are Love, unselfish Love, Given freely to God's creatures—all those In need-and Faith in God, and Patience Joined with self-restraint and kindness. Thus only can we reach the ranks Of the blest Companions of the Right Hand!

Balad, or The City.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful

- 1. We do call to witness 5130
  This City;—
- 2. And thou art a freeman 6131 Of this City;—
- 3. And (the mystic ties of) Parent and Child;— 6132
- Verily We have created Man into toil and struggle. 6133
- 5. All hinketh he, that none Hath power over him? 6134

6130. The appeal to the mystic ties between the holy Prophet and his parent City of Mecca has been explained in the Introduction to this Sūra. It is a symbol of man's own history. Man is born for toil and struggle, and this is the substantive proposition in verse 4 below, which this appeal leads up to.

6132. A parent loves a child ordinarily: the father is proud and the mother, in spite of her birthpains, experiences supreme joy when the child is born. But in abnormal circumstances there may be misunderstandings, even hatred between parent and child. So Mecca cast out her most glorious son, but it was only for a time. Mecca was sound at heart; only her power had been usurped by an ignorant autocracy which passed away, and Mecca was to receive back her glory at the hands of the son whom she had rejected but whom she welcomed back later. And Mecca retains for all time her sacred character as the centre of Islam.

6133. Cf. "Man is born unto trouble as the sparks fly upward" (Job, v. 7); "For all his days are sorrows, and his travail grief" (Ecclesiastes, ii. 23). Man's life is full of sorrow and vexation; but our text has a different shade of meaning: man is born to strive and struggle; and if he suffers from hardships, he must exercise patience, for God will make his way smooth for him (lxv. 7; xciv. 5-6). On the other hand no man should boast of worldly goods or worldly prosperity (see verses 5-7 below).

6134. See the end of last note. If a man has wealth, influence, or power, he should not behave as if it is to last for ever, or as if he has no responsibility for his acts and can do what he likes. All his gifts and advantages are given to him for trial. God, Who bestowed them on him, can take them away, and will do so if man fails in his trial.

- 6. He may say (boastfully):
  Wealth have I squandered
  In abundance!" 6135
- 7. Thinketh he that none Beholdeth him? 8136
- 8. To ave We not made For him a pair of eyes?—
- 9. And a tongue, 6127
  And a pair of lips?—
- 10. And shown him

  The two highways? 6138
- 11. But he hath made no haste
  On the path that is steep. 6139
- 12. And what will explain To thee the path that is steep?—

- ٧- يَقُولُ آهُلَكُتُ مَالًا لُبُكُا ٥
- ١- أيُحْسَبُ أَنْ لَوْ يَرُوا أَحُلُ ٥
  - ٨- اكُونَجُعُلُ لَهُ عَيْنَيْنِ ٥
    - ٥- وَ لِسَانًا وَ شَفَتَيْنِ ٥
    - ١٠- وَهَكَ يُنْهُ النَّجُنُكُ إِنِّ أَ
    - اا فَلَا اقْتُعُمُ الْعَقْبَةُ أَنْ
  - ١١- وَمَأَ آَدُرُكَ مَا الْعَقَبُةُ ٥

6135. The man who feels no responsibility and thinks that he can do what he likes in life forgets his responsibility to God. He boasts of his wealth and scatters it about, thinking that he can thus purchase the support of the world. For a time he may. But a rude awakening must come soon, for he bases his hopes on unsubstantial things. Or if he spends his substance on self-indulgence, he is weakening himself and putting himself into snares that must destroy him.

6136. God watches him, and sees all his acts and motives, and all the secret springs of his follies. But lest he should think the higher spiritual forces too remote for him, let him look within himself and use the faculties which God has given him. See the next verses following.

6137. The eyes give us the faculty of seeing, and may be taken in both the literal and the metaphorical sense. In the same way the tongue gives us the faculty of tasting in both senses. Along with the lips, it also enables us to speak, to ask for information and seek guidance, and to celebrate the praises of God.

6138. The two highways of life are: (1) the steep and difficult path of virtue, which is further described in the verses following, and (2) the easy path of vice and the rejection of God, referred to in verses 19-20 below. God has given us not only the faculties implied in the eyes, the tongue, and the lips, but also given us the judgment by which we can choose our way; and He has sent us. Teachers and Guides, with Revelation, to show us the right and difficult way.

6139. In spite of the faculties with which God has endowed man and the guidance which He has given him, man has been remiss. By no means has he been eager to follow the steep and difficult path which is for his own spiritual good. Cf. Matt. vii. 14: "Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it".

- 13. (It is:) freeing the bondman; 6140
- 14. Or the giving of food
  In a day of privation 6141
- 15. To the orphan With claims of relationship, 6142
- 16. Or to the indigent (Down) in the dust. 6143
- 17. Althen will he be 6144
  Of those who believe,
  And enjoin patience, (constancy,
  And self-restraint), and enjoin
  Deeds of kindness and compassion.
- 18. Such are the Companions Of the Right Hand. 6145

٣١- قَكُ رُقَبَةٍ ٥ ١٩- أَوُ الطَّعْمُ فَي يَوْمِ ذِي مَسْعَبَةٍ ٥ ها- يَتِيْمُا ذَا مَعْمَ بَةٍ ٥ ١٩- أَوْ مِسْكِينَنَا ذَا مَثْرَبَةٍ ٥ ١٠- ثُمِّ كَانَ مِنَ الْكِنِيْنَ امْنُوْا وَ تُوَاصُوْا بِالصِّبْرِ وَ تُوَاصُوْا بِالْمُرْحَمَةِ ٥ وَ تُوَاصُوْا بِالْمُرْحَمَةِ ٥

١٥- أولَّمُكَ أَصْعِبُ الْمُنْهُدَةِ ٥

6140. The difficult path of virtue is defined as the path of charity or unselfish love, and three specific instances are given for our understanding: viz. (1) freeing the bondman, (2) feeding the orphan, and (3) feeding the indigent down in the dust. As regards the bondman, we are to understand not only a reference to legal slavery, which happily is extinct in all civilised lands, but many other kinds of slavery which flourish especially in advanced societies. There is political slavery, industrial slavery, and social slavery. There is the slavery of conventions, of ignorance, and of superstition. There is slavery to wealth or passions or power. The good man tries to liberate mea and women from all kinds of slavery, often at great danger to himself. But he begins by first liberating himself.

- 6141. Feed those who need it, both literally and figuratively; but do so especially when there is privation or famine, literal or figurative, i.e., when or where the sources of sustenance, physical, moral, or spiritual, are cut off.
- 6142. All orphans should be fed and helped. But ordinary orphans will come under the indigent in verse 16 below. The orphans related to us have a special claim on us. They should be near and dear to us, and if charity begins at home, they have the first claim on us.
- 6143. Persons down in the dust can only be helped from motives of pure charity, because nothing can be expected of them—neither praise nor advertisement nor any other advantage to the helper. Such help is help indeed. But there may be various degrees, and the help will be suited to the needs.
- 6144. Such practical charity and love will be the acid test of Faith and the teaching of all virtues. The virtues are summed up under the names of Patience (the Arabic word includes constancy and self-restraint) and compassionate kindness. Not only will they be the test by which the sincerity of their Faith will be judged: they will be the fruit which their Faith will constantly produce.
  - 6145. Cf. lvi. 27-40, also n. 5223. They will be those who achieve salvation.

- 19. But those who reject
  Our Signs, they are
  The (unhappy) Companions
  Of the Left Hand. 6146
- 20. On them will be Fire Vaulted over (all round).

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA XCI (Shams).

This is one of the early Meccan revelations. Beginning with a fine nature passage, and leading up to man's need of realising his spiritual responsibility, it ends with a warning of the terrible consequences for those who fear not the Hereafter.

C. 271.—All nature around us and her pageants,

(xci. 1-15.) And the soul of man within, proclaim

The goodness of God. God gave the soul

The power of choice and the sense of Right

And Wrong. Let man keep it pure and attain

Salvation,—soil it with sin and reach

Perdition. Inordinate wrong-doing ruined

The Thamūd. They defied God's sacred Law

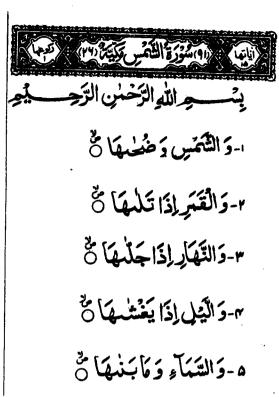

And His prophet, and went to Destruction for their crime.

Sūra XCI.

Shams, or The Sun.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful

- 1. By the Sun 6147
  And his (glorious) splendour;
- 2. By the Moon 6148
  As she follows him;
- 3. By the Day as it 6149
  Shows up (the Sun's) glory;
- 4. By the Night as it Conceals it;
- 5. By the Firmament 6150
  And its (wonderful) structure; 6151

6147. Six types are taken in three pairs, from God's mighty works in nature, as tokens or evidence of God's providence and the contrasts in His sublime creation, which yet conduce to cosmic harmony (verses 1-6). Then (verses 7-8) the soul of man, with internal order and proportion in its capacities and faculties, as made by God, is appealed to as having been endowed with the power of discriminating between right and wrong. Then the conclusion is stated in verses 9-10, that man's success or failure, prosperity or bankruptcy, would depend upon his keeping that soul pure or his corrupting it.

6148. The first pair is the glorious sun, the source of our light and physical life, and the moon which follows or acts as second to the sun for illuminating our world. The moon, when she is in the sky with the sun, is pale and inconspicuous; in the sun's absence she shines with reflected light and may metaphorically be called the sun's vicegerent. So with Revelation and the great Prophets who brought it; and the minor Teachers who derive their light reflected, or perhaps doubly reflected, from the original source.

6149. The next contrasted pair consists, not of luminaries, but conditions, or periods of time, Day and Night. The Day reveals the sun's glory and the Night conceals it from our sight. So there may be contrasts in our subjective reception of divine light, but it is there, working all the time, and must reappear in its own good time.

6150. The next contrasted pair is the wonderful firmament on high, and the earth below our feet, stretching away to our wide horizons. The sky gives us rain, and the earth gives us food. Yet both work together: for the rain is moisture sucked up from the earth, and the food cannot grow without the heat and warmth of the sun. There are many other contrasts under this head; yet they all point to unity.

6151. The mā maṣdarīya in Arabic, in this and the subsequent clauses, is best translated in English by nouns. Thus what would literally be "and the (wonderful) making or construction of it" or "the fact of its (wonderful) construction" is, idiomatically, "its (wonderful) structure." "The (wide) spreading out" of the earth is rendered "its (wide) expanse," and so on,

- 6. By the Earth And its (wide) expanse;
- 7. By the Soul,
  And the proportion and order
  Given to it; 6152
- 8. And its enlightenment
  As to its wrong
  And its right;—
- 9. Truly he succeeds That purifies it,
- 10. And he fails
  That corrupts it! 6153
- 11. Alhe Thamud (people)
  Rejected (their prophet)
  Through their inordinate
  Wrong-doing. 5154
- 12. Behold, the most wicked Man among them was Deputed (for impiety). 6155
- 13. But the apostle of God 6156
  Said to them: "It is

٣- وَ الْرَرْضِ وَ مَا طَحْمَهَا يُ

٥- وَنَفْسٍ وَ مَا سَوْمِهَا يُ

٨- فَٱلْهَدَهَا كُوْرَهَا وُ تَتَقُوٰلِهَا يُ

٥-قَنُ ٱفْلَحَ مَنْ زُكُّمُهَا كُنَّ

١٠- وُ قُلُ خَابَ مَنْ دَسْمَا ٥

اا-كَنَّ بَتُ ثُنُوْدُ بِطَغُوٰمِهَا كُ

ا-إذِ البُعث اَشْقَها ٥

١١٠- فَقَالَ لَهُمْ رَسُوْلُ اللهِ

<sup>6152.</sup> God makes the soul, and gives it order, proportion, and relative perfection, in order to adapt it for the particular circumstances in which it has to live its life. Cf. xxxii 9. See also n 120 to ii. 117. He breathes into it an understanding of what is sin, impiety, wrong-doing and what is piety and right conduct, in the special circumstances in which it may be placed. This is the most precious gift of all to man, the faculty of distinguishing between right and wrong. After the six external evidences mentioned in verses 1-6 above, this internal evidence of God's goodness is mentioned as the greatest of all. By these various tokens man should learn that his success, his prosperity, his salvation depends on himself,—on his keeping his soul pure as God made it; and his failure, his decline, his perdition depends on his soiling his soul by choosing evil.

<sup>6153.</sup> This is the core of the Sūra, and it is illustrated by a reference to the story of the Thamūd in the following verses.

<sup>6154.</sup> The allusion to the story of the Thamud will be understood by a reference to vii 73-79; see specially n. 1044. Their prophet was Salih, but he had to deal with an arrogant people, who oppressed the poor and denied them their rights of watering and pasture for their cattle.

<sup>6155.</sup> The prophet Salih made a certain she-camel a Sign or Symbol, a test case. "This she-camel of God is a Sign unto you: so leave her to graze in God's earth and let her come to no harm, or ye shall be seized with a grievous punishment" (vii. 73). But they plotted to kill her and sent the most wicked man among them to dare and do that deed of impiety. It was probably when she came to drink at the stream that she was hamstrung and killed. See xxvi. 155, and liv. 27.

A She-camel of God! And (bar her not From) having her drink!"

14. Then they rejected him
(As a false prophet),
And they hamstrung her. 6157
So their Lord, on account
Of their crime, obliterated
Their traces and made them
Equal (in destruction,
High and low)!

15. And for Him 6158
Is no fear
Of its consequences.

نَاقَةُ اللهِ
وَ سُقَيْهَا ٥ ١٠- فَكُنَّ اللهُ فَعَقَرُ وُهَا مُنْ فَكُ مُكُمَ مُ كَلِيْهِمُ رَبُّهُمُ بِلَكَثِيمِمُ فَكُ مُكَامِ عَلَيْهِمُ رَبُّهُمُ بِلَكَثِيمِمُ فَسُوْلِهَا يُ

6157. The man who was deputed to do the impious deed of hamstringing the she-camel had of course the sympathy and co-operation of the whole people. Only he was more daring than the rest.

6158. This verse has been variously construed. I follow the general opinion in referring the pronoun "Him" to "their Lord" in the last verse and the pronoun "its" to the Punishment that was meted out to all, high and low, equally. In that case the meaning would be: God decreed the total destruction of the Thamūd; in the case of creatures any such destruction might cause a loss to them, and they might fear the consequences of such loss or destruction, but God has created and can create at will, and there can be no question of any such apprehension in His case. An alternative view is that "him" refers to the prophet Sālih mentioned in verse 13. Then the interpretation would be: Sālih had no fear of the consequences for himself; he had warned the wicked according to his commission; he was saved by God's mercy as a just and righteous man, and he left them with regrets (vii. 79). Yet another alternative refers "him" to the wicked man (mentioned in verse 12) who hamstrung the she-camel: he feared not the consequences of his deed.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY : SURA XCII (Lail).

This was one of the first Sūras to be revealed,—within the first ten; and may be placed in date close to S. lxxxix and S. xciii. Note that in all these three Sūras the mystery and the contrast as between Night and Day are appealed to for the consolation of man in his spiritual yearning. Here we are told to strive our utmost towards God, and He will give us every help and satisfaction.

C. 272.—When we consider God's wonderful Creation, We see many mysteries—many opposites— (xcii. 1-21.) Many differences; the succession of nights And days, the creation of male and female. Can we wonder at the differences In the nature and objectives of man? He is endowed with Will, and he must strive For the Right through all his diverse paths. For the righteous the way is made the smoother For bliss; for the arrogant crooked will, The way is the smoother for Misery. But God's guidance is always nigh, If man will choose it. And what Is the goal for those who choose aright?— The sight of the Face of God Most High: For that indeed is happiness supreme.

Sūra XCII.

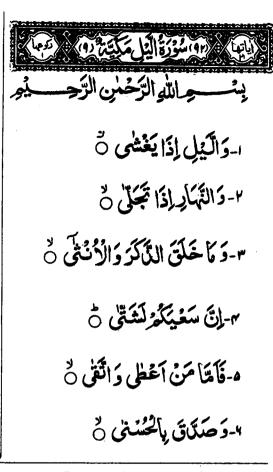

Lail, or The Night.

In the name of God. Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. By the Night as it Conceals (the light); 6159
- 2. By the Day as it.
  Appears in glory;
- 3. By (the mystery of) 6160

  The creation of male

  And female;—6161
- 4. Verily, (the ends) ye Strive for are diverse. 6162
- 5. So he who gives (In charity) and fears (God),
- And (in all sincerity)
   Testifies to the Best,—6163

6159. The evidence of three things is invoked, viz. Night, Day, and the mystery of Sex, and the conclusion is stated in verse 4, that men's aims are diverse. But similarly there are contrasts in nature. What contrast can be greater than between Night and Day? When the Night spreads her veil, the sun's light is hidden, but not lost. The sun is in his place all the time, and will come forth in all his glory again in his own good time. Cf. xci 3 4, and n. 6149. Man pursuing diverse aims may find, owing to his own position. God's light obscured from him for a time, but he must strive hard to put himself in a position to reach it in all its glory.

6160. Mā maṣdarīya as in xci. 5-7; see there n. 6151.

6161. The mystery of the sexes runs through all life. There is attraction between opposites; each performs its own functions, having special characters, primary and secondary, within limited spheres, and yet both have common characteristics in many other spheres. Each is indispensable to the other. Love in its noblest sense is the type of heavenly love and the highest good; in its debasement it leads to the lowest sins and the worst crimes. Here, then, striving is necessary for the highest good.

6162. There are wide contrasts in the nature and aims of men. These may be broadly divided into two classes, good and evil. As night replaces day on account of certain relative positions, but does not annihilate it, so evil may for a time obscure good, but cannot blot it out. Again, night in certain circumstances (e.g., for rest) is a blessing; so certain things, which may seem evils to us, may be really blessings in disguise. Whatever our aims or positions, we must seek the highest truth from the light of God. Considering these contrasts, do not be surprised or depressed. Men's immediate aims may be different. The duty of all is to seek the one true Light.

6163. The good are distinguished here by three signs: (1) large-hearted sacrifices for God and men: 2) fear of God, which shows itself in righteous conduct, for Taqwi (see n. 26 to ii. 2) includes just action as well as a mental state: and (3) truth and sincerity in ever recognising and supporting all that is morally beautiful, for Husn is the good as well as the beautiful.

- 7. We will indeed
  Make smooth for him
  The path to Bliss. 6164
- 8. But he who is
  A greedy miser
  And thinks himself
  Self-sufficient,
- 9. And gives the lie
  To the Best,—6105
- 10. We will indeed
  Make smooth for him
  The Path to Misery;
- 11. Nor will his wealth
  Profit him when he
  Falls headlong (into the Pit). 6166
- 12. We erily We take 6167
  Upon Ourselves to guide,
- 13. And verily unto Us
  (Belong) the End
  And the Beginning. 6168

٥-فَسَنْيَسِّرُهُ لِلْيُسُرُّى ٥

٥- وَ اَمَّا مَنْ بَخِلَ وَ اسْتَعْنَىٰ لِ

م-وَكَنَّابَ بِالْحُسُنَىٰ ٥

١٠ فَسَنُكِيكُ رُهُ لِلْعُسْرَى أَ

۱۱- و مَا يُغَنِّىٰ عَنْهُ مَا لُهَ اللهَ اللهُ مَا لُهُ اللهُ اللهُ مَا لُهُ اللهُ
٣- وَإِنَّ لَنَا لُلُاخِورَةً وَالْرُولِي ٥

6164. So far from there being any hardship in a good life, the righteous will enjoy their life more and more, and God will make their path smoother and smoother until they reach eventual Bliss.

6165. The evil are distinguished here by three signs: (1) selfish greed and denial of other people's rights: (2) arrogance and self-sufficiency (xcvi, 6-7); and (3) knowingly dishonouring Truth out of spite, or seeing ugliness where there is beauty. Such men's downward progress gathers momentum as they go, and their end can be nothing but Misery. Where will be their boasted wealth and possessions, or their self-confidence?

6166. Wealth amassed in this world will be of no use at the Day of Final Judgment, nor will any material advantages of this life bring profit by themselves in the spiritual world. What will count will be a life of truth and righteousness, and of goodness to all the creatures of God.

6167. God in His infinite mercy has provided full guidance to His creatures. All through His creation there are sign-posts indicating the right way. To man He has given the five senses of perception, with mental and spiritual faculties for co-ordinating his physical perceptions and leading him higher and higher in thought and feeling. He has besides sent inspired men for further teaching and guidance.

6168. In the End man will return to God, and even from the beginning of man's life God's mercies and loving care surround him. In the probationary period of man's life, he has a measure of free-will, and he is expected to use it in such a way as to bring his whole being into harmony with the universal Will and Law. For he will have to answer for the right use of his talents and opportunities. If man's will has any meaning, he has the choice of accepting God's guidance or rejecting it and in the latter case he must take the consequences. Hence the warning of the future "Fire" in the next verse.

- 14. Maherefore do I warn you Of a Fire blazing fiercely.;
- 15. None shall reach it 6169

  But those most unfortunate ones
- 16. Who give the lie to Truth And turn their backs.
- 17. But those most devoted To God shall be 6170 Removed far from it.—
- 18. Those who spend their wealth <sup>6171</sup>
  For increase in self-purification, <sup>6172</sup>
- And have in their minds No favour from anyone For which a reward Is expected in return,<sup>6173</sup>

سا- فَانْ نَانُ فَكُوْ نَارًا تَلَظَى ٥ ها- كريضلها آلا الرَشْقَى ٥ ال- الّذِي كُذَب وَتَوَلَى ٥ ها- وكسيجا بنها الرَّفْقَى ٥ ها- وكسيجا بنها الرَّفْقَى ٥ ها- وكما لِرَحُ مِي عِنْدَهُ ها- وكما لِرَحُ مِي عِنْدَهُ هن يْخْدَةُ تُجْزَى ٥ مِنْ يْخْدَةُ تُجْزَى ٥

6169. The Fire of Punishment will not reach any except those who have deliberately sinned against their conscience and rejected God's Truth. The term used for them is " $A \sin a$ " (superlative degree). Cf. lxxxvii. 11. The corresponding idea in Christian theology is expressed in the following sentence. "All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men" (Matt, xii. 31).

"None shall reach it but those......": the sinners of a lesser degree than the Ashqa, though they may suffer a lighter punishment in Hell, will not suffer from the "Fire blazing fiercely".

6170. "Those most devoted to God": the  $Atq\bar{a}$ , the God-fearing men who live lives of purity, and seek only for the "Face of their Lord Most High." See the verses following.

6171. The spending may be for charity, or for good works, such as advancing the cause of knowledge or science, or supporting ideals, etc. "Wealth" must be understood not only for money or material goods, but also for any advantage or opportunity which a man happens to enjoy, and which he can place at the service of others.

6172. The Arabic root word zakā implies both increase and purification, and both meanings may be understood to be implied here. Wealth (understood both literally and metaphorically) is not for selfish enjoyment or idle show. It is held on trust. It may be a trial in itself, from which a man who emerges successfully is a man all the purer in his life; and even if he was a good man before, his proper use of his wealth increases his position and dignity in the moral and spiritual world.

6173. The good man does not give in charity or do his good deeds with the motive that he is returning someone else's favour and compensating and rewarding someone for some service done to him or expecting some reward in return for his own good deed: the sole motive in his mind is that he desires the Gountenance or Good Pleasure of God Most High. This "Countenance" or "Face" (Arabic, Wajh) implies good pleasure or approval; but it implies something more. It also means the Cause,—either the "final cause" or the "efficient cause" of Aristotelian philosophy. For the Atq\(\vec{a}\) would refer everything, backwards in origin and forwards in destiny, to God. God is the source of their goodness, as well as its goal or purpose.

20. But only the desire

To seek for the Countenance
Of their Lord Most High; 6174

21. And soon will they
Attain (complete) satisfaction.

٠٠- إلَّا ابْتِغَاءَ وَجْهِ رَبِّهِ الْأَعْلَى ٥

الا ـ وَلَسُونَ يُرْضَى خُ

supreme virtue.

<sup>6174.</sup> The definition of Righteousness, Charity, or Self-sacrifice, becomes thus highly spiritualised. The Atqā are so completely identified with God's Will that everything else is blotted out to them. What would seem to be sacrifice from other points of view, becomes their own highest pleasure and satisfaction—the "heaven" of the enlightened man. Every virtuous man will have his own bliss, for there are degrees in virtue and bliss. This supreme bliss is the portion—not the prize—of

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA XCIII (Dhuhā).

This Sūra is close in date to Sūras lxxxix and xcii, and the imagery drawn from the contrast of Night and Day is common to all three. In this Sūra the vicissitudes of human life are referred to, and a message of hope and consolation is given to man's soul from God's past mercies, and he is bidden to pursue the path of goodness and proclaim the bounties of God. This is the general meaning. In particular, the Sūra seems to have been revealed in a dark period in the outer life of the holy Prophet, when a man of less resolute will might have been discouraged. But the Prophet is told to hold the present of less account than the glorious Hereafter which awaited him like the glorious morning after a night of stillness and gloom. The Hereafter was, not only in the Future Life, but in his later life on this earth, full of victory and satisfaction.

C. 273.—What an example we have in the Prophet's life!

(xciii. 1-11.) When moments of inspiration were still,

His soul yet felt the power of that stillness,

Like one who prays by night and waits

For the dawn, knowing how the light grows brighter

Every hour till noon, and well content

That night and morn and the hours succeeding

Are but steps to the plenary splendour of noon.

He was content and consoled in the thought that God

Had bestowed His loving care on him

In the past, and so the future was sure.

He followed the Light Divine,—to help

The helpless, to attend with patience to the call

Of those in need, and to rehearse and proclaim

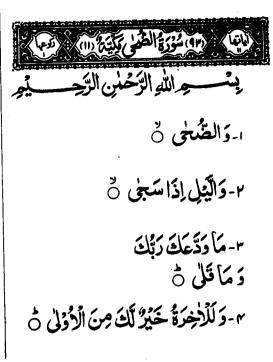

And share the boundless Bounties of God!

  When it is still,—
- 3. Thy Guardian-Lord Hath not forsaken thee, 6178 Nor is He displeased. 6178
- 4. And verily the hereafter Will be better for thee Than the present. 6179

6175. The full morning light of the sun, when his splendour shines forth in contrast with the night which has passed. Cf. xci. 1. The growing hours of morning light, from sunrise to noon, are the true type of the growth of spiritual life and work, while the stillness of the night is, to those who know, only a preparation for it. We are not to imagine that the stillness or quiescence of the night is wasted, or means stagnation in our spiritual life. The stillness may seem lonely, but we are not alone, nor forsaken by God. Nor is such preparation, without immediate visible results, a sign of God's displeasure.

6176. Cf. xcii. 1-2. There Night is mentioned first, and Day second, to enforce the lesson of contrasts: the veil of the night naturally comes first before the splendour of daylight is revealed. Here the argument is different: the growing hours of morning light are the main thing and are mentioned first; while the hours of preparation and quiescence, which are subordinate, come second.

6177. As usual, there is the particular assurance to the holy Prophet, and the general assurance to mankind: see the Introduction to this Sūra. The early years of the Prophet's ministry might well have seemed blank. After inspiration there were days and periods of waiting. A sense of loneliness might well have weighed on his mind. His own tribe of the Quraish jeered at him, taunted and threatened him, and slandered and persecuted him as well as those who believed in him. But his faith was never shaken, not even to the extent of that cry of agony of Jesus: "My God! why hast Thou forsaken me?": (Mark, xvi. 34). Much less did it enter the Prophet's mind to think that God was angry with him, as the taunts of his enemies suggested.

6178. See last note. The more general meaning is similar. To the man who prepares for spiritual work and spiritual growth the chief thing is typified by the growing hours of the morning. He should not be discouraged, nor overcome with a sense of loneliness in his early struggles or difficulties. The end will crown his work. God's care is always around him. If unsympathetic or hostile critics laugh at him or taunt him with being "mad" or "old-fashioned" or "ploughing his lonely furrow", his steady faith will uphold him. He will never believe that his earnest and sincere devotion to God, whatever be its results in this world, can be anything but pleasing to God.

6179. To the truly devout man, each succeeding moment is better than the one preceding it. In this sense the "hereafter" refers not only to the Future Life after death, but also to "the soul of goodness in things" in this very life. For even though some outward trappings of this shadow-world may be wanting, his soul is filled with more and more satisfaction as he goes on.

- 5. And soon will thy Guardian-Lord give thee (That wherewith) thou Shalt be well-pleased. 6180
- 6. Mid He not find thee 6181
  An orphan and give thee
  Shelter (and care)? 6112
- 7. And He found thee
  Wandering, and He gave
  Thee guidance. 6183
- 8. And He found thee In need, and made Thee independent. 6184

۵-وکسون يُعطِيك رَبُك نَارُضي أَ

٧- أَكُمُ يَجِعُ لَا يُرْتِيمُنَا فَأَوْى ٥

٠- وَوَجَكُ كُلَّا كُلَّا كُلُّا نَهُمْنَى ٥ ٨- وَوَجَكُ كُ عَائِثُلًا فَاغْنَى هُ

6180. God's good pleasure is sure when we serve Him. But we are assured that even our feelings of doubt and suffering will vanish, and we shall have a sense of complete satisfaction, contentment, and active pleasure when our will is identified with the Will of God.

6181. Judge the future from the past. God has been good to you in your past experience: trust to His goodness in the future also. Again, there is a particular and a general meaning. Three facts are taken from the holy Prophet's outer life by way of illustration. Metaphorically they also apply to us. And further, the outer facts are themselves types for the spiritual life. See notes below.

6182. (1) There is the case of the orphan, literally and figuratively. Our holy Prophet was himself an orphan. His father 'Abdullah died young before the child was born, leaving no property. The Prophet's mother Amina was in ailing health, and he was chiefly brought up by his nurse Halima. His mother herself died when he was only six years old. His aged grandfather 'Abdul Muttalib treated him as his own son, but died two years later. Thereafter his uncle Abū Tālib treated him as his own son. He was thus an orphan in more senses than one, and yet the love he received from each one of these persons was greater than ordinary parental love. Each one of us is an orphan in some sense or another, and yet someone's love and shelter come to us by the grace of God. In the spiritual world there is no father or mother: our very first sustenance and shelter must come from the grace of God.

6183. (2) The holy Prophet was born in the midst of the idolatry and polytheism of Mecca, in a family which was the custodian of this false worship. He wandered in quest of Unity and found it by the guidance of God. There is no implication whatever of sin or error on his part. But we may err and find ourselves wandering in mazes of error, in thought, motive, or understanding: we must pray for God's grace ever to give us guidance.

The Arabic root dhalla has various shades of meaning. In i. 7, I have translated it by the verb "stray". In liii. 2 the Prophet is defended from the charge of being "astray" or straying in mind. In xii. 8 and xii. 95 Jacob's sons use the word for their aged father, to suggest that he was senile and wandering in mind. In xxxii. 10 it is used of the dead, and I have translated "hidden and lost" (in the earth).

6184. (3) The holy Prophet inherited no wealth and was poor. The true, pure, and sincere love of Khadija not only raised him above want, but made him independent of worldly needs in his later life, enabling him to devote his whole time to the service of God. So do we all find ourselves in some want or another, which, if we work whole-heartedly and sincerely, is supplied to us by the grace of God. When we have found the Way, it is a laborious task to climb up in our poverty of spiritual equipment: God will give us spiritual riches in love and knowledge.

- 9. Therefore, treat not 6185
  The orphan with harshness,
- 10. Nor repulse the petitioner (Unheard); 6186
- 11. But the Bounty
  Of thy Lord—
  Rehearse and proclaim! 5187

و- قَامَا الْيَتِيْمَ قَالَا تَقْهَرُ
 وَامَا السَّاكِلَ فَكَلَا تَنْهَرُ
 وَامَا السَّاكِلُ فَكَلَا تَنْهُرُ
 إلى السَّابِنِعُمَةِ رَبِّكَ فَحَكِيْتُ

6185. Verses 9-11 carry on, to a step further, the triple argument of verses 68, as explained in the preceding notes. The Prophet treated all orphans with tender affection and respect, setting an example to his contemporaries, who frequently took advantage of the helpless position of orphans, and in any case looked upon them as subordinate creatures to be repressed and kept in their place. Such an attitude is common in all ages. Helpless creatures ought, on the contrary, to be treated as sacred trusts, whether they are orphans, or dependants, or creatures of any kind unable to assert themselves, either through age, sex, social rank, artificial conditions, or any cause whatever.

6186. Then there are the people who come with petitions,—who have to ask for something. They may be genuine beggars asking for financial help, or ignorant people asking for knowledge, or timid people asking for some lead or encouragement. The common attitude is to scorn them or repulse them. The scorn may be shown even when alms or assistance is given to them. Such an attitude is wrong. Charity is of no moral value without sympathy and love. Nor is it charity to give to idle sturdy professional beggars, for show or to get rid of them. They are mere parasites on society. Every petition should be examined and judged on its merits.

6187. Besides the petitioners, who ask for help, there is the case of those who do not ask but are nevertheless poor—poor but contented in worldly goods, or poor in knowledge or resources and not even knowing that they are poor. If you are bountifully endowed by God, your duty is to make that Bounty spread far and wide. Proclaim it and share it, as the holy Prophet always did. Spiritually we all belong to one of these three classes in one sense or another,—orphans, petitioners, and victims of poverty. We all receive God's grace and guidance in some degree or other. We all owe it as a duty to our fellow-men to be kind and helpful to those less endowed in any respect than ourselves.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY SÜRA XCIV (Inshirāḥ).

This short Sūra gives a message of hope and encouragement in a time of darkness and difficulty. It was revealed to the holy Prophet soon after the last Sūra  $(Dhuh\bar{a})$ , whose argument it supplements.

C. 274.—The Prophet's mind and heart had indeed

(xciv. 1-8.) Been expanded and purified; the burden

Which pressed on his soul had been removed;

And his name exalted in this world and the next.

For the righteous man there is no trouble

But is linked with ease and joy: he must strive

At every stage, and look to God

Alone as the goal of all his hopes.

Sūra XCIV.

Inshiral, or The Expansion.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. Expanded thee thy breast?—6148
- 2. And removed from thee Thy burden 6189
- 3. The which did gall
  Thy back?—
- 4. And raised high the esteem (In which) thou (art held)? 6190
- 5. So, verily,
  With every difficulty,
  There is relief: 6191
- 6. Verily, with every difficulty There is relief.

6188. Cf. the prayer of Moses in xx. 25. The breast is symbolically the seat of knowledge and the highest feelings of love and affection, the treasure-house in which are stored the jewels of that quality of human character which approaches nearest to the divine. The holy Prophet's human nature had been purified, expanded, and elevated, so that he became a Mercy to all Creation. Such a nature could afford to ignore the lower motives of ordinary humanity which caused shameful attacks to be made on him. Its strength and courage could also bear the burden of the galling work which it had to do in denouncing sin, subduing it, and protecting God's creatures from its oppression.

6189. See last note. It is indeed a grievous and galling burden for a man to fight single-handed against sin. But God sends His grace and aid, and that burden is removed, or converted into joy and triumph in the service of the One True God.

6190. The Prophet's virtues, the magnanimity of his character, and his love for mankind were fully recognised even in his lifetime, and his name stands highest among the heroic leaders of mankind. The phrase used here is more comprehensive in meaning than that used for various prophets in xxxvii. 119 etc.: "We left this blessing for them among generations to come in later times".

6191. This verse is repeated for extra emphasis. Whatever difficulties or troubles are encountered by men, God always provides a solution, a way out, a relief, a way to lead to ease and happiness, if we only follow His Path and show our Faith by patience and well-doing. The solution or relief does not merely come after the Difficulty: it is provided with it. I understand the definite article in al-'usr in a generic sense, and translate: "every difficulty". In xcii. 7, I have translated Yusr as Bliss, and in xcii. 10, 'Usr as Misery.

 Therefore, when thou art Free (from thine immediate task), Still labour hard, 6192 ، - فَإِذَا فَرَغْتَ فَانْصُبُ ٥

8. And to thy Lord
Turn (all) thy attention. 6193

م-و إلى رَبِّك فَارْغَبُ أَ

<sup>6192.</sup> When then art free: or when thou art relieved. The words understood may be: from thy immediate task, that of preaching to men, denouncing sin, and encouraging righteousness; or, from the difficulties that confronted thee. When that happens, that does not finish the labours of the man of God. It is only one step to them. He has constantly and insistently to go on. When there is rest from the task of instructing the world, the contact with the spiritual kingdom continues, and indeed it becomes more intimate and concentrated.

<sup>6193.</sup> The kingdom of God is everything. Other things are incidental, and really do not matter. Worldly greatness or success may be a means to an end, but it may also be a hindrance to true spiritual greatness. God is the goal of the righteous man's whole attention and desire.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA XCV (Tin).

This is also a very early Sūra. It appeals to the most sacred symbols to show that God created man in the best of moulds, but that man is capable of the utmost degradation unless he has Faith and leads a good life. In subject-matter this Sūra closely resembles S. ciii.

C. 275.—Nature and history and the Light of Revelation, (xcv. 1-8.) Through the ages, show that man,
Created by God in the best of moulds,
Can yet fall to the lowest depths, unless
He lives a life of faith and righteousness.
Then will he reach his goal: if not,
He must stand his Judgment—none can doubt—
Before the wisest and justest of Judges.

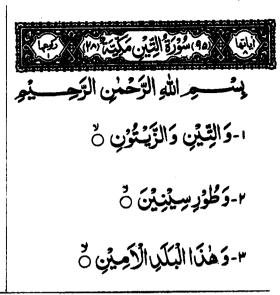

S. xcv. 1-3 ]

Sura XCV.

Tin, or The Fig.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. By the Fig 6194
  And the Olive, 6195
- 2. And the Mount Of Sinai, 6196
- 3. And this City 6197
  Of security, 6198

6194. The substantive proposition is in verses 4-8, and it is clinched by an appeal to four sacred symbols, viz., the Fig, the Olive, Mount Sinai, and the sacred City of Mecca. About the precise interpretation of the first two symbols, and especially of the symbol of the Fig, there is much difference of opinion. If we take the Fig literally to refer to the fruit or the tree, it can stand as a symbol of man's destiny in many ways. Under cultivation it can be one of the finest, most delicious, and most wholesome fruits in existence: in its wild state, it is nothing but tiny seeds, and is insioid. and often full of worms and maggots. So man at his best has a noble destiny: at his worst, he is "the lowest of the low". Christ is said to have cursed a fig tree for having only leaves, and not producing fruit (Matt. xxi. 18-20), enforcing the same lesson. There is also a parable of the fig tree in Matt. xxiv. 32-35. See also the parable of the good and evil figs in Jeremiah, xxiv. 1-10. But see n, 6198 below.

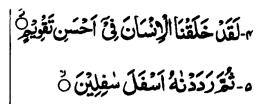

6195. For the sacred symbolism of the Olive, see n. 2880 to xxiii. 20, and notes 3000-3002 to xxiv. 35, where the parable of God's Light includes a reference to the Olive. But it is possible that the Olive here refers to the Mount of Olives, just outside the walls of the City of Jerusalem (see n. 5038 to lii. 2), for this is the scene in the Gospel story (Matt. xxiv. 3-4) of Christ's description of the Judgment to come.

6196. This was the Mountain on which the Law was given to Moses. See xix. 52, and n. 2504. The Law was given, and the glory of God was made visible. But did Israel faithfully obey the Law thereafter?

5197. "This City of security" is undoubtedly Mecca. Even in Pagan times its sacred character was respected, and no fighting was allowed in its territory. But the same City, with all its sacred associations, persecuted the greatest of the Prophets and gave itself up for a time to idolatry and sin, thus presenting the contrast of the best and the worst.

6198. Having discussed the four symbols in detail, let us consider them together. It is clear that they refer to God's Light or Revelation, which offers man the highest destiny if he will follow the Way. Mecca stands for Islam, Sinai for Israel, and the Mount of Olives for Christ's original and pure Message. It has been suggested that the Fig stands for the Ficus Indica, the Bo-tree, under which Gautama Buddha obtained Nirvana. I hesitate to adopt the suggestion, but if accepted it would cover pristine Buddhism and the ancient Vedic religions from which it was an offshoot. In this way all the great religions of the world would be indicated. But even if we refer the Fig and the Olive to the symbolism in their fruit, and not to any particular religion, the contrast of Best and Worst in man's destiny remains, and that is the main thing.

- 4. We have inneed created man In the best of moulds, 6199
- 5. Then do We abase him (To be) the lowest Of the low,—6200
- 6. Except such as believe And do righteous deeds: For they shall have A reward unfailing.
- 7. Then what can,
  After this, contradict thee, 6201
  As to the Judgment
  (To come)?
- 8. Is not God
  The wisest of Judges? 6202

٠ - إِلَا الَّذِيْنَ أَمَنُوا وَعَلُوا الصَّلِطَتِ فَلَهُمُ اَجُرُّ عَيْرُ مَنْنُونٍ ٥

> ، فَمَا يُكَنِّرُبُكَ بَعُنُنُ بِالْـتِيْنِ ٥

مالين الله بالخكوالخكيين أ

6199. Taqwīm: mould, symmetry, form, nature, constitution. There is no fault in God's creation. To,man God gave the purest and best nature, and man's duty is to preserve the pattern on which God has made him: xxx. 30. But by making him His vicegerent, God exalted him in posse even higher than the angels, for the angels had to make obeisance to him (ii. 30-34, and n. 48). But man's position as vicegerent also gives him will and discretion, and if he uses them wrongly he falls even lower than the beasts. See next note.

6200 This verse should be read with the next. If man rebels against God, and follows after evil, he will be abased to the lowest possible position. For Judgment is sure. Those who use their faculties aright and follow God's Law will reach the high and noble destiny intended for them. That reward will not be temporary, but unfailing.

6201. Thee: may refer to the holy Prophet, or to man collectively. After this: i.e., when it is clearly shown to you that God created man true and pure, that He guides him, and that those who rebel and break His law will be punished and brought down in the Hereafter, who can doubt this, or contradict the Prophet when he gives warning?

6202. God is wise and just. Therefore the righteous have nothing to fear, but the evil ones cannot escape punishment.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA XCVI (Igraa, or 'Alaq).

Verses 1-5 of this Sūra were the first direct Revelation to the holy Prophet. The circumstances, material and psychical, in which they came, are described in C. 28-30, which should be referred to.

After that there was an interval or break (Fatra), extending over some months or perhaps over a year. S. lxviii. is usually considered to have been the next revelation in point of time. But the remainder of this Sūra (xcvi. 6-19) came soon after the Fatra, and that portion is joined on to the first five verses containing the command to preach, because it explains the chief obstacle to the delivery of the message to man, viz.: man's own obstinacy, vanity, and insolence.

C. 276.—Noble is the mission of the Prophet, selected (xcvi. 1-19.) To proclaim the Message of God, the Lord And Cherisher of all His Creation, Whose measureless Bounties include the instruction of man In new and ever new knowledge. But alas For man! he fancies himself self-sufficient, Turns away from the Path, and misleads others. But nothing is hidden from God. He will bring All untruth and sin and rebellion to Judgment, And subdue all evil. The righteous bow In adoration to God, and draw closer to Him.

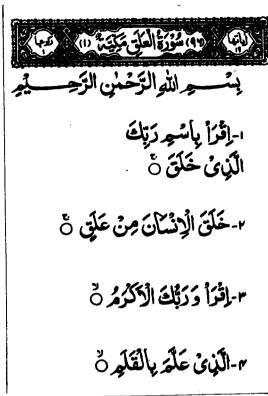

Sūra XCVI.

Igraa, or Read! or Proclaim!

Or 'Alaq, or The Clot of Congealed Blood.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. Proclaim! (or Read!) 6203
  In the name 6204
  Of thy Lord and Cherisher,
  Who created—
- Created man, out of A (mere) clot Of congealed blood: 6205
- 3. Proclaim! And thy Lord Is Most Bountiful,—
- 4. He Who taught (The use of) the Pen,—6206

6203. Iqrua may mean "read", or "recite or rehearse", or "proclaim aloud", the object understood being God's Message. For an account of the circumstances in which this first revelation—the divine commission to preach and proclaim God's Message came to the holy Prophet, in the cave of Hiraa, see C. 27-31. In worldly letters he was unversed, but with spiritual knowledge his mind and soul were filled, and now had come the time when he must stand forth to the world and declare his mission.

6204. The declaration or proclamation was to be in the name of God the Creator. It was not for any personal benefit to the Prophet: to him there was to come bitter persecution, sorrow, and suffering. It was the call of God for the benefit of erring humanity. God is mentioned by his title of "thy Lord and Cherisher", to establish a direct nexus between the source of the Message and the one addressed. The Message was not merely an abstract proposition of philosophy, but the direct concrete message of a personal God to the creatures whom He loves and cherishes, "Thy" addressed to the Prophet is appropriate in two ways: (1) he was in direct contact with the divine Messenger (Gabriel) and Him Who sent the Messenger; (2) he represented the whole of humanity, in a fuller sense than that in which Christ Jesus is the "Son of Man".

6206. The symbol of a permanent revelation is the mystic Pen and the mystic Record. See n. 5593 to lxviii. 1.

The Arabic words for "teach" and "knowledge" are from the same root. It is impossible to produce in a Translation the complete orchestral harmony of the words for "read", "teach", "pen" (which implies reading, writing, books, study, research), "knowledge" (including science, self knowledge, spiritual understanding), and "proclaim", an alternative meaning of the word for "to read". This proclaiming or reading implies not only the duty of blazoning forth God's message, as going with the prophetic office, but also the duty of promulgation and wide dissemination of the Truth by all who read and understand it. The comprehensive meaning of aaraa refers not only to a particular person and occasion but also gives a universal direction. And this kind of comprehensive meaning, as we have seen, runs throughout the Qur-ān—for those who will understand.

- 5. Taught man that
  Which he knew not. 6209
- 6. Pay, but man doth Transgress all bounds, 6206
- 7. In that he looketh Upon himself as self-sufficient.
- 8. Verily, to thy Lord Is the return (of all).6209
- 9. Seest thou one Who forbids—6210
- 10. A votary when he (Turns) to pray?
- 11. Seest thou if 6211
  He is on (the road
  Of) Guidance?—
- 12. Or enjoins Righteousness?

١١- أوْ أَمْرُ بِالتَّقُوٰى أَ

6207. God teaches us new knowledge at every given moment. Individuals learn more and more day by day; nations and humanity at large learn fresh knowledge at every stage. This is even more noticeable and important in the spiritual world.

6208. All our knowledge and capacities come as gifts from God. But man, in his inordinate vanity and insolence, mistakes God's gifts for his own achievements. The gifts may be strength or beauty, wealth, position, or power, or the more subtle gifts of knowledge or talents in individuals,—or Science, or Art, or Government, or Organisation for mankind in general.

6209. Man is not self-sufficient, either as an individual, or in his collective capacity. If he arrogates God's gifts to himself, he is reminded—backwards, of his lowly physical origin (from a drop of animal matter), and forwards, of his responsibility and final return to God.

6210. The words may be applied generally to perverse humanity, which seeks not only to rebel against God's Law, but also to prevent others from following it. There may however be a reference here to Abū Jahl, an inveterate enemy of Islam, who used in its early days to insult and persecute the holy Prophet and those who followed his teaching. He used, in particular, to use shameful methods to prevent the Prophet from going to the Ka'ba for devotions, and forbid any who came under his influence, from offering prayers or performing devotions. He was arrogant and purse-proud and met his end in the battle of Badr.

6211. Man's insolence leads to two results: (1) self-destruction through self-misleading; (2) a talse example or false guidance to others. The righteous man must therefore test human example or human guidance by the question, "Is there God's guidance behind it?" And visible light would be thrown on it by the question, "Does it lead to righteousness?" A flouting of God and God's Truth answers the first question in the negative, and conduct which turns back from the eternal principles of Right answers the second

- 13. Seest thou if he 6212
  Denies (Truth) and turns away?
- 14. Moweth he not That God doth see?
- 15. Let him beware! If he Desist not, We will Drag him by the forelock,—6213
- 16. A lying, sinful forelock!
- 17. Then, let him call (For help) to his council 6216 (Of comrades):
- 18. We will call
  On the angels of punishment
  (To deal with him)! 6215
- But bow down in adoration,
  And bring thyself
  The closer (to God)! 6216

١٠- المُريعُ لَمْ يِأْتُ اللهُ يَرْى ٥

٥٠- كَلَا لَئِنُ لَمْ يَنْتَهِ ٥ نَسُنْفَعًا بِالتَّاصِيَةِ ٥

١٠- نَاصِيَةٍ كَاذِبَةٍ خَاطِئةٍ أَ
 ١٠- نَلْيُنُمُ نَادِينَهُ أَ

٨٠- سُنُكُ أُو الزُّبَانِيَةُ ٥

١٠- كُلُّ لَا تُطِعُهُ إِلَيِّ وَاللَّهُ لَا تُكِيْبُ أَنْ الْتُكِيْبُ أَنْ الْتُكِيْبُ أَنْ الْتُكِيْبُ

6212. The usual trick of the ungodly is to refuse to face Truth. If they are placed in a corner, they deny what is obvious to reasonable men, and turn their backs.

6213. Cf. xi. 56, and n. 1551. The forelock is on the forehead, and is thus symbolical of the summit and crown of the man's power or dignity. To be dragged by it is to suffer the lowest dregs of humiliation. Nasfa'an is a syncopated form of the emphatic first person plural.

6214. The Pagan Quraish, who formed an oppressive junta or council to manage the Ka'ba were in sympathy with Abū Jahl, though they did not go to the unbridled lengths to which Abū Jahl went. But they could not, all combined, resist the onward march of the divine mission, though they did all they could to check it.

6215. All the combined forces of evil, though they may have worldly appearances in their favour, and though they may seem to be successful for a time, cannot stand against God. He has but to command His forces of punishment to exert themselves, and they will subdue evil, protect God's votaries and justify the faith for which the votaries suffer.

6216. The righteous man has no fear. He can disregard all the forces of evil that are brought against him. But he must learn humility: that is his defence. He will bow down in adoration to God. He must have the will to bring himself closer to God. For God is always close to him,—closer to him than his life blood in the jugular vein (l. 16). Man's humility and adoration remove him from being an insolent rebel on the one hand and, on the other, prepare his will to realise his nearness to God.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA XCVII (Qadr).

The chronology of this Sūra has no significance. It is probably Meccan, though some hold that it was revealed in Medina.

The subject-matter is the mystic Night of Power (or Honour), in which Revelation comes down to a benighted world,—it may be to the wonderful Cosmos of an individual—and transforms the conflict of wrong-doing into Peace and Harmony—through the agency of the angelic host, representing the spiritual powers of the Mercy of God.

C. 277.—Blessed indeed is the Night of Power!—
(xcvii. 1-5.) When the Mercy of God's Revelation breaks through
The darkness of the human soul!
All the Powers, of the world divine,
Speed on their mystic Message of Mercy,
By God's command, and bless every nook
And corner of the heart! All jars
Are stilled in the reign supreme of Peace,
Until this mortal night gives place
To the glorious day of an immortal world!

Sūra XCVII.

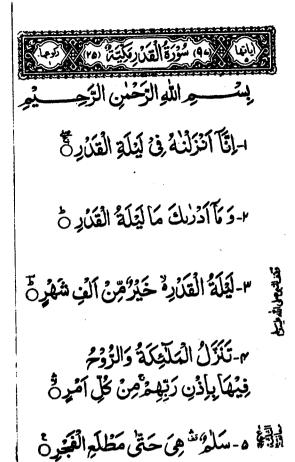

Qadr, or The Night of Power (or Honour).

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. This (Message)
  In the Night of Power: 6217
- 2. And what will explain

  To thee what the Night

  Of Power is?
- The Night of Power Is better than A thousand Months. 6218
- 4. Therein come down
  The angels and the Spirit 6219
  By God's permission,
  On every errand:
- 5. Peace!... This
  Until the rise of Morn! 6220

6217. Cf. xiiv. 3 and n. 4690. Literalists refer to some particular night in the calendar, but there is no agreement as to which it is. The 23rd, 25th or 27th night of Ramadhān, as well as other nights, have been suggested. See, however, the Introduction to this Sūra. It is best to take this in the mystic sense, which also accords with verse 3 below, which says that the Night of Power is better than a thousand Months. It transcends Time: for it is God's Power dispelling the Darkness of Ignorance, by his Revelation, in every kind of affair.

6218. "A thousand" must be taken in an indefinite sense, as denoting a very long period of time. Cf. notes 3632 and 3634 to xxxii, 4-5, and n. 5678 to lxx. 4. This does not refer to our ideas of time, but to "timeless Time". One moment of enlightenment under God's Light is better than thousands of months or years of animal life, and such a moment converts the night of darkness into a period of spiritual glory.

6219. The Spirit: usually understood to be the angel Gabriel, the Spirit of Inspiration. But names are hardly necessary in the mystic world. See n. 5677 to lxx. 4.

6220. When the Night of spiritual darkness is dissipated by the glory of God, a wonderful Peace and a sense of Security arise in the soul. And this lasts on until this life closes, and the glorious Day of the new spiritual world dawns, when everything will be on a different plane, and the chequered nights and days of this world will be even less than a dream.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA XCVIII (Baiyina).

This Sūra was probably an early Medina Sūra, or possibly a late Meccan Sūra.

In subject-matter it carries forward the argument of the last Sūra. The mystic night of revelation is indeed blessed: but those who reject Truth are impervious to God's Message, however clear may be the evidence in support of it.

C. 278.—But those who reject the light of Truth

xcviii. 1-8.) Are obstinate. Why should they persist
In evil ways when the Clear Evidence
Has come before them? The straight Religion
Is simple: to adore with a pure heart
The God of Truth, to draw nigh to Him
In Prayer sincere, and to serve
Our fellow-creatures in charity and love.
To do aught else is to fall from Grace.
But Faith and Good Life lead straight to the Goal,—
The beauteous Gardens of Bliss Eternal,
And the mutual good pleasure of the Soul in her Lord.

Sūra XCVIII.

Baiyina, or The Clear Evidence.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,

Most Merciful

- 1. Mehose who reject (Truth),
  Among the People of the Book 6221
  And among the Polytheists, 6222
  Were not going to depart
  (From their ways) until
  There should come to them
  Clear Evidence,—6223
- 2. An apostle from God, Rehearsing scriptures <sup>6:24</sup> Kept pure and holy: <sup>6225</sup>
- 3. Wherein are laws (or decrees) Right and straight. 6226
- 4. Or did the People Of the Book

6221. The People of the Book immediately referred to are the Jews and the Christians, who had received scriptures in the same line of prophecy in which came our holy Prophet. Their scriptures should have prepared them for the advent of the greatest and last of the Prophets. For the Jewish scriptures promised to the Jews, cousins or brethren to the Arabs, a prophet like Moses: "The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me; unto him ye shall hearken" (Deut, xviii. 15). And Christ promised a Comforter (John, xiv. 16; xv. 26; and xvi. 7; see my n. 5438 to lxi. 6) almost by name. The People of the Book fell from the true, straight, and standard religion, into devious ways, and would not come to the true Path until (they said) they were convinced by the arrival of the promised Prophet. But when the promised Prophet came in the person of Muhammad, they rejected him, because they really did not seek for Truth but only followed their own fancies and desires.

6222. The Polytheists, the Pagans, had not previously believed in any scriptures. But yet, when clear evidence came to them, they should have believed. Yet they rejected the holy Prophet because they were not really searching for Truth, but were only following their own fancies and desires.

6223. The Clear Evidence was the holy Prophet himself, his life, his personality, and his teaching.

5224. Cj. ii. 151.

6225. Cf. lxxx, 13-16.

6226. Qaiyim: straight, as opposed to crooked; standard as opposed to irregular; definite and permanent, as opposed to casual or temporary. Cf. ix. 36; xii. 40; etc.

Make schisms, 6227
Until after there came
To them Clear Evidence.

- 5. And they have been commanded No more than this: 6228
  To worship God,
  Offering Him sincere devotion,
  Being True (in faith); 6229
  To establish regular Prayer;
  And to practise regular Charity;
  And that is the Religion
  Right and Straight. 6230

  Among the People of the Book
  And among the Polytheists,
  Will be in hell-fire,

  They are the worst
  Of creatures. 6231

  They are the best Of creatures. 6432

6227. The responsibility of the People of the Book is greater than that of Pagans, because the People of the Book had been prepared for the standard and straight Religion by the revelations which they had already received. Yet, when the clear evidence came in Islam, they resisted it, And what is this standard and straight Religion, free of all ambiguity, and free of all casual rights and ceremonies? They are summed up in three eternal principles, as explained in the next verse and the next note:

6228. The three eternal principles of Religion are: (1) sincere devotion to God; (2) Prayer and Praise as drawing man nearer to God and to the spiritual world; and (3) the service of God's creatures by deeds of practical charity.

6229. Hanif: see n. 134 to ii. 135.

6230. See n. 6226 above.

6231. To be given the faculty of discrimination between right and wrong, and then to reject truth and right, is the worst folly which a creature endowed with will can commit. It must necessarily bring its own punishment, whether the creature calls himself one of the children of Abraham or one of the redeemed of Christ, or whether he goes by the mere light of nature and reason as a Pagan. Honour in the sight of God is not due to race or professions of faith, but to sincere and righteous conduct (xlix, 13).

6232. Contrast this with the preceding verse. Human beings who live a life of faith and good deeds justify the purpose of their probation here. They attain the fulfilment of their highest hopes, which is their Heaven.

8. Their reward is with God:
Gardens of Eternity,
Beneath which rivers flow;
They will dwell therein
For ever; God well pleased
With them, and they with Him:
All this for such as
Fear their Lord and Cherisher.

<sup>6233.</sup> The Good Pleasure of God is the final Bliss of Salvation. The good pleasure is mutual; the truly saved is he whose will has become completely identified with God's universal will. See Appendix XII. on the Muslim Heaven. Cf. lxxxix. 27-30.

<sup>6234.</sup> The fear of God is the fear to offend against His holy law, the fear to do anything which is against His holy Will. Such fear is akin to love; for with it dawns the consciousness of God's loving-care for all His creatures.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA XCIX (Zilzāl).

This Sūra is close in date to the last: it is generally referred to the early Medina period, though it may possibly be of the late Meccan period.

It refers to the tremendous convulsion and uprooting which will take place when the present order of the world is dissolved and the new spiritual world of Justice and Truth takes its place. The symbol used is that of an earthquake which will shake our present material and phenomenal world to its very foundations. The mystic words in which the earthquake is described are remarkable for both power and graphic aptness. With that shaking all hidden mysteries will be brought to light.

C. 279.—The Hour of Judgment must needs be heralded

(xcix. 1-8.) By a mighty Convulsion: the Earth will give up

Her secrets and tell her tale of all

Man's doings: men will march in companies

And clearly see the inwardness

Of all their Deeds: not an atom of Good

Or Evil done, but will be shown

In the final Account of men convinced.

Sūra XCIX.

Zilzāl, or The Convulsion.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. Shaken to her (utmost)

  convulsion, 6235
- 2. And the Earth throws up Her burdens (from within),6236
- 3. And man cries (distressed):
  'What is the matter with her?'—6217
- 4. On that Day will she Declare her tidings:
- 5. For that thy Lord will Have given her inspiration. 6238
- On that Day will men Proceed in companies sorted out,<sup>6239</sup>

6235. To the ordinary human observer a violent earthquake is a terrifying phenomenon, in its suddenness, in its mysterious origin, and in its power to destroy and uproot the strongest buildings and to bring up strange materials from the bowels of the earth. The Overwhelming Event (S. lxxviii.) which ushers in the Judgment will be a bigger and more far-reaching convulsion than any earthquakes that we know. And yet the incidents of earthquakes may give us some idea of that supreme world-shaking Event.

6236. An earthquake, if accompanied by a volcanic eruption, throws up enormous boulders and lava from beneath the crust of the earth. They are thrown up as if they were a burden to the Earth personified. They may be all kinds of minerals, or treasures buried for secrecy. So in the great and final Convulsion, the dead who had been buried and forgotten will rise; matters and motives which had been secretly hidden and metaphorically buried will be brought to the light of day, and justice will be done in the full glare of absolute Truth.

6237. The puzzled agony suffered by the victims of a violent earthquake is as nothing compared to the experience of the new and wonderful world which will then open out to the gaze of man.

6238. The present order may be personified as the earth. It will pass away, but the Deeds done therein, even the most secret, will be brought to the full light of day. And this will be because God will give the Command, the inspiration or Word, by which alone all events do proceed. The "inspiration" is the Command or direction conveyed by instruction breathed into the Earth personified: she is directed to tell the whole story of what she knows, Cf. xvi. 68, n. 2097.

6239. In this world good and evil are mixed together. But then they will be sorted out, and each grade of good and evil will be sorted out. So they will proceed in companies to receive judgment. And they will be shown the exact import of everything that they had thought, said, or done, in this life of probation, however they may have concealed or misinterpreted it in this life. Everything will be considered in taking the account, and the account will convince the persons concerned themselves.

To be shown the Deeds That they (had done).

- 7. Then shall anyone who
  Has done an atom's weight 6240
  Of good, see it!
- 8. And anyone who
  Has done an atom's weight
  Of evil, shall see it.

لِيُرُوْا أَعْمَالُهُمْ ٥

شران مر النُرُّالِيْرَةُ أَ

<sup>6240.</sup> Zarrāt: the weight of an ant, the smallest living weight an odinary man can think of. Figuratively the subtlest form of good and evil will then be brought to account, and it will be done openly and convincingly: he "shall see it".

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY . SURA C ('Adiyat).

This is one of the earlier Meccan Sūras. In the depth of its mystery and the rhythm and sublimity of its language and symbolism, it may be compared with S. lxxix. Its subject-matter is the irresistible nature of spiritual power and knowledge, contrasted with unregenerate man's ingratitude, pettiness, helplessness, and ignorance.

- C. 280.—There are those that fight, with eager charge,
- (c. 1-11.) The hosts of evil, and storm its citadel.

  But unregenerate Man shows less

  Than gratitude for God's most gracious

  Bounties: his life bears witness to his treason

  And his greed. God's knowledge is all-embracing:

  All things hidden will be laid hare at Judgment.

Sūra C.

'Adivat, or Those that run.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful,

- 1. By the (Steeds) 6241
  That run, with panting (breath),
- 2 And strike sparks of fire, 6242
- 3. And push home the charge In the morning, 6243
- 4. And raise the dust.
  In clouds the while, 6244
- 5. And penetrate forthwith Into the midst (of the foe) En masse;—6215

6241. The substantive proposition is in verses 6-8 below, and the metaphors and symbols enforcing the lesson are in verses 1-5 here. These symbols have at least three layers of mystic meaning: (1) Look at the chargers (mares or swift camels) panting for war on behalf of their masters. Off they go, striking fire with their hoofs by night at the behest of their riders; they push home the charge in the morning, chivalrously giving the enemy the benefit of daylight; and regardless of flashing steel or the weapons of their enemies they boldly penetrate into the midst of their foe, risking their lives for the Cause. Does unregenerate man show that fidelity to his Lord God? On the contrary he is ungrateful to God; he shows that by his deeds; he is violently in love with wealth and gain and things that perish. (2 By the figure of metonymy the brave fidelity of the war-horse may stand for that of the brave men and true who rally to the standard of God and carry it to victory, contrasted with the poltroonery and pettiness of unregenerate man. (3) The whole conflict, fighting, and victory, may be applied to spiritual warfare against those who are caught and overwhelmed in the camp of Evil.

- 6242. With their hoofs. If we suppose the march to be in the dead of night, the sparks of fire would be still more conspicuous.
- 6243. We may suppose a surprise attack, but yet a chivalrous attack by daylight. The foe is punished through his own lethargy and unpreparedness, apart from the strength, fire, and spirit of the forces of righteousness.
- 6244. The clouds of dust typify the ignorance and confusion in the minds of those who oppose Truth.
- 6245. The forces of evil mass themselves for strength, but their massing itself may become a means of their speedy undoing.

- 6. Truly Man is, To his Lord, 6246 Ungrateful;
- 7. And to that (fact)
  He bears witness
  (By his deeds); 64.7
- 8. And violent is he In his love of wealth. 62-18
- Moes he not know,—
  When that which is
  In the graves is
  Scattered abroad 6249
- 10. And that which is (Locked up) in (human) breasts Is made manifest—
- 11. That their Lord had been Well-acquainted with them, (Even to) that Day? 6250

الله على ذاك كَشَهِيُكُ أَ

٥- وَإِنَّهُ لِعُتِ الْخَيْرِ لَشَوْدِينٌ ٥

٥- أَفَلَا يَعُلَمُ إِذَا بِعُثْرُ مَا فِي الْقُلُورِ ٥

١٠- وَحُصِّلَ مَا فِي الصُّكُ وَرِ ٥

اا-إِنَّ رَبُّهُمْ بِهِمْ يُوْمَيْنِ لَخَبِيْرٌ خُ

6246. Man, i.e., unregenerate man, in contrast to those who receive guidance and wage unceasing war with Evil, is ungrateful to his Lord and Cherisher, Him Who created him and sustains him, and sends His blessings and favours at all times. The ingratitude may be shown by thoughts, words, and deeds,—by forgetting or denying God and His goodness, by misusing His gifts, or by injustice to His creatures. He is in this respect worse than the war-horse that risks his life in the service of his master.

- 6247. Man himself, by his conduct, proves the charge of treason against himself.
- 6248. What an evil choice he makes in committing treason against his own Benefactor by going after the petty baubles of this world's wealth of fleeting gains?
- 6249. Dead bodies, secret plots, evil thoughts and imaginings, long since buried, will yet stand forth before the Judgment-seat of God. Instead of being closely hidden or blotted out—as they will have been from the consciousness of mankind,—they will stand out as from the consciousness of God, which is all-embracing and never suffers from sleep or fatigue.
- 6250. God's knowledge is full and vigilant at all times. But on that day it will reveal to men secrets which they, had long forgotten; for the Book of their Deeds will be made manifest at Judgment.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA CI (Al-Qari'a).

This Meccan Sūra describes the Judgment Day as the Day of Clamour, when men will be distracted and the landmarks of this world will be lost, but every deed will be weighed in a just balance, and find its real value and setting.

C. 281.—How will the senses of man stand the Noise

(ci. 1-14.) And Clamour of the great Day of Account,

Whereon this life's old landmarks will vanish,

And men will be helpless like scattered moths?

Nay, but a Balance of Justice will weigh

And appraise all Deeds: and those whose good

Will show substance and weight will achieve a Life

Of good pleasure and satisfaction, while those

Whose good will be light will find themselves,

Alas, in a blazing Pit of Punishment.

Sūra CI.

Al-Qari'a, or The Day of Noise and Clamour.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- Mahe (Day) of Noise and Clamour: 6251
- 2. What is the (Day)
  Of Noise and Clamour?
- 3. And what will explain
  To thee what the (Day)
  Of Noise and Clamour is?
- 4. (It is) a Day whereon Men will be like moths Scattered about, 6452
- 5. And the mountains
  Will be like carded wool. 6258
- 6. Then, he whose
  Balance (of good deeds) 6254
  Will be (found) heavy,

المنسور الله الرّحين الرّحيد في المنافرة ألقارعة من الرّحيد في المنافرعة من المنافرعة من المنافرعة من القارعة من المنافرة المناف

6251. The Day of Noise and Clamour is the Day of Judgment, when the whole of the present order of things will be overthrown with a tremendous convulsion. Cf. n. 6235 to xcix. 1, and n. 6096 to lxxxviii. All our present landmarks will be lost. It will be a stunning experience to begin with, but it will inaugurate a new world of true and permanent values, in which every human deed will have its true and just consequences, as if weighed in the balance. See verses 6-11 below.

6252. Moths are frail light things. To see them scattered about in a violent storm gives some idea of the confusion, distress, and helplessness in which men will be at first overwhelmed on the Day of Account. Old memories will be like a book almost blotted out. New hopes will be vague in a new world just rising on the horizon. But it will be a perfectly just world, and no good action will be lost and no evil one but will have its compensating value estimated.

6253. Cf. n. 5682 to lxx. 9. The mountains are solid things, which seem as if nothing could move them. But in that tremendous cataclysm they will be scattered about like flakes of teased or carded wool. This is a metaphor to show that what we consider very substantial in this life will be as an airy nothing in the spiritual world.

6254. The Balance is of course figurative. The Good Deeds will be weighed and appraised. This appraisement will be of the nicest and justest kind: for it will take into account motives, temptations, provocations, surrounding conditions, antecedents, subsequent amends, and all possible connected circumstances. Against them, presumably, will be deeds of the opposite kind, appraised in the same way. If the good predominates, the judgment will be in the man's favour, and he will be ushered into a life of good pleasure and satisfaction. This will of course be on another plane.

1778

7. Will be in a Life
Of good pleasure and satisfaction. 6255

، - نَهُوُ إِنْ عِيْثَةَ وَاضِيَةٍ ٥

8. But he whose
Balance (of good deeds)
Will be (found) light,—

- وَ أَمَّا مَنْ خَفْتُ مُوَازِينُهُ ٥

9. Will have his home
In a (bottomless) Pit. 6256

٥- فَأَثُمُهُ هَاوِيَهُ ۞

10. And what will explain
To thee what this is?

ا- وَمَا اَدُرْنِكَ مَاهِيَةً ٥

11. (It is) a Fire
Blazing fiercely!

5 3 1 1 3 1 1

<sup>6255.</sup> Cf. xcviii. 8, and n. 6233, but perhaps the Bliss is not of the same grade for all men. In every case it is bliss, but bliss suited to the particular nature of the individual concerned.

<sup>6256.</sup> Just as grades of bliss are indicated for the righteous, so apparently we are to understand grades of punishment suited to the sins of the individual sinners concerned.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA CII (Takāthur).

This probably early Meccan Sūra gives a warning against acquisitiveness, i.e. the passion for piling up quantities or numbers, whether in the good things of this world, or in man-power or in other forms of megalomania, which leave no time or opportunity for pursuing the higher things of life.

C. 282.—Be not engrossed in things ephemeral,
(cii 1-8) To the neglect of higher things in life.

Life is but short, and Death will soon claim you.

Oh that men would only learn,

Before it is too late, the serious

Issues of the higher life! They must

Taste the consequences of their neglect.

For every good enjoyed they must
In the Hereafter give a strict account.

Sūra CII.

Takathur or Piling Up.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. The mutual rivalry
  For piling up (the good things
  Of this world) diverts you 6237
  (From the more serious things),
- 2. Until ye visit the graves.6258
- 3. But nay, ye soon shall Know (the reality).
- 4. Again, ye soon shall know!
- Nay, were ye to know With certainty of mind, 6439 (Ye would beware!)
- 6. Ye shall certainly see Hell-fire! 6260
- 7. Again, ye shall see it With certainty of sight!

١- اَلْهٰمَكُمُرُ التَّكَاثُرُكُ

٢- حَتَّى زُرُتُهُ الْمُقَابِرَ ٣- كَالَّا سَوْنَ تَعْلَمُوْنَ ٥ُ

٣- ثُمَّرُ كُلُّا سَوْنَ تَعُلْمُوْنَ أَ ٥-كُلُّا لَوُ تَعُلُمُوْنَ عِلْمَ الْيَقِيْنِ أَ

٧- لَلُرُونَ الْبَحِينُمُ ٥

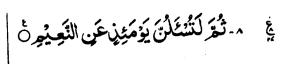

٥- ثُورٌ لَتُرُونُهَا عَيْنَ الْيُقِيْنِ ٥

6257. Acquisitiveness, that is, the passion for seeking an increase in wealth, position, the number of adherents or followers or supporters, mass production and mass organisation, may affect an individual as such, or it may affect whole societies or nations. Other people's example or rivalry in such things may aggravate the situation. Up to a certain point it may be good and necessary. But when it becomes inordinate and monopolises attention, it leaves no time for higher things in life, and a clear warning is here sounded from a spiritual point of view. Man may be engrossed in these things till death approaches, and he looks back on a wasted life, as far as the higher things are concerned.

6258. That is, until the time comes when you must lie down in the graves and leave the pomp and circumstance of an empty life. The true Reality will then appear before you. Why not try to strive for a little understanding of that Reality in this very life?

6259. Three kinds of yaqin (certainty of knowledge) are described in n. 5673 to lxix. 51. The first is certainty of mind or inference mentioned here: we hear from someone, or we infer from something we know: this refers to our own state of mind. If we instruct our minds in this way, we should value the deeper things of life better, and not waste all our time in ephemeral things. But if we do not use our reasoning faculties now, we shall yet see with our own eyes the Penalty for our sins. It will be certainty of sight. We shall see Hell. See next verse. But the absolute certainty of assured Truth is that described in lxix. 51. That is not liable to any human error or psychological defect.

8. Then, shall ye be Questioned that Day
About the joy 6261
(Ye indulged in!)

<sup>6261.</sup> We shall be questioned, i.e. we shall be held responsible for every kind of joy we indulge in —whether it was false pride or delight in things of no value, or things evil, or the enjoyment of things legitimate,—the last, to see whether we kept this within reasonable bounds.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA CIII ('A87).

This early Meccan Sura refers to the testimony of Time through the Ages. All history shows that Evil came to an evil end. But Time is always in favour of those who have Faith, live clean and pure lives, and know how to wait, in patience and constancy. Cf. the theme of S. xcv.

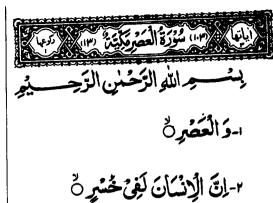

C. 283.—Waste not, nor misuse, your life. Time
(ciii. 1-3.) Through the Ages bears witness that nothing remains
But Faith and Good Deeds, and the teaching of Truth
And the teaching of Patience and Constancy.
But for these, Man against Time is in loss!

Sūra CIII.

'Aşr, or Time through the Ages.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- 1. Ty (the Token of)
  Time (through the Ages), 6262
- 2. Verily Man Is in loss, 6263
- 3. Except such as have Faith, And do righteous deeds, 6261 And (join together) 6265 In the mutual teaching Of Truth, and of Patience and Constancy.

٣- إِلَّا الَّذِيْنَ أَمَنُوا وَعَمِلُوا الصَّلِحْتِ وَتُوَاصَوْا بِالْحَقِّ لَا وَتُوَاصَوْا بِالصَّنْرِ خَ

6262. 'Aṣr may mean: (1) Time through the Ages, or long periods, in which case it comes near to the abstract idea of Time, Dahr, which was sometimes deified by the Pagan Arabs (see Introduction to S. 1xxvi.); (2) or the late afternoon, from which the 'Aṣr canonical prayer takes its name (see n. 271 to ii. 238). A mystic use of both these ideas is understood here. An appeal is made to Time as one of the creations of God, of which everyone knows something but of which no one can fully explain the exact significance. Time searches out and destroys everything material. No one in secular literature has expressed the tyranny of "never-resting Time" better than Shakespeare in his Sonnets. For example, see Sonnets 5 ("never-resting Time"), 12 ("Nothing 'gainst Time's scythe can make defence"), and 64 ("When I have seen by Time's fell hand defaced The rich proud cost of outworn buried age"). If we merely run a race against Time, we shall lose. It is the spiritual part of us that conquers Time. See verse 3 below. For the "afternoon" idea see next note.

6263 If life be considered under the metaphor of a business bargain, man, by merely attending to his material gains, will lose. When he makes up his day's account in the afternoon, it will show a loss. It will only show profit if he has Faith, leads a good life, and contributes to social welfare by directing and encouraging other people on the Path of Truth and Constancy.

6264. Faith is his armour, which wards off the wounds of the material world; and his righteous life is his positive contribution to spiritual ascent.

6265. If he lived only for himself, he would not fulfil his whole duty. Whatever good he has, especially in moral and spiritual life, he must spread among his brethren, so that they may see the Truth and stand by it in patient hope and unshaken constancy amidst all the storm and stress of outer life. For he and they will then have attained Peace within.

APPENDIX XIV.

Oaths and Adjurations in the Qur-an.

- 1. An oath is an invocation of the name of God or of some person-or object held sacred by the person using the invocation, to witness the truth of a solemn affirmation and to emphasize that affirmation.
- 2. An adjuration is a solemn appeal to a person or persons to do some act or to believe some important statement by the evidence of something great or sublime or remarkable or out of the ordinary.
- 3. On these subjects as thus defined, let us review the teaching of the holy Qur-an.
- 4. Among the Pagan Arabs the use of oaths became so common that it almost ceased to have any solemn meaning. On the other hand, when they wanted to suppress the rights of women or do some unjust acts, they would resort to an oath to do so, and then plead that they were bound by their oath when pressure was brought to bear on them to desist from their injustice. Thus, they doubly dishonoured oaths: they took the name of God lightly, and on the other hand, they made an oath an excuse for not doing what was right and just. It is much to be feared that our own contemporaries are not free from such forms of disrespect to God.
- 5. Such practices are condemned in the strongest terms in the Qur-ān. "Make not God's name an excuse in your oaths against doing good, or acting rightly, or making peace between persons" (ii. 224). Perjury is condemned as deception which hurts both the deceiver and the deceived. "Take not your oaths to practise deception between yourselves, with the result that someone's foot may slip after it was firmly planted, and ye may have to taste the evil consequences of having hindered men from the Path of God, and a mighty Wrath descend on you" (xvi. 94). See also iii. 77. You must not only fulfil your oaths, but you must fulfil all covenants, express or implied, and all your obligations of every kind, without reference to an oath: v. 1, n. 682.
- 6. Considering the harm caused by thoughtless oaths, in which there was no intention to deceive or to do wrong, it is provided that they may be expiated for. "God will not call you to account for what is futile in your oaths, but He will call you to account for your deliberate oaths: for expiation feed ten indigent persons...or clothe them, or give a slave his freedom. If that is beyond your means, fast for three days. That is the expiation for the oaths ye have sworn. But keep to your oaths" (v. 92). See also ii. 225 and lxvi. 2.
- 7. Some examples may be cited of the false oaths which were used for deception. The Hypocrites, "in whose hearts is a disease", "swore their strongest oaths by God" that they would be with the Muslims, but treachery was in their hearts (v. 55-56). See also xxiv. 53. On the other hand, the oath of Joseph's wicked brethren, "By God!", in speaking to their father, (xii. 85), seems to be a mere expletive, used lightly, and therefore worthy of condemnation.

8. In passages like the following, the oath seems to be emphatic and solemn as in a court of law: -

xii 66 ... By Joseph's brethren, at Jacob's request.

xii. 73 ... By Joseph's brethren, to the Egyptians.

xxi. 57 By Abraham, to the Polytheists.

xxvi. 97 ... By the denizens of Hell, when they realise their wrong.

xxxvii. 56 ... By the righteous one in heaven, when he realises the great danger he escaped in life.

xxxviii. 82 ... By the Power of Evil, who solemnly swears by the power of God.

xlvi. 34 By the denizens of Hell, when they realise the Truth.

9. In the following passages addressed by God to men, an appeal is made to man's realisation of God's own greatness, goodness, and glory, or God's special relationship to man as Creator, Cherisher, and Protector, to teach him the lesson of truth and right conduct. In English phrase it might be rendered: "As I am thy Lord God, believe in Me and follow My Word."

iv. 65 ... "By thy Lord" (they can have no real faith until...).

xv. 92 ... "By thy Lord" (We will call them to account).

xvi. 56 ... "By God" (ye shall be called to account).

xvi. 63 ... "By God" (We sent apostles).

xix. 68 ... "By thy Lord" (We shall gather them together).

xxxiv. 3 ... "By my Lord" (said by the Prophet to assure men of the coming of the Hour of Judgment)

lxiv. 7 ... Do. Do.

li. 23 ... "By the Lord of heaven and earth" (this is the very Truth).

See also lxx. 40 (paragraph 12 below).

10. Another way in which an appeal is made to men is by the evidence of the life of the holy Prophet, whose truth and purity were known to them, or by the holy Qur-ān, whose wonderful power over men's hearts was a miracle which they witnessed before their eyes:—

xv. 72 ... " By thy life "

(to enforce the lesson of the unspeakable crime of Lot's people).

xxxvi. 2 "By the Qur-an, Full of Wisdom" (to show the Prophet's inspiration).

xxxviii. 1 ... "By the Qur-ān,
Full of admonition"

(to show the error of the Unbelievers).

XC.

xliii. 2 " By the Book that Makes (to show that Revelation is reasonthings clear " able and conformable to truth). xliv. 2 Do. Do. 7. 1 " By the Glorious Qur-an " (to quell the wonder of the ignorant).

- 11. Now we come to the great mystic passages in the Meccan Sūras, in which men are adjured to turn to the wonders of the spiritual world by striking phrases full of sublimity, full of mystery, full of symbolism, and using the wonders of the heavens and the earth by way of illustration. They are the despair of the translator, because the words used are widely comprehensive, with little that is precise in them. There are layers upon layers of meaning, and only the profoundest spiritual experience can probe their depths. An attempt has been made in the notes to analyse and explain some of their meanings. All that we can do here is to bring them together into juxtaposition, to help the earnest student. They may be divided into three categories: (1) those introduced by the words "Lā uqsimu" (I do swear or I do call to witness), (2) those introduced by the particle wa, which is the general form of adjuration, and (3) those, mainly concerned with the Judgment to come, which are introduced by the adverb "izā" (when.
- Lā Uqsimu (with the first person singular) implies that special attention is drawn to something by a personal and beneficent God, and an appeal is made to His creatures :-

14. The great mystic Symbols introduced by the adverb "when" (izā) do not in form belong to the category of Adjurations, but their mystic meaning and imagery bring them within this category. They refer to the end of the present order of things, and the inauguration of the new world of perfect spiritual values, but they need not necessarily be understood in a definite sequence of time such as we know it, for the spiritual world overlaps the material:—

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA CIV (Humaza).

This Meccan Sura condemns all sorts of scandal, backbiting, and selfish hoarding of wealth, as destroying the hearts and affections of men.

C. 284.—Woe to the man or woman who deals

(civ. 1-9.) In scandal, in word or act, or by insults

Or suggestions. Woe to the backbiter, e'en

If his tale is true, for the taint is in his motive.

Woe to the miser who blocks up the channels

Of use and service and dams up his wealth,

As if he could remain in possession

For all time! The Fire of Wrath will envelop them

And wither up their hearts and minds, and consume

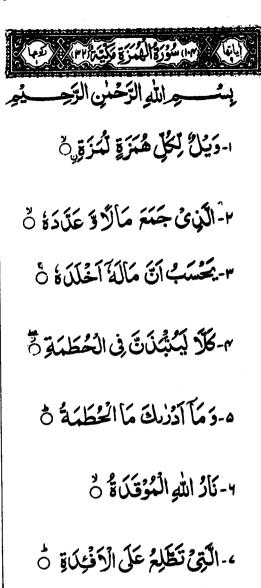

That largeness of life which is the portion of mankind.

Sūra CIV.

Humaza, or the Scandal-monger.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. Who oe to every (Kind of) scandal-monger And backbiter, 6266
- 2. Who pileth up wealth And layeth it by,
- 3. Thinking that his wealth Would make him last For ever!
- 4. By no means! He will
  Be sure to be thrown into
  That which Breaks to Pieces. 6267
- 5. And what will explain
  To thee That which Breaks
  To Pieces?
- 6. (It is) the Fire
  Of (the Wrath of) God
  Kindled (to a blaze),
- 7. The which doth mount (Right) to the Hearts: 6268

6266. Three vices are here condemned in the strongest terms: (1) scandal-mongering, talking or suggesting evil of men or women by word or innuendo, or behaviour, or mimicry, or sarcasm, or insult; (2) detracting from their character behind their backs, even if the things suggested are true, where the motive is evil; (3) piling up wealth, not for use and service to those who need it, but in miserly hoards, as if such hoards can prolong the miser's life or give him immortality: miserliness is itself a kind of scandal.

6267. Hutama: that which smashes or breaks to pieces: an apt description of the three antisocial vices condemned. For scandal-mongering and backbiting make any sort of cohesion or mutual confidence impossible; and the miser's hoards block up the channels of economic service and charity, and the circulation of good-will among men.

6268. This Fire of Punishment mounts right up to the hearts and minds of such men, and shuts them out of the love of their fellows. "Heart" in Arabic means not only the seat of affection, pity, charity, etc., but also of understanding and intelligent appreciation of things.

- 8. It shall be made Into a vault over them.
- 9. In columns outstretched. 6259

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA CV (Fil).

This early Meccan Sūra refers to an event that happened in the year of the birth of our holy Prophet, say about 570 A.D. Yaman was then under the rule of the Abyssinians (Christians), who had driven out the Jewish Himyar rulers. Abraha Ashram was the Abyssinian governor or viceroy. Intoxicated with power and fired by religious fanaticism, he led a big expedition against Mecca, intending to destroy the Ka'ba. He had an elephant or elephants in his train. But his sacrilegious intentions were defeated by a miracle. No defence was offered by the custodians of the Ka'ba as the army was too strong for them, but it was believed that a shower of stones, thrown by flocks of birds, destroyed the invading army almost to a man. The stones produced sores and pustules on the skin, which spread like a pestilence.

C. 285.—Let not man be intoxicated with power
(cv. 1-5.) Or material resources: they cannot defeat
The purpose of God. So Abraha Ashram
Found to his cost. His sacrilegious attack
On the holy Fane of God brought about
His own undoing: what seemed but frail
Destroyed his mighty hosts in a day!

Fil, or The Elephant.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,

Most Merciful.

- 1. Seest 677 thou not How thy Lord dealt With the Companions Of the Elephant? 6271
- 2. Did He not make
  Their treacherous plan
  Go astray?
- 3. And He sent against them Flights of Birds, 6272
- 4. Striking them with stones 6273 Of baked clay.
- 5. Then did He make them Like an empty field 6274. Of stalks and straw, (Of which the corn) Has been eaten up. 6275

6270. Seest thou not?—i.e. with thy mental vision. The incident happened in the very year of the holy Prophet's birth, barely two months before it.

6271. These were the troops of Abraha the Abyssinian, who invaded Mecca with a large army, in which were some elephants. See Introduction to this Sūra, 6272. The miracle consisted in the birds coming in large flights and flinging stones at the army which caused a great pestilence to arise and destroy the whole of Abraha's army.

6273. Sijjil: see n. 1579 to xi. 82. The word also occurs at xv. 74. Stones of baked clay, or hard as baked clay, are part of the miracle in the story.

6274. A field, from which all the corn has been eaten up and only straw with stalks or stubble is ieft, is a field dead and useless. And such was the army of Abraha.—dead and useless. Another possible rendering would be: "like eaten straw and stubble found in the dung of animals". The meaning would be the same, but much more emphatic.

6275. The lesson to be drawn is twofold. For the Pagan Quraish of Mecca it was: 'God will protect His own; if you persecute the holy Prophet, he is greater than the mere building of the Ka'ba: will not God protect him?' For men in all ages it is: 'a man intoxicated with power can prepare armies and material resources against God's holy Plan; but such a man's plan will be his own undoing; he cannot prevail against God'.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA CVI (Quraish).

This Meccan Sūra may well be considered as a pendant to the last. If the Quraish were fond of Mecca and proud of it, if they profited, by its central position and its guaranteed security, from their caravans of trade and commerce, let them be grateful, adore the One True God, and accept His Message.

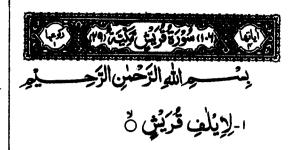

C. 286.—Who gave the Quraish their talents for the arts
(cvi. 1-4.) Of peace, for trade and commerce, and for journeys
South and north at proper seasons,
And made their home inviolable in Mecca?
Surely they, if any, should adore their Lord
And listen to His Message of Unity and Truth.

Sūra CVI.

Quraish or The Quraish, (Custodians of the Ka'ba).

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. Ror the covenants
  (Of security and safeguard
  Enjoyed) by the Quraish, 6276
- 2. Their covenants (covering) journeys By winter and summer,—6077
- 3. Let them adore the Lord Of this House, 6278
- 4. Who provides them
  With food against hunger, 6279
  And with security
  Against fear (of danger). 6280

الفِهِمُ رِحُلَةَ الشِّتَآءِ وَالصَّيْفِ أَ
 وَلُمْعُنُكُ وَارَتَ هِذَا الْمِنَا أَلِيكُتُ أَنْ

٣-الَّذِئَ ٱطْعَكَهُمْ مِّنُ جُوْءٍ * وَ اٰمَنَهُمُ مُرْضِنُ خَوْنٍ أَ

6276. The Quraish were the noblest tribe of Arabia, the tribe to which belonged the holy Prophet himself. They had the custody of the Ka'ba, the central shrine of Arabia, and their possession of Mecca gave them a triple advantage: (1) they had a commanding influence over other tribes; (2) their central position facilitated trade and intercourse, which gave them both honour and profit; and (3) the Mecca territory being by Arabian custom inviolable from the ravages of war and private feuds, they had a secure position, free from fear of danger. This honour and advantage they owed to their position as servants of the sacred shrine of the Ka'ba. They owed it to God. Was it not therefore right and fitting that they should adore the One True God, and listen to His Message of Unity and Purity, brought by His Prophet?

In those days of general insecurity, their prestige as custodians of Mecca enabled them to obtain Covenants of security and safeguard from the rulers of neighbouring countries on all sides—Syria, Persia, Yaman, and Abyssinia—protecting their trade journeys in all seasons.

6277 See last note, especially section (2). On account of their trade journeys to the warmth of Yaman in the winter and the cooler regions of Syria and the north in the summer, the Quraish became practised travellers and merchants, acquired much knowledge of the world and many arts, and perfected their language as a polished medium of literary expression.

6278. The Ka'ba

6279. Their trade caravans enriched them, and drew people from distant parts to visit Mecca and bring their merchandise and gifts thither.

6280. Their territory being inviolable, they did not suffer from the dangers of constant warfare nor from private feuds of vengeance or breaches of the peace in their secure homes.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SŪRA CVII (Mā'ūn).

This Sūra—at least the first half of it—belongs to the early Meccan period. The subject-matter is the meaning of true worship, which requires Faith, the practical and helpful love of those in need, and sincerity rather than show in devotion and charity.

C. 287.—What remains if you deny all Faith
(cvii 17) And personal Responsibility? Why then
Help the helpless or teach others
Deeds of Charity? Vain were worship
Without heart and soul. What think ye of men
Who make great show, but fail to meet
The simple needs of daily life?

1796

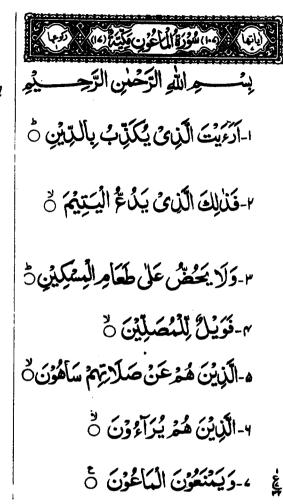

Sūra CVII.

Mā'un. or Neighbourly Needs.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful

- 1. Seest thou one
  Who denies the Judgment 6281
  (To come)?
- Then such is the (man) Who repulses the orphan (With harshness),
- 3. And encourages not 6282

  The feeding of the indigent.
- 4. So woe to the worshippers
- 5. Who are neglectful Of their Prayers, 6223
- 6. Those who (want but)
  To be seen (of men), 6284
- 7. But refuse (to supply)
  (Even) neighbourly needs. 6285

6281. Din may mean either (1) the Judgment to come, the responsibility in the moral and spiritual world, for all actions done by men, or (2) Faith, Religion, the principles of right and wrong in spiritual matters, which often conflict with selfish desires or predilections. It is men who deny Faith or future responsibility, that treat the helpless with contempt and lead arrogant selfish lives.

6282 The Charity or Love which feeds the indigent at the expense of Self is a noble form of virtue, which is beyond the reach of men who are so callous as even to discourage or forbid or look down upon the virtue of charity or kindness in others.

6283. True worship does not consist in the mere form of prayer, without the heart and mind being earnestly applied to seek the realisation of the presence of God, and to understand and do His holy Will.

6784. Cf. iv 142: "When they stand up to prayer, they stand without earnestness, to be seen of men, but little do they hold God in remembrance"

6285. Hypocrites make a great show of hollowacts of goodness, devotion, and charity. But they fail signally if you test them by little acts of neighbourly help or charity, the thousand little courtesies and kindnesses of daily life, the supply of needs which cost little but mean much.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA CVIII (Kauthar).

This very brief early Meccan Sūra sums up in the single mystic word Kauthar (Abundance) the doctrine of spiritual Riches through devotion and sacrifice. The converse also follows: indulgence in hatred means the cutting off of all hope of this life and the Hereafter.

C. 288.—To the man of God, rich in divine

(cviii. 1-3.) Blessings, is granted a Fountain unfailing,

That will quench the spiritual thirst of millions.

Turn, then, in devotion and sacrifice to God,

Nor heed the venom of Hatred, which destroys

Its own hopes, alas, of the present and the future!

Sūra CVIII.

Kauthar, or Abundance.

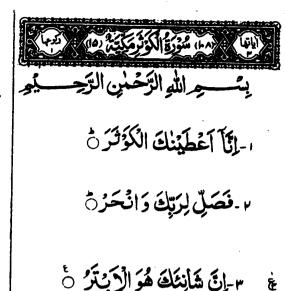

In the name of God, Most Gracious,

Most Merciful.

- 1. Mo thee have We Granted the Fount (of Abundance). 6286
- 2. Therefore to thy Lord Turn in Prayer And Sacrifice. 6287
- 3. For he who hateth thee,—6228

  He will be cut off

  (From Future Hope).

6286. Kauthar: the heavenly Fountain of unbounded grace and knowledge, mercy and goodness, truth and wisdom, spiritual power and insight, which was granted to the holy Prophet, the man of God, and in some degree or other, to all men and women who are sincere devotees of God. That Fountain quenches the highest spiritual thirst of man: it confers overflowing benefits of all kinds. Cf. ii. 269: "And he to whom wisdom is granted receiveth indeed a benefit overflowing". Such a person wants for nothing: worldly pomp and wealth are as dust beneath his feet.

6287. He who grants these blessings is God, and to God alone must we turn in adoration and thanksgiving, and in sacrifice. Nahr=sacrifice: in a restricted ritual sense, the sacrifice of camels: see n. 2813 to xxii. 36. But the ritual is a mere Symbol. Behind it is a deep spiritual meaning: the meat slaughtered feeds the poor, and the slaughter is a symbol of the self-sacrifice in our hearts. "It is not their meat nor their blood, that reaches God: it is your piety that reaches Him" (xxii. 37).

6288. Hatred and spite are not constructive contributions to the work of this world, but its opposites. Abū Jahl and his Pagan confederates vented their personal spite and venom against the holy Prophet by taunting him with the loss of his two infant sons by Khadīja, but where were these venomous detractors a few years afterwards, when the divine Light shone more brilliantly than ever? It was these that were cut off from all future hope, in this world and the next.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA CIX (Kāfirūn).

This is another early Meccan Sūra. It defines the right attitude to those who reject Faith: in matters of Truth we can make no compromise, but there is no need to persecute or abuse anyone for his faith or belief.

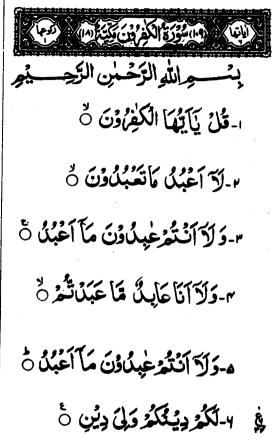

C. 289.—The man of Faith holds fast to his faith,
(cix. 1-6.) Because he knows it is true. The man
Of the world, rejecting Faith, clings hard
To worldly interests. Let him mind
His worldly interests, but let him not Force his interests on men sincere
And true, by favour, force, or fraud.

- 3. Nor will ye worship
  That which I worship. 6290
- 4. And I will not worship
  That which ye have been Wont to worship,
- 5. Nor will ye worship.
  That which I worship.
- 6. To you be your Way, And to me mine. 6291

6289. Faith is a matter of personal conviction, and does not depend on worldly motives. Worship should depend on pure and sincere Faith, but often does not : for motives of worldly gain, ancestral custom, social conventions or imitative instincts, or a lethargic instinct to shrink from enquiring into the real significance of solemn acts and the motives behind them, reduce a great deal of the world's worship to sin, selfishness, or futility. Symbolic idols may themselves be merely instruments for safeguarding the privileges of a selfish priestly class, or the ambitions, greed, or lust of private individuals. Hence the insistence of Islam and its Teacher on the pure worship of the One True God. The Prophet firmly resisted all appeals to worldly motives, and stood firm to his Message of eternal Unity.

6290. Verses 2-3 describe the conditions as they were at the time when this Sūra was revealed, and may be freely paraphrased: 'I am a worshipper of the One True God, the Lord of all, of you as well as of myself; but you on account of your vested interests nave not the will to give up your false worship, of idols and self'. Verses 4-5 describe the psychological reasons: 'I, being a prophet of God, do not and cannot possibly desire to follow your false ancestral ways; and you, as custodians of the false worship, have not the will to give up your ways of worship, which are wrong'. The "will" in the translation represents less the future tense than the will, the desire, the psychological possibility: it tries to reproduce the Arabic noun-agent.

6291. 'I, having been given the Truth, cannot come to your false ways: you, having your vested interests, will not give them up. For your ways the responsibility is yours: I have shown you the Truth. For my ways the responsibility is mine: you have no right to ask me to abandon the Truth. Your persecutions will be vain: the Truth must prevail in the end'. This was the attitude of Faith then: but it is true for all time. Hold fast to Truth, "in scorn of consequence".

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA CX (Nanr).

This beautiful Sūra was the last of the Sūras to be revealed as a whole, though the portion of the verse v. 4, "This day have I perfected your religion for you" etc., contains probably the last words of the Qur-an to be revealed.

The date of this Sūra was only a few months before the passing away of the holy Prophet from this world, Rabi' I, A.H. 11. The place was either the precincts of Mecca at his Farewell Pilgrimage, Zulḥijja, A.H. 10, or Medina after his return from the Farewell Pilgrimage.

Victory is the crown of service, not an occasion for exultation. All victory comes from the help of God.

C. 290.—For that which is right the help of God.

(cx. 1-3.) Is ever nigh, and victory!

When the spirit of men is stirred, they come
To the flag of faith in troops and battalions.

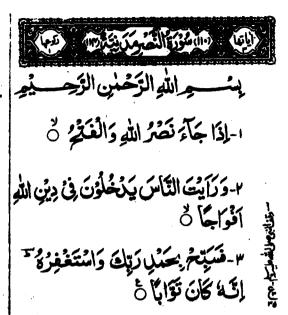

They are to be welcomed: but Praise and Glory
Belong to God: to Him we humbly
Turn and pray for Grace: for He Is Oft-Returning in Grace and Mercy.

Stira CX.

Nasr, or Help.

In the name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful.

- hen comes the Help Of God, and Victory,
- 2. And thou dost see
  The People enter God's Religion
  In crowds,6292
- 3. Celebrate the Praises
  Of thy Lord, and pray
  For His Forgiveness:
  For He is Oft-Returning
  (In Grace and Mercy).

6292. The Prophet migrated from Mecca to Medina, a hunted and persecuted man. In Medina all the forces of truth and righteousness rallied round him, and the efforts by the Meccans and their confederates to destroy him and his community recoiled on their own heads. Gradually all the outlying parts of Arabia ranged themselves round his standard, and the bloodless conquest of Mecca was the crown and prize of his patience and constant endeavour. After that, whole tribes and tracts of country gave their adhesion to him collectively, and before his earthly ministry was finished, the soil was prepared for the conquest of the wide world for Islam. What was the lesson to be learnt from this little epitome of the world's history? Not man's self-glory, but humility; not power but service; not an appeal to man's selfishness or self-sufficiency, but a realisation of God's Grace and Mercy, and the abundant outpouring of God's Praises in word and conduct.

6293. Every man should humble himself before God, confess his human frailties, and seek God's grace;—attributing any success that he gets in his work, not to his own merits, but to the goodness and mercy of God. But the Prophet of God had also another duty and privilege,—to pray for grace and forgiveness for his people in case any of them had exulted in their victory or done anything that they should not have done,

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SÜRA CXI (Lahab).

This very early Meccan Sūra, though it referred in the first instance to a particular incident in a cruel and relentless persecution, carries the general lesson that cruelty ultimately ruins itself. The man who rages against holy things is burnt up in his own rage. His hands, which are the instruments of his action, perish, and he perishes himself. No boasted wealth or position will save him. The women, who are made for nobler emotions, may, if they go wrong, feed unholy rage with fiercer fuel—to their own loss. For they may twist the torturing rope round their own neck. It is a common experience that people perish by the very means by which they seek to destroy others.

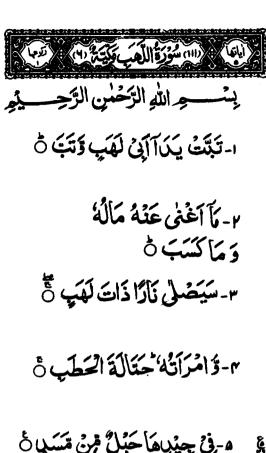

C. 291.—The Chosen One of God, in his earnest Desire to proclaim the Message, gathered His kin together to hear and judge With open minds between error and truth. Behold, the fiery "Father of Flame" Blazed up with foul abuse and curses, And said to the holy one: " Perish thou!" With his hands he took stones and cast them At the holy one's head. Purse-proud he headed Relentless persecution. His wife Laid snares, tied thorns with twisted ropes Of prickly palm-leaf fibre, and strewed them In the holy one's path on darkest nights, For cruel sport! But lo! the curses, Insults, spite, harmed not the Innocent. But hit the wrong-doers themselves And branded them with eternal infamy!

Sūra CXI.

Lahab, or (the Father of) Flame.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- Perish the hands
   Of the Father of Flame! 6294
   Perish he!
- No profit to him From all his wealth, And all his gains!
- 3. Burnt soon will he be In a Fire Of blazing Flame!
- 4. His wife shall carry
  The (crackling) wood—
  As fuel!—6295
- 5. A twisted rope
  Of palm-leaf fibre
  Round her (own) neck!

6294. Abu Lahab, "Father of Flame", was the nick-name of an uncle of the holy Prophet, from his fiery hot temper and his ruddy complexion. He was one of the most inveterate enemies of early Islam. When the holy Prophet called together the Quraish and his own kith and kin to come and listen to his preaching and his warning against the sins of his people, the "Father of Flame" flared up and cursed the holy Prophet, saying "Perdition to thee!" According to the English saying, "the causeless curse will not come". His words were futile, but his power and strength were equally futile. The star of Islam rose higher and higher every day, and its persecutors dwindled in strength and power. Many of the leaders of persecution perished at Badr, and Abū Lahab himself perished a week after Badr, consumed with grief and his own fiery passions. Verse 3 was prophetic of his end in this very life, though it also refers to the Hereafter.

6295. Abū Lahab's wife was a woman of equally passionate spite and cruelty against the sacred person of the holy Prophet. She used to tie bundles of thorns with ropes of twisted palmleaf fibre and carry them and strew them about on dark nights in the paths which the Prophet was expected to take, in order to cause him bodily injury. "To carry firewood" may also be symbolical for carrying tales between people to embroil them. This was also one of her vices. But she was laying up for herself another kind of Fire and another kind of Rope, the Fire of Punishment, and the Rope of Slavery to Evil. Thus does Evil prepare its own fate. This is the general lesson of sustained craft and cruel wrong-doing recoiling on the wrong doer's head. See also Introduction to this Sūra.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA CXII (/kh/ax).

This early Meccan Sūra sums up in a few terse words the Unity of the Godhead—often professed, but frequently mixed up in the popular mind with debasing superstitions.

C. 292.—Keep Faith all pure and undefiled.

(cxii. 1-4.) There is God, the One and Only;

Eternal, Free of all needs; on Whom

Depend, to Whom go back, all things;

He hath no son nor father nor partner.

There is no person like unto Him.

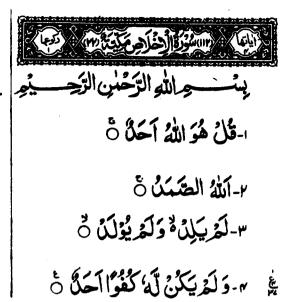

Sūra CXII.

Ikhlās, or Purity (of Faith).

In the name of God, Most Gracious,

Most Merciful.

- Say: He is God, 6296
   The One and Only; 6297
- 2. God, the Eternal, Absolute; 6298
- 3. He begetteth not, Nor is He begotten; 6299
- 4. And there is none Like unto Him. 6300

6296. The nature of God is here indicated to us in a few words, such as we can understand. The qualities of God are described in numerous places elsewhere, e.g., in lix. 22-24, lxii. 1, and ii. 255. Here we ares pecially taught to avoid the pitfalls into which men and nations have fallen at various times in trying to understand God. The first thing we have to note is that His nature is so sublime, so far beyond our limited conceptions, that the best way in which we can realise Him is to feel that He is a Personality, "He", and not a mere abstract conception of philosophy. He is near us; He cares for us; we owe our existence to Him. Secondly, He is the One and Only God, the Only One to Whom worship is due; all other things or beings that we can think of are His creatures and in no way comparable to Him. Thirdly, He is Eternal, without beginning or end, Absolute, not limited by time or place or circumstance, the Reality before which all other things or places are mere shadows or reflections. Fourthly, we must not think of Him as having a son or a father, for that would be to import animal qualities into our conception of Him. Fifthly, He is not like any other person or thing that we know or can imagine: His qualities and nature are unique.

6297. This is to negative the idea of Polytheism, a system in which people believe in gods many and lords many. Such a system is opposed to our truest and profoundest conceptions of life. For Unity in Design, Unity in the fundamental facts of existence, proclaim the Unity of the Maker.

6298. Samad is difficult to translate by one word. I have used two, "Eternal" and "Absolute". The latter implies: (1) that absolute existence can only be predicated of Him; all other existence is temporal or conditional; (2) that He is dependent on no person or things, but all persons or things are dependent on Him, thus negativing the idea of gods and goddesses who are and drank, wrangled and plotted, depended on the gifts of worshippers, etc.

6299. This is to negative the Christian idea of the godhead, "the Father", "the only-begotten Son" etc.

6300. This sums up the whole argument and warns us specially against Anthropomorphism, the tendency to conceive of God after our own pattern, an insidious tendency that creeps in at all times and among all peoples.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA CXIII (Falaq).

This early Meccan Sūra provides the antidote to superstition and fear by teaching us to seek refuge in God from every kind of ill arising from outer nature and from dark and evil plottings and envy on the part of others.

C. 293.—It is God Who brings forth light from darkness, (cxiii, 1.5.)

Life and activity from death, spiritual

Enlightenment from ignorance and superstition.

Banish fear, and trust His Providence.

No danger, then, from the outer world,

No secret plottings from perverted wills,

No disturbance of your happiness or good,

Can affect the fortress of your inmost soul.

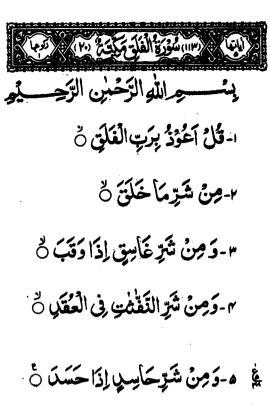

Sūra CXIII.

Falag, or The Dawn.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,

Most Merciful

- 1. Say: I seek refuge 6301
  With the Lord of the Dawn, 6302
- 2. From the mischief Of created things; 6303
- 3 From the mischief Of Darkness as it overspreads; 6304
- 4. From the mischief
  Of those who practise
  Secret Arts 6305;
- 5. And from the mischief Of the envious one As he practises envy. 6206

6301. In God's created world, there are all kinds of forces and counter-forces, especially those put in motion by beings who have been endowed with some sort of will. The forces of good may be compared to light, and those of evil to darkness. God can cleave the depths of darkness and produce light (vi. 96), and therefore we should cast off fear and take refuge in divine guidance and goodness.

6302. Falaq is the Dawn or Daybreak, the cleaving of darkness and the manifestation of light. This may be understood in various senses: (1) literally, when the darkness of the night is at its worst, rays of light pierce through and produce the dawn; (2) when the darkness of ignorance is at its worst, the light of God pierces through the soul and gives it enlightenment: xxiv. 35; (3) non-existence is darkness, and life and activity may be typifled by light. The author and source of all true light is God, and if we seek Him, we are free from ignorance, superstition, fear, and every kind of evil.

6303. See n. 6301 above. Our trust in God is the refuge from every kind of fear and superstition, every kind of danger and evil. Three special kinds of mischief are specified in the next three verses, against which our best guard is our trust in God, the Light of the heavens and the earth. They are: (1) physical dangers, typified by darkness, (2) psychical dangers within us, typified by Secret Arts, and (3) psychical dangers from without us, resulting from a perverted will, which seeks to destroy any good that we enjoy.

6304. The darkness of the night, physical darkness, is a good type of physical dangers and difficulties. Many people are afraid of physical darkness, and all are afraid of physical injuries, accidents, and calamities. We should not fear, but having taken reasonable precautions, trust in God.

6305. Those who practise Secret Arts: literally, 'those (feminine) who blow on knots', this having been a favourite form of witchcraft practised by perverted women. Such secret arts cause psychological terror. They may be what is called black magic, or secret plottings, or the display of false and seductive charms (iii. 14), or the spreading of false and secret rumours or slanders to frighten men or deter them from right action. There is fraud in such things, but men are swayed by it. They should cast off fear and do their duty.

6306. Malignant envy, translated into action, seeks to destroy the happiness or the material or spiritual good enjoyed by other people. The best guard against it is trust in God with purity of heart.

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY: SURA CXIV (Nas).

This early Meccan Sūra is a pendant to the last Sūra, and concludes the Holy Qur-ān, with an appeal to us to trust in God, rather than man, as our sure shield and protection. It warns us specially against the secret whispers of evil within our own hearts.

C. 294. – Insidious Evil lies in wait

(cxiv 1-6.) For man, and loves to whisper and withdraw,

Thus testing his will. But man can make

God his sure shield; for God doth care

For him and cherishes him: God is

The heavenly King who gives him laws:

And God is the Goal to which he will Return and be judged. Let man but place

Himself in God's hands, and never can Evil

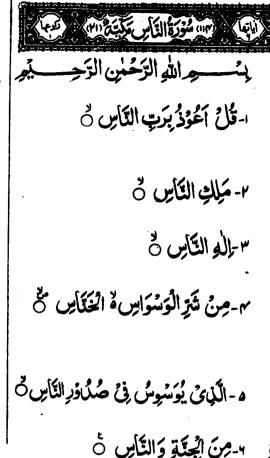

Touch him in his essential and inner life.

Sūra CXIV.

Nas, or Mankind.

In the name of God, Most Gracious,
Most Merciful.

- 1. Say: I seek refuge 6507
  With the Lord
  And Cherisher of Mankind,6308
- 2. The King (or Ruler) Of Mankind,
- 3. The God (or Judge)
  Of Mankind,—
- 4. From the mischief
  Of the Whisperer 6309
  (Of Evil), who withdraws
  (After his whisper),—
- (The same) who whispers Into the hearts of Mankind,—
- 6. Among Jinns
  And among Men. 6310

6307. The previous Sūra pointed to the necessity of seeking God's protection against external factors which might affect an individual. Here the need of protection from internal factors, mankind being viewed as a whole, is pointed out. For this reason the threefold relation in which man stands to God is mentioned, as explained in the next note.

6308. Man's relation to God may be viewed in three aspects: (1) God is his Lord, Maker, and Cherisher; God sustains him and cares for him; He provides him with all the means for his growth and development, and for his proteciton against evil; (2) God is his king or ruler; more than any earthly king, God has authority to guide man's conduct, and lead him to ways which will make for his welfare; and He has given him laws; and (3) God is He to Whom mankind must return, to give an account of all their deeds in this life (ii. 156); God will be the Judge; He is the goal of the Hereafter, and the only Being entitled to man's worship at any time. From all these aspects man could and should seek God's protection against evil.

6309. Evil insinuates itself in all sorts of insidious ways from within so as to sap man's will, which was given to man by God. This power of evil may be Satan or his host of evil ones, or evil men or the evil inclinations within man's own will: for there are "evil ones among men and Jinns, inspiring each other with flowery discourses by way of deception" (vi. 112). They secretly whisper evil and then withdraw, to make their net the more subtle and alluring.

6310. This last clause amplifies the description of the sources from which the whisper of evil may emanate: they may be men whom you may see or invisible spirits of evil working within. See last note. So long as we put ourselves in God's protection, and trust in God, evil cannot really touch us in our essential and inner life.

CONCLUSION

- C. 295.—Thus spake, inspired, our holy Prophet,
  Muhammad, on whom we invoke God's blessings
  For ever and ever;—we who are heirs
  To his teaching, his exemplary life,
  And the golden thread which he inwove
  Into the web of human history.
  In pious retreats he prayed; much thought
  He gave to Life's most obstinate tangles;
  'Gainst odds he strove with might and main;
  Wisely he led; gently he counselled;
  And firmly he subduéd Evil.
- C. 296.—Mantle-clad, 6311 he solved the most baffling Mysteries. His soul would scale The heights of Heaven, yet showered its love On the weak and lowly of this earth. Like a cloud that catches the glory of the Sun, He threw his protecting shade on all. The widow's cry, and the orphan's, found An answer in his heart, as did The cry of Penury and Need. He searched out those who felt no need, Being by pride or ignorance blinded, And he fulfilled their real wants. His last great charge summed up the rule Of spiritual life in linking Faith With one universal Brotherhood. Ah! ne'er shall we see such life again!
- C. 297.—But his clarion voice still speaks his message.

  His love and wisdom still pour forth

  Without stint the inexhaustible Treasures

  Of God, for whosoe'er will bring

  A purified heart to receive them.

  And ne'er did the world, impoverished

  By its own wayward lusts and greed,

  Need those Treasures more than now!

<sup>6311.</sup> An epithet of mystic meaning, applied to the Prophet in the Qur-an. See lxxiv. 1, n. 5778. I have in my mind a reminiscence of an Urdu Na't, or Song in praise of the holy Prophet.

- C. 398.—There's still with us much sorrow and sin. Injustice, oppression, wrong, and hate. Still does Arrogance deaden Conscience, Rob struggling souls of e'en the crumbs Of Pity, and make, of loathsome flesh And crumbling dust, fair-seeming Idols For worship. Still does Ignorance blow A mighty Horn and try to shame True Wisdom. Still do men drive Slaves,-Protesting smoothly the end of Slavery! Still does Greed devour the substance Of helpless ones within her power. Nay, more,—the fine Individual Voice Is smothered in the raucous din Of Groups and Crowds that madly shout What they call Slogans New,-Old Falsehoods long discredited
- C. 299.—What can we do to make God's Light
  Shine forth through the Darkness around us?
  We must first let it shine in our own true Selves
  With that Light in the niche of our inmost hearts
  We can walk with steps both firm and sure:
  We can humbly visit the comfortless
  And guide their steps. Not we, but the Light
  Will guide! But oh! the joy of being found
  Worthy to bear the Torch, and to say
  To our brethren: "I too was in Darkness,
  Comfortless, and behold, I have found
  Comfort and Joy in the Grace Divine!"
- C. 300.—Thus should we pay the dues of Brotherhood,—
  By walking humbly, side by side,
  In the Ways of the Lord,
  With mutual aid and comfort,
  And heartfelt prayer,
  Backed by action,
  That God's good Purpose
  May be accomplished
  In us all together!

L'ENVOL

Cowper wrote: "Oars alone can ne'er prevail To reach the distant coast; The breath of heaven must swell the sail, Or all the toil is lost." I praise and glorify the name of God that He has enabled His humble servant to complete in manuscript the work of Interpretation at which he has systematically and unceasingly laboured for the last three years. My manuscript was completed in Lahore on the fourth of April 1937, my sixty-fifth birthday according to the solar calendar. My inner history during these three years has been one of joyful and concentrated exploration, undisturbed by the storms that vexed my outer life. I had not imagined that so much human jealousy, misunderstanding, and painful misrepresentation should pursue one who seeks no worldly gain and pretends to no dogmatic authority. But I have been much consoled by numerous appreciative letters from distant readers. I thank them and wish them to feel that they and I are fellow-riders (Arabice, Zamīl) on a steed of research in a field that is unlimited in scope and sublime compared to all ordinary knowledge. Such relationship is closer in spirit than ties of blood, or country, or any other joint enterprise whatsoever.

The printer and publisher hope now to bring out the whole completed volumes within two months. I have appended a short Index, which yet is fuller than is to be found in most Quranic Translations. A complete analytical Index, covering the text, notes, and commentary, such as I contemplated in my Preface, will take time to prepare, and will, if there is a demand, be issued as a separate volume at some future time.

And so I take leave of thee, Gentle Reader, and pray for thy spiritual advancement, as I wish thee to pray for mine.

PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION, 1934

I DO not wish to write a long Preface. I wish merely to explain the history of my Project, the scope and plan of this work, and the objects I have held in view.

In separate introductory Notes I have mentioned the useful books to which I have referred, under the headings: Commentaries on the Qur-an; Translations of the Qur-an; and Useful Works of Reference. I have similarly explained the system which I have followed in the transliteration of Arabic words and names; the Abbreviations I have used; and the principal divisions of the Qur-an.

It may be asked: Is there any need for a fresh English Translation? To those who ask this question I commend a careful consideration of the facts which I have set out in my Note on Translations. After they have read it, I would invite them to take any particular passage in Part I, say ii. 74 or ii. 102, or ii. 164 in the second Part and compare it with any previous version they choose. If they find that I have helped them even the least bit further in understanding its meaning, or appreciating its beauty, or catching something of the grandeur of the original, I would claim that my humble attempt is justified.

It is the duty of every Muslim, man, woman, or child, to read the Qur-an and understand it according to his own capacity. If any one of us attains to some knowledge or understanding of it by study, contemplation, and the test of life, both outward and inward, it is his duty, according to his capacity, to instruct others, and share with them the joy and peace which result from contact with the spiritual world. The Qur-an—indeed every religious book—has to be read, not only with the tongue and voice and eyes, but with the best light that our intellect can supply, and even more, with the truest and purest light which our heart and conscience can give us.

It is in this spirit that I would have my readers approach the Qur-an.

It was between the ages of four and five that I first learned to read its Arabic words, to revel in its rhythm and music, and wonder at its meaning. I have a dim recollection of the Khatm ceremony which closed that stage. It was called "completion": it really just began a spiritual awakening that has gone on ever since. My revered father taught me Arabic, but I must have imbibed from him into my innermost being something more,—something which told me that all the world's thoughts, all the world's most beautiful languages and literatures, are but vehicles for that ineffable message which comes to the heart in rare moments of ecstasy. The soul of mysticism and ecstasy is in the Qur-an, as well as that plain guidance for the plain man which a world in a hurry affects to consider as sufficient. It is good to make this personal confession, to an age in which it is in the highest degree unfashionable to speak of religion or spiritual peace or consolation, an age in which words like these draw forth only derision, pity, or contempt.

I have explored Western lands, Western manners, and the depths of Western thought and Western learning to an extent which has rarely fallen to the lot of an Eastern mortal. But I have never lost touch with my Eastern heritage. Through all my successes and failures I have learned to rely more and more upon the one true thing in all life—the voice that speaks in a tongue above that of mortal man. For me the embodiment of that voice has been in the noble words of the Arabic Qur an, which I have tried to translate for myself and apply to my experience again and again. The service of the Qur-an has been the pride and the privilege of many Muslims. I felt that with such life-experience as has fallen to my lot, my service to the Qur-an should be to present it in a fitting garb in English. That ambition I have cherished in my mind for more than forty years. I have collected books and materials for it. I have visited places, undertaken journeys, taken notes, sought the society of men, and tried to explore their thoughts and hearts, in order to equip myself for the task. Sometimes I have considered it too stupendous for me,—the double task of understanding the original, and reproducing its nobility, its beauty, its poetry, its grandeur, and its sweet practical reasonable application to everyday experience. Then I have blamed myself for lack of courage,—the spiritual courage of men who dared all in the Cause which was so dear to them.

Two sets of apparently accidental circumstances at last decided me. A man's life is subject to inner storms far more devastating than those in the physical world around him. In such a storm, in the bitter anguish of a personal sorrow which my reason and made life seem meaningless, a new hope nearly unseated was born out of a systematic pursuit of my long-cherished project. Watered by tears, my manuscript began to grow in depth and earnestness if not in bulk. guarded it like a secret treasure. Wanderer that I am, I carried it about, thousands of miles, to all sorts of countries and among all sorts of people. At length, in the city of Lahore, I happened to mention the matter to some young people who held me in respect and affection. They showed an enthusiasm and an eagerness which surprised me. They almost took the matter out of my hands. They asked for immediate publication. I had various bits ready, but not even one complete Sipara. They made me promise to complete at least one Sībāra before I left Lahore. by magic, a publisher, a kātib (calligraphist to write the Arabic Text), an engraver of blocks for such text, and a printer were found, all equally anxious to push forward the scheme. Blessed be youth, for its energy and determination. "Where others flinch, rash youth will dare ! "

Gentle and discerning reader! what I wish to present to you is an English Interpretation, side by side with the Arabic Text. The English shall be, not a mere substitution of one word for another, but the best expression I can give to the fullest meaning which I can understand from the Arabic Text. The rhythm, music, and exalted tone of the original should be reflected in the English Interpretation. may be but a faint reflection, but such beauty and power as my pen can command shall be brought to its service. I want to make English itself an Islamic language. if such a person as I can do it. And I must give you all the accessory aid which I can. In rhythmic prose, or free verse (whichever you like to call it), I prepare the atmosphere for you in a running Commentary. Introducing the subject generally, I come to the actual Suras. Where they are short, I give you one or two paragraphs of my rhythmic Commentary to prepare you for the Text. Where the Sura is long. I introduce the subject-matter in short appropriate paragraphs of the Commentary from time to time, each indicating the particular verses to which it refers. paragraphs of the running Commentary are numbered consecutively, with some regard to the connection with the preceding and the following paragraphs. It is possible to read this running rhythmic Commentary by itself to get a general bird's-eye view of the contents of the Holy Book before you proceed to the study of the Book itself.

The text in English is printed in larger type than the running Commentary, in order to distinguish, at a glance, the substance from the shadow. It is also displayed differently, in parallel columns with the Arabic Text. Each Sūra and the verse of each Sūra is separately numbered, and the numbers are shown page by page. The system of numbering the verses has not been uniform in previous translations. European editors and translators have allowed their numbering to diverge considerably from that accepted in the East. This causes confusion in giving and verifying references. The different Qirāats sometimes differ as to the punctuation stops and the numbering of the verses. This is not a vital matter, but it causes confusion in references. It is important that at least in Islamic countries one system of numbering should be adopted. I have adopted mainly that of the Egyptian edition published under the authority of the King of Egypt. This will probably be accepted in Egypt and in Arabic-speaking countries, as those countries generally look up to Egypt in matters of literature. I am glad to see that the text shortly to be published by the Anjuman-i-Himāyat-i-Islām of Lahore is following the same

In translating the Text I have aired no views of my own, but followed the received Commentators. Where they differ among themselves, I have had to choose what appeared to me to be the most reasonable opinion from all points of view. Where it is a question merely of words, I have not considered the question important enough to discuss in the Notes, but where it is a question of substance, I hope adequate explanations will be found in the Notes. Where I have departed from the literal translation in order to express the spirit of the original better in English, I have explained the literal meaning in the Notes. For example, see ii. 104 n. and ii. 26 n. In choosing an English word for an Arabic word a translator necessarily exercises his own judgment and may be unconsciously expressing a point of view, but that is inevitable.

Let me explain the scope of the Notes. I have made them as short as possible consistently with the object I have in view, viz., to give to the English reader, scholar as well as general reader, a fairly complete but concise view of what I understand to be the meaning of the Text. To discuss theological controversies or enter into polemical arguments I have considered outside my scope. Such discussions and arguments may be necessary and valuable, but they should find a place in separate treatises, if only out of respect to the Holy Book. Besides, such discussions leave no room for more important matters on which present-day readers desire information. In this respect our Commentators have not always been discreet. On questions of law, the Qur-an lays down general principles, and these I have explained. avoided technical details: these will be found discussed in their proper place in my book on "Anglo-Muhammadan Law." Nor have I devoted much space to grammatical or philological Notes. On these points I consider that the labours of the vast body of our learned men in the past have left little new to say now. There is usually not much controversy, and I have accepted their conclusions without setting out the reasons Where it has been necessary for the understanding of the Text to refer to the particular occasion for the revelation of a particular verse, I have done so briefly, but have not allowed it to absorb a disproportionate amount of space. It will be found that every verse revealed for a particular occasion has also a general meaning. The particular occasion and the particular people concerned have passed away, but the general meaning and its application remain true for all time. What we are concerned about now, in the fourteenth century of the Hijra, is: what guidance can we draw for ourselves from the message of God?

I spoke of the general meaning of the verses. Every earnest and reverent student of the Qur-an, as he proceeds with his study, will find, with an inward joy difficult to describe, how this general meaning also enlarges as his own capacity for understanding increases. It is like a traveller climbing a mountain: the higher he goes, the farther he sees. From a literary point of view the poet Keats has described his feeling when he discovered Chapman's Homer:—

Then felt I like some watcher of the skies When a new planet swims into his ken, Or like stout Cortez when with eagle eyes He stared at the Pacific,—and all his men Looked at each other with a wild surmise,—Silent, upon a peak in Darien.

How much greater is the joy and sense of wonder and miracle when the Qur-an opens our spiritual eyes! The meaning which we thought we had grasped expands. New worlds are opened out. As we progress, still newer, and again newer worlds "swim into our ken." The miracle deepens and deepens, and almost completely absorbs us. And yet we know that the "face of God"—our final goal—has not yet been reached. We are in the mulk of Sulaiman (Q. ii. 102), which the evil ones denied, belied, and even turned into blasphemy. But we can ignore blasphemy, ridicule and contempt, for we are on the threshold of Realities, and a little perfume from the garden of the Holy One has already gladdened our nostrils.

Such meaning it is most difficult to express. But where I can, I have indicated it in the Notes, in the Commentary, and with the help of the rhythm and the elevated language of the Text.

The Arabic Text I have had printed from photographic blocks made for me by Master Muhammad Sharif. The calligraphy is from the pen of Pir 'Abdul Hamid, with whom I have been in touch and who has complied with my desire for a bold round hand, with the words clearly separated, the vowel points accurately placed over or under the letters to which they relate, and the verses duly numbered and placed in juxtaposition with their English equivalents. Calligraphy occupies an important place in Muslim Art, and it is my desire that my version should not in any way be deficient in this respect.

I have been fortunate in securing the co-operation of Professor Zafar Iqbal in looking over the proofs of the Arabic Text. In connection with the Anjuman's edition of the Arabic Qur-an he has devoted much time and thought to the correct punctuation of the Text, and he has also investigated its history and problems. I hope he will some day publish these valuable notes. I have been privileged to see the Anjuman's Text before its formal publication. I consider it the most carefully prepared Text of any produced in India, and I have generally followed it in punctuation and the numbering of verses,—the only points on which any difficulties are likely to arise on the Quranic Text.

It has been my desire to have the printing done in the best style possible, with new type, on good glazed paper, and with the best ink procurable. I hope the result will please those who are good enough to approve of the more essential features of the work. The proprietors of the Ripon Press and all their staff, but especially Mr. Badruddin Badr, their Proof Examiner, have taken a keen interest in their work. The somewhat unusual demands made on their time and attention they have met cheerfully, and I am obliged to them. The publisher, Shaikh Muhammad Ashraf, has thrown himself heart and soul into his work, and I hope the public will appreciate his efforts.

My plan is to issue each  $Sip\bar{a}ra$  as it is ready, at intervals of not more than three months. As the work proceeds, I hope it will be possible to accelerate the pace. The paging will be continuous in the subsequent volumes. The final binding will be in either three or two volumes. It is my intention to provide a complete analytical Index to the whole. I hope all interested will sign the publisher's subscription order in advance.

One final word to my readers. Read, study, and digest the Holy Book. Read slowly, and let it sink into your heart and soul. Such study will, like virtue, be its own reward. If you find anything in this volume to criticise, please let it not spoil your enjoyment of the rest. If you write to me, quoting chapter and verse, I shall be glad to consider your criticism, but let it not vex you if I exercise my own judgment in deciding for myself. Any corrections accepted will be gratefully acknowledged. On the other hand, if there is something that specially pleases you or helps you, please do not hesitate to write to me. I have given up other interests to help you. It will be a pleasure to know that my labour has not been in vain. If you address me care of my Publisher at his Lahore address, he will always forward the letters to me.

PREFACE TO THIRD EDITION, 1938

BESIDES the names which I mentioned in my Preface of 1934, of those who have assisted me in various ways, I have much pleasure in adding a few more at this stage. Khan Şaḥib Khwaja Laṭīf Aḥmad, of the Central Provinces Educational Service, has been a diligent and critical reader of the Parts as issued, and his friendly correspondence has enabled me to correct misprints and elucidate some points. Mr. Fadhl Muḥammad Khan, I.F.S., of Lahore, as well as Mian Muhammad 'Abdullah, B.A., LL.B., of Lahore, have also been helpful in pointing out misprints. Maulvi Muhammad Shafī', Principal of the Oriental College, Lahore, has been good enough to answer most readily my queries on questions of scholarship referred to him. To these and other gentlemen, who have favoured me with correspondence, I have much pleasure in expressing my obligation.

The zeal and energy which my publisher, Shaikh Muhammad Ashraf, has thrown into the work, require renewed acknowledgement. For four years he and I have co-operated in a great undertaking, and all processes connected with it have been carried out by loving Muslim hands.

Since I last greeted my readers collectively I have been able to perform the Pilgrimage to the holy city of Mecca and the sacred territory around it and seen with my own eyes the city and territory of Medina, with all the country around and between the holy Cities. I have realised for myself the scenes in which the revelations came which I have humbly sought to interpret. I hope that some glimpses of this experience will have been conveyed to my dear readers. Will they pray that God may give me strength to complete this work and to serve Islam in other ways?

COMMENTARIES ON THE QUR-AN

QURANIC literature is so voluminous that no single man can compass a perusal of the whole. Besides the extant works there were innumerable works written for special groups of people or from special points of view or for special purposes, which have perished. And more works are being added every day. The activity in this line has never been greater than it is now.

There is no Book in the world in whose service so much talent, so much labour, so much time and money have been expended as has been the case with the Quran. A mere glance at Imam Suyūṭī's (d. 911 H.) Itqān or Ḥājī Khalīfa's (d. 1059 H.) Kashf-uṣ-ṣunūn will show the encyclopædic volume of the Quranic sciences in their day.

Since then the volume has continued to go on increasing, although it must be admitted that the quality of the later literature on the subject leaves much to be desired. With the retrogression of the Islamic nations in original work in science, art, and philosophy, and the concomitant limitation in their outlook and experience in various phases of intellectual and spiritual life, has come a certain limitation in the free spirit of research and enquiry. The new Renaissance of Islam which is just beginning will, it is hoped, sweep away cobwebs and let in the full light of reason and understanding:

The need for an explanation of the verses of the Qur-an arose quite early. Even before the whole of the Qur-an was revealed, people used to ask the Apostle all sorts of questions as to the meaning of certain words in the verses revealed, or of their bearing on problems as they arose, or details of certain historical or spiritual matters on which they sought more light. The Apostle's answers were carefully stored in the memory of the Companions (as-hab) and were afterwards written down. In the next generation, the Tābi'in, were those who had not personally conversed with the Apostle, like the Companions, but had conversed with the Companions and learned from them. Subsequent generations always went back to establish a chain of evidence through the Tabi'in and the Companions. Through them grew up the science of Hadith or Traditions. As this literature grew, it became necessary to establish strict rules by which the evidence could be examined and tested, so as to separate that which was considered to be established from that which was doubtful or weak, and that which was to be rejected as unproved. In the evolution of the science of Hadith, it became clear that even among the Companions certain persons had better memories than others, or better opportunities of becoming really acquainted with the Apostle's true meaning, or in other ways, a better title to be called true expositors, and the number of such persons came to be limited to ten only. Similarly the claims of the Tābi'īn came to be examined and graded, and so Thus arose a new science, in which the names and positions of persons in Hadith literature were examined biographically and in other ways.

The Hadith literature dealt with all sorts of matters, including Theology, Ethics, and Exegesis (explanation of the Qur-an). Exegesis soon became an independent science by itself and was called Tafsīr, and the sphere of Tafsīr itself began to widen as the experience and knowledge of the Arabs and Arabic writers began to increase. Besides the examination of correct traditions from various kinds and grades of authorities, it began to examine the meaning of words philologically, collecting a vast amount of learning as to root meanings, the usage of the Quraish tribe of Arabs, to which the Apostle belonged, the usage and meaning of words in the purest original Arabic before it became mixed up with foreign idioms and usages by the use of the Arabic language by non-Arabs in Islam, and by the influence of the enormous geographical expansion of the Arab race in the first few centuries of Islam. The increasing knowledge of history and of Jewish and Christian legends enabled the Commentators to illustrate the Text of the Holy Book with reference to these. Sometimes the amount of Jewish stuff (some of it absurd), which found its way into the Commentaries, was out of all proportion to its importance and relevance, and gave rise to the legend, which has been exploited by polemical Christian and Jewish writers, that Islam was built up on an imperfect knowledge of Christianity and Judaism, or that it accepts as true the illustrative legends from the Talmud or the Midrash or various fantastic schools of Christianity. Then came philosophy and the mystic doctrine of the Sufi schools. The development of the science of kalām (built on formal logic), and its further offshoot the 'llm-ul-'Aqaid (the philosophical exposition of the grounds of our belief) introduced further elements on the intellectual side, while Taawi! (esoteric exposition of the hidden or inner meaning) introduced elements on the spiritual side, based on a sort of transcendental intuition of the expositor. The Sūfi mystics at least adhered to the rules of their own Orders, which were very strict. But many of the non-Sufi writers on Taawil indulged in an amount of licence in interpretation which has rightly called forth a protest on the part of the more sober 'Ulama.

For my part I agree with this protest. While freely reserving the right of individual judgment on the part of every earnest writer, I think the art of interpretation must stick as closely as possible to the text which it seeks to interpret. Every serious writer and thinker has a right to use all the knowledge and experience he possesses in the service of the Quran. But he must not mix up his own theories and conclusions, however reasonable, with the interpretation of the Text itself, which is usually perfectly perspicuous, as it claims it to be. Our difficulties in interpretation often arise from various causes, of which I will mention just a few:

- (1) Arabic words in the Text have acquired other meanings than those which were understood by the Apostle and his Companions. All living languages undergo such transformations. The early Commentators and Philologists went into these matters with a very comprehensive grasp, and we must accept their conclusions. Where they are not unanimous, we must use our judgment and historic sense in adopting the interpretation of that authority, which appeals to us most. We must not devise new verbal meanings.
- (2) Even since the early Commentators wrote, the Arabic language has further developed, and later Commentators often abandon the interpretations of earlier Commentators without sufficient reason. In exercising our selective judgment in such cases it would be a good rule to prefer the earlier to the later interpretation, though, where a later writer has reviewed the earlier interpretations and given good reasons for his own view, he has an advantage which we must freely concede to him.
- (3) Classical Arabic has a vocabulary in which the meaning of each root-word is so comprehensive that it is difficult to interpret it in a modern analytical language word for word, or by the use of the same word in all places where the original word occurs in the Text. A striking example is furnished by the word Sabr, about which see my notes on ii. 45 and ii. 153. Even though one particular shade of meaning may be predominant in any particular passage, the others are latent. So in a ray of light, when a prism analyses it, we may look at a portion of the field where a particular colour predominates, but other colours do not escape our glance. An Arabic word is often a full ray of light; when a translator looks at it through the prism of a modern analytical language, he misses a great deal of its meaning by confining his attention to one particular colour. European translators have often failed in this respect and sometimes even been landed in absurdities because these delicate rich tones are not studied in their languages or literatures, and they do not look for them or appreciate them in the best examples of Oriental style. If they despise them or think them fantastic, they had best leave the interpretation of Oriental literatures alone. This is all the more so in religious or spiritual literature. No human language can possibly be adequate for the expression of the highest spiritual thought. Such thought must be expressed symbolically in terse and comprehensive words, out of which people will perceive just as much light and colour as their spiritual eyes are capable of perceiving. It is possible that their prism will only show them a dark blue while a whole glorious symphony of colours is hidden from their eyes. And so it comes about that through the prism of a clever English translation, poor 'Umar (Omar) Khayyam emerges as a sensualist and cynic who sees no higher purpose in life than drinking wine, dallying with women, and holding up his hands in despair at "this sorry scheme of things entire." And so the parables of stern morality in the Qur-an, its mystic earnestness, and its pictures of future beatitude are distorted into idle fables, incoherent effusions, and a sensual paradise!

- (4) An opposite error sometimes arises because in certain matters the rich vocabulary of the Qur-an distinguishes between things and ideas of a certain kind by special words, for which there is only a general word in English. Instances are: Rahmān and Rahām (Most Merciful); see i. 1. n.; afā, safaha, gafara (to forgive); see ii. 109 n.; and the various words for Creation; see ii. 117 n. The fact is that it gives us a very limited idea of God's Mercy, when we only use the English word "mercy": the Quranic idea implies not only pity and forgiveness but the Grace which protects us and keeps us from sin, and indeed guides us to the light of His "Countenance." So the "forgiveness" of God is a thing totally different in quality from the forgiveness which a man can give to his brother man: the equation implied in "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those that trespass against us" is a misleading fallacy. So, again, "Creation" is not just a simple process done by God at some remote time and finished with: the Quranic idea implies various processes and the continuous presence and activity of God in His Creation.
- (5) God's purpose is eternal, and His plan is perfect, but man's intelligence is limited at its very best. In the same individual it grows and declines according to the strength of his powers and the width of his experience. If we take mankind collectively the variations are even greater from age to age and from people to people. There is thus no finality in human interpretation. And in the thing interpreted—God's Creation—there is constant flux and change. So that the impact of the one on the other must yield diverse results. The view of Kunchinjunga must vary infinitely according to the position of the observer, even if Kunchinjunga remained the same. But if Kunchinjunga itself varies, there is a double cause of variation in the view. So I believe in progressive interpretation, in the need for understanding and explaining spiritual matters from different angles. The difficulties that confront me may not be the same as those that confront you. The problems which our age has to meet may not be the same as the problems which puzzled earnest minds of the fourth or sixth or later centuries of the Hijra. Therefore it is no merit to hug the solutions offered in the fourth or sixth centuries when our souls cry out in hunger for solace in the fourteenth century of the Hijra.

The distinction drawn by Commentators between matters of report (manqulāt) and matters of judgment (ma'qūlāt) is a sound one, and I heartily accept it. But I would extend the scope of the ma'qūlāt far beyond questions of idiom and meaning. In the former the issues are: what actually happened, or what was actually said, or how were certain things done? Here the closer we go back to contemporary authority, the better. In the latter, the issues are: what is the bearing of this truth on our lives, or what illustration helps us best to grasp this, or what is the wisdom we can extract from this? In such matters, the closer we come to our own circumstances and experiences, the better. It is not only our right but our duty to seek honestly our own solutions, and while we respect authority, we must not neglect or despise the gifts which God has accumulated for us through the ages.

The principles on which I have worked may be briefly stated. In matters of philology and language I accept the best authority among those who were competent to deal with these questions: the older the better. In matters of narration, contemporary authorities are best, subject to such corrections as have to be applied for their points of view. As to the particular occasions on which particular verses were revealed, the information is interesting and valuable from a historical point of view, and our older writers have collected ample material for it. But to lay too much stress on it to-day puts the picture out of all perspective. The Qur-an was not revealed for a particular occasion only, but for all time. The particular occasion is now past. Our chief interest now is to see how it can guide us in our present lives. Its meaning is so manifold, and when tested, it is so true, that we should be wise to concentrate on the matters that immediately help us. So in nature plants seek out of the soil just that food which gives them nourishment. There is plenty of other food left in the soil, which other plants take, which can digest it. In matters of remote history or folk lore, we must take the results of the latest researches. In interpreting Jewish or Christian legends or beliefs we must go to Jewish or Christian sources, but by way of illustration only, not in the direction of incorporating such beliefs or systems. Though they were true in their original purity, we are not sure of the form which they subsequently took, and in any case the fuller light of the sun obscures the lesser light of the stars.

In the application of spiritual truths to our own times and our own lives, we must use every kind of knowledge, science, and experience which we possess, but we must not obtrude irrelevant matter into our discussions. Let us take simple examples. When we speak of the rising of sun in the east, we do not go on to reconcile the expression with the Copernican system of astronomy. What we mean is as true under the Copernican system as it was under the Ptolemæic system. When we speak of the endless plains of India, we are not put on our defence because the earth is round. Nor will such poetic expressions as the seven firmaments raise questions as to the nature of space in modern astronomy. Man's intellect is given to him to investigate the nature of the physical world around him. He forms different conceptions of it at different times. Spiritual truths are quite independent of the question which of these conceptions are true. They deal with matters which are beyond the ken of physical science. In explaining or illustrating them we shall use such language as is current among the people to whom we speak.

Let me set out the names of the most important Tafsīrs, especially those to which I have from time to time referred. They are not, however, in any sense my authorities. They belong to widely different schools of thought, and some of them express extreme views with which I do not agree. I only adopt the general sense of accepted Commentaries.

- (1) The monumental work of Abū Ja'far Muhammad Ibn Jarir Tabarī, d. 310 H A perfect mine of historical information, as the author was both a historian and a Traditionist. Copies are not easily accessible.
- (2) The Mufradat, a dictionary of difficult words and phrases in the Qur-an, by Abul-Qasim Husain Ragib, of Ispahan, d. 503 H. Also explains allusions.
- (3) The Kashshāf, by Abul-Qasim Maḥmūd Zamakhsharš, of Khwārism, d. 538 H. Very full in the explanation of words and idioms; takes a decidedly rational and ethical view of doctrine. Numerous Commentaries have been written on this Commentary.
- (4) Tafsīr Kabīr, by Fakhr-ud-din Muhammad Rāsī, d. 606 H. Very comprehensive. Strong in interpretations from a Sūfī or spiritual point of view.
- (5) Anwar-ut-Tanzil, by Qadhi Nasīr-ud-dīn Abū Şa'id Baidhāwi, d. 685 H. Has drawn largely from the Mufradāt, the Kashshāf, and the Tafsir Kabir, but incorporates a good deal of original matter. A very popular Commentary, on which again numerous Commentaries have been written.
- (6) The Tafsīr of Abul-Fida Isma'il Ibn Kathīr, d. 774 H. Voluminous, but has great authority among the 'Ulama.
- (7) Itqān fī 'ulūm-il-Qur ān, by Jalal-ud-dīn Snyūtī, d. 911 H. A comprehensive review of the sciences of the Qur-an, being an introduction to his Majma'-ul-Bahrain.

- (8) Tafsīr Jalālain.—Written by the two Jalāl-ud-dīns, one of whom was the author of the liqān, mentioned above, d. 911 H. A concise and meritorious Commentary, on which again a number of Commentaries have been written.
- (9) Our country has produced some notable scholars in the realm of Tafsīr. They wrote in Arabic and Persian, and the latter ones have written in Urdu.

The earliest I can trace is Shaikh 'Alī Ibn Aḥmad Mahāimī (of Māhim, near Bombay), d. 835 H. = 1432 A.D., author of the Tafsīr Rahmānī. Almost contemporary with him was 'Allāma Shams-ud-dīn, of Daulatābād and Delhi, who lived during the brilliant reign of Ibrāhīm Sharqī of Jaunpur (1400—1440 A.D.). He wrote in Persian. During the nineteenth century, the famous Muhaddith of Delhi, Shāh Walī-ullāh, and his two sons Shāh 'Abdul 'Azīz (d. 1824) and Shāh 'Abdul Qādir (d. 1826) wrote both translations and Commentaries. Shāh 'Abdul 'Azīz wrote in Persian and Shāh 'Abdul Qādir in Urdu. The Urdu Commentary of Sir Sayyid Aḥmad Khān of 'Alīgarh (d. 1898) has not met the approval of the 'Ulamā. On the other hand the more recent Urdu Commentary of Maulvi 'Abdul Haqq, the Tafsīr Haqqānī, has passed through several editions, is quite modern in tone and manageable in bulk, and is widely circulated in India. I have derived much instruction from it and have used it constantly. The Commentary of Maulvi Abul Kalām Āzād has been planned on a spacious scale and has not yet been finished.

- (10) The Modernist school in Egypt got a wise lead from the late Shaikh Muhammad 'Abduh (d. 1323 H. = 1905 A.D.), whose unfinished Commentary is being completed by Muḥammad Rashīd Ridhā, the talented editor of the Manār newspaper. The work of Shaikh Tantāwī, Jauharī, a pupil of 'Abduh, finds the "jewels" of the Qur-ān and of the sciences mutually illuminative, and suggests many new lines of thought. 'Allāma Farīd Wajdī is also spoken of as a good modern Commentator: I have not yet been able to get a copy of his work.
- (11) It has been said that the Qur-an is its own best Commentary. As we proceed with the study of the Book, we find how true this is. A careful comparison and collation of passages from the Qur-an removes many difficulties. Use a good Concordance, such as the one I have named among the Works of Reference, and you will find that one passage throws light on another.

A ...

ALMOST all languages spoken by Muslims have translations of the Our-an in them. Usually the Text is printed with the Translation. If the language is undeveloped, many of the Arabic words of the Our-an are taken over bodily into it for want of corresponding words in the language. Even in cultivated languages like Persian or Turkish, the introduction of religious terms from Arabic gave a body of words which were common to the whole Islamic world, and thus cemented that unity of the Muslim Brotherhood which is typified by the Qibla. Where the notion itself is new to the speakers of polished languages, they are glad to borrow the Arabic word expressing that notion and all the associations connected with it. word is Qibla. Where the language is undeveloped, the translation is nothing more than a rough explanation of the Arabic Text. The translation has neither grammatical finish nor a form which can stand independently by itself. That is what happened with the earlier Urdu translations. They were really rough explanations. The ambition of every learned Muslim is to read the Qur-an in Arabic. The ambition of every Muslim is to read the sounds of the Arabic Text. I wish that his or her ambition were also to understand the Qur-an, either in Arabic or in the mother tongue or some well-developed tongue which he or she understands. Hence the need for good and accurate translations.

The translations into non-European languages known to me are: Persian, Turkish, Urdu, Tamil (used by Moplas), Pashto (for Afghans), Bengali, Malay, some of the languages of the Eastern Archipelago, and some of the African languages. I believe there is also a Chinese (dialectical) translation.

The earliest Urdu translation was by Shah 'Abdul Qadir of Delhi (d 1826). He has already been mentioned among the Indian Commentators. Since then numerous Urdu translations have followed, some of which have been left incomplete. Among the complete ones, much used at the present day, may be mentioned those of Shah Rafi'-ud-dīn of Delhi, Shah Ashraf 'Alī Thanawī, and Maulvi Nazīr Ahmad (d. 1912). Personally I prefer the last. The projected Urdu translation by Hakim

Ahmad Shuja' has not yet been published.

Before the development of the modern European vernaculars, the cultivated language of Europe was Latin. A Latin translation was made for the Monastery of Clugny about 1143 (in the sixth century of the Hijra) but not published till 1543. The place of publication was Basle and the publisher Bibliander. This was translated into Italian, German, and Dutch. Schweigger's German translation was published at Nurenburg (Bavaria) in 1616. A French translation by Du Ryer was published at Paris in 1647, and a Russian one at St. Petersburg in 1776. Savary's French translation appeared in 1783, and Kasimirski's French translation (which has passed through several editions) first appeared in 1840, the French interest in Islam having been stimulated by French conquests in Algeria and North Africa. The Germans have followed up Schweigger with Boysen's translation in 1773, Wahl's in 1828, and Ullmann's (first edition in 1840). I believe the Ahmadlya Association of Lahore have in hand a fresh translation into German and Dutch.

Meanwhile Maracci had produced in 1689 a Latin version of the Qur-an with the Arabic Text and quotations from various Arabic Commentaries, carefully selected and garbled, so as to give the worst possible impression of Islam to Europe. Maracci was a learned man, and there is no pretence about the object he had in view, vis., to discredit Islam by an elaborate show of quotations from Muslim authorities themselves. Maracci was himself a Confessor to Pope Innocent XI; his work is dedicated to the holy Roman Emperor Leopold I; and he introduces it by an introductory volume containing what he calls a "Refutation of the Qur-an."

The first English translation by A. Ross was but a translation of the first French translation of Du Ryer of 1647, and was published a few years after Du Ryer's. George Sale's translation (1734) was based on Maracci's Latin version, and even his notes and his Preliminary Discourse are based mainly on Maracci. Considering that Maracci's object was to discredit Islam in the eyes of Europe, it is remarkable that Sale's translation should be looked upon as a standard translation in the English speaking world, and should pass through edition after edition, being even included in the series called the Chandos Classics and receiving the benediction of Sir E. Denison Ross. The Rev. J. M. Rodwell arranged the Sūras in a rough chronological order. His translation was first published in 1861. Though he tries to render the idiom fairly, his notes show the mind of a Christian clergyman, who was more concerned to "show up" the Book than to appreciate or expound its beauties. Prof. E. H. Palmer's translation (first published in 1876) suffers from the idea that the Qur-an ought to be translated into colloquial language. He failed to realise the beauty and grandeur of style in the original Arabic. To him that style was "rude and rugged": we may more justifiably call his translation careless and slipshod. The amount of mischief done by these versions of non-Muslim and anti-Muslim writers has led Muslim writers to venture into the field of English transla-The first Muslim to undertake an English translation was Dr. Muhammad 'Abdul Hakim Khan, of Patiala, 1905. Mīrza Hairat of Delhi also published a translation, (Delhi 1919): the Commentary which he intended to publish in a separate volume of Introduction was, as far as I know, never published. My dear friend, the late Nawwab 'Imad ul-Mulk Saiyid Husain Bilgrami of Hyderabad, Deccan. translated a portion, but he did not live to complete his work. The Ahmadīya Sect has also been active in the field. Its Qadiyan Anjuman published a version of the Apparently no more was published. Its Lahore Anjuman has first Sipāra in 1915. published Maulvi Muhammad 'Alī's translation (first edition in 1917), which has passed through more than one edition. It is a scholarly work, and is equipped with adequate explanatory matter in the notes and the Preface, and a fairly full Index. But the English of the Text is decidedly weak, and is not likely to appeal to those who know no Arabic. There are two other Muslim translations of great merit. But they have been published without the Arabic Text. Hafiz Gulam Sarwar's translation (published in 1930 or 1929 deserves to be better known than it is. He has provided fairly full summaries of the Sūras, section by section, but he has practically no notes to his Text. I think such notes are necessary for a full understanding of the Text. In many cases the Arabic words and phrases are so pregnant of meaning that a Translator would be in despair unless he were allowed to explain all that he understands by them. Mr. Marmaduke Pickthall's translation was published in 1930. He is an English Muslim, a literary man of standing, and an Arabic scholar. But he has added very few notes to elucidate the Text. His rendering is "almost literal": it can hardly be expected that it can give an adequate idea of a Book which (in his own words) can be described as "that inimitable symphony the very sounds of which move men to tears and ecstasy." Perhaps the attempt to catch something of that symphony in another language is impossible. Greatly daring, I have made that attempt. We do not blame an artist who tries to catch in his picture something of the glorious light of a spring landscape.

The English language being widely spread over the world, many people interested in Islam will get their ideas of the Qur-an from English translations. It is good that qualified Muslims should make the attempt to present the picture which their own mental and spiritual vision presents to themselves. The Indian educational system has enthroned English as the common language of culture for a population of 350 millions. The most educated of its 80 millions of Muslimsunless they know Arabic-look to English as the most cultivated medium of expression. Their non-Muslim fellow countrymen judge—usually misjudge—their religion by the material which is available to them in English. We should improve and increase this material as much as we can and from as many points of view as we can. Some Muslim nations-like the Turks-have now determined to provide their religious literature (including the Holy Book) in their own national language. In order to keep them in touch with the thought and points of view of their brethren in faith, the English language would under present conditions be the most convenient medium. These are the considerations which have moved me to undertake the stupendous task of providing an English Interpretation of the Qur-an. I pray for strength and light, so that I may be enabled to succeed in this service to Islam.

USEFUL WORKS OF REFERENCE

THE wide compass of the Qur-an makes it necessary to consult works of reference on almost every conceivable subject, to enable us to elucidate the various points that arise. To deal adequately with such a Book, the widest reading is necessary as well as the most varied experience in life. But the interests of readers require that a handy Commentary should not roam too far afield. Bearing this in view the three essential kinds of books would be: (a) Previous Commentaries; (b) previous Translations; (c) Dictionaries and General Works of Reference, easily accessible. I have set out (a) and (b) in the previous two Notes. I note a few under (c):—

- 1. Imam Abul-Qasim Husain Ragib's Mufradat: a concise Arabic dictionary of words and phrases in the Qur-an. Already mentioned under Commentaries.
  - 2. The well-known Arabic Dictionary, Qāmūs.
  - 3. The well-known Arabic Dictionary, Lisan-ul-'Arab.
  - 4. The concise Arabic-Perisan Dictionary, Şurāh.
  - 5. J. Penrice's Dictionary & Glossary of the Koran.
  - 6. E. W. Lane: English-Arabic Lexicon.
- 7. Imam Jalal-ud dīn Suyūṭī's ltqān fī 'ulūm-il-Qur-ān: a veritable encyclopædia of Quranic sciences.
- 8. Nöldeke und Schwally: Geschichte des Qorans. A German Essay on the Chronology of the Quran. Its criticisms and conclusions are from a non-Muslim point of view and to us not always acceptable, though it is practically the last word of European scholarship on the subject.
- 9. Encyclopædia of Islam. Nearly completed. Very unequal in its various parts.
- 10. Encyclopædia Britannica, 14th edition. A great advance on previous editions, as regards the attention it devotes to Arabic learning.
  - 11. Hughes's Dictionary of Islam. Out of date, but still useful.
  - 12. Ibn Hisham: Sirat-ur-Rasul. A fairly detailed Life of the Apostle.
- 13. Maulvi Shibli Nu'mani (d. 1914=1334 H.): Sīrat-un-Nabī (an Urdu Life of the Apostle).
- 14. Fath-ur-Rahmān, an Arabic Concordance to the Qur-an, by Faidh-ullah Bik Hasanī, printed in Cairo in 1346 H. Full and well arranged, and easy to use.

TRANSLITERATION OF ARABIC WORDS AND NAMES

THE following table shows the system which I have followed in transliterating the letters of the Arabic alphabet:—

ا ا	Consonantal   sound	a	ط ظ	••••••••	t z
1	Long vowel*	ā	ع	*	(Inverted apostrophe)
ب		b	ع ِ	•••••••••••••••••••••••••••••••••••••••	g
ت	•••••	t	ت		f
ث		th	ق	••••	q
હ		j	ک		k
		ķ	J		1
てさる		kh	٠		m
ડે		d	ن		n
ذ		Ż	8 30		h
•		r	9	consonant	w
i		z	9	long vowel*	ũ
س		s	و	diphthong	au
ش	*	sh	ي	consonant	у
ص		ş	ي	long vowel*	ī
ض		dh	ي	diphthong	ai
	Short vowels	s: -/-	(fatha)"	ą
			(kasra)	i
			(dhamma)	u	-

- 1. For the hamzā (e) I have used no distinctive sign. An apostrophe for it and an inverted apostrophe for the 'ain (e), or vice versa, is confusing to English readers. As a moved consonant, it is sufficiently shown in English by the long or short vowel which moves it, e.g., ab, Raūf. Where it is a hiatus preceded by a fatha, I have shown it by a second a: thus, Iqraa, the cave of Hiraa. In other cases it has not been possible to show it without using a distinctive sign. The name of the Holy Book is usually written Qurān; but I prefer to write Qurān.
- 2. The final h preceded by the short a is scarcely pronounced, and I have left it out. Hence Sūra, Fātiḥa, Hijra, etc., where the Arabic spelling would require Sūrah, Fātiḥah, Hijrah, etc.
- 3. In internationalised words and names I have used the spelling ordinarily current in English; e.g., Mecca, Medina, Maulvi, Urdu, Islam, Israel, Abraham, Jacob. Here the boundary is thin and rather ill-defined, and possibly my practice and that of my proof-readers have not been absolutely uniform.
- 4. Some names, e.g., Ishmael, Hagar, etc., have acquired a contemptuous association in their European forms, while the persons they represent are sacred personages held in great honour in Islam. I have, therefore, avoided the European forms and used the Arabic forms, Isma'il, Hajar, etc.
- *Where it is really pronounced long. Hence khalaqnā-kum but khalaqnal-insān; Abū Sufyān but Abul-Qāsim; fin-nār but fī-hi.

PUNCTUATION MARKS IN THE ARABIC TEXT

THE punctuation marks in the Arabic Text have been worked out by our 'Ulama with great care and minute attention to details. The earliest manuscripts had few or no punctuation marks. Their growth and development furnish an interesting history, on which I hope Professor Zafar Iqbal, who has gone into the question, will publish his notes. In classical Europe, Greek had practically no punctuation marks. Later Latin had one or two rudimentary ones. In modern Europe they developed with printing. Aldus Manutius (16th century) was the first to work out a regular system. The Muslims were much earlier in the field for Quranic purposes, although in current Urdu, Persian, or Arabic, punctuation is not a strong point.

Quranic punctuation is an elaborate system, in which three kinds of marks are used. First, there are marks to show the variations in the systems of Qiraat. The most important of these is what is known as the Mu'anaga معانقه. This literally means the action of two persons embracing each other shoulder to shoulder, as in the ceremonious salute at the celebration of 'Id. The technical meaning in connection with the Quranic text is that a certain word or expression so marked can be construed as going either with the words or expressions preceding it or with those following it. The word or expression in question is indicated by three dots .; placed before and after it, above other punctuation marks if any. An example will be found in ii. 2, where the word fi-hi may be construed either as referring to the word raib in the preceding clause, or to the word hudan in the succeeding clause. constructions are admissible. Passages where such constructions occur are indicated in the margin of the Arabic Text: by the abbreviation e, where this was worked out in full, where it معانقه in full, where it was worked out by the later Commentators (Mutaakhkhirīn). The numeral above it shows the serial number of the Mu'anaga of each series.

Secondly, there are marginal marks showing division into sections or paragraphs. These are denoted by the letter 'ain (2) in the margin, and are explained under the heading "Divisions of the Qur an."

Thirdly, there are the ordinary punctuation marks in the Text. A knowledge of the most important of these is necessary for an intelligent reading of the Text. Most important of all is a big circle  $\bigcirc$  to denote the end of one Ayat and the beginning of another. If the end of the Ayat is not also the end of a sentence, the mark of a smaller stop is put above it. Where one mark is put on the top of another, the former governs the latter. A warning not to stop is denoted by  $\lor$ . The letter  $\searrow$  (lāzim) shows that a stop is absolutely necessary; otherwise the sense is spoilt. This is so important that it is also shown prominently in the margin as  $\circlearrowright$   $\circlearrowright$   $\circlearrowleft$   $\circlearrowleft$   $\circlearrowleft$   $\circlearrowleft$   $\circlearrowright$   $\circlearrowright$   $\circlearrowright$   $\circlearrowright$  the sense is not spoiled. There are other marks to show the extent to which a stop is permissible, e.g., for taking breath, etc., or where option is allowed, whether it is better to stop or not to stop. The letter  $\searrow$  (muflaq) denotes a full stop, i.e., the end of a sentence, but not the end of an argument, as in the case of a paragraph or section ( $\lozenge$ ).

DIVISIONS OF THE QUR-AN

The reading of the Qur-an is considered a pious duty by every Muslim and is actually performed in practice by every literate person, man, woman, and child. For the convenience of those who wish to complete the whole reading in a given time, the whole Text is divided into thirty equal parts, or seven equal parts. The thirtieth Part is called juz-un in Arabic, and  $S\bar{\imath}p\bar{a}ra$  or simply  $P\bar{a}ra$  in Persian and Urdu. If you read a  $S\bar{\imath}p\bar{a}ra$  every day, you complete the whole reading in a month of thirty days. The seventh part is called a Manzil. If one is read every day, the whole is completed in a week. Usually the arithmetical quarters of a  $S\bar{\imath}p\bar{a}ra$  (one-fourth, one-half, three quarters) are also marked in the Arabic copies as Ar-rub,  $An-ni\bar{\imath}f$ , and  $Ath-thal\bar{a}tha$ .

According to subject-matter, the division is different. The whole of the Qur-an is arranged in 114 Sūras of very unequal size. The Sūras are numbered and the consecutive number is shown just before the title of the Sūra, both in Arabic and English. In Arabic, the figure just after the title shows the chronological order as usually accepted by Muslim writers. Each Sūra consists of a number of Ayats. Sūra I contains 7 Āyats and Sūra II contains 286. For the meaning of Sūra and Ayat see C. 42 nn. 15-17. The most convenient form of quotation is to name the Sūra and the Āyat: thus ii. 120 means the 120th Āyat of the second Sūra. A Sūra is usually spoken of as a Chapter in English, but that translation is hardly satisfactory. If you examine the order you will find that each Sūra is a step in a gradation. I have left the word untranslated, as a technical term in our religious literature. The Āyat or verse division is usually determined by the rhythm and cadence in the Arabic Text. Sometimes an Āyat contains many sentences. Sometimes a sentence is divided by a break in an Āyat. But usually there is a pause in meaning at the end of an Āyat.

A division of the Sūra into Sections is shown in all Arabic Texts. These are logical divisions according to meaning. The word translated "Section" is in Arabic  $Ruk\bar{u}'$ , a "bowing of the head" The end of a  $Ruk\bar{u}'$  is shown in Arabic by . Usually three figures are written with  $\varepsilon$ . The top figure shows the number of Rukū's completed in that Sūra. The middle figure shows the number of Ayats in the Rukū' just completed. The bottom figure shows the number of Rukū's completed in that Sīpāra, irrespective of Sūras. For example, the first  $\varepsilon$  in Sīpāra II which continues Sūra II from Sīpāra I is usually marked  $\xi$ . It means that at that point 17 Rukū's of Sūra II have been completed, that the Rukū' of which it marks the close contains 6 Āyats, and that it is the first Rukū' that falls in Sīpāra II. I have further marked the sub-division of Rukū's into shorter paragraphs where necessary, by using in the English text a bold flowery Initial: e.g., see the initial in ii. 6 or the initial in ii. 35.
